Mayor Fallow Is Re-Elected

Keenest Election Fight in Town's History

Wm A. Fallow, mayor of Vermilion for the past ten years was re-elected to office in the Civic elections on Monday, defeating Carl Heckbert by a majority of 55

The elections were featured by the keenest and hottest mayoralty campaign in the history of the town As a result a heavy vote was cast, and was well on the way to doubling previous record figures of 195 votes for councillors in 1933.

The final standing for Mayor was Fallow 192, Heckbert 137. There was one spoiled ballot. Total vote 330.

For council, Ed. Davies headed the poll followed by Charlie Robinson, Wes Waldenberger and George Webb. The two defeated candidates were J. W. G. Morrison and Dr. W. H. Scott.

Davies was re-elected, Robinson has previous council experience while Waldenberger and Webb are new. Mr Webb was elected for one year to complete the term of S. C. Heckbert who resigned.

The votes polled by each candidate are as follows:

Davies	242
Robinson	234
Waldenberger	227
Webb	178
Morrison	163
Scott	158

There were three spoiled ballots.

Three candidates contested the two vacancies on the school board. Frank Baker was returned with 220 votes and Thos. Watts elected with 211. Al Clarke was the "also ran" with 191. The three boards did very well indeed.

WILDMERE WINKS

Our deepest sympathy goes out to Mr. and Mrs. Howson of Basswood on the loss so suddenly by diphtheria of their little daughter Joan. Little Joan was "Miss" for her age but a delightful, smart pupil at school and be loved by all her playmates who will miss her when school reopens again She leaves besides her sorrowing parents one sister Mary, and little brother Willie. Dr. Knoll closed the school for two weeks, providing no more cases break out, and now visits all the children as well as some in Thorn-lffe district.

Alice Gibson was confined to bed with a sore throat but Dr. Knoll pronounced it tonsilitis which relieved a lot of anxious watchers.

The Major Problem

Switzerland perplexed by the multitude of theories advanced as to the cause of it has come the realization that a solution depression and equally puzzled by the many proposed for the many trade suggestions ideas and plans advanced as to its means whereby the depression can be ended and a permanent and effective peace established. People are becoming cautious of the "cure-all" and economic doctors. Moreover, more people are asking themselves whether this very acute problem vital to the welfare of every individual is the work exclusively of the state and the organization of the whole being approached from the right angle.

To a great extent this is the case, asking whether the provision of work for people or the payment of unemployment benefits and suffering in old age is the solution — whether that solution is to be found in the creation of conditions whereby men and women can through their own efforts and in the shortest and simplest route find employment in the trade or profession they know best or whether people are inquiring whether the provision of the state that government maintain it must be left entirely to the trade as all has failed to put out of existence the evils affecting it. Or must we go on and on under the present system instead of making the patient well and capable of caring for himself?

People are thinking and talking whether it is true that just so long as there are private interests operating in order to make profits, even when the welfare of those interests is conflicting in order to make it impossible for them to take measures against the interests and make any provision for their future.

Much information and argument is against the time when their well-being and interests and the business of the world must be carried on with the view to the interests of the people as a whole instead of the few. Many people are thinking that the time has arrived for the introduction of a new system of thought and a new conception in the matter of the management of the world's business — the better. The great truth is making deeper into the minds of men.

There is a certain further comment we quote an editorial article appearing in the current issue of a well-known trade magazine, a publication having no political party affiliations but which discusses Canadian and world topics in a fair and impartial manner. Under the title appearing above it says:

"There are those who are regular or surfeited with economic theories, some ancient and some modern, some untried and some exploded, some good and some condemned, some strong and some still-born, some refreshing like Moreau fascinated from the Isle of Dr. Moreau, others old and decayed, no longer fitted for existence in a changed world, some that promise better times and others that hold out more confusing prospects and others that followed would surely lead to anarchy and chaos ruin. It may be profitable, but probably somewhat three theories at random. Today it is no fit thing that we should concern ourselves with a concrete problem, one that is pressing to be solved, and more serious, and which must be solved if any of the economic theories now in vogue, be founded. Lucrative

The basic industry in Canada is agriculture. Its basic product is agricultural products abroad. The basic need in agriculture is marketing. The basic condition of marketing is exchange values. The basic condition of exchange is opportunity. That is lacking at the present time. For four years we have deliberately closed the doors. We have thereby encouraged countries which might have exchanged goods with us to grow their own grain. Now we are shut out, some people say forever. True of late there has been an attempt to make the market, but there has been no apparent success. An accidental shortage of foodstuffs outside in the United States made it possible to dispose of some surplus products but the granaries are still filled with the surplus. Another bad year, such as 1931, would be disastrous. We must find a way to use the surplus. We must find a way to use the surplus. We must find a way to use the surplus

Vermilion, Alta., Feb. 14, 1935.

A large number of people from both town and country have phoned or called at the Standard office suffering under the misapprehension that an extra publication of this paper was issued on Monday morning.

No doubt the confusion arose from the election sheet issued and circulated by the campaign committee of one of the civic election factions of the town. While this was printed at this office—here we print to live—it was not connected in any way with the weekly Standard. So, dear reader, the edition was not tripping 'you if you did not get a paper on Monday.

A large amount of news material, district hockey, etc., were crowded out this week by a preponderance of correspondence.

A communication from Dr. Scott dealing with certain charges made in the recent western campaign will appear next week. It was absolutely impossible to handle all this material in one issue and the local community was held over.

Mooney-Craig Nuptials Celebrated Here On Tuesday

On Tuesday evening, February 12, First United church, Vermilion, was the scene of an unusually pretty wedding when Miss Jean Eleanor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Craig, Vermilion, became the bride of Mr. Charles Mooney, son of Mr. James Mooney of Islay. Preceding the service, Mrs. Elsie Roberts of Islay sang "Because".

The pastor of the church, the Rev. H. A. Boyd, assisted by Canon Jones of North Battleford, performed the ceremony under an arch of daisy pink flowers and palms.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, was dainty and lovely in a gown of white chiffon velvet, fashioned in simple lines with a slight train and long sleeves. The long flowing veil fell from a juliet cap trimmed in seed pearls and orange blossoms. She carried a gorgeous bouquet of calla lilies and maiden hair fern.

Miss Jean was attended by her sister Kathleen Stewart, matron of honor who was gowned in blue silk velvet with trimmer hat to match, and Miss Agnes Stephens, bridesmaid, gowned in flaming red velvet with trimmed hat to match. They carried bouquets of tailstem roses and fern. The little flower girls the Misses Marjorie West and Helen Houston of Islay, were quaint in pink taffeta frocks and hats with wee satin hats made secure with satin bows caught under their chins. The groom was attended by Mr. Stewart Bothwell of Edmonton, brother of Miss Agnes Stephens, bridesmaid, groomsmen Messrs. Wilfred Craig, brother of the bride, and Mr. E.M. Stewart. The wedding march was played by Miss Claire West, and while the register was being signed Mrs. L. N. McLean sang "All for Thee."

The bride's mother was charming in a gown of Tipperary green silk velvet with a corsage of talisman roses. Mrs. J. C. Mooney was lovely in a gown of ashy-toner velvet and wearing a corsage of tea roses.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the Elks hall, 253 street, attending the hall was nicely arranged with a lounge room, in the centre of which was a bride's table. The wedding cake, which centred the table, was unusually pretty in the light from tall pink tapers. The table was presided over by Mrs. John T. Pyle and Mrs. Bolridge of Islay. Mrs. Baker, Mrs. Knoll, Mrs. Jas. Lipsett and Mrs. Fred Jones presided at the cake; assisting them were Mrs. Weber, Miss Sonia Weber, Vegreville, Mrs. Chappell, North Battleford, Miss Clara Bothwell, Islay, Mrs. Jack Mackenzie, Mrs. Cooper, Islay, the Misses Dorothy Oakley, Leone Wiebe, Mrs. Lomas, Mrs. L. Robertson, Miss Stella Lipsey and Miss Haight.

The toast to the bride was proposed in humorous style by her uncle, Col. W. C. Craig of North Battleford and responded to by the groom.

The young couple left by train to spend their honeymoon in the east where they will enjoy the winter carnival. The bride's travelling costume was a tailored frock of blue clel run with a silver interest, with blue hat and grey accessories.

Following their honeymoon Mr and Mrs. Mooney will make their home in Prince Albert.

Out of town guests were Col. W. C. Craig, Canon Jones, Donald Craig, and Mrs. W. C. Campbell, all from North Battleford, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Duncan, Stewart Bothwell, from Edmonton, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Mooney, Mr. and Mrs. H. Houston and a large number of other friends from Islay and district.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

(This paper does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by correspondents)

Dewberry, Alberta.

Editor, Vermilion Standard.

Dear Sir:—I wish to make it known to All Whom It May Concern, that my family and I are re-assuming the correct spelling of our surname, instead of McDonnell, we shall hereafter use the surname on my birth and baptismal certificates, and beg to subscribe myself,

Yours truly,
RODERICK MacDONELL.

Vermilion, 11th Feb., 1935.

Editor, Vermilion Standard.

Dear Sir—May I again trespass on your valuable space to emphasize a plea for the publication of the proceedings of the Town Council and the School Board.

By the time you receive this communication, the elections will be over, but surely, if all the things which rumour has it, really took place in the council, citizens should have been made aware of them at the time and they should not suddenly appear as a last moment election propaganda.

Which may be politically legitimate but is not ethical.

Yours truly,
"INTERESTED."

EDITOR, THE STANDARD.

May I through your paper extend my sincere thanks to the electors who supported me with their votes on Monday. May I also express my appreciation to the still larger number of electors who felt that I should not be placed on the Council. They saved me a lot of grief and I thank them. Incidentally, may I deny the statement made by His Worship Mayor Fallow to the electors last week that I was an opponent of public ownership, a fact which he alleged was only too well known to the people of Vermilion. I have only to say that I am not now nor ever have been opposed to public ownership. During the six years I was Mayor I worked for the betterment of the utilities which we then had, to the utmost of my ability. I have been opposed to the manner in which the rehabilitament of the electric light plant was carried out, also to the manner in which the rink and the steam heat system were financed. If any one voted against me because of this statement of the Mayor I pity him for his credulity.

Again thanking the electors one and all, I remain,

Yours truly,
J. W. G. MORRISON.

Vermilion, Feb. 13th.

To the Ratepayers of Vermilion:

Mayor Fallow, in a communication in his campaign sheet published on the morning of the municipal election day, states that I might not have an opportunity for reply, criticizes my business relations with the Town of Vermilion. Mr. Fallow's statements were untrue and it is my desire to correct the false impressions left with the electors for the purpose of gaining support at the polls.

Mr. Fallow left the impression that I had obtained my second business from the Town of Vermilion during 1924, it is well known by the people of the town that I purchased the insurance business of the late Mr. W. E. Fuller in September 1923; included in the purchase was certain business with the Town. I wish to state most emphatically that the Town HAS NOT BOUGHT ANY NEW BUSINESS FROM ME SINCE I ENTERED BUSINESS with the exception of Public Liability insurance bought in October 1923 WHEN I WAS NOT A MEMBER OF THE COUNCIL.

On October 1st, 1923, I wrote the Council requesting that they place with the Town annual further damage action for Public Liability Insurance; the matter was discussed in Council and at its regular meeting on October 2nd, 1923, it was moved by Mr. Lamont, seconded by Mr. Wright, that "The Town purchase Public Liability Insurance as soon as possible." This was carried on the following 15th, 1923, through my agency and strictly in accordance with the usual business principles.

Mr. Fallow stated in the Monday issue of his campaign sheet that of the $1171 paid out by the Town in 1924 for fire insurance premiums that I received the sum of $623.00; this is a mis-statement; I received, as agent for a number of Fire Insurance Companies, the sum of $458.20, which was remitted to the Companies less my commission. Another agency in town received the sum of $476.92. This is a matter of record and may be verified on all books of the Town.

Mr. Fallow states that, owing to my activities in the insurance business—I have been in the business seventeen months—my car load agents have not been forced to allow their tax payments to lapse and that they are now in desperate circumstances. It is re-emitted, I think, that all business is on highly competitive and that our prices rendered form the basis for a successful business. It has been my aim since entering business to give service equal to that of any city agency and it success is also attained this effort on my part I am very pleased. Mr. Fallow has removed all his business in recent years and I take it from his remarks that he will be willing to assist his opposition to pay taxes and it will require in the opinion he takes which they otherwise would have lost.

Mr. Fallow made many insinuations against my work as a Councillor and I can only say that I served the Town to the best of my ability, I am sorry if my services were not acceptable to the ratepayers.

Finally may I thank those who supported me during the election the support is sincerely appreciated. I trust that it is essential that all citizens should work together toward the best interests of Vermilion and sincerely regret that a campaign of slander and insinuations was used in our recent election

A REPLY TO CHARGES

In fairness to the ratepayers who elected me to the Town Council a year ago, I feel it my duty to deal briefly and briefly the many charges made against me by Mr. Fallow in last week's issue of the Standard and Monday morning's election literature which reflect on my honesty, integrity and judgment, together with that of each member of the present E.L. & P. committee.

In connection with any changes made in the Power Plant, they were discussed by the E.L. & P. Committee as well as the Council, and if Mr. Fallow thought that they were not right he should have objected to them then.

In the first instance, Mr. Johnson left the Plant on account of illness. Before Mr. Johnson returned to the Plant, engine-valve instruments were secured and tests made of the engines by which it was proved conclusively that the engines were out of adjustment and had been for some considerable length of time. No such tests had been made for years, and in one instance alone the end of the exhaust valve had to have more than 2 16 of an inch ground off to permit it to close. The valve operation as it was explained an opening which amounted to approximately 1½ sq inches which permitted live steam to blow out through the exhaust pipe into the air, requiring much fuel power and was a waste of coal. The results of these tests were reported to the Committee.

During the year a request had been made by the Chairman several times for the rent of a blueprint from an electricity and so far this information has not been supplied. The reason for this request was to ascertain if we were charging too high or too low a rate for the same and not for the purpose of selling or distributing the Plant as Mr. Fallow states.

With regard to the cylinder oil used in the engines the instructions were given by me as chairman of the E.L. & P. committee was to the effect that it was only fair to buy oil from any one of the Oil Companies in Vermilion who pay taxes, and not to promise one side firm, as anyone knows buying quantities of oil demand a considerable price anywhere, no matter where they are bought in Winnipeg or locally. No particular brand or quality was specified. Our firm did not supply this oil or has ever supplied oil or greases to the Plant, although we have been for sale at wholesale prices. The oil used at the plant at the present time is supplied by the Texaco Oil Co. and seems to be giving satisfaction.

With reference to the Toledo coal purchased on recommendation of the Chairman, this was done for the express purpose of saving between $1000 and $1200 per year on the cost of coal for the plant; this was done after due consideration by the Council and only on a trial basis. I might say that this coal was formerly used by the Vermilion Plant for years and is at present used by the Battleford plant which is similar to ours, this proves that it must have some merit, and any engineer will tell you that it is not the coal that burns out grates but ratehead firing, which defeats Mr. Fallow's argument in saying that this coal ruined the grates. As Mr. Johnson objected to this coal only three cars were used and part of that for relief; also the grates are still in use— and I might mention that these same grates were used regularly a year ago, eight months before any Toledo coal was used in the plant. Therefore Mr. Fallow's assertion is wrong.

With regards to the one water tank which was removed at the Plant this year, I might say that the specifications were changed by Mr. Johnson after the original order went in and the proper size of iron had to be brought from Calgary as we had no stock in Edmonton of the required size and number. The tank was under construction at the time and the delay complained of delay.

I would also like to bring to the notice of the Electors that NEVER was any employee of the Town interested in purchase any material for the Plant at the Nelson-Hill Hardware Co., Ltd. This matter being left entirely to the employee's judgment to buy where he thought best. Mr. Fallow's charge of grafting and chicanery, as well as his insinuations that I am a partner as the chairman of the E.L. & P. committee was not even in the campaign for electing, if that is his reason for same—. Naturally, I am not aware of the Town's transactions with the Northern Hardware Co. Ltd. The bulk of the business with the Nelson Hill Hardware Co. Ltd. consisted of welding done by the local firm to the Town in an emergency when the well went dry last summer and it was later decided by Mr. Fallow and the Council to be left in the well at the Plant. We have neither the time, space nor inclination to go further into the rest of the details outlined by your Mayor as after all, they are so trained and cheap that to be carefully recapitulated. Neither do I care what he thinks per se(sic).

MELVIN HILL.

CARD OF THANKS

To the Electors of the Town of Vermilion

I wish to express my thanks to all those who voted for me as Councillor on the election held on Monday last. It will be my endeavour to serve your interests to the best of my ability at all matters pertaining to the general welfare at each and every ratepayer and the general good of the town.

Yours very truly,
GEO. C. WEBB

Thirteen Years of Progress

On the third of February, 1922, Jack Hubbert's first years work in that three element vacuum tube made its appearance. It was turned in the Montreal Plant in the Northern Electric Company's Limited, and was known as the "Peanut" tube, because of its small and low power output. For Smaller Ships

Battery Of Diesel Engines Are Better Than Steam

The Diesel engine has been applied quite extensively to ships. A member of the Institute of Mechanical Engineers of London suggests that for ships of over ten thousand tons steam is best. For smaller ships he would change the present system and substitute a whole battery of small Diesel engines. He would install a hundred engines of seventy-five horsepower. An engine here and there could be cut in or cut off at will. They would consume no more oil and would stop the vibration and make no more noise than "been on a summer afternoon."—Halifax Chronicle

A Paying Industry

Canada Has Sixteen Establishments Making Macaroni

Canada is one of the countries of the world peculiarly able to manufacture macaroni, thanks to her excellent Durum wheat crops. Once upon a time sunny Italy was the one and only producer of macaroni and its fame spread to all countries. In the eighteenth century, some young Englishmen after a visit to Italy waxed so enthusiastic over macaroni that they formed a Macaroni Club, one of the members of which was Charles James Fox the statesman. But the glory to a considerable extent has departed from Italy. Many countries now make macaroni. Canada alone having sixteen establishments engaged in its manufacture in 1933. In that year the total production amounted to nearly 27,000,000 pounds, about on 3,000,000 of which went to the British Isles, while 1,000,000 pounds went to seven other different countries, from Newfoundland to Japan.

A Good Muscle Builder

Cheese Used As Main Dish Is Easy To Digest

Cheese is made easier of digestion by combining it with other starchy food, such as potatoes or macaroni, it forms one of the most satisfactory food combinations and one which will not be difficult of digestion for most people. If eaten at the end of a heavy meal, as is common custom, it may tax the digestive organs, but if eaten as the main dish at a meal which is finished with a light dessert, it is not likely to cause any digestive disturbance.

When used in cooking, care should be taken that the cheese is not heated too high a temperature as heat will toughen protein foods and make them harder to digest. Cheese is very thoroughly digested. It is all, or nearly all, used by the body to build new tissues and to provide energy for the body to do its work, and for older boys and girls, as well as adults, it is one of the best muscle builders.

Hog Production In Canada

Western Canada Taking Lead In Production Of Hogs

The geographical trend of hog production in Canada is interesting. In 1923, 62.8 per cent. of the total hog production was marketed in Ontario, and only 30.8 per cent in the three prairie provinces. In 1933, 42.8 per cent. of the hogs was produced in Ontario and 50.6 per cent. originated in Western Canada. The plentiful supply of suitable hog feed in the form of coarse grains would suggest, says the annual report of the Dominion Minister of Agriculture that Western Canada will continue to be the dominating factor in hog production.

By LAWRENCE HERBERT
(Graphe-Analyst)
(All Rights Reserved)

(Editor's Note: Do you know what your handwriting tells about your character? And what your friends really are like? The author of these interesting articles will tell you things about yourself and your friends that will interest and surprise you. See the announcement following this article.)

J. S., Vancouver.—Your girl friend is very proud and sensitive. She is probably too solicitous of other people's opinions. She is loyal—intensely so in her own personal standards. And she will expect the same rigid code from you. She will be hard to live up to, because she is relentlessly opposed to humor frailty. This is not because she is essentially harsh, or callous, or lacking in sympathy. But she has probably been brought up in an atmosphere of almost puritanical conduct. I think that when you are going to have a very difficult time convincing her that your intentions to the other girl were merely platonic and friendly. Just the same, I suggest that you be diplomatic about the matter. Perhaps, if you show her my letter it may help a bit of some help.

Mrs. A. Brandon.—Your trouble with your husband arises from your lack of understanding and patience. You are invariably ruled by your mind. Your head dictates your views. And, as very often, it is necessary to show some of the milk of human kindness and the caress from the heart. Do not be overbearing. Your husband is fond of flattery. Praise him so many other men to-day. He is undoubtedly doing his best to provide the things which you would like, you show her my letter. Be patient and lacking in ambition and push. Bear in mind that it is always easier to catch flies with sugar than with vinegar. Show your husband more sympathy and affection.

Miss C. W., Regina. The young man whose writing you sent me is a procrastinator, he lacks driving power and accepts things as they are without looking for or expecting any improvement. He is hardly the right type of man for an ambitious girl like you. Your doubts about him show that your father evidently thought along this line, and I suggest that you give up seeing the impossible. You are still young only 19. There is lots of time for you to find a more suitable partner.

Miss G., Calgary. I think you are troubling yourself unduly about you boy friend's feelings for you. He is not the demonstrative type. He is rather reserved, somewhat backward in showing his feelings, but because he is not for ever telling you that he loves you it does not necessarily point to the conclusion that he is getting tired towards you. He is straightforward and sincere. By every evidence, a virile manish by nature. He does not make frivolous reply, but will be very loyal to the few he does like. Don't worry yourself. Just be yourself and you will not see you so often if he did not think a lot about you.

Would you like to know the real you. Would you like to find out what your friend is really like? Mercury is letting you know. Our personal reading, and enclose specimens of your friends' writing, stating birthdate in each case. Send 10c coin for each specimen, and enclose with it stamped addressed envelope to Lawrence Hibbert, Graphologist, care of Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermot Ave., Winnipeg, Man. All letters are considential, and letters will be answered as quickly as possible. Some delay is, however, unavoidable, due to the large number of letters that are coming in.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

FEBRUARY 17

PETER TEACHES GOOD CITIZENSHIP

Golden text: Love worketh no ill to his neighbor: love therefore is the fulfilment of the law.—Romans 13:10.

Lesson: I. Peter 2:11-17; 4:1-5.

Devotional reading: Psalm 146:5-10.

Explanations And Comments

The Seventy Ills, 2:11, 12. "Beloved, I beseech you as sojourners and pilgrims" thus Peter addresses his readers. This may be taken in the literal sense, for his readers, the Jews, were as attered throughout Asia Minor, and therefore might consider themselves in exile, but probably Peter is here speaking metaphorically; he wishes them to realize that life is journey, and that the goal of the attainment of character which is eternal should be their aim; they were living, as they were, in exile on earth; heaven was their true home. Since they had but a short time to stay on earth, they must live their earthly life "honestly," learning to abstain from fleshly lusts, which war against the soul," are Peter's words.

"Honest" in behavior seemly among the Gentiles; that, wherein they speak against you as evil-doers, they may by your good works which they behold, glorify God in the day of visitation." How like an echo from the Sermon on the Mount this verse! "Let your light shine before men, that they may see your good work, and glorify your Father which is in heaven." "So Christ's pilgrim leaves a track of light behind him; he is a witness. The phrase 'in the day of visitation' suggests a fear that the apostles heart lest the response to this witness might not be immediate: it might have to bide Christ's own time. The hour of visitation which will also be the hour of illumination will come, and then all the quiet witness will tell like holy wax, the patient endurance, the lofty testimony, the life which is fair to see."

Good Citizenship, 2:13-17. "Be subject to every ordinance of man for the Lord's sake." By "every ordinance of man" is meant every human institution established by man for man's welfare. And the reason Peter gives is "for the Lord's sake." Jesus said "Render what is Cesar's to Cesar; or, generally, because God is the source of all legitimate human authority; or because your loyalty reflects to the credit of your Master in heaven."

McLaren said the machine turned out sausage by day, but at night a simple change in its mechanism converted it into a bomb maker for the Republican army. Both its sausage and bomb producing days were ended when the Free States learned about it.

Little Journeys In Science

(PHOTOELECTRONS

(By Gordon H. Guest, M.A.)

In 1887, a scientist called Hertz discovered that violet and ultra-violet light tended to cause an electric spark to start more readily. He also found that ultra-violet light causes the discharge of negatively charged bodies. Several years later it was found that this light consisted chiefly called fluorite not only became electrically charged by heat but also by exposure to sunlight or to the light from an electric arc, both of which are rich in ultra-violet light. Quartz which is transparent to the light from sunlight, the edges of a quartz prism being alternately negative and positive. An insulated metal plate becomes highly charged when exposed to sunlight. Science has shown that every material is electrically sensitive to light, regardless of the state of that material. All substances give off electrons when exposed to a sufficient amount of light.

Ultra-violet light will cause many especially metals to give off electrons. All such electrons which are ejected from any material by light are called photoelectrons. When light falls upon films made from the alkaline metals, photoelectrons are ejected from these metallic films at high speed, and it is possible to measure their speed by the repelling upon the kind of light which hits the films. These blue light from the star Sirius will cause more powerful, though less numerous, electron ejections than full sunlight.

The distance which the light travels through space has nothing whatever to do with its effect when it strikes and ejects photoelectrons in photoelectric cells. Thus the light which travelled through space at the speed of 186,000 miles per second for 40 years before striking the negative pole of a photoelectric cell, in the Chicago's 1933 Century of Progress Exposition was just as strong when it approached the telescope as when it left the star Arcturus 40 years before at the time of Chicago's 1893 Columbian Exposition. Hence, due to the great distance of Arcturus from the earth only a small fraction of the light from this radiated from that star at any instant 40 years earlier ever reaches the earth.

New York Man Announces Invention Of Airplane Engine

An airplane engine that is practically silent, while little and inexpensive, which I fuel oil or under oil was the achievement announced by Wilmon Harper, Jr., New York. Harper, H B. By GEORGE B. RODNEY

SYNOPSIS

"You've fallen heir to a half-share in plenty of trouble," the lawyer told Gerald Keene. "The Broken Spur has been systematically looting the ranch, and old Joe Carr, your partner, is drinking himself into ruin."

Dad Kane, sheriff, and Jack Ickles, prospectors till now returns to tell Durbin and Spike Goddard, who had grubstaked him, of his discovery of a rich gold mine, and shows samples of the ore.

Dustin unexpectedly comes along while Stone and Edith are riding fence, and seeing them, stops and talks to Edith. He mentions their engagement to be announced at the big round-up. Edith returns his proposal with remarks that make Dustin furious. He insults Stone, who promptly throws him into a pool of water.

Stone tells Crewe, his foreman, about his meeting with Dustin. Stone and Crewe go to Seco to send a telegram to Gerald Keene. While at Seco an attempt is made to kill Stone, who proves more than a match for his enemies.

Dustin learns that Gerald Keene has been sent for, and also that Dare Stone has seen the Broken Spur men rustling Carr's cattle. He sets out with Dad Kane to learn the location of his gold discovery. Dad Kane shows Dustin the mine.

They go back to camp and Dustin shoot Kane. He fires the shooting on Pepsit Gregg, a drug addict, who, stupefied by the narcotic he had taken did not know whether he was guilty or not. They bury Kane and then return to the Broken Spur ranch.

Meanwhile at the Hour Glass, Carr, Crewe and Stone speculate as to the meaning of entries in the notebook belonging to Dare Kane that Stone had found. Stone thinks of a possible solution, and, accompanied by Edith Carr, rides out to Red Water to test out his theory, which proves correct, and they find the rich gold deposit mentioned in the prospector's notebook. As they return to the ranch they meet Durbin leaving the house, and he deliberately tries to ride down Stone.

(Now Go On With The Story)

Stone's half-raised bridle hand came down till the back of his hand struck the crest of the withers. The gripping legs closed sharply behind the forward cinche and his body swung forward to place his weight where it belonged . . . above that tremendous fore-hand, the weight-carrier. The next moment, when the big black was within fifteen yards, the great lambelin horse launched himself, a living thunderbolt, against him.

The red dust swirled high above them and eddied down in a close-lying cloud and from the heart of that cloud came one sharp oath. The next moment Edith, sitting her half-crazy horse well to the side of the trail, saw . . .

She saw the great Isabella horse, bleeding at mouth and nostrils, pitching wildly as he slid to a halt. She saw Stone . . . Dare Stone, the amateur cow-puncher, who had learned his lore from Wild West fiction and who undoubtedly bought his apparel from a catalog, sitting that pitching horse like a centaur and she saw, and for one short moment did not believe her own eyes. Sam Durbin's big black lying on his side, every leg kicking wildly while his rider lay as still as death beneath him

"Oh, my God!" she cried sharply, "you've killed him."

"I'm afraid not. . . ." Stone pitched out of saddle. "Ride on down the trail," he said sharply. "Go at once . . ."

That strange tone in his voice made Edith look at him; she went down the trail and so missed what took place.

Stone almost leaped at Dustin's prostrate figure. A quick jab of his spurred heel made the black struggle to his feet and Dun dragged the unconscious man from the dust of the trail.

Dustin's face was cut from brow to chin and from his left temple blood oozed from the cut to mingle with the dust and sweat and grime of the encounter. He was breathing in great gusping sighs and Stone grew drew him clear of the horse, his head fell inertly across Dun's arm. He laid the man's body along the pack and under a great mesquite bush and squatted by him.

"I'm sorry I didn't break your fool neck," he muttered "I wonder if you've got anything in your pocket that'll clear things up."

His hands made short work of Dustin's pockets. From the inner coat-pocket he pulled a narrow wallet that was filled with papers that he examined swiftly but carefully. At sight of one of the papers he gave a low whistle of surprise. Then he looked again at Dustin. There was no sign of returning consciousness and after a second examination of the papers he carefully replaced them in the wallet and thrust it into the pocket of Dustin's coat.

"Huh 'll clear enough," he muttered. "Now, I'll ride back and get eleven thousand dollars made out to John Pegram and by him transferred to Dare Dustin. Looks bad for Carr Looks to me like Carr got his money from Pegram; Pegram got scared or needed money, so sold the note to Dustin. Dustin, he should live, will be mad as a hornet when he wakes up and started for the house at a lope she went Stone seeing her eyes cold as the ranch. A pretty picture he made to the door closed behind her threw turned to Stone.

Hell's broke loose at last, he said. "We know now exactly where that hound Dustin stands. Do you?"

"The last I saw of him he wasn't standing up," said Stone grimly.

His hands again explored Dustin's pockets and brought out a little chamois skin bag that he opened and dexterously into his hand. A little pile of glittering schist fell into his palm and he grinned. "That's the stuff! . . . Now I'll get a bullet the ugly head . . . Carr's going to be mighty glad to see us."

"Specimens of Kane's ore, of course," he muttered. "Hello! What's this?"

He came to see Jones and Crew carefully. He offered to deliver the Lamont over 8-in. Springs and I. offered a lot of other things, too provided

"Yeah. Well that's about the price" What's the man want?"

"Provided Edith will marry him, Crewe jerked out course in riding. You can get a cook or a horse-wrangler at rome Dude Ranch to show you how to sit a horse. It only needs practice I'd do it myself if I haven't got time. The time seems to be taken up with tryin' to break your damned neck instead of savin' it."

The utter scorn in his voice made Dustin wince. He flushed in silence and thrust a hand into his coat pocket His expression of satisfaction was expressive. His clothing had not been looted. He wished unsteadily to his horse that stood with drooping head and heaving flanks

"Of course you know I'll pay you for this. If my cinch hadn't broken . . ."

That was true enough. The rear cinch had parted.

"A weak cinch is a sure sign of mental degeneracy," said Stone. "Any good text-book will tell you to be sure of your equipment before you try trick riding."

While Dustin was staring evilly at him, he swung into saddle and thrust his great lambelin horse into full stride and caught up with Edith as she neared the house Crewe was standing on the porch and greeted them as they rode up to the house

"If you all meet up with Dustin anywhere along the trail" he asked as Stone took Edith's horse.

"Yeah. We met him all right," said Stone. "He tried to ride me down but his horse slipped I reckon . . . "

"Slipped nothing . . ." Edith laughed shortly. "That big black of his doesn't slip. The man tried to ride Dare down in the gulpe de caballo. He . . . He made a mistake. That's all."

Frank Crewe asked no questions. He knew what happened when a man makes a mistake in the gulpe de caballo There a man has but one chance.

Young better go in the house at once Edith," he said briefly. "He wants to talk with you . . ."

Stone hesitated, then dismounted and started for the house at last she went Stone seeing her eyes cold as the ranch. A pretty picture he made to the door closed behind her threw turned to Stone.

Hell's broke loose at last, he said. "We know now exactly where that hound Dustin stands. Do you?"

English Woman Claims She Owns All Of Labrador

The proprietress of a London (Eng.) toilet cream shop Miss. M. Cowan—has just announced that she owns Labrador look, stock and barrel. Already she has cast possessive eyes on North America's most northeasterly 120,000 square miles, and if her lawyers are right she won't take "no" for an answer.

NEIGHBORHOOD NARRATIVES

From the Neighborhood of the South-East

Alex Ross is making rounds with his engine during the week-end, sloshing up sawing and chop-grinding jobs.

The Neighborhood rejoices with the family and friends of Mrs. Helen Bohaing to have her back in our midst, on the road to recovery after spending eight weeks under treatment at the Islay hospital

Mrs. Bohaing has only great praise for her care from nurses and staff of the institution.

The article in the Standard for January 24th re the Land Settlement Scheme received plenty of discussion in the Neighborhood. Our job is far too pale to reproduce some of the opinions ,but we may say that from the point of view of this locality, all the enthusiasm over the scheme still rests with the originator

Wildmere and their neighboring districts are to be congratulated on their enterprise in presenting themselves the phone line and assuring themselves of some sort of service. Where a the sticker over here? If only the ebrious Holmes who tracked down the "whites" could unearth the trouble and the district have a whack at it, may be something like a cooperative service could be obtained in the Neighborhood

Miss Harriette Funnell was successful in winning first prize for her costume depicting "his Satanic Majesty" at a masquerade at Wildwood school This is the second time it has been the winner this season. By the way, it seems as though we are to lose Harriette from our midst, since the young lady contemplates a trip to the Peace River block to visit her sister, Mrs. Maxwell Lucas.

Miss La France, from the Wainwright district, has stepped into Miss Funnell's position as housekeeper for M. Roger de Breville.

The Neighborhood is congratulating Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hodgson, Upton, and Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Lewis, Tofield, on the arrival of latest daughters.

We often wondered, Clandonald, if the subscription you spoke of once, arrived. We took it through an agent last October for a certain magazine, the said periodical to start with the December issue and arrive for one year (twelve issues). After waiting two months, we wrote, and in another month received the February issue, the expiration date being November. Now ask us what we think of itinerant agents!

We carefully wipe the dust off the Pie Plate and present it to the red headed lassie who "sat it out" on a bronc which had piled two masculine riders only a few hours before. Oh! there might be explanations and reasons ,but the point is, she did it!

Rapid Work At Gas Wells 'Spud-In' Ceremony Soon

Great strides have been made in the last few weeks at the gas well location with the preparations for drilling. All the machinery has been installed and put in working order, and the outfit will be ready to go at the beginning of next week. A water well has been bored by Rod Sample, and an abundant supply of water obtained at fifty feet. The good fortune of the Company in procuring so convenient a supply of water at a small cost removes the last obstacle in the way of immediate commencement of drilling. The Directors are planning an official opening ceremony at the well for next Wednesday afternoon, weather permitting, as by that time it is expected that drilling operations will be in full swing. A large number of people have already been out to the well, and a general invitation is extended to the public to attend the official opening or "spudding in" ceremony next week.

Herbert A. Crosby, well known Vermilion resident, dropped dead on Saturday evening shortly after 8 o'clock from a fatal heart attack, while he was taking part in the open air Salvation Army meeting, which was being held at McWilliams corner as is the custom on Saturday evenings. He was beating the bass drum at the time having been a faithful army worker for years.

Mr. Crosby was 55 years and 8 days of age and had resided here for 29 years. He first farmed in the Wells district, then moved to town where he conducted a dairy business. At the time of his demise he was employed by the Vermilion City Dairy.

The funeral was held on Tuesday afternoon. The obituary appears elsewhere in this issue.

OTTAWA DEFEATS ELKS 1-0

A mighty soul in the second period beat Bill Kelford's Ottawa Tigers up to the top of the league and gave victory to them over the Elks. It was hard to beat the determination that fairly oozed from the Ottawa boys last night and this is what it takes to win games. Young Spud Cuff mashed the priceless tumiez.

V.S.A. CLICKS AGAIN

Still striving hereafter for a place of berth the College boys went on their way rejoicing with a 1-0 win over the last-shaking High School quint. But Joe Kallai broke away with the whole High School attacking, zoomed in on the goalie and scored a spectacular and priceless goal four minutes before the final bell.

Russell Carroll made a good job of the refereeing. These two games were dandies, by far the best this year! Miss the remaining games

Beware The Danger Spots

The inauguration throughout Canada of new social services, and the extension of social services already existing, are policies to which it is now clear all political parties in Parliament are definitely committed. Since the beginning of the present century there has been a steady growth, not only in Canada but in all countries in the number and scope of these services of a social character and it is now evident that the people of this Dominion are in favor of more and still larger and comprehensive services of this character.

This development at a time with modern trends and the new conception that state is the servant and not the master of the welfare of each individual citizen. We refer to this as a new conception, yet it is as old as civilization itself. Man is his brother's keeper and if and when man fails to discharge that responsibility to his fellowmen, then the very civilization which protects him will collapse. So it is that the great majority of people will be found to welcome the introduction and enlargement of a national programme of social services.

There are, however, one or two danger spots in connection with such a programme which the Canadian people will be well advised to recognize at the outset. These services are designed to be helpful to us as individuals and as a nation; let us therefore beware that they do not actually prove harmful.

The first danger to avoid is that in our enthusiasm and commendable desire to provide social services, and to establish them upon a generous scale we do not overdo it and embark upon programmes which may prove to be beyond the financial capacity of the Canadian people to maintain. Social services such as old age pensions, mother's allowances, unemployment insurance, free medical services, etc., will cost an enormous amount of money annually. Some of these services are already costing the Federal and Provincial Governments many millions of dollars, but present expenditures are relatively small in comparison with the cost of proposals now being advanced.

Each and every one of these social services can be provided and made possible by just one method, and that is taxation. That is the community as a whole must through the payment of taxes provide the money which will be distributed through one social service or another to the people who are in need of such service. If fifty million dollars are required for, say the payment of old age pensions throughout Canada, then taxes which will yield fifty million in revenue to the government must be imposed and paid by the people. There is no other way. This fact must be recognized, together with the further fact that there is a limit beyond which people cannot pay taxes, and any social or other service which depends upon government taxes beyond that limit will find itself in difficulty.

Once established experience has proven that these social services grow very rapidly and that expenditures largely increase. This experience indicates a second danger spot. It is this: So long as individual men and women are required to look out for themselves and plan for their future they will see a rule work, exercise some degree of thrift, and save against sickness and old age. In a word, self preservation will be one of the guiding rules of their life. But once it becomes as accepted and established fact that people will be provided for whether they are at work or not, that the community will care for them and all their ills if and when sick, and that the community will support them throughout their old age and bury them when they die then there is grave danger that the incentive which is now the great driving force in our human nature will become less keen, weaken and gradually die.

One of the tragedies of this depression period in the lives of incentive and ambition by many people and a willingness on their part to accept relief payments in lieu of effort and work on their part. There is a tendency on the part of some when offered employment to balance the offered wage against the established scale of relief payments, and to decide whether the wage plus work is any better than relief minus work.

So in the development of all social services the greatest care must be exercised that in our desire to benefit and help our fellow citizens we do not set up systems which in actual operation will undermine their characters and prove actually harmful to them as individuals and destructive of the basic institutions of the race.

Little Journeys In Science

COSMIC RAYS

(By Gordon H. Cosst, M.A.)

Glass becomes negatively charged when rubbed with catskin, but positively charged when rubbed with silk. Also, a strip of celluloid becomes negatively charged when drawn between the fingers. In order to detect and measure the electric charges on any substance scientists have devised an instrument known as the electroscope. A simple type of electroscope consists of a bottle with a paraffin stopper, through which runs a piece of glass tubing. Passed through the glass tube is a piece of brass or copper wire from which are suspended two strips of gold leaf. A ball made of tinfoil is attached to the other end of the wire and is, of course, outside the bottle just above the paraffin stopper. Wherever the ball is given either a negative or positive charge the leaves fly apart in proportion to the amount of the charge. A rubber comb rubbed on a cat becomes negatively charged and if the comb is placed on the tinfoil ball some of the charge is imparted to the electroscope and the leaves will fly apart. Since the charge is negative, another negative charge will cause the leaves to spread still father apart, whereas a positive charge will cause the leaves to fall together before again flying apart. In this way the kinds of charges may be determined. When even the best of electroscopes are charged it is observed that the gold leaves slowly come together again. This means that some electrically charged particles from the atmosphere are neutralizing the charges on the leaves. Scientists set out to discover what was causing this discharge of an electroscope and found that it was due to certain rays which came to the earth from outer space. They are called cosmic rays.

Many attempts have been made to stop the natural leak or discharge of an electroscope. These attempts have always failed despite the use of the most perfect insulators and the protection of the electroscope by solid shields, several feet in thickness. These experiments suggested that there exists an unusually penetrating radiation of feeble intensity.

Scientists have carried electroscopes to points near the two poles of the earth, at the equator, and at various other latitudes. Electroscopes and similar indicating and recording devices have been sent up into the air in sounding balloons to altitudes of over 30 miles, and have been carried to altitudes of 10,000 feet by airplanes in various localities and have been taken to high mountains as well as to depths as great as 3,000 feet in lakes. All experiments show that the rays come from above the earth and so they have been called cosmic rays. Outstanding among the various investigators in this work are two American scientists, Millikan and Compton.

Ancient Stronghold Found

Viking Guards Did Not Allow Women To Enclose

A 1000-year-old Viking stronghold never visited by women is the discovery of Dr. Holger Arbman, who has been excavating at Sweden's ancient capital, Birka. That the Viking guards forbade women to enter the garrison is inferred because no single scrap of a woman's ornaments or apparel has been found in the ruins. On the other hand, Dr. Arbman has unearthed remains of bronze arrowheads and many knives and animal bones left from the meals of the guardsmen.

MASS BUYING REPORT SAID TO BE VOLUMINOUS

Ottawa.—Compilation of a report which is expected to be voluminous, both in discussion of evidence and recommendations, occupied members of the royal commission on price buying. Some time must elapse before the report is ready.

"We are only at the first section," declared Chairman W. W. Kennedy.

Whether the House of Commons will receive the report through Hon. R. B. Hanson, minister of trade and commerce, in its completed form or by sections is engaging the commission's attention. It is not unlikely that to facilitate the government's program for the amelioration of certain ills the latter practice will be adopted. The first section is understood to deal with labor.

In this connection evidence adduced before the parliamentary committee and the royal commission was overwhelming in its disclosure of disheartening conditions prevailing in certain trades, particularly those in which women workers predominated.

It is anticipated the commission will urge closer check on these industries employing women to ensure proper observance of the minimum wage laws and recommend uniformity in these enactments. Also, the commission contemplates recommending establishment of minimum wage laws for male workers, coupling this with maximum working hours.

On mass buying the commission is confronted with a difficult situation. It is understood commissioners are not entirely convinced mass buying itself is an evil.

The report is understood will be critical of labor policies of many chain store companies, declaring there to have been characterized by close control in the matter of labor's costs, but by lack of sympathetic direction in the application of these wage policies to the conditions of workers involved. The excuse that such direction could safely be entrusted to the local management has been shown to be inadequate by conditions revealed to the commission.

The chain store management ought to have recognized from the outset that abuses in such a system were inevitable, the report is understood to declare. The fact that steps were taken to change these circumstances is considered a dereliction of duty on the part of executive.

Planning Tunnel Under Straits Of Gibraltar

Spanish Government Has Idea To Link Europe With Africa

The Spanish government is considering a vast public works program to help the unemployed. It has completed an outlay of about $125,000,000, the principal enterprise being the construction of a Gibraltar tunnel linking Europe with Africa.

The tunnel under the Straits of Gibraltar is the subject of a special inquiry which has been in progress some time. It is contemplated that the subterranean route would be about 30 miles long and would plunge under the Mediterranean to the depth of 1,000 feet. Construction would be by means of a new type compressed-air caisson, permitting the excavation of the sea bottom to a depth of 1,000 feet.

Congress Demands Respect

Persons Laughing At Chilean Parliament Will Be Arrested

Laughing at the Chilean parliament is now a punishable offense. Chile's deputies were annoyed at the increasing fun which was being made of congress and their debates. They especially objected to remarks made by members of the public in the gallery and to the presence of the parliament. At the request of the chamber of deputies, therefore, the premier has given instructions to the police to arrest any persons who be heard to "take in vain the name of the honorable congress."

Establishes Farm School

Forty English Children To Be Sent To School On Vancouver Island

Montreal.—Forty English children, aged seven to nine, will come to Canada in May to form the nucleus of the Fairbridge farm school on Vancouver Island, Major M. F. Trew stated here.

Major Trew will be the headmaster of the new school which is sponsored by the Child Immigration Society of Great Britain to train English boys and girls to enter farm life in Canada. He passed through Montreal en route back to England from British Columbia.

The society, he said, had bought 1,000 acres of land on Vancouver Island and building would commence shortly. Through private subscription and co-operation of the British government the children will be trained on the largest farm-school of its kind ever attempted in Canada. It will be modelled after the Fairbridge farm school of Australia. Major Trew estimated when the school is in full operation 400 boys and girls will be in residence. They will be taken from English institutions and chosen by the London committee of the society. At the age of 16 they will be sent to farms in western Canada.

Must Ease Tax Burden

W. Sanford Evans Sees Taxpayers Becoming Bankrupt

Winnipeg.—Decentralization of government in Canada had far exceeded the intentions of the fathers of confederation, declared W. Sanford Evans, Conservative leader, during the course of a budget speech in the Manitoba legislature.

Multiplicity of taxes was becoming unbearable, said Mr. Evans. The man in danger of losing his home for inability to pay the tax was still paying a wage tax, he said. He urged some step be taken to prevent the same man being taxed on the income and on the same paid wage earners.

Mr. Evans was followed after W. J. Westwood (Lib. Prog., Roblin) and J. L. Christie (Lib. Prog., Cypress) respectively introduced and seconded the adoption of the address. The debate was adjourned by S. J. Farmer, newly-elected Independent Labor party leader.

Flyers Finish Race

New Guinea Airmen Rather Late In Reaching Melbourne

Melbourne, Australia. — Just 116 days after they took off from Mildenhall in the England-to-Melbourne air derby, G. E. Hemsworth and R. Parer, New Guinea airmen, neared across the Port Phillip Bay here, Feb. 24.

Their belated arrival, nearly one-third of a year after the winners, was unheralded and unobserved.

The flyers took satisfaction, however, in the reflection that they had covered almost as much ground as they had set themselves. "We're a bit disappointed Parer, "but we've beaten our previous record by four months."

Italo-Ethiopian Trouble

Peaceful Settlement Of Border Dispute Is Expected

Rome.—Peaceful settlement of the turbulent Italo-Ethiopian border dispute in East Africa was believed by official circles in Rome to be in the offing. According to the Havas News Agency, an unconfirmed report which circulated in Geneva, so far as to say that a partial accord had been reached at Addis Abbe, as a result of which Italian and Ethiopian forces had evacuated the disputed zone in the vicinity of Ualual, near the border between Italian Somaliland and Ethiopia.

Ease Economic War

Irish Free State Makes Representations To Britain

Dublin.—A step in the direction of easing the economic "war" between the United Kingdom and the Irish Free State was revealed when President Eamon de Valera announced in the dail that representations had been made to Britain.

He referred solely to economic matters, saying the British government had been acquainted with the Irish belief that in view of the recent coal-and-cattle commercial exchange, there was a good cause for further negotiations.

Ottawa.—Officials of the Dominion experimental farms revealed they have supplied samples of Canadian flax for experiments being conducted in Manchester, England, in an effort to find a suitable substitute for cotton in textile manufacture.

For Churchill Constituency

Hon. T. A. Crerar Is Nominated As Liberal Candidate

The Pas, Man.—Hon. T. A. Crerar, former federal cabinet minister, was nominated Liberal candidate for Churchill constituency in the forthcoming federal elections.

Nomination of Mr. Crerar came after a ballot with Dr. Daniel Baldwin, Benito, Man. Both Mr. Crerar and Dr. Baldwin spoke briefly before the vote was taken.

Mr. Crerar's first federal cabinet post was under Sir Robert Borden, prime minister of the Union government during the war-time years. He was made minister of agriculture in the administration in 1917.

He led the Progressive party a few years later, but in 1925 retired from politics.

In the cabinet shuffle of 1929 when Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King headed the Liberal administration, Mr. Crerar was summoned from private life and took the portfolio of railways.

Defeated in Brandon constituency in the general elections of 1930, Mr. Crerar retired again in private life.

SUGGEST MEANS TO LESSEN DEATH TOLL ON HIGHWAYS

Ottawa.—Longer jail terms for negligent drivers who kill and maim on the public highways will not stop the mounting toll of automobile crashes, Minister of Justice Hugh Guthrie advised the House of Commons when he introduced amendments to the Criminal Code (Canada, Revised Statutes).

And there is no certainty that the government will continue relief after a fixed date, he said.

"If it doesn't, then there will be a revolution in Canada," said Mayor McIver.

Proposals are that the work be done by those on relief lists. Aid W. W. Smith drew attention to the fact that the present relief agreement between British Columbia and the Dominion terminates March 31.

California Representative Says Jap Army Reserves Are On Pacific Coast

Washington Representative John Duckweiler, California Democrat, told the house of representatives military committee that 20,000 trained Japanese army reserves in the Pacific coast state stood ready to take up arms. Parked into Los Angeles harbor, he added, were 150 Japanese fishing boats with a cruising range of thousands of miles.

"At least they appear to be fishing boats," he said, "but I suspect that the chairman stopped him with words that such testimony should be given in secret session. But Duckweiler replied he intended to make the same assertions on the house floor.

Wreck Of U.S. Dirigible

Cause Of Mid-Air Collapse Remains A Mystery

San Francisco. How the United States naval dirigible Macon reared and plunged crazily for 35 minutes before falling and sinking in the bottom of the Pacific was revealed in the stories of its survivors.

Underlying cause of the mid-air collapse remained undetermined. Commander H. V. Wiley and others who came through safely, revealed there had been a sudden break at the outset, after which the great sky cruiser soared upward out of control, then settled haphazardly to a grave in the deep.

Outwardly light-hearted the air fleeting officers and men who clung with the ship until she hit the water and then got away in rubber life boats, rang as they came ashore here.

Search was abandoned for the two missing members of the crew at the spot where the ship went down 15 miles off Point Sur Calif 110 miles south of here.

Loss of the 32 officers and men by the United States navy without a dirigible.

Hints the Macon's end similar to that of the dirigible Akron, Smithsonian might mean abandonment, or at least a curtailment, of naval development along this line, were seen in Washington developments

San Juan, Puerto Rico.—The Duke and Duchess of Kent arrived at San Juan's airport from Port of Spain Trinidad, on their honeymoon tour of the West Indies. A slight accident to the duchess marred the arrival

While the British cruiser Dragon, which had made away from the Trinidad capital of 21 guns and flag-decked craft in the harbor whistled shrill welcome, the royal couple's feet stepped down to be greeted by Governor Blanton Winship. CENSURE MOTION IN BRITISH HOUSE WAS DEFEATED

London. — A determined Labor effort to have the House of Commons censure Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's government for its unemployment relief policies went down to defeat after a lengthy and sometimes bitter debate

The vote coming after charges and counter-charges had been hurled back and forth as the prime minister fought back attacks at his address. It was 374 to 68.

Mr. MacDonald striking at reply to his critics in the Labor and Liberal opposition ranks, charged the Labor party with making political capital out of the unemployment.

Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, wound up the debate by declaring the government has a definite trade and would continue to do so by its own methods

There was one in our exports . . . we have to find the house. There is enormously in the world unless it is Japan, which can show a surplus of exports.

Mr. MacDonald first took exception to the government against attacks by the Labor and Liberal opposition parties. He gave a brief history of his former connection with the Labor party and that the Speaker had departed before he could answer.

During Lansbury, the Labor leader, moved the censure motion charging the government had forfeited the confidence of the country by its Indian policy for dealing with unemployment and for its "bungling" methods of relief Sir Herbert Samuel, Liberal opposition leader, moved an amendment calling for lowering the tariff barriers as the first step towards building up employment

Prime Minister MacDonald assailed the opposition chiefs for their part of 1931 would result if Labor got into power again and accused them of having increased instead of decreasing

The Laborites cheered when Mr. Thomas started to speak with the declaration, "we do not want an issue to say we are charging the government with dishonorable conduct in the ordinary sense of the word, but we are charging it with gross incompetence."

Desire For Reconciliation

Thomas Says Real Peace Desired Between Britain And Free State

London.—J. H. Thomas, dominions secretary, expressed a desire and genuine desire for reconciliation and real peace between Great Britain and the Irish Free State At the same time he said: "The two governments are not representative of membership in the British commonwealth of nations, and are always must be fundamental to any settlement of the Irish problem."

Addressing the Constitutional club Thomas said he had no intent on of trying to settle political differences of the past. An overwhelming majority of the British people, he believed, would like to see the Irish question passed.

Geographically the Free State was not situated that Britain could not market upon which it had to depend, he said.

The question of whether Free State desired to remain in it ever only tended to distract from the real issue of the case.

If Ireland made clear she desired freedom in the empire and to [illegible] best in the interests of both countries, he would

Sun Life Reports Improvement in Business

The annual financial statements of life assurance companies are among the best barometers of general business conditions on this continent. Hence during the past few years when the decline in individual incomes resulted in a lessening of terms and smaller life insurance policies the statements in question faithfully reflected that fact. As the depression continued there was a more extensive termination of existing insurance and as to new policies issued there was an appreciable increase of borrowings and to cash surrenders. Plainly this was an improvement in many instances by policyholders under the stress of unemployment, expedient provisions for their policies themselves had failed them. As the depression continued there was a more extensive termination of existing insurance and as to new policies issued there was an appreciable increase of borrowings and to cash surrenders. Plainly this was an improvement in many instances by policyholders under the stress of unemployment, expedient provisions for their policies themselves had failed them.

I interpret of the Sun Life Assurance for 1934 of Canada published on another column and I remarks of his president Mr. Arthur H. Wood at its annual meeting are gratifying evidence of a growing feeling of confidence, a betterment of conditions. The signs of returning activity are manifold and a marked trend toward increase in business. Because of the unsatisfactory condition of life assurance companies as business enterprises investing a hold every decision on investment conditions in our country. Under the circumstances the report makes remarkably gratifying increases in new assurance and in applications, a decrease in policy cash surrenders in policy loans and reduced demands for payments of matured endowments during the year. The increase which proved such a helpful strength during the prolonged and trying conditions is in turn a source of hope for the business economic recovery.

For life insurance stockholders the report on consolidations are little less gratifying than those of the life premium. The present difficulty of investment income to obtain adequate returns of remunerative size of interest and on record of dependability established by life insurance against extreme drastic stress have at last greatly increased the demands for investment by mortgage and annuities. At the same time insurance companies themselves are faced with the very conditions on a big scale, that are making the individual investor so tremendously anxiously minded. Here they can be relied upon to meet the situation in the same competent way as in the past.

A very fine fact mentioned by President Wood in his address is that of the assurance which the North American paid out to policyholders last year. It was in amount of over $5 000 with an average of less than $2 000. That fact vividly indicates the valuable place life insurance fills in a country as great and as diversified as ours. It is indeed a rather significant evidence that some of the problems with which governments today are grappling have long since been solved by private and personal foresight on a small scale such as home insurance is possible.

The general character of the report is one of satisfaction to the policyholders, to the Company, for future and to the business community at large.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Vermilion, Feb 12, 1935.

EDITOR, The Standard.

Dear Sir,—I should like the opportunity of replying through The Standard to the charges brought against the administration of the Health and Relief Dept. brought out by the mayor on the morning of election day, and to which therefore there was no opportunity to reply before voting took place.

I hesitate to bring the details of the physical condition of an employee or the Town such as Mr. Johnson whose health is impaired, into the realm of public controversy, but the completed file of correspondence in the town office and is open for inspection I am sure.

The sole motive behind any action taken by the Health Committee, Mr. Bell, or myself as Chairman of the Health Committee, as is made clear from the correspondence between the Health Officer and the Canadian officials was to safeguard the health and lives of the other employees at the Plant and their children.

The investigation was ordered by myself following complaints to the Committee by other employees who felt that they were being exposed to infection. This was my duty and responsibility as Chairman of the Committee. The Health Officer learns from Mr. Johnson that the Provincial Health Officer has visited his sputum, and that it was positive.

Again in the recommendation of the Health Officer Mr. Johnson was then given a month's leave of absence from March 20th, 1934 with full pay the resolution stating that before re-instatement he must present a Board Medical Doctor's certificate that he was free from all infectious and contagious diseases. In spite of the fact that he was not a menace to the lives of other employees with whom he was working.

That certificate has not yet been forthcoming. Neither Mr Johnson's own physician, nor any government official has yet certified that he is not a menace to other employees of the Medical Superintendent of the Sanitarium, have did examine Mr. Johnson I do not know that any medical purpose would be served by going through the details of the various examinations, communications with the Health Department, sanitarium officials, etc. They are available for any one who wishes to look into them further.

The following is the last letter from the official who examined Mr. Johnson and sums up his attitude:

Central Alberta Sanitarium
Calgary, Aug. 15, 1934.

Dr. W. W. Bell,
Vermilion Alta
Dear Doctor Re H. R Johnson

As Dr. Baker is away for two weeks, and Dr. Reid not in town, I am taking the liberty of answering your letter.

It is, of course, impossible for me to say that this man is so well that he definitely will not break down with tuberculosis. It is also impossible for me to say that he is no danger to those around him.

However, as he has no more symptoms than he told me at the time of his examination and has no bills sputum as he stated and if the bills are light as he gave me to understand I considered that it was reasonably safe for him to go back to work.

Physical findings I interpret as being the those of chronic tuberculosis which at the time of life would probably respond very little to intensive sanitarium treatment for the other hand he may be able to carry on for some years with no ill effects.

Of course this is my impression from one examination, and anyone examining him over a period of time may have a different impression. We understand your position and a period of observation in this or some other institution might give more definite data

Yours very truly
L. M. Mullen.

The Medical Health officer is a paid official of the town charged with duties and responsibilities and one part speaks of his report in on file as follows:

My own opinion is that from general appearance and from past record the man is not fit to be a watchman at the Power Plant as suggested by resident. Please understand that I have no objection or against the man but view the question from the safety angle of the health of those who work with him and their families. Whether it would be recommended second to hire a sick man or not is one my problem.

That is the considered opinion of the Health who for the moment is charged with the duties of Health officer paid by the taxpayers to have over sight over the health of the Town, and if the council is not prepared to accept his recommendations, or is not satisfied that he is doing his duty from the proper motives they should demand his resignation.

The whole Council were cognizant of very move in this matter and engaged without question in the Health officer's recommendations up to the point where he recommended that Mr. Johnson be not re-employed in that point the Council listened attentively him to carry on temporarily to see whether his condition improved

Yours very truly,
W. H. SCOTT,
Chairman Health and Relief Committee

OBITUARY

HAAKON EMSLAND

Western Canada lost another early pioneer when the grim reaper claimed the life of Haakon Emsland on Saturday, Feb. 9th in the Mannville hospital where deceased had lain in a serious condition through a heart ailment for about a week. The news of his passing cast a gloom over the town and district of Mannville, especially in the Sclioux district where the deceased had labored, wresting a livelihood from the soil. A wife and eight children are left to mourn his loss.

The late Mr. Emsland was born in Stavanger, Norway in 1879 and early in youth he heard the call of the sea. By his diligence to duty and expert seamanship he soon attained the coveted rank of first mate, which office he filled until journeying to the United States. The year 1904 saw the fertility of the last great west blanketed across the continent and Haakon responded, locating in this district, selecting a quarter in the Schlaux section where he resided with his family ever since except for a period of one year 1918—when he responded to the era's romantic call.

Neighbors and friends extend sympathy to those bereaved, namely, his loving wife Ida, daughter Mrs. George Van den Polder, six sons, Roy, Edward, Frank, Norman, Arthur and Chris, and three brothers, Ora, Ralph and Hans, and a sister in Capetown, South Africa.

The funeral of the late Mr Emsland was held in the Scelaville Anglican church on Tuesday, Feb. 12th. A large crowd of people were present from all parts of the district and many floral tributes were the seen. The Rev. P. Ludwig officiated and interment took place in Scelaville cemetery. Flowers were sent by the following: Wife and Family, Ralph and Francis, Orm, Hans and Clara and Family, Herdis and Paul, Mr and Mrs. Sinden, Mr. and Mrs. R. Emmett, Mr and Mrs. M. Haverslew and Family, and Old Timers of Eltham and district.

Pallbearers were Messrs. R. Sinden, R Emmett, David Rambo, David Smith, C. McGregor and E. Pallister.

Mr. J. Waring of Vermilion was in charge of funeral arrangements

Vermilion Produce Returns Assume Near Record Volume

Farmers in the Vermilion district shipped out over the Canadian National railways through the Vermilion accounting office farm products in 1934 aggregating in value over $[illegible] of which about $[illegible] was from the sale of wheat.

If the prices which were obtained towards the close of the year had prevailed throughout the returns would have totalled it is estimated $[illegible] Now wheat shipments amounted to 1,[illegible] bushels the biggest output in the last five years.

There were [illegible] bushels of oats shipped, this being only a small percentage of the yield in the district due to the fact that practically all the farmers who had acquired power equipment have gone back to horse power, nuts for the greater part to feed to their farm or are sold locally The returns amounted to about $[illegible]

The shipment of hogs showed a phenomenal increase both as to quantity and quality over any previous record back to almost war time days [illegible] 1,[illegible] cars [illegible] two days ago $[illegible] was paid for a carload of those farm bushles a top price for the past several years

Five carloads of horses for the Montreal markets yielded some $[illegible] There was a big increase also noted in the shipment of cattle, over 1,[illegible] having been marketed by district dealers bringing to the farmers some $[illegible]

The Vermilion Wood Growers Association shipped out three carloads of wood, one from Vermilion one from Wainwright and one from Lloydminster meeting total returns of $[illegible]

The Canadian National Railways at this point increased its 1934 ton per cent over that of the year 1933.

In addition to all those shipments there were sent carloads of poultry, furs, fox and sheep. Besides the butter sold here, an extra large [illegible] quantity was shipped to Edmonton somewhere. All around there appears to be indications that things are going better and more stabilized than they have been for many years

QUICKEST METHOD TO RELIEVE A COLD

Follow Directions to Ease Pain and Discomfort Almost Instantly

1. Take 2 Aspirin Tablets.

2. Drink full glass of water (Several times if necessary).

3. Repeat in half an hour if necessary. Don't drink alcohol with Aspirin. Avoid it if a sore throat and/or cough is present.

When you have a cold, remember the simple treatment pictured here . . . prescribed by doctors everywhere today as the quick, safe way.

Because of Aspirin's quick-disintegrating property, Aspirin "takes hold"— almost instantly.

Just take Aspirin and drink plenty of water . . . every 2 to 4 hours the first day—less often afterward . . . if throat is sore, use the Aspirin gargle.

But be sure you get ASPIRIN. It is made in Canada and all druggists have it. Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every Aspirin Tablet. Aspirin is the trade mark of the Bayer Company, Limited.

Danger On Highways

Open Road Often Trouble Motorist To Excessive Speed

Straight stretches of rural highway vie with city street intersections as the general scene of the greatest number of Pennsylvania motor vehicle accidents, says Capital News. Thus far this year 184 persons were killed and 7,460 were injured in 10,500 collisions at street intersections. On the open highways, where the lure of high speeds draws nursery drivers to the brink of danger the Division of Safety reports 9,663 accidents, including 302 fatal and 3,384 non-fatal have occurred.

By LAWRENCE HEMBERT
(Gaughan-Analyst)

(All Rights Reserved)

(Editor's Note: The interest in these articles is increasing every day. See the author's invitation to you following this article.)

One of the most interesting letters I have received in a long time came to hand quite recently. It is from a lady in Saskatoon, and illustrates very nearly how the lack of understanding creates a great deal of trouble not only between men and women but between parents and their sons and daughters.

This lady in part, in part: "Can you help me to understand my daughter? She is 21 years of age, and is good-looking, has lots of friends of both sexes, but is frequently difficult to get on with at home. I do not seem to be able to 'reach her heart' as I would like to. She does not take much notice of what I tell her, and is often moody and taciturn with me . . ."

This correspondent has enclosed a specimen of her daughter's writing and, briefly, it indicates a rather lovable but somewhat highly-strung nature. She has a disposition that is in constant need of sympathy and affection.

When I turn to the mother's writing, however, it is a rather different story. It shows a great deal of pride, but there is little evidence of any great sympathy there. And there is indication of a disposition to become easily irritated at trifles.

The trouble in this case lies not so much with the daughter, as with the mother.

I have no doubt that this lady loves her daughter, but she is inclined to be somewhat hasty and narrow-minded in her views. She makes no attempt to really understand her daughter.

When the girl looks for sympathy and understanding, she gets indifference. The mother's pride prevents her from really seeing her daughter's point of view. The inevitable result is an estrangement where there should be mutual sympathy and understanding. The girl turns to others where she should, naturally, turn to her mother.

My advice to my correspondent is to realize that her daughter is not a child to be ruled in the same groove. Some are blessed in its critician; others are extremely sensitive to the slightest suggestion of reproof.

If people would only strive to understand others, what a lot of pain and mental anguish would be saved!

One of the basic values of Graphoanalysis is its ability to help people to understand themselves and others.

Lovers quarrel and separate, often because of an inability to see the other's side of the question. In a word, because of a lack of understanding.

Capable men and women work diligently and faithfully, sometimes at a job they despise, because they cannot understand that their talents lie in another direction altogether. Thus, a potentially fine story could be forging ahead.

Graphoanalysis fills this need, and its usefulness is to be seen in the ever-enlarging circle of people who make use of it.

Do you wish to know what your handwriting reveals? A character analysis will show you your weak points and your strong traits, and will help you to make the most of opportunity and progress. Send a letter in your own writing, along with 10c in stamps or coin (coin preferred), and birthdate to each case. Enclose 10c with each letter. Address mail orders with 3c stamped addressed envelope, to Lawrence Hembert, Graphoanalyst, care of Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermot Ave., Winnipeg, Man. All letters are confidential, and replies will be forwarded as quickly as possible, but may delay a little while, owing to the large number of letters arriving.

TELLS EXPERIENCE BEFORE A NOTARY

Mrs. Albert Aubry, 1605 Maisonneuve, Montreal, relates in a sworn statement how she was relieved of her cough. She now enjoys life after years of suffering. "I make this declare as sure as truth, Mrs. Aubry tells of her experience before a notary public under oath. She says:—"I was troubled for years with a bad cough. My bowels did not function regularly. I had no appetite and no energy. I am delicate for me to do my work. I took a great many remedies, but none of them too wished. Finally I decided to try Fruit-a-tives. In a very short time my health became great; improved; my appetite and bowels acted before I learned about Fruit-a-tives." Chinese Finds Queer Spider

A spider with a human face has been discovered in Chungking, Hupeh. Its body is small but its head is unusually large. The face is dead white, with black eyebrows and a small mouth. It is said to be the horror of its appearance. Its feet are dark brown. A well-to-do Chinese found the creature in his house. He has sent it to the people s educational institution.

The war between China and Tibet has now lasted for fifty years and the present series of battles, in which the Tibetans were victorious, is believed to have been arranged to celebrate the jubilee.

HE FELT MISERABLE AFTER MEALS

Acute Indigestion Relieved by Eruchon

The treatment which put this man right must surely be worth trying in every case of indigestion. Read what he says:—

"Two years ago I suffered very much from indigestion, loss of appetite, and a most severe pain in my back. Food roared in my stomach. I felt most miserable after meals, and had no desire or appetite for them. A friend advised me to try Eruchon Salts. I did so, and I am most happy to testify that after a short time I felt the greatest relief. I continued taking Eruchon till I felt myself quite better and a new man. I feel as light-hearted as I did twenty years ago."—H. B.

What Eruchon did for him it will do for everybody who who suffers from indigestion as he did. The fact is that "just little daily dose" of Eruchon first stimulates the rising gastric juices to aid digestion, and then counsels a most regular and unfailing elimination of all waste matter every day.

Damage From Motor Boats

Cause Waves Which Are Menacing Buildings In Venice

Fears that the appearance of motor boats in the canals of Venice, Italy, would injure the buildings, have been realized. Venice is built on piles, and a commission of architects has found that the pounding of the waves made by the "put-put" boats has undermined the piles. Some 500,000 will be required to repair the damage already done, and immediate action is necessary to save many beautiful buildings from collapse.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

FEBRUARY 24

PETER HEALS A LAME MAN

Golden Text: "But Peter said, Silver and gold have I none; but what I have, that give I thee." Acts 3:6.

Lesson: Acts 3:1 to 4:31.

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 30:1-6.

Explanations And Comments

Peter Heals A Lame Man. 3:1-10. Nine in the morning and three in the afternoon were the hours for sacrificial and prayer. It was the ninth hour, or three in the afternoon, when Peter and John went to the temple to pray.

At the temple door which was called Beautiful they saw a man sitting and begging alms of all who entered the temple. Josephus says of this door that it was adorned in a more costly manner, being made of Corinthian and thicker plates of silver and gold than the others. The man had been lame from birth, and was daily carried to that spot to beg. He must have been well known to all in Jerusalem. He was part of the city landscape, the people knew him as well as they knew the carved columns of the temple gateway.

The man was not expecting alms from every worshipper, and probably glanced indifferently at Peter and John. To rivet his attention upon them and arouse his expectation, Peter said to him, "Look on us." The beggar gave heed to them, "Silver and gold have I none."

Instead of silver and gold the man needed strong limbs that he might earn his own living. True charity helps men to help themselves. Peter had no money, but he had a load of sympathy a word of hope, and he quickly added, "But what I have, that give I to thee." You recall the story told by Turgenief of the Russian who put his hands in his pockets and found nothing there and then said to the beggar before him, "I am sorry, brother; I have nothing with me, brother." And the beggar, touched by the word "brother," said, "That, too, was a gift, brother."

"In the name [by the power] of Jesus of Nazareth, walk." Peter then took the man by the right hand and helped him up. The man felt the power of the cure. "It was human sympathy and human helpfulness cooperating with divine power. The power of God just then was operating through Peter's right hand."—Farrar.

Immediately the man's feet and ankle-bones received strength. The Greek words used here for ankle-bones are said to be those which a doctor would use in describing a patient, and are one of the many proofs that Luke the physician was the writer of The Acts. The man leaped up and began to walk, and he entered the temple with them, and the time leaping and praising God.

Migration Of Birds

Canada Goose Front Job 5 Miles Sanctuary, Shipped To Winnipeg Last Spring, Killed In Texas Recently

Each year Jack Miner tries a new experiment in studying the migration of birds and their knowledge of travel. Last spring, with the co-operation of the Manitoba Government and the Department of Interior, Ottawa, with Dr. Carl Mann of the Smithsonian Society, and the Winnipeg Free Press donating the express on all parcels, he caught twenty-five Canada geese and shipped them to that express to Winnipeg, where they were met with a truck and taken to Grant Lake, in that vicinity. Bands were released with a flock of several thousand southern-bound geese.

About one month later, one of these banded geese was reported shot by a native in Northern Manitoba, near the west shores of Hudson Bay; but nothing more was heard from him until December 30th, when one was shot in Kennedy, North Carolina. A usual winter home. In other words, it left the bleak wilderness of the north and flew back to North Carolina, along the Atlantic seaboard, to join its parents, sisters and brothers, where it has lived all its life, because the geese that visit the Jack Miner bird sanctuary at Kingsville, Ontario Canada, about 25 miles south of Detroit, Mich., in the spring, mostly raise young in the Arctic regions, chiefly around Carrituck Sound, Kennedy every year Jack Miner's geese killed in that vicinity, at the same time as this bird was shot.

Every report of this goose going back to his many wonderful experiments is a surprise to Jack Miner because the Canada goose is the most wonderful traveler of all birds. It flies nearly 1,500 miles in an express run and never released with western geese, that they would stay with the eastern flight, and perhaps be shot west of the Mississippi.

Commencing further on it Jack Miner said this incident is something for scientists to carefully study, in order to fathom the mystery of the goose in spending the summer in the Arctic regions after leaving the south, the Northwest, and then finding its way back to its usual winter quarters in North Carolina.

"Now that it has been proven that these geese go back in their usual winter home, there is every possibility that some will be reshipped to the Miner bird sanctuary this coming spring.

Out of 1,700 of Miner's banded geese killed during the last 12 years over 90 per cent of the number were shot east of the Mississippi. What makes the experiment doubly interesting is the fact that this goose having been shipped to the far Western country now lands back and is shot in its old winter home. This gives us all something to think about as to the knowledge possessed by these birds as regard to travel or migration.

Curative Woodchopper Finds Bear And Three Gallons Of Honey In Pine Tree

When Harry Burton chopped down a pine tree at Ban Claire, Ont. he got not only four cords of wood but a hibernating black bear and three gallons of wild honey. There also was a bees' nest there if he wanted it.

As Mr. Burton's axe bit into the pine, he noticed steam coming from the wood. Closing deeper he uncovered a bear's den. It was the animal's breath he thought was steam. With a grunt the bear emerged but was killed with two blows from the woodchopper's axe.

Continuing his chopping, Mr. Burton found a beehive full of fragrant wild honey. Apparently the bear had made plans as he would not leave out of hibernation lean

THE TENDERFOOT

By GEORGE B. ROBEY

Author of "The Coronado Trail", "The Silver Horde", etc.

SYNOPSIS

"You've fallen heir to a half-share in plenty of trouble," the lawyer told Gerald Kerne. "The Broken Spur has been systematically looting the ranch, and old Joe Carr, your partner, is drinking himself into ruin."

Dad Kane, desert rat and luckless prospector, did not return to tell Dustin and Spike Goddard, who had grubstaked him, of his discovery of a rich gold mine, and shows samples of the ore.

Dustin unexpectedly comes along while Stone and Edith are riding fence, and seeing them together, tells Edith he mentions their dispute could be settled by marrying him, and Edith refuses his proposal with remarks that make Dustin angry and insults Stone, who promptly throws him into a pool of water.

Stone tells Crews, his foreman, about his meeting with Dustin. Stone and Crews go to Dawn to send a telegram to Gerald Kerne. While at Dawn an attempt is made to murder Stone who proves more than a match for his enemies.

Dustin learns that Gerald Kerne has been sent for, and also that Dura Stone has been in the habit of rustling Carr's cattle. He sets out with Two Kane to learn the location of his gold discovery. Dad Kane shows Dustin the ledge.

They go back to camp, and Dustin shoots Kane. He fixes the shooting on Pyrol Gregg, a drug addict, whom he stupefied by the narcotic he had taken, did not know whether he was guilty or not. They bury Kane and then return to the Broken Spur ranch.

Meanwhile at the Hour Glass, Carr, Cyrus and Dora speculate as to the meaning of entries in the notebook belonging to Dane Kane that Stone had found. The Attorney took possession, and, accompanied by Edith Carr, rides out to Red Water to test out his theory, which proves correct, but they find the gold deposit mentioned in the prospector's notebook, and they return to the ranch; they meet Dustin leaving he house, and he deliberately tries to ride down Stone.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER XII.

A slouching man rose from a half-prone position between a desk and a gun rack when he entered. Stone grinned affably and thrust out a hand.

"My name's Stone," he said pleasantly. "I work for Carr at the Hour-glass. Are you Mr. Jameson by any chance?"

"Not by chance, by design and for my sins I think," said Jameson with a sour grin. "What can I do for you?"

"Have you got an encyclopedia in this office and if so, will you let me consult it?"

"Over on the shelf yonder," said Jameson. "Help yourself."

He watched curiously as Stone took down volume after volume. When he replaced the last with a sigh as of disappointment Jameson became frankly curious.

"Can't you find it?" he asked.

"It's not in the book . . ." Stone perched on the desk and rolled a cigarette. "Maybe you can help me, Mr. Jameson. Have you lived long in the part of the country?"

Jameson went to the dusty window and pointed to the great bulk of Mount Peak that thrust above the skyline.

"When I first came here," he said, "that peak was a hole in the ground. It's grown up since then. I haven't. You say your name's Stone? I'm Jameson . . . In the middle of a square from which the rest of the town radiated. He parked in front of a small frame building that bore the sign:

SECO COURIER

Ryan Jameson, Editor and Prop.

"If any information is to be had it ought to be in a newspaper office," he muttered. "If he hasn't got an encyclopedia I don't know who will have one."

A heavy shadow fell across the doorway. Dustin stood there, his face dark with anger.

"Stone, you're a liar and a thief!" he said thickly. "You've been

"FIRE!"

I am the scourge of mankind. My sowing lash draws the blood of rich, of poor, of guilty, of innocent. I spare neither age nor sex - the man, the woman, the grandfather, the child—all cower under my vicious strokes. I pursue in the cloud of night and in the light of high noon I am abroad. I spread desolation and suffering. I lay waste the work of men's hands, and the creations of their minds I do destroy.

Penury follows in my train. Locks keep me not out, and at bars and bolts do I laugh.

I stride on the wild winds, and the creak of my whip is heard in the howl of the storm and over the clang of the alarm bells.

I reach out to the works of the Almighty and brazenly do I curl my flaming tongue around His most holy places.

Celebrate Silver Wedding Anniversary

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Baker was the scene of a very happy gathering in the form of a surprise party on Monday evening to celebrate the silver wedding anniversary of this well known couple. The guests, numbering about fifty, arrived in time for supper, which was a sumptuous meal in spite of the picnic style in which it was served. After supper an address of congratulation was read by Mr. Boyd and a beautiful silver tea service presented to Mr. and Mrs. Baker by the assembled guests. Mr. Baker responded in true bridegroom style with a very appropriate little speech. Mr. Wilberby, their oldest western friend, then spoke a few words, after which were several impromptu speeches, recalling pleasant contacts with the guests of honor.

Mr. and Mrs. Baker were also the recipients, from the Craig family, of a complete dinner service, including china, silver and crystal.

WAINWRIGHT IN SURPRISE WIN OVER LOCAL SQUAD

All of the mush and about ninety-five per cent of the action in the Wainwright - Vermilion clash on Monday night was packed into the third period stanzas one and two were mediocre exhibitions of hockey but the third particularly recompensed for its predecessors.

In the opening period Vermilion had a slight edge but from the second on the Buffalo boys began to outskate and outplay the natives. Play was at no disjointed as Vermilion were without Mac Kenzie, English, Honeyman and Craig, all regulars, while their positions were filled by Mood, Reschke, Bell and Atkins. Wainwright was minus one defence man who is in the hospital suffering from concussion, having received a week ago in a rough game at Hughenden and two forwards who were helping out from in the gas line league playoff against Viking. The visitors were also in good sports and clean players and thoroughly enjoyed their brief visit here. The game was held up as the ice with all the visitors playing equipment ran a wheel off and was late in arriving.

Seven minutes after the start of the third period Lawley scored on a pass from Key, and the crowd and the game came to life with a bang. Atkins evened the count by slapping in Carson's pass on a quick play. Manson then drew a penalty and Swales of Wainwright promptly scored unassisted.

Not satisfied with this margin Lawley and Key again allied their and Key tallied. The score ending 3-1.

Bert Williams refereed.

OUR V.S.A. CORNER

THE LITTLE ROYAL

Next Saturday is not apart by the school of agriculture as "Little Royal" day. On this day all the students are nice to put on a real fair, where the various classes compete in all kinds of products.

A month ago the boys of the second year and two in one class drew for animals to be the term. There were cattle horses, sheep and poultry drawn from and the animal so drawn was to be prepared and trained as for a real fair. There will be shows on Saturday and prizes given for evident care, training and show manship.

The second year girls will compete in sewing household administration projects, and cooking in the latter class Mr Wylie is offering prizes for the best home-made bread.

The first year girls are exhibiting laundry during and cooking, while the first year boys will compete in carpentry and blacksmithing. A special class of exhibition samples of grain and grass seeds will complete the first year boys' showing. Interesting feature will include an egg candling competition and other novel attractions.

A new feature will consist of a $20 acre farm laid out on the gymnasium floor, showing a successful rotation of crops and the homestead complete with a snapped windbreak and other features. The girls will serve refreshments, in order to cover the small expense in connection with the ribbon prizes.

All parents and friends of the V.S.A. are cordially invited to visit the fair which is free, to see the exhibits as prepared by the students. It will give students a chance to see some of the young animals for the first time, your presence will do much to encourage and help the V.S.A. The staff and students will be glad to welcome all

As no further cases of measles have developed in the past two or three days it seems probable that the epidemic has run its course. Nearly all those who were confined to the hospital are now back at classes and seem none the worse for their enforced though not very enjoyable holiday

Miss Vivienne M. Kennedy, teacher Red Star school district, Fairview, has this week written for information regarding the courses in Agriculture and Household Science at the school as some young people in her district are intere

It is indeed a pleasure to receive letters of this kind and Miss Kennedy may be very sure that the staff and students of this school of Agriculture appreciate her efforts very much

Annual Bonspiel Draws 23 Rinks

Final Stages Being Reached

Twenty-three rinks are battling it out at the curling rink for the honor and prizes in five competitions. The events are narrowing down in the finals and the tournaries will probably be completed by the time this appears in print. The entries consist of 12 visiting and 11 home spinners. There are two primary events, Grand Challenge and the Brunswick, two secondaries, the Vermilion and the Pilkie, and the Consolation between the losers of the C.N. railway track was carried by a majority of 47, there being 149 votes registered for and 42 against.

Interest has been heightened by the entry of several rinks, a group from Clandonald and another from Barrhead competing in spite of the fact that there are no curling facilities at those points, while a local kids' rink is being led by the veteran Skip Cooper.

The rinks entered are—Nichols, Ed mondson, Hunter, Innisfree; Claudon Aid, Dorothy McFarlane, Beverly and Anderson, Islay; Crooks, McKinnon, McFadden and Whitson, Mannville; Casselman, Kitscoty.

Local rinks—Stewart, Corley, Knoll, Walkenshaw, Parker, Lund, Wilson Clarke Cooper, Firth and Dumont

Incredible as it may seem, doctors are now prescribing a way that relieves sore, painful sore throat in as little as 2 to 3 minutes!

Aspirin tablets disintegrate so completely no irritating particles are left! Results are immediate. At once soreness is eased—the swollen-ed-ness allayed.

Everywhere throat specialists urge this fundamental treatment instead of less effective old-time "washes" and "antiseptics." Remember this. And when you buy, see that you get ASPIRIN. Little Journeys in Science

MATCHES

(By Gordon H Ouest, M.A.)

Perhaps the greatest discovery ever made by man was that of fire, and one of the most useful. If not the greatest, of inventions was that of producing fire by the use of matches. Friction matches containing the element phosphorus were first introduced by an Englishman, John Walker, about 1826. At the present time there are two general types of matches in common use, namely the "strike-anywhere" and the "safety" match The "strike-anywhere" variety are essentially used the most and contains in the tip the following substances, potassium chlorate which is rich in oxygen, paraffin or sulphur, a binding substance such as glue; a filling material such as ground glass, and a compound of phosphorus and sulphur known by chemists as phosphorus sesquisulphide. When the ordinary match is rubbed against a rough surface, heat is produced by friction which is to ignite the phosphorus. The heat produced by the burning of the phosphorus is increased by the burning of the potassium chlorate and carried to the wood by the slowly burning paraffin or sulphur. Other substances such as starch, clay, or plaster of Paris are often added to the match head to keep it dry or to regulate the speed of combustion.

In the "safety" match, red phosphorus some substance which gives up oxygen readily such as potassium chlorate, and some gritty material, such as powdered glass, are mixed with glue and placed on the side of the match box. The tip of this type of match contains potassium chlorate and an easily combustible substance usually a compound of antimony and sulphur known to the scientist as antimony sulphide. The match cannot easily be ignited by the attempt on the prepared surface on the box.

ALL FOOD MADE HER ILL

Caused By Acidity—Corrected by Kruschen

"It is only fair to pass these facts on," writes a nurse. "I was suffering from over-acidity and Kruschen is such an extent that I was completely ill. I couldn't keep food. When I actually forced myself to take something I was violently sick soon after. I now have taken Kruschen for 12 months. And I have no doubt that it has regained my digestive system. I can now quite fit and able to work with vigor again."—Nurse B. L.

Indigestion is caused by a failure in the flow of the gastric or digestive juices. As a result, your food, instead of being assimilated by your system, simply collects and ferments inside you, generating harmful acid poisons. This immediate effect of the acid mineral salts in Kruschen is to promote the flow of the digestive fluids all over the body. As you continue with the "little daily dose," it energizes the organ and completes elimination of all poisonous matter from the blood. And that means a complete end to indigestion.

WHAT DOES YOUR HANDWRITING REVEAL?

By LAWRENCE [illegible]

(All Rights Reserved)

(Editor's Note: Have you taken advantage of the author's offer to read your handwriting? It is an opportunity to know yourself better, and it may put you on the path to greater things. Read the offer following this article.)

It is not surprising that many of the letters I receive from readers of my articles ask whether there is any indication of talent. It is natural that people should be vitally interested in finding the best line of endeavour to follow, and any information that helps them to get the most out of their capitalization and make the utmost use of their latent possibilities is always welcome.

Illustrating does indicate talent. And line is not to be wondered at when we realize that handwriting is the basis of all drawing—well that source of individual power and capacity.

Not all the mere possession of a talent is by no means everything. We all have more or less talented in some particular way, but who do not reach any height of expression. In fact, are drifting along without ever doing anything really worth-while.

Talent is a gift, and because to my mind of a man who has a rare talent for drawing and can do things with a pen and pencil that I have rarely seen equalled, but who is without any training along that line. Unfortunately, he happens to be blessed with only that one thing—that which would goods, and is in a position where he does not have to work very hard for his money.

The result is that he has never gone to any trouble to bring out the best that is in him, and the world has lost a first-class artist.

This case will illustrate my meaning very aptly. I repeat that the mere possession of a talent does not necessarily bring the actual power. There are certain essential characteristics which go to the making of genius.

And inversely, as I have shown, these are shown with the really great spark of inspiration lying within them who have failed because of an inability to develop and express it.

Versatility is a good thing to have, but concentration more often leads to success. Make up your mind to follow a single line, and then yourself forward with everything that you have got that single path.

Too many irons in the fire often means that none of them are properly attended to and so they burn to ashes.

Miss J. C. Regina.—You are so versatile that it seems to be an advantage rather than a disadvantage in this connection. You can do so many things fairly well that the necessity to find one thing to specialize on. But you must do this, if you really want to get anywhere. Take up your study, and put your whole heart and soul into it. Obtain proper training, and make up your mind that you are going to succeed as a singer. That is the only way.

PETER UNMASKS FALSEHOOD AND HYPOCRISY

Golden text: Wherefore, putting away falsehood, speak ye truth each one with his neighbor: for we are members one of another. Ephesians 4:25.

Lesson: Acts 5:1-42; 6:6-35.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 139:17-24.

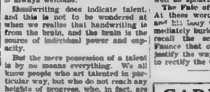
Explanations And Comments

Peter Unmasks Falsehood and Hypocrisy, Acts 5:1-4. But (in contrast to Barnabas' true generosity; see the preceding verses), another member of the Christian community, Ananias, sold some property, kept back part of the money received, and, with the connivance of his wife (Moffatt's translation), brought the rest of it and laid it at the apostle's feet, placed it at their disposal, as if it were the whole. "So it happened that he richly honors the feet of the apostles than the eyes of Jesus," comments Calvin.

Peter saw through his hypocritical act and sternly asked, "Ananias, why hath Satan filled thy heart to lie to the Holy Spirit, and to keep back part of the price of the land?" He had not sinned against men but against God.

"While it remained, did it not remain thine own? And after it was sold, was it not in thy power? How is it that thou hast conceived this thing in thy heart?" Peter's words show that the selling was wholly voluntary. And that the sin of the couple was not in retaining part of the money received, for they had a perfect right to do this, but in pretending that the part which they offered was the whole, in seeking to gain unmerited reputation for liberality. "Thou has not lied unto men, but unto God." A. lie may be acted as well as spoken.

The Fate of Ananias, Acts 5:5, 6. At these words Ananias fell dead, and his body was taken up and immediately buried. Here we may well recall the sensible words of Dr. Pierce that our manner of life is a testify the ways of God to men, but to rectify the ways of men to God.



GARDENING

Gordon L. Smith

Spring is once more approaching and with it the desire in the normal human being to do something growing. Soon all signs of winter will have disappeared and the earth will emerge from its long sleep of brown to something green and warm. Then the call of spring, the would-be gardener commences his annual preparations. Plans are drawn up, seed catalogues pursued, and equipment is checked over. Much interest is added to the garden by proper planning and much practical value also. Like a great picture or a humble barn or garage, the finished result will largely depend upon the thought which precedes actual construction.

Width Vegetable Rows

Practically all vegetables should be grown in absolutely straight lines. Add things like lettuce, radish and carrots can go in rows from sight to sight, but peas, beans, beets, onions, peas and beans will need fifteen to twenty inches inches and the tomatoes, sprawling cucumbers and melons from 18 to 24. To save space, and to make cultivation easier such as lettuce and spinach can be planted between taller crops. Where this close planting is followed, it will be necessary to cultivate and fertilize frequently.

Flower Plans

In planning the flower garden time of planting is important because some of the annuals be started seed in doors or in a hot bed. Certain flowers will stand a light frost and some will not. To have flowers from early summer until autumn, the flowering must be taken into consideration, and be bights should be noted down to prevent the tiny things from being hidden by such tall growers as Cosmos, African Marigolds and Stocks Colors are important. Occasionally the effect of a bed of one color is best. Fragrance should be taken into consideration. Flowers like the old fashioned Evening Stock, while not particularly beautiful, have such a delightful and pleasing fragrance in early evening, that some of them should be included. Spicy flowers have individual preferences. Some like partial shade Among these are tuberous rooted Begonias and Annual Larkspurs, while the bright Nasturtiums, Portulaca and California Poppy revel in full sun and poor location. Shrubs, flowers, grass, lawns and all forms of decorative gardening, informal plants are advised. Straight lines should be avoided and these should only be used once. Also houses foundations and fences should be screened. Clumps of shrubbery and a few trees about a home will not only break these harsh lines, but will tend to tie the structure down to earth and produce complete picture.

THE TENDERFOOT

By GEORGE B. RODNEY

Author of "The Cayenade Trail", "The Canyon Trail", Etc.

BY NOPHES

"You've fallen heir to a half-share in plenty of trouble," the lawyer told Gerald Keene "The Broken Spur has been reported as belonging to Dusty Dustin and Spike Goddard, who had grubstaked him, of his interest in a rich gold mine, and shows samples of the ore.

Dustin unexpectedly comes along while Stone and Edith are riding fence, and seeing them, rides and talks to Edith. He mentions their dispute could be settled by marrying him, and Edith refuses his proposal with remarks that make Dustin furious. He insults Stone, who promptly throws him into a pool of water.

Stone tells Cress, his foreman, about his meeting with Dustin. Bruce and Cress go to fence and send a telegram to Gerald Keene. While at dinner an attempt is made to kill Stone, who proves more than a match for his enemies.

Dustin learns that Gerald Keene has been sent for, and also that Duro Stone has given the Broken Spur men cutting Carr's cattle. He sets out with Del Rio to intercept the arrival of his gold discovery. Dad Kane shows Dustin the mine.

They go back to camp, and Dustin cheats Kane. He fixes the shooting on Peyoil Gregg, a drug addict, who, stupefied by the narcotic he had taken, did not realize what he was doing. Dustin then buys Kane and then returns to the Broken Spur ranch

Meanwhile at the Hour Glass, Carr, Cress and Stone speculate as to the meaning of entries in the notebook belonging to Dane Kane that Stone had found. Stone thinks of a possible solution, and, accompanied by Edith Carr rides out to Red Rock to test out his theory, which proves correct, and they find the gold that had been mentioned in the prospector's notebook. As they return to the ranch they meet Dustin leaving the house, who purposely, but unsuccessfully tries to ride down Stone.

"It's peyoil," he said sharply. "I know the damned stuff. Peyoil is the old Aztec name. All I know of it is that it is one hell of a kind of dope. After a little while it erases the nerve centers, distorts his ideas of right and wrong, you know. If you found these half-smoked drug cigarettes I say fire it's pretty clear that whoever was there was usin' peyoil cigarettes. It's against the law, of course."

"Do you happen to know whether old man Kane uses the stuff?"

"I'm sure sure he does not," said Jameson. "He gets bung-full on red-eye when he comes to town and he gets the Indians to make it for him sometimes, but I'm sure he doesn't dope."

Then Dustin uses it?"

"Not for a minute. Hardly any one uses it now. The Indians used to use it because they like to get all worked up and it was too risky sellin' whisky to Indians. A federal offense, you know. It crazes 'em. I only know one feud almost knew who over uses the stuff and that's Gregg out at the Broken Spur. They call him Peyoil Gregg because of the way he gets full on it. He's a half-wit who's been workin' on the Broken Spur ever since Dustin and Goddard got it."

"Humph! If you're right . . . then the man Gregg must have been at that camp in the hills. If Kane was there then this man Gregg must be can tell us where we can find him. Tell me this, Jameson . . . What's the minin' law? Can a man, who locates an ore-vein, follow that ore-vein when it leads into and under another man's land?"

"I'm pretty sure he can," said Jameson after a moment's thought. "That is he can follow a vein that he finds off a man's land. He can't go on a man's land, pick up a vein and follow that. It's got to be done fairly Find a vein on his own land; trace it under some one else's and follow it there unless the land owner beats him to it. See? Why?"

Well, it stirs up this way to me . . .

Dustin and Kane have found ore on the Hour-glass. Carr doesn't want it. Dustin has bought up a note that Carr gave Pegram and Dustin will use that note to try to make Dustin marry him to save her father. That note gives Dustin half ownership in the Hour-glass and will give Gerald Keene, who comes in the other half of the Hour-glass, a partner of Sam Dustin and, if Dustin gains work out, he will marry Edith Carr.

"Just what do you want?" demanded Jameson curtly.

"First of all I want to find old Man Kane. He's the key to the puzzle. He's got to tell us just what kind of a deal he's made with Dustin. He can tell us where and how he found that ore. And if it's on the Hour-glass, whether Dustin knew it was on the Hour-glass when it was located. He may be able to tell us if this man Dustin uses peyoil. If he does, he's probably not responsible for his actions."

"You're barkin' at a knot," said Jameson forcibly. "Sam Dustin is always responsible for his actions Look here, Stone! What stake have you got in this. You're not even close to your lap for me. Come clean, old man."

"You know how the Hour-glass is owned, don't you?" asked Stone suddenly.

Jameson did not know and said so.

"Joe Carr owns one half of it. Gerald Keene, the nephew of old Peter Vinton, owns the other half. If neither of them dies the survivor gets all."

Jameson stood staring at him for a moment. Then he went to a closet and came back with bottle and glasses.

"You're tryin' to talk like a sane man," he said, "but your words just don't target. You don't know this man Dustin. By Carr's note, Sam Dustin practically owns Carr's half of the Hour-glass ranch. Keene owns the other half. A gold-mine has been found on the Hour-glass. Will Sam Dustin give half of the Hour-glass with its gold mine to a man he never saw? What deal will he make with this Gerald Keene? I'll tell you. In some way or other, in some damned dark, deep, way that we couldn't think of, Gerald Keene will lose his share of the Hour-glass and Sam Dustin will own it."

"Talk your age," said Stone laughingly. "This man Dustin, that you all credit with superhuman powers, can't work miracles, I reckon. The main thing for me to do is . . . find this man Kane. He's the key to the whole darned mess."

"You're probably right" Jameson nodded curtly—"but consider this. There is one more reason why that gold-ore was found you found those pieces of peyoil cigarettes. I don't believe daybody about here but that man Gregg ever smoked them. If our guess is right, then Peyoil Gregg was with the man who found or located that ore-vein. . . . Probably old man Kane. The fact that Sam Dustin had that package in his coat pocket suggests, of course, that he can always get him under the anaesthetic law. He can explain it, of course . . . Dustin is a resourceful cuss. Your best bet to find out exactly what has taken place is . . . question Peyoil Gregg or Dad Kane. And for God's sake tell his man Gerald Keene to watch his step when he gets here."

"What do you mean?" demanded the mystified Stone

"You half-baked idiot! . . ." Jameson flung himself across the room. "This man Gerald Keene represents one-half of the Hour-glass. Sam Dustin virtually owns the other half Dustin has got a note from Joe Carr. Gold has been found on the Hour-glass and Dustin knows about it. Do you want to see Sam Dustin marry Edith Carr?"

There was no doubt in Duro Stone's answer to that question.

"All right! Then carry out your first plan . . . Find Dad Kane! I'll start a still-hunt for him. In the meantime we might try a hand at Peyoil Gregg if we can find him."

With that remark in his ears, Duro Stone took his departure.

CHAPTER XIII.

Spike Goddard watched Dustin ride up to the ranch-house of the Broken Spur, and then turn his horse to one of the hands. With one glance at his partner Spike emitted a long, whistling breath. Then he got out decanter and glasses and sat down to wait. Presently Dustin stormed in, called for Goddard into the house and into the office, where he stood staring at his partner Spike's very silence condemned him as guilty. "Dad Kane's gone," he said sharply. "Gone and took the last thousand dollars that I had in the bank. Gone and left me with a lot of worthless stock on my hands. Gone and left me with a lot of fragments on the wall. He retrieved his glass that had escaped ruin and laughed.

"You go on sit' answer your own questions. What all happened in Jose'?"

Dustin told him" sketchily and Spike listened in evident disbelief. When that disbelief grew too great for words, Dustin turned on him in growing wrath.

"Listen here," he said. "I'm goin' to come clean with you, Spike. Then you'll understand what I'm after."

"I know," said Spike gravely. "You're after that red-headed girl of Joe Carr's."

"Yes and by God, I'll get her, too. I went over to the Hour-glass to put it up to her, but she was out ridin' with that damned drug-store cowboy, wanderin' over the country. Six months from now she'll be my wife and she'll have two millions to her tend to. She'll be stayin' home then . . . .

"Looks like that ambition ought to keep any red-headed woman contest," said Mr. Goddard, grinning. "It looks to me like you've got the game to persuade her. Why didn't you tell old man Carr that you're bought up his note to Pegram for seven thousand dollars and that if Edith don't marry you, they're both headin' for the Poor Farm? You'd have him short if you spring that on him."

Discovered By Accident

Money Made And Saved in Very Simple Way

In the modern ice-cream barrow the cream is kept frozen by use of "dry" ice, which is solidified carbonic acid gas. A boy in charge of one of these barrows found that, when he took a piece of this dry ice out put it under the bell of his bicycle, the bell would give a rattling ring From this it was discovered that frozen carbon dioxide produces noise wherever it touches metal and as a result, a new method has been found for helping musical instrument makers to attain perfect tuning A Durban metal worker was asked by the Durban Corporation to tune a set of bells on the Town Hall clock. Though this was against the rules of the firm he consented. The regular tuning was to plunge the article a number of times into an ice-tin bath a slow and costly process, but as an experiment he tried a piece of dry ice. It worked. The result was so good and so rapid that he took the idea to his employers and their consultant engineer in the factory is also now a year. Tar paving was discovered by a boy who was sent for two gallons of tar to dress a roof and on his way back upset the tar in the road Later it was found that the effect was firmly bound together and became about tar macadam.

Edison Bought Patent

Englishman Was First To Make Carbon Filament Lamp

The remark by a Toronto professor that Edison was not the inventor of electric light may surprise the majority of people, but it is quite true. The first electric lamp was produced by Sir Joseph Swan, who was born at Sunderland, England, in 1828. He was a chemical engineer who first achieved success in improvements in photography. He made a carbon filament lamp as early as 1862, and in 1880 exhibited the first filament vacuum lamp.

Edison was working along the same lines about that time, and he bought the Swan patent. Subsequently the first lamps issued from his factory were "Edison" lamps, thus linking the two names together after Edison had improved on the original Swan lamp.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

Little Helps For This Week

"The beloved of the Lord shall dwell in safety by Him, and the Lord shall cover him all the day long." Deut. 33:12

Whate'er events betide
Thy will they all perform
Safe in Thy breast to rest I hide
Nor fear the coming storm

I have seemed to see a need of everything God gives me, and want nothing that He denies me. There is no affliction but either in it, or after it, I find that I could not be without it. Whether it be taken from me, or not given me, sooner or later God grants me it Himself without it. I cast all my concerns on the Lord, and live securely on the care and wind are of my heavenly Father. If my ways are in a sense hedged up with thorns and grow darker and darker daily, yet I distrust not my God in the least, and live more quietly by faith than I would do if I possessed everything.

About 2,500 persons were killed and 1,800 are injured in motoring accidents in the United States during 1934 according to preliminary reports published in Washington. The number in 1933 was 30,000. Experts believe that the larger number of old and defective cars on the roads and the higher speeds at which motorists operated are responsible for the increase in deaths.

NEIGHBORHOOD NARRATIVES

From the Neighborhood of the South-East

The I. O. D. E. card party Saturday evening saw only a fair attendance but the lucky players were: Mrs. Hamland which those not so lucky were: Mrs. Cowles and Mr. E. Mossop (shades of our bridge expert!). The date and place of the next meeting is March 9 at the home of Mrs. Cole.

Mr. P. Carmichael of Watson was called to Islay Lake hospital yesterday to take care of the pupils in the vicinity on the 22nd.

Some startling literature re the recent Vermilion election very clearly illustrates that some people are slow to every question also that plain facts are very much relished by the light in which they are viewed.

Speaking of conservatives, it is true but that a great many Conservatives in the Westside district should be regarded as a laughing by-word, as re election on our conduct of dances by others. When it was intended as a warning against certain tendencies which have not yet reached a very alarming state, but which if allowed in community considered should be nipped in the bud. Apparently as yet, the matter hinges on the question of degree of offense, which the majority should be the same.

The Lake Shore of the fine club produced a record crowd representative of many districts and plenty of music. Dances announced were as follows—March 8, Canton concert and dance. Mar. 15, Mandolin concert and dance.

Miss Muriel Curry rendered solos for the evening's entertainment.

A very sweet and enjoyable Valentine party was given last week by Miss Arthur and the pupils of Woodville, for the mothers. Upon our entrance we left cold and went completely, stepping into bowers of roses, one cunningly formed a throne for the Valentine post office which was thatched with hearts. After enjoyable music to break the ice, the children gave a very interesting and excellently rendered demonstration of their daily work, wherein dramatization added great to the natural spontaneity. The pupils then served a very dainty lunch, while postmen delivered the Valentines, the highlight of the afternoon. Honors & degrees of natural sensitive received deserved greetings to all concerned.

A sad feature in an otherwise perfect afternoon was an accident to Bobby Rankin who crashed a finger. We hope that it is healing and you get a better Valentine present next year, Bobby.

Visitors for the afternoon were Mrs. Ewing, Mrs. F. van Wageningen, Miss A. Pridland and Mr. C. Bates.

Invited: Mrs. W. J. Doyle to Miss Sanders' birthday party on Mar. 1st. Mrs. Sweeney, Miss M. Cammerton, Miss M. Rankin, Miss Ida Thompson, Miss Ivan Doyle and Miss Betty Cammerton.

The April meeting of the U. F. and F.W.A. which took place on the 5th, listened to the report of Mr. Hainer re the convention and also sent in details by Mr. Joseph Brown about the Co-Operative meeting.

Our remarks re the problem of the Vermilion water supply gives the impression that no effort whatever had been made in the neighborhood to go into this matter. We feel that those who have been trying to organize a group to take care of forming a natural company viz Messrs R. Rankin & Ferguson and P. van Wageningen should receive credit in view of the fact that two meetings were held last year with only a fair response and nothing decided. In January further efforts to me-e were discouraged by the extreme cold weather. The three parties mentioned have communicated by letter to persons interested and hope to gain the response of enough members (15) to form a mutual company. They ask for this response by March 1.

What Are Actual Needs?

Listening to a discussion the other day on quotas and schedules adopted by governmental authorities as a guidance to those entrusted with the heavy and stressful difficult task of dealing with the cause of people who at this time are compelled to look to governments for the bare necessities of life the question was forced upon our attention. What do we actually need?

There are an enormous and varied number of things we want and our wants differ as greatly as our individualities differ but when it comes down to a definite listing of the things we actually need not only to sustain life, but to make life really worth living the number and variety of such needs is comparatively small.

People to-day but a few months scores of things which less than a generation ago were not even in existence, or as little known and in use as to be regarded as very great luxuries. For example, unemployed people living in our cities and, through no fault of their own compelled to accept municipal and government help look upon the provision of electric light as an absolute necessity, and would consider it a great hardship if they were asked to resort to candles, or even the old kerosene lamp, as a means of illumination. Yet their parents got along very well with kerosene lamps and their grandparents and great-grandparents did not feel they suffered any great hardship because they had nothing but candlelight. And throughout the length and breadth of rural western Canada to-day hundreds of thousands of people get along very well with kerosene lamps. But in our cities people now list electric light as an absolute need.

Casting our memories back to boyhood days, thirty, forty, fifty years ago, we recall that our clothing and food requirements, our actual needs, were small and inexpensive compared with what we list as needs now. As a matter of fact, many of our so-called present day needs are not needs at all and if our environment was shifted, we would not regard them as needs. Hundreds of people go camping every year, leave what we term "civilization" and go off into the wilds, and put up with conditions of living, and go without scores of things, and enjoy doing so, which at home they insist upon having as actual needs

Life, and real living, does not consist in the abundance and variety of the material things we may possess. The pioneer lacked most of the things now listed as absolute necessities, yet they enjoyed good health, were happy, and found life well worth the living. They built homes, reared families of sturdy children, new beauty in their surroundings, and developed character. Their needs were few and inexpensive. And they built nations

These years of depression are developing two types of people. Out of one group men and women are emerging with stronger, finer characters which are more self-reliant, with hampering superficialities burned away like so much dross, with the result that with the passing of the depression they will be the strong men and women who will take the leadership of the new world and who, out of the experiences of these years, will profit through the years to come. The other group consist of those who have been content to drift with the tide, to regard themselves as the sole victims of circumstance, ready to sit with folded hands and let others not merely provide them with actual needs but who demand that those others shall further burden themselves in order that they may be supplied with things they want over and above their needs. With the passing of the depression, members of this second group will find themselves unequipped and incapable of making that provision for themselves which they will then be called upon to make.

People in this second group are ruining their own lives and jeopardizing their whole future. Before it is everlastingly too late they should take stock of themselves. The State must and will provide all people with actual needs of subsistence, including shelter food and clothing when because of the vagaries of nature, or the inability to secure employment these people cannot supply their own needs. But desires and wants must not be confused with needs. And the fact that the day is coming when all people will have to make provision for their own needs as well as to gratify their desires and wants should not be lost sight of.

It would be well therefore for all people to give serious consideration to what are needs and divorce their thoughts upon their fellow citizens, as represented by the State accordingly

Seven Miles Of Wool

Used in Scarf Weighing Only Two And Half Ounces

A London newspaper says: "With shame and sorrow this column has to admit that it rather shirked dealing with the question of the royal wedding presents at the time of the wedding of Princess Marina and the Duke of Kent. It seemed such a vast task, and photographs of the presents while they were on display gave a much better impression. But now, although so late in the day, it seems a pity not to tell of one present the Duchess of Kent received. It came from the Shetland Islands, and was a self-made gift from the islanders themselves. It was a scarf knitted by Mrs. Thomas Sutherland, who is 90 years old, and contained seven miles of wool thread weighing only two and a half ounces' That we maintain is fine work. It was plucked by hand from the necks of lambs, and spun by the 83-year-old sister of the knitter."

Strange Happening

Radio Music Is Heard From The Spout Of A Kettle

Steam comes out of the spout of Miss Ruth Lightbourn's kettle at Hartville, Ont. but the kettle is also capable of producing other things. During a heavy fog, fine orchestra music came from the water container as it sat on the stove. The program, which was audible eight feet away, lasted 20 minutes then faded. During a lighter fog the performance was repeated, but the music was thinner.

There is no radio in the house and the stove is in no way connected with a ground or aerial system. Miss Lightbourn is at a loss to explain the strange occurrences.

Heated Railway Car

New Type Is Developed For Transportation Of Fruit And Vegetables

Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways are developing a new type heated car for transportation of fruit and vegetables, the Canadian horticultural council was told in the report of its transportation committee.

The council instructed its transportation committee to draft a resolution which would ask a portion of any federal monies voted for building of new rolling stock by the railways be used to increase the number of fruit and vegetable carriers.

R. L. Wheeler, Dominion fruit commissioner, described experiments by the railways to develop a new type heated car. The model he described was charcoal heated, with a system of hot-water pipes similar to a domestic heating plant. The council had asked the railways to consider a gas-burner heater, with inside temperatures regulated by the degree of cold outside the car.

Seek Oil Independence

Germany Hoping Domestic Requirements Will Soon Be Met

Amazing was the resistance offered by the Germans during the war largely because of her scientists, and now the Germans people are seeking through scientific means to make their country as economically independent as possible. They are breaking their efforts to find substitutes for imports. Not the least of these is petroleum, or the mineral oil from which it is produced. It is now asserted by German scientists that within a few years Germany will be independent of mineral oil imports. Petroleum is being produced synthetically from coal, and enormous attending efforts to utilize brown coal—lignite so extensively found in Germany. In the last year Germany has produced a third of the petroleum needed and she hopes that by 1936 her total domestic requirements will be met.

Proves That Earth Wobbles

Stars Once Seen Now Do Not Rise Above Horizon

When the astronomers of ancient Greece grouped the stars and found names for them they listed constellations that can now longer be seen from Greece. In this way they supplied Sir James Jeans, the British astronomer, with a proof of a scientific fact discovered long years after they departed into terrestrial planet. Among the constellations named by the men of Greece 2,500 years ago are some which, although visible then, cannot be seen in Greece to-day because they never rise above the horizon. The wobble, as it is called, is a movement of the spinning earth in which its axis makes a small circle once in every 26,000 years. In other words, each pole describes a circular path in the heavens at the speed of about a foot a year. This slow movement is caused by the pull of the sun and moon on the bulging equatorial part our globe.

TELL YOU HOW TO ROAST MEAT BETTER

—and no pan-scraping afterwards

Line your roasting pan with Canapar Cookery Parchment. The fats and juices won't burn. The meat is more succulent—and you save yourself all the bother of scraping or scouring the pan afterwards.

You can cook three vegetables at once in this same pot—when you place each in a bag of Canapar. No odors escape. All the goodness is sealed in. Use only ONE burner and turn that down low. Save fuel! Boiled or steamed fish is better, and less work, cooked in Canapar.

Just rinse the sheet of Canapar and use it over and over again. It won't absorb odors. Many women use it for a dish cloth. It's just like silk when wet—is very tough and does not shed lint.

CONSCRIPTION OF CASH IN GERMANY IS A NEW ORDER

Reichsbank Chief Will Use Money As Conscripted Germany's Cash to Buy Raw Materials and Consolidate Debts.

In one of the shortest laws passed by the Nazi government, the hunt for liquid assets was begun and will spare no one upon whom the reich minister of finance wishes to call for money.

Lutz Schwerin-Von Krosigk, the finance chief, was given wide powers to secure funds through credits, and is limited only by the Fuhrer's personal estimate of the extent to which he should strip liquid assets from those who have them.

Von Krosigk may go to banks and demand loans. He may go to private firms and individuals and insist upon their parting with such cash reserves as are not absolutely essential to their well-being.

Financial circles expect the government to float a 1,000,000,000 mark (about $400,000,000) loan some time during the year in a desperate attempt to keep the public works recovery program going.

It was considered most likely banks and insurance companies would be asked to subscribe with public participation demanded on a voluntary basis, possibly through methods resembling war saving stamps and baby bond sales.

Every German is compelled on pain of severe punishment to register with the reichsbank a list of all foreign holdings. Until the present, the reichsbank usually has notified owners of foreign credits it was not necessary to declare. The next few weeks, the financial observers say, may tell a different story.

Hitler's mandatory order to the finance minister virtually says: "Find money where you can- I shall back you up."

Plenty Of War Supplies

Italy Well Prepared For Trouble In Ethiopia

Rome. — Italy's supreme defence council promised the nation the wells of war supplies will not run dry as 4,000 Italians stationed in Africa, on the Mediterranean to Africa in consequence of Italo-Ethiopian tension.

The council, over which Benito Mussolini himself presides, concluded its fifth session in recent days with the statement:

Italy can rest assured the council has done its duty in preparing in time those indispensable measures so that an eventual warlike effort can be carried out in conditions which will assure victory."

Depletion Of Waterfowl

Fear Expressed Of Danger Of Extermination Of Ducks

Winnipeg — Sportsmen and others are concerned over depletion of waterfowl and fear extermination of some species of ducks unless steps are taken, it was stated at the Manitoba legislature by Hon J R. McDiarmid minister of natural resources.

Solution of the duck depletion problem rests primarily on measures taken in the United States the minister said. Bred upon over a much greater area in their migratory flight between the international border and the marshes on behalf of Mexico and Atlantic coasts, the report said

Cockroach Soup

Reprisals Follow Quickly Upon Mutiny Committed In Soviet

Archangel, U.S.S.R.—Five persons, including M. Somin, former secretary of the Communist party committee at Isakogorsky harbor, were sentenced to prison for the part they played in the "cockroach banquet" of which they were alleged to have compelled several restaurant employees to partake.

The five men were accused of forcing the personnel of the eating place to eat soup containing the insects as a disciplinary measure after a customer complained of finding a cockroach in his food.

Immediately after the incident, Somin was removed from his political post. The court sentenced him to three years' imprisonment.

The others were sentenced to shorter terms.

Uniformity Of Wages

Premier Bracken Of Manitoba Would Do Away With Unfair Competition

Winnipeg. —Legislation directed at uniformity of wage and working hours throughout Quebec, Ontario and Manitoba is likely to be introduced in the Manitoba legislature by Premier John Bracken at the present session.

Unfair industrial competition aided by provincial boundaries and provinces is believed to be the object of the Bracken proposals. The new legislation would, it is learned, make it impossible for industries of one province to produce their goods more cheaply than possible in a neighboring province because of longer working hours and lower wage scales.

Provinces Have Not Submitted Relief Plans

Until Statements Are Received Ottawa Cannot Take Action

Ottawa.—Until provinces had submitted "concrete plans" for their relief operations after the current year, and stated their requirements from the Dominion government, he could make no definite statement to the house with respect to government policy, Hon. W. A. Gordon, minister of labor, told the House of Commons. The house was in committee of supply considering an item in the department estimates.

No such information or plans had as yet been submitted by any of the provinces, Mr. Gordon said.

Workers Becoming Menace

Great Damage In Prince Albert National Park Reported

Ottawa.—Damage caused by wild animals in Prince Albert National Park, Sask., was called to the attention of the government in the House of Commons by A. F. Totzke (Liberal, Humboldt) Hon. T. G. Murphy, minister of the interior, said he was waiting for a report from park officials and would make a statement to the House later.

Mr Totzke said timber wolves were becoming so numerous they were forming packs and were doing great damage to crop lines and slaughtering wild animals in district adjacent to the park

Mounties As Canal Guard

Ottawa.—Major-General J. H. MacBrien, commissioner of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, told the Canadian Geographical Society it would "undoubtedly" be to Canada's advantage if the marine section of the force were developed into a regular coast guard service. He said the marine service of the force had given assistance to 76 vessels between April, 1932, and the present.

Study B.N.A. Act

Ottawa Three new members were added to the special committee of the House of Commons studying methods of amending the British North America Act. They are Hon. Peter Veniot (Lib., Gloucester), J. S Stewart (Cons., Lethbridge), and Henri Bourassa (Ind ,Labelle). Prime Minister R. B. Bennett moved for the appointments at the opening of the house

Plan For Lower Tariff

Ottawa. — Colin Campbell (Lib., Frontenac-Addington) made a plea in the House of Commons for lower tariffs on mining machinery He said in his resolution that the mining industry in recent years has been subjected to increasing taxation and had only been able to keep going because of the ingenuity of engineers whose researches had produced less costly methods of operation.

Likely To Retain Post

Judge Taylor May Remain Head Of Pension Commission

Ottawa.—Retention of Mr. Justice Fawcett Taylor at the head of the Canadian pension commission when his period of service as temporary chairman expires some months hence is said to be contemplated by the government.

He was appointed last July for a period of one year, and for the specific purpose of clearing up the so-called "marriage cases." Among his duties was that of making a complete report to the government on operation of pensions machinery.

The bill enabling the government to increase the number of commissioners by appointment of temporary members to the board has now passed the senate. The expectation is the government will name four to hold office until the present congestion is cleared away.

A NATION WIDE BUILDING PLAN IS SUGGESTED

Toronto.—Erection of a Dominion government mortgage loan corporation to provide credit for a huge nation-wide construction program was advocated by Hon. H. H. Stevens, former federal minister of trade and commerce, in an address before the Ontario Retail Lumber Dealers' Association.

The body would have power to sell its bonds in Canada and if necessary have power to guarantee them.

"This government-controlled body would do for the people of the country what those at present in private control are failing to do, that is, provide decent housing for the people," Mr. Stevens said.

When he spoke in Toronto almost a year ago and pointed out the chaos into which business had drifted for had a definite plan, Mr. Stevens told his audience, and subsequent studies have confirmed the possibility of such a plan.

It is three-fold. He suggested appointment of a federal commission of business men and economists, placing farmers and other primary producers in a position which would give them a larger measure of control in the marketing of their products and a national construction program.

Reason a start is not made on the construction project is because the credit of the country is in the control of a very small number of men in the province. The board is busily preparing its report for the budget but it will likely be down in three weeks. When it has completed this it will start almost immediately on a gasoline probe, it is understood

"FIRE!"

I am the enemy of mankind. My searing lash draws the blood of rich, or poor, or guilty, or innocent. I spare neither age nor sex; the man, the woman, the grandfather, the child—all cower under my vicious strokes.

I revel in the dead of night and in the light of high noon. I go ahead. I spread desolation and suffering. I lay waste the work of men's hands, and the creations of their minds I do destroy.

Penury follows in my train.

Lacks keep me for my ally, and at bars and hotels do I lunch.

I straddle the wild winds, and the reach of my whip is heard in the howl of the storm and over the clang of the alarms bells.

I revel on to the works of the ill minded and brazenly do I curl my fiery tongues around His most holy temples.

I AM THE FIRE FIEND!

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank the Electors of the Hospital District, 28, 31 of Buffalo Coulee, Dists. 1 and 6, for the splendid support given me in the recent election. To those that opposed me I bear no ill will. By the enthusiastic turnout of the electors, it shows that in future a keen interest will be taken in municipal and hospital affairs. I was opposed to certain principles in the administration of Hospital affairs carried out by Mr. Morrison, but with the short time at my disposal it was impossible to make a personal canvass of all the Electors.

WITH THE CIVIC LEAGUERS

ELKS ELIMINATE COLLEGE

The Elks won a by into the play-off final and also advanced to the semi-final chance for the Wicbo cup by defeating 5-4 in that period in the final league game on Monday evening. Although there is one game left to play it cannot possibly topple the Elks from the league leadership.

Monday night's clash was anybody's game play being evenly contested. Lack of shooting ability was the down fall of the college crew. The first two periods were scoreless but exciting and tended to be rough. In the last period Preacby Ladouceur, one of the most deadly of the rink, managed to round the net, caught Bell's pass and beat Anderson, sending the Elks of the V.S.A team Jim Banks made things certain a little later when he broke fast through a disordered defence and slipped the disc under the goalie's pads for number two

Local Gas Well Is "Spudded In"

Very considerable progress has been made by the local test Company since the last report, both in regard to the field work and towards completing the organization. The minimum subscription stated in the Prospectus has been considerably over-subscribed already and the Company has accordingly obtained its license to commence business under the Companies Act.

A large crowd attended the official opening ceremony on Wednesday afternoon, February 27th, when his Worship Mayor W. A. Palmer inspected the derrick and machinery and then opened the throttle to drill the first few feet of the hole. In a short speech in which he declared the well officially opened, His Worship paid a glowing tribute to the courage and perseverance which the promoters of the Company had shown in this pioneer venture on one of the outposts of the Empire.

Another large boiler unit, which will furnish more power and thus save time and fuel, is being installed immediately and when the installation is completed the drilling will be continued at not as rapid rate.

More money will be required to carry on the drilling operations to completion of the well and the Company are continuing its offer of shares to the public. Interesting times are anticipated, however, to lose no time in making application for such shares as they desire, since the time during which the shares will remain open for public subscription is likely to be limited

By LAWRENCE HIBBERT
(Graphe-Analyst)

(All Rights Reserved)

(Editor's Note: An analysis from your handwriting will often provide an insight into latent characteristics that will change your entire life The author makes an interesting offer following this week's article.)

This week's mail brought a rather poignant letter from a girl who lives in Winnipeg I am reproducing it because you can read it and decide what you would do if you were in a similar position

Dear Mr Hibbert I am bringing my problem to you because you have helped so many others, and it may be that you can shed a ray of light in my own life. I am only forging with a young man for some time, and there has for some time been a tacit arrangement that we should be married

Latterly however my friend has been going out with another girl and I am wondering whether he has got tired of me He tells me that that can be of great help to him in his business, and that, while he likes her as a friend that is the only feeling he has for her, and that he still loves me Now, Mr Hibbert I love my friend very much, and he seems to be an ideal companion, and I do trust him, but this affair has me worried because he has not been out with anyone other than myself for a long time Do you think it means that he is losing his love for me, and that I may lose him? I do wish you could help me, and I am sending his name with my letter"

The writing of this girl shows that she is normally affectionate, maybe a little impulsive, and she is generous She has simple, modest tastes and on the whole, an unassuming spirit

But there is one outstanding trait that is not so good She is inclined to resent slights and being somewhat sensitive perhaps imagines slights where none is meant And should her resentment be aroused be that she has got into a habit of "sticking back up" with her best friend and he has become a little tired of it, and turns to another girl for a change He may have no intention of giving up my correspondent, but there is real danger that he may develop a real interest in the other girl and that will ripen into love

His own writing is normal enough He is not one of the amorous or too affectionate kind, and he has no outstanding vices, such as being decorative or dishonest

In addition to my correspondent is that she discourages the trait I have already mentioned She should avoid anything in the nature of "carrying a chip" on her shoulders And she should strive to keep things on the light footing It certainly will not help her to talk a lot about the other girl and show her boy friend that she thinks she may lose him

She should do everything she can to show him that he means a great deal to her Do not take anything for granted

No man likes to be nagged and the tendency shown in this girl's writing is rather like nagging She may not know it, because so many people who have the unfortunate habit are really unaware of it But it has broken more romances and opened more marriages than probably any other single cause.

(Have you any problems in which you need advice? Do you wish to know what your friends are really like and what are your own real characteristics? GET RID OF THE CROWS

(By JACK MINER)

My reason, dear reader, for writing this article is simply to encourage you to take more interest in your fellowmen, and especially those of humanity to take a deeper interest. When you are driving, walking, riding or motoring, keep both eyes open so as to study human nature and conditions, and when you see a crow purposely walking in front of you, stop, step and ask yourself why? Surely they should be cruel to him. Then why are they chasing him?

Jack Miner in the days of his youth.

Or you may see a killdeer or other species of bird fluttering and hobbling out from the roadside. Immediately you are convinced that she is trying to lure you away from her broken, since she keeps falling over herself every time she attempts to get away. Of course, you are going to think her very stupid, and that is wrong. But soon you find you can get just so close and no closer and, for you find you cannot get any closer, you will get discouraged and stop, for you think she is really trying to, using an fly fairly well and is five feet from the tail as they proved by their last, they spewed up bird's eggs. I think they have a pair of unhatched robins pour out of the nest. Remember, dying crying and the little bits of life were sometimes still squirming.

Midnight Gold Rush

Discovery Of Free Gold At Lake Athabasca Causes Excitement

Discovery of free gold in the Beaverlodge area on Lake Athabasca has led to wild excitement in the area, says a special radio despatch from Fort Chipewyan to the Edmonton Journal. Word of the discovery caused a wild midnight gold rush which left Beaverlodge camp deserted half an hour after word of the find reached it

The find was made by a St Joseph's Portal trapper, who brought in samples of rich ore and on his return journey discovered he was being followed through the darkness by 17 men anxious to stake near his find The trapper pretending he was lost managed to throw his pursuers off the trail, then hurried to stake his claims

Inspector Bell from Ottawa of the Mining and Smelting Company claims at Beaverlodge are reported to have shown rich deposits of gold for 30 feet below the surface

Its inhaling vapor helps to avoid threatening h'ph before leaving the sanctuary getting ready to cross over this three miles of woman's kind. I get my son on the telephone and I say, "Jack, I am a little south of me between the lake and the sanctuary. He holds the receiver while I go to a bench in the yard, and he is a big distinguishable flock crosses the road at my house. I tell him the marks the exact time, goes to the wood and, of course, can see the geese coming. Here are the results of the last three tests: First, 15 minutes Second, with a nice breeze in their favor, lifting them along—two minutes and a half. Third, as they were facing quite a bit of a breeze—three minutes. Therefore, these birds are from three to five hundred miles away. Sometimes they leave the sanctuary, therefore they are not doing climbing after they leave here.

Oh, but you sigh and say, "What hall of information to begin with, eyes!" Nothing at all. I have only unrolled these preliminary to encourage you to study for yourself.

The first hunting I did in Canada was crow hunting, when I was a boy. We shot the crows because they pulled the corn in the early morning, when all was silent. Now I like the crows. I like to hear them speak for itself as to the perfection of the description. Then, I have proved this myself in the thick underbrush of the woods, where I have taken a few dead tree-tops for Mr. Crow to perch on I would then start giving these birds the call of the crow, just the same as I heard the wood crow utter, now and then giving the low hoot of the owl. Many, many times I have seen the crows would have brought food or come to protect the wrong birds. To my surprise, they were not feeding their young on corn. As I held these old birds by the tail as they pecked their last, they spewed up bird's eggs. I think they have a pair of unhatched robins pour out of the nest. Remember, dying crying and the little bits of life were sometimes still squirming.

PETER PREACHES TO GENTILES

Golden text: "God is no respecter of persons: but in every nation he that feareth him and worketh righteousness, is acceptable to him." Acts 10:34b, 35.

Lesson: Acts 10:1 to 11:18; 15:6-11. Devotional reading: Psalm 67:1-7.

Explanations And Comments

Peter's Sermon, verses 34-43. The solemnity of the occasion and the originality of Peter's message are indicated by the words with which they were introduced: "And Peter opened his mouth, and said." "Of a truth," he exclaimed, "I perceive that God is no respecter of persons: but in every nation he that feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted unto him." Moffett's translation of these words emphasizes that God has no favorites, but that he who reverences him and lives a good life in any nation is acceptable to him.

To those Gentiles Peter preached the Christ as "Lord of all." As the Greek the word he is emphatic. He knew that the Saviour had surrendered, "He, yes he, is Lord of all," of Gentiles as well as Jews. "You yourselves know the word which he took place in the life of Jesus," Peter declared. "And we are witnesses of all things, of his life—how he went about doing good—of his crucifixion and resurrection, and how he illumined us Jews anew unto the people and to testify that he is ordained of God to be the Judge of the living and the dead." And Peter ended his sermon by saying that every one—even Gentiles—who believe on him shall receive remission of sins.

The Gentiles Receive Too Holy Ghost As? Are Baptized, verses 44-48. While Peter was preaching he was interrupted by the manifestation of the Holy Spirit upon Cornelius and the other Jewish believers who had accompanied Peter. They were amazed, for they heard the Gentiles "speak with tongues," as the Jews had spoken on the Day of Pentecost. "Can any man forbid the water, that these should not be baptized, which have received the Holy Spirit as well as we?" Peter exclaimed. Then he directed that the Gentiles be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ.

"Peter had only to tell Cornelius of the Master's life, and to win his allegiance to the Lord and Savior of mankind, for the Spirit of love and unity to fall upon them and unite them in one fellowship. The power which unites people of diverse racial traditions and religious customs is the power of the Spirit of God," says Peter, "English-man and African, bond and free, may become one in Christ." (H. H. Cuats).

Starvation The Cure

When People Do Not Have Money To Buy Rich Foods Then Health Is Improved

In days of depression, general health is better than in days of opulence and fine living, several doctors told the House of Commons during a health debate. Dr. J. P. Howden (Lib., St. Boniface) said "starvation is the cure for many diseases" and it was because people did not have the money to buy rich foods that their health improved. And it was true, Dr. Howden added, that "many people dig their graves with their teeth."

THE TENDERFOOT

SYNOPSIS

"You've fallen heir to a half-share in plenty of trouble," the lawyer told Gerald Keene. "The Broken Spur has been systematically looted by Hourglass and old Joe Carr, your partner, is drinking himself into jail."

Dad Kane, desert rat and luckless prospectors till now returns to tell Dustin and Spike Goddard, who had grubstaked him, of his discovery of a rich gold mine, and shows samples of the ore.

Dustin unexpectedly comes along while Stone and Edith are riding fence, and seeing them together and talking to Edith. He mentions their dispute could be settled by marrying him, and Edith refuses his proposal with remarks that make Dustin furious. He berates Stone for a weakling and puts him into a pool of water.

Stone visits Crane, his foreman, about his meeting with Dustin. Stone and Crane go to Keene's and send a telegram to Gerald Keene. While at Reno an attempt is made to kill Stone, who proves more than a match for his enemies

Dustin learns that Gerald Keene has been sent for, and also that Duro Rose has given Dustin the right for putting Carr's cattle. He sets out with Dad Kane to learn the location of his gold discovery. Dad Kane shows Dustin the mine.

They go back to camp, and Dustin shoots Kane. He fixes the shooting on Pyrell Gang, a band of outlaws, who, stupefied by the narcotic he had taken, did not know whether he was guilty or not. They bury Kane and then return to the Broken Spur ranch.

Meanwhile at the Hour Glass, Carr, Crane and Stone speculate as to the meaning of entries in the notebook belonging to Dane Kane that Stone had found. Stone thinks of a possible solution, and, accompanied by Edith Carr, rides out to the spot he had cut out his theory, which proves correct, and they find the Hour-glass brand mentioned in the prospector's notebook. Later Stone and Edith Carr meet Dustin leaving the house, who pretends unsuccessfully to tries to ride down Stone.

(Now Go On With The Story)

"Wait a bit. I've got a better plan than that . . ." Dustin's grin was the grin of a dog who has stolen meat that he intends to seize. "Wait! If I had sprung that on Joe Carr, he'd simply wait till Old Gerald Keene, his partner turns up. Young Keene might have the money. If he has, then old Carr would get out of my reach. But Keene could only help Carr meet that note. He'd sure to see him at once. Not a word more than that."

Spike went and ten minutes later Peyoil dropped his hat at the door and came shamblingly into the room. Dustin looked up from some pretended work at the desk.

"It's a good thing for you, Peyoil, that you came at once, Mr. Neal. I'm sorry for you, but I don't see how I can help you. . . . Remember old Dad Kane, Peyoil?"

"For heaven's sake lay off that, Mist' Dus . . ." The man's arm flung up to guard before his eyes and he shivered as though with an ague. "I ain't slept a wink since I came back. . . . I'd never get sleep if he wasn't fer . . . fer . . . you know what I mean." He tugged a red-and-green cigarette packet from his pocket.

Dustin matched it from him, tore out four cigarettes and gave them to him, and thrust the package into his drab drawer.

"You damned fool. I've told you a dozen times not to get any of those things except what I give you. I'll give you your full allowance. Just remember that, Peyoil." He paused and talk too much. You know what's happen. You'll be hung as high as Haman."

Peyoil looked dazed. He had looked for a coin and perhaps an errand or two. Instead of that he only half understood. He could not guess what was coming, but he knew that it was not going to be anything pleasant by ill. His stomach was queasy. Man, born of woman, cannot smoke unlimited peyoil cigarettes to kill the craving for a long time without severe committed and still carry himself like a free man. Peyoil quivered and his face went ashen.

"I wish I could help you, Peyoil," he said. "But I don't see how I can . . ."

"What's the matter, boss" . . . "

"Nothing. . . . Now listen to me . . ." Dustin strode forward and tilted his chair on its front legs. . . . "You and I've been partners for a good many years, Peyoil, right?"

Spike Goddard stared at him. Was his partner losing his mind? He looked for a long time at Dustin's features and Dustin grinned quietly at him. Finally:

"Why—why, sure, strippin' the Hourglass of everything its got for more'n five years," said Spike. "If one of us told what he knows about the other, he'd earn a hell go to jail, I reckon. We've soaked away every dollar we could raise. We've got seventeen thousand in cold cash right now in our office safe. You don't need to have me say it but . . ."

"Make your game. I'm playin' her as she lays."

Dustin nodded complete satisfaction.

"I knew you'd say that," he said. "Now listen . . . Old Kane located that mine. It's on the Hour-glass and I know that. Kane and Peyoil and I went there. Kane showed me the mine. Then he and Peyoil got into a fight over some winter. I wasn't in camp when it happened but I got back to find Kane dead with his head bashed in and Peyoil in one of his senseless fits after dopin' all up with his stuff . . ."

"Why—why, you give him . . ." said Spike, grinning.

Dustin's face turned the color of cold dough. He leaned forward and gripped Spike's arm.

"If you weren't my partner, I'd kill you for that word," he said.

"Sorry, Dus'," said Spike suddenly as though his veins had been filled with ice water.

"Oh, no," he said awkwardly. "I'm listenin' . . . "

"Aye. Well, when Peyoil saw what he'd done he was all to pieces. Old Kane is buried up Red Water canon No one will ever find him there. Well . . . The man Gerald Kane is Gerald Kane. He's a nephew of old Kane . . . That's his name, d'you see? Gerald Kane is coming out here to investigate the reported death of his uncle, Dad Kane.

. . . If the murderer is discovered Peyoil Gregg will hang . . . Is it gettin' clear to you?"

"Good God," said Spike explosively. "Do you expect me to believe that . . . "

"I don't care a damn if you believe it or not so long as Peyoil believes it. Get me so far?"

"I sure do. . . ." Spike glanced admiringly at his partner. This would be a master stroke indeed. If Peyoil Gregg, the well-known "hophead" could be got to kill Gerald Keene then Keene's share of the Hour-glass would pass to Joe Carr, and they hold old Joe Carr's note for the Hour-glass . . . where Kane and Dustin had located the gold

"By God," he said, "you've hit it. But I swear I don't see how you can pull it off."

"You don't have to see. Go on out of here and tell Peyoil that I want to see him at once. He's got to do it if he ever learns of what we found in that mine and prospect of old man Kane's. I told Carr that if he'll get Edith to agree to marry me, I'll call off the suit about Soda Springs. He can't finance that suit anyhow. See?"

"I see; you've given your hand away when there was no need to," said Goddard testily.

"Rub. Suppose I've got four good aces in the hole. What then?"

"Show me your aces," growled Spike. "Damned if I can see any sign of an ace in this mess."

"All right. I'll show you. Do you happen to remember the date that young imp of hell, Gerald Keene, the nephew of the late half of the Hourglass, is due here?"

"On the tenth of next month, it said. This is the next month and today's the ninth. He's due to-morrow night, I reckon."

"What's the matter, boss" . . . "

"Nothing. Now damned well what you did. The question is how're you goin' to keep the world from knowing what you did, too? I'll hate to see you hang for a rope, Peyoil. You remember Willis?"

Peyoil gulped audibly and sat down. He remembered Willis very well. Caught while in the very act of changing brands on two horses of the Crane outfit, Willis, a half-breed, been given two hours to confess his sins The time had been wholly insufficient and Willis had gone to some other place with a lariat about his neck. Peyoil remembered seeing the long body swinging in the wind and the horrible face, black and purple, low-hammer and two woodpeckers hammered cheerfully above him. He never forgot the it and Dustin knew it

"You see, Peyoil, it's this way. When Kane was found dead with his head bashed in, it was an old desert rat who had no friends. It seems no one knew that Kane had been back East. He had a nephew. His name is Gerald Kane or Keene or something like that Anyhow old Kane must have written him that he had found a gold mine This nephew telegraphed that he will be coming here about the 10th to look up his uncle. You know what that means. Every one knows that I've been trying to get Joe Carr's outfit. They'll come to me first of all. If they ask me any questions, Peyoil Gregg will hang . . . Is he to tell the truth. I'm willin' to help you all I can, Peyoil, but not to the extent of perjury. Of course I know just what you've been up to . . . You used that damned stuff that I've told you to leave alone. You had a tad more than you got into a dope row with old man Kane and killed him . . . "

Peyoil shuddered. "Mexico ain't so fur away," he muttered

"They'd get you there. They extradite for murder in Mexico. I guess you've got to pay the bill Peyoil . . . If this man Gerald Kane turns up . . . "

McMurray Tar Sands

Denver Firm To Erect Separating Plant In Alberta

Hon. Thomas G. Murphy, minister of the interior, revealed that the government had given permission to Denver, Colo., financial interests to erect in Alberta plants for separating bitumen from McMurray sands and for refining the bitumen to obtain gasoline, fuel oil and asphalt products.

The permission, Mr Murphy said, was an extension of a former agreement made with the Denver interests represented by Max Ball which had conducted a "pilot" plant in Toronto for preliminary experiments

The minister added he understood the firm had proceeded with construction in Alberta of a separation plant as soon as weather conditions permitted work and that the separation plant would be followed by a refinery. All the works, he believed, would cost about $250,000

Mr. Murphy said the government will not spend any money on the scheme but that the company will be required to pay royalties for the privileges of working the sands.

The gods have been kind to all winds, it seems, are keeping their eyes on Capt. Walter Gilbert, chief pilot for the Montreal to Vancouver run of Canadian Airways, Ltd., and seeing that they are in his favor

He left here from McMurray and had a tail wind all the way He started back on the day following his arrival at Aklavik, and again of G. O. Costa, United Farmer member for Macleod, Mr. Costa told about him in the House of Commons

The farmer sent a cow to the Calgary market and after paying all charges was told his net return would be 19 cents The cow had to haul the cow received 75 cents commission The charge for the bay was $15 at the market was 35 cents. He was asked to call in for his money as the amount was too small to pay by cheque but the farmer wanted a cheque.

He said he proposed to have it framed so if at some time in the future his son complained of poor prices he could show him what really low prices were.

Little Helps For This Week

"I have learned in whatsoever state I am therewith to be content." —Paul.

No longer forward or behind
I look in hope or fear;
But grateful take the good I find
The best of now and here.
—J. G. Whittier

If we wish to gain contentment we must follow such rules as Paul.

Allow myself to complain of nothing not even the weather.

Never grieve myself to myself under any circumstances in which this is not not

Never compare these ways but with that of another.

Never dwell on the morrow. Remember that to-day is the sum of the heaviest part of sorrow is often to look forward to it. "The Lord will provide."

Never allow thyself to dwell on the wish that things were otherwise than they were. God Almighty loves them and loves more wisely than thou dost thyself.

HEALTH INSURANCE SCHEME.

Dr. McComas secretary of the Provincial Health Insurance Commission addressed a meeting at the Veterans Hall Wednesday evening under the auspices of the local Board of Trade. Dr. McComas outlined the scheme and answered fully detailing its scope, operation and probable cost. The purpose of the scheme is to have people pay for their sickness when they are well so that sickness comes they will be insured by hospital and medical charges. The smallest area considered for operation of a scheme is 5,000. The hospital staff would be chosen by the municipal authorities and their names submitted to the commission for approval. The commission would not interfere with the internal management of hospitals. The cost will be born by the municipal authorities, hospitals and contributors. The commission would be responsible for any deficit but would not share in any surplus. The cost will be about $4.00 per capita. Dr. McComas stated that a bill will be introduced to implement the plan at the next session.

OTTAWA ELIMINATED FROM CIVIC PLAY-OFF

Visions of a country to town clash in the Civic League finals were sent glimmering in decisive fashion on Monday night when the High School Crescents humbled the Ottawa team for a 4-1 victory. The students showed unexpected finish around the goal and back checked their friends to reverse the first game's result and take the round 7 goals to 5.

Three of the V.H.S. goals came by sparkling combined attacks and were scored on rebound. Doug from Geoff Brimacombe; Marlowe from Geoff Good; Geoff Brimacombe (off A. Dunsmuir). Ottawa's lone goal came from Geoff.

Ottawa pressed hard throughout and had a margin on territorial play but just didn't have "it" around the net. Atkins proved the Ottawa rounder on the defence.

WINTER AND SUMMER SPORT STARS MEET IN RINK ROMANCE

Vermilion, Alta., Boy Now With Chicago Hawks to Wed; Marriage in April

(From The Edmonton Journal)

Romance of the rink, Cupid on the blue ice links will blossom into marriage when Art Wiebe of the Chicago Black Hawks of the National league, formerly of Vermilion juveniles and Edmonton Poolers, and Miss Mary Jane Stuart, champion swimmer of Kansas City. Miss Stuart won the 1933 championship in Missouri Valley style and backstroke and free swimming.

Wiebe, dispatches indicate, met Miss Stuart while a member of the Kansas City rink, where he had been sent for seasoning by the Black Hawks and the acquaintance formed then ripened in course of time to the announcement of wedding bells for April 12th at the Country Club Presbyterian church, Kansas City. They will spend the honeymoon at Vermilion.

Wiebe undoubtedly owes much of his success in coaching received under Barney Stanley when that veteran was handling the Poolers here several seasons ago.

Wiebe caught the eye of Stanley in a provincial juvenile play-off at Vermilion in the seasons of 1929-30 and the following season moved to Edmonton to play with the Poolers. A clever stickhandler and a "rusher" of more than ordinary merit from the start Art gave indications many a thrill at the Arena in the two seasons he was with Stanley's team.

He was signed by the Black Hawks repeating in the fall of 1932. The Hawks' next blue, with a string attached to St. Paul, and when that club was transferred to Tulsa he moved there with the squad. He did not finish the season there however being transferred to Kansas City. He was with the K. C. Greyhounds for the balance of that year and was with the same club throughout the 1933-34 season. Last fall he was recalled by the Hawks and has been on their roster since.

Mr. McCambridge has everything in ship-shape for the entertainment to be held at the school here, Friday, 15th March. The dramatic club is trained to a nicety, each and you will have an opportunity of enjoying a good, clean play which in addition to the fun it produces, points a good moral

A short sketch entitled "A Ghost Story" will also be staged which will appeal to the younger element of the community. The dance will be under the musical direction of the Burt orchestra and no better dance music can be heard. Proceedings will open at 8 p.m. sharp.

For his formerly in choosing the subject "The disadvantages of a bachelor life," in the "public speaking" competition held at the school Friday, Rathard Arnold, a senior pupil, is rewarded the Hoyt Medal.

Here's a tip on how to avoid the stampede for new job you are thinking of reading it. In an interesting contribution to this week's issue of a few days ago he advised us when putting in the application blank, accompanied by a cool to cover them with a newspaper. Now we asked him why he specified a newspaper he told us that sheet protection from moths was necessary as the paper was cheap more effective than ordinary paper. "We suppose that moths was what he said. Haw Haw and some spare a grammatical error or two misspelt the easy faller, fall off and are killed." we answered with a fourth of sarcasm. We thought he was pulling our leg at first but he tells us that in tailoring circles the paper which newspaper of Stratford is recommended. It appears the ink of the printing overcomes some form of spell—probably because it is unsuitable to the moth's palate which keeps the moths away.

The Brighter Side

For the past five years the people of Canada in common with those of other countries have been looking at the dark side of things, and during these years the picture at which they have been looking has become progressively darker and more gloomy. In fact, following the crash on the market crash in the late months of 1929, people generally did not seek to find any rays of light they became more and more fearful and preferred to dwell upon every unfavorable factor in the situation rather than to close their eyes and refuse to see anything that could be regarded as hopeful.

This state of mind spread throughout the whole country and, unfortunately for Western Canada, it was accentuated by reason of the advent of a cycle of abnormally dry years, accompanied by other climatic conditions. With their aftermath of pests and other drawbacks entirely beyond the control of man, and all discouraging and destructive of confidence on the part of people as grievously afflicted.

Under the circumstances the amazing thing is that people, taken on the whole, have displayed such a wonderful degree of fortitude, so much courage and such fine patience

Within recent months the clouds of depression have been thinning, content ons have been slowly improving, and the time has come when, we think, the people of Canada may well, to their own advantage and further encouragement, take a look at some of the brighter things in our national life for which they have deep reason for thankfulness in comparison with the lot of other peoples and nations.

Unlike quite a few nations, Canada has maintained its national honor, has not repudiated but has met its national obligations. As a result, Canada stands higher than ever in the estimation of the world. It is a great asset that has not decreased in value but has been substantially increased, and that increased value will stand this Dominion in good stead in the years that lie ahead.

The general business situation in Canada is improving. In view of the economic depths to which the whole world had sunk, this improvement will naturally be slow at first, but it is gathering momentum as time volume. The trade of Canada, both import and export and internal as well, is increasing, the volume of business is becoming larger, railway revenues are rising, national revenues are substantially larger and are increasing, all of which means more employment in the not distant future, and especially no if action is taken to remove or materially lessen the many restrictive now imposed on trade.

Another bright note to the Canadian picture is to be found in the fact that, despite all the difficulties and problems, worries and sufferings of people Canada has been remarkably free of riots and other forms of defiance of the law which have characterized other lands and resulted in open strife and bloodshe . The Canadian people have kept their heads, and as a result they are winning through, just as the people of Britain are winning through.

Considering the past, the present and the future there is another and very bright and important spot of brightness, leading to hope and confidence for the future in the fact that almost at the moment of the low mark Canada has been free and is free of the one great burden which rests with crushing force upon the world to-day. That is the burden of armaments, the enormous cost of warlike preparations. While other nations are paying annual tribute reckoned in hundreds of millions, even billions of dollars, to the great war god Mars the Canadian people are not called upon to do so.

A couple of small destroyers, one or two submarines, and a handful of militia which is merely a reserve to the establishment police force of the country is not all and when necessary in the maintenance of peace within our own borders, but in no sense an army maintained for offense against any nation, that is all. With no great battleships, no standing army, no great number of battle planes, Canada lives at peace with the world, the friend of every nation, having no quarrel with any

If the picture was otherwise, if the Canadian people were taxed to the limit, as other peoples are, to provide the god of war with the machinery and equipment of wholesale human destruction, then Canada might have cause to fear for the future Fortunately that fear does not exist.

Given a return to more normal and therefore favorable climatic conditions throughout Western Canada, the revival of the artificial values that have been imposed upon the commercial transactions and business life of the country both of which conditions are not only possible but probable and there was here every reason to expect and free from the entanglements of war-afflicted nations, the Canadian people, with their characteristic energy will turn their eyes away from the darker picture of the past five years and find renewed confidence and happiness in the brighter, better days now dawning

Magic Of Science

Electric Lung Restores Speech To Persons Without Voice

An electric "lung" and a pair of magnetic handcuffs, both new, have come out of the scientific magic bag of the Bell laboratories.

They were shown at a meeting of the University of Michigan Club of New York by Dr. Serghey P. Grace, vice-president of the laboratories.

The lung substitutes electric current for air to make vocal sounds in the artificial larynx, which the laboratories invented to restore speech to about 1,000 persons in the United States who have lost their vocal cords

The new instrument is placed in the mouth, much like a pipe. It pours into the mouth a pure tone which becomes intelligible speech by means of movement of mouth, lips and tongue in ordinary conversational manner. The voiceless person uses a pocket battery little bigger than a deck of cards He puts his "pipe" in his mouth He presses a button and the sound comes out as long as he holds the switch closed

The magnetic handcuffs demonstrate the super-sensitiveness of a new alloy which possesses 20 times the attraction of pure iron. With a cuff on each wrist, if he held one each hand, the chain between is jolted by placing together two flat pieces of the new metal.

The most powerful man cannot pull these plates apart.

WHY HIS HEADACHES CEASED

Wife Put Kruschen In His Coffee

He could not understand why the headaches which nearly always followed suddenly ceased His wife told him, and he at once bought more and wrote the following letter:—

"I am 48 years of age, and ever since I was a boy of ten years, I was subject to very bad headaches. But two years ago the headaches stopped for what reason I did not know. I suffered from indigestion, but my wife told me I had been using Kruschen Salts in my coffee for over two years. I am still using them, as I know of nothing finer for the system."—J. T.

Headaches nearly always can be traced to a disordered stomach, and to the unsuspected retention in the system of stagnating waste material which poisons the blood. Remove these poisons—prevent them forming again—by taking Kruschen, and worry any more. And that is just how Kruschen Salts brings sw ft ill lasting relief. Get a bottle to-day from any Kruschen Salts and Nature to cleanse your body completely of all clogging waste matter.

Blind Player Is Having Luck At Monte Carlo

A blind gambler at Monte Carlo is attracting the attention of visitors to the Casino at Monte Carlo, and some have found it profitable to follow his play.

Every day he arrives at the Casino and is assisted to a seat at the favored place by one of the officials. He brings with him a special board covered with raised figures and on that he records the various numbers as they turn up.

The play is systematic without being sensationally high, but it is seldom that he gets up from the green table a loser. His identity remains a mystery. He knows little French.

Farmers in England Have Started War On Sparrows

Even if Shelley wrote an ode about it and Schubert was inspired by it to compose a beautiful melody, the skylark is being hunted by farmers in England, and they have started a war on the songster. The Northern Agricultural Committee has excluded this bird from the new order under the Wild Birds Protection Act, and no one therefore may shoot it and have lark pie. The skylark is a nice bird, but we can t live by listening to its music" said George Hewitt, an agricultural leader "The larks are said to invade England in flocks from Germany and Russia.

It was stated in London the British Poppy Day realized £11,000 more than in 1933, when the total was £311,000, the record collection being £324,000 in 1930

Township That Is Unique

Adamsfield, Australia, Isolated Although Only 24 Miles From Hobart

There has been discovered to the world a township in Tasmania, Australia, which is unique, at any rate, in the southern hemisphere.

It has no hotel, there is no church, no wedlock has ever been held there, there is no clergyman, and the town is under the control of a vigilance committee.

The township is that of Adamsfield, less than 70 miles as the crow flies from Hobart, and 24 miles from a railhead. From the railhead, however, the only means of communication is by horse

Some of the residents have not "been out end"—that is, made the journey out to civilization—for years, and it is possible for the only visitor who finds his way in to guess the year in which the womenfolk last did so, by the fashions they are following.

The vigilance committee is a real body and has been formed here because of the rare visits of a policeman on a tour of inspection. The committee acts in the main that public opinion is the most effective weapon it wields.

Recently an area of agricultural land was taken up by 12 miles "in" from Adamsfield, and every item of supplies had to be taken in on men's shoulders.

Nationalistic Policy

Sir Josiah Stamp Believes U.S. Policy Does Not Fit Needs

Sir Josiah Stamp, famed economist, in a speech before the American Chamber of Commerce said the United States "is pursuing a highly nationalistic agricultural policy which is ill-fitted to the needs of a country limited world trade improvement."

"The NRA codes," he said, "have not paid very great attention to the international factors and the uncertain condition in America has been brought about by codes. The phenomenal treatment of the problem, nation by nation, is wrong. It is impossible for trade to be balanced between two nations. It is more important that trade with all countries be treated as a unit."

Sir Josiah stressed the importance of currency stabilization and said, "If it was known the United States were going to devalue another 10 per cent., it would help matters greatly."

Rather Hard Luck

Seventy-year-old Thomas Drummond has instituted proceedings in bring himself back to life. When he walked into the Royal Courts of Justice in Victoria bank the other day he was surprised to find that he could not draw out his account for the reason that he was "dead." He had been declared dead by the Supreme Court in 1931, and his estate and effects had been ordered to be divided among his relatives.

Waste Tariff On Ice Cream

The Bermuda Board of Agriculture has recommended protective duties on ice cream and the raw materials thereof. The assembly referred the matter to its finance committee for investigation. The local dairy industry suffered, it was pointed out, because during 1933 there were 512 gallons of milk and cream imported from Canada, and 27,627 gallons from the United States.

Little Journeys In Science

ACETYLENE

(By Gordon H. Crost, M.A.)

Acetylene is a colorless gas produced by the action of water on carbide. It is prepared in large quantities for use as an illuminant and as a source of great heat. When heated it decomposes into hydrogen and carbon. It was by this method that the Germans procured much of the hydrogen used for filling the Zeppelins in the World War.

When compressed in cylinders, acetylene is very explosive, since the heat produced in compressing the gas is sufficient to start decomposition. However, scientists have found that acetylene can be compressed with safety by forcing it at low temperature into steel cylinders completely filled with some porous material which has been soaked in a liquid called acetone. The gas is very soluble in this liquid and under such conditions it is not explosive.

The chief use of acetylene is in the cutting and welding of metals. In this work the gas is burned in pure oxygen in an apparatus known as the oxyacetylene blowpipe. A temperature of about 4,000 degrees Fahrenheit may be obtained in this way. In taking such a picture look at the tip of the flame is held in contact with some piece of the metal, until the metal is heated to a high temperature; then more oxygen is turned on and the hot metal at once combines with the oxygen. By moving the tip of the flame containing the excess of oxygen over the metal plate, the metal is cut into pieces.

Recently Lasgmuir, an American chemist, has invented a torch known as the hydrogen-arc welding torch by means of which very high temperatures can be obtained. In this type of blowpipe a stream of hydrogen is conducted from a small tube through an electric arc maintained between tungsten electrodes. The temperature of at least 10,000 degrees Fahrenheit may be reached with this new torch.

Planting Nursery Stock

The proper time to plant perennials, roses, fruit trees, shrubbery and vines is in the spring of early in just as soon as the ground can be worked. But of course they must be purchased first. There is a vast range in prices and quality. Only such trees and vines that are in good condition should be considered. This means that the stems and buds will be pliable and green and will have plenty of good, thick roots. There will be a good root growth, and this as well as the top will start early in the season. Each plant should be wrapped separately. Be sure that good stock has been purchased, the next thing to do is get it planted as quickly as possible after it is unpacked. Dig holes wide enough to open all the roots. Do not plant trees

LOCAL CREAMERY MANAGER PROMOTED

J. N. Hollingsworth Will Go To Foam Lake, Sask.

Succeeded Here by J. C. Banks

J. N. Hollingsworth, who has been manager of the local Borden creamery since its re-opening early in 1932, has been transferred to the larger branch of the Borden Co. at Foam Lake, Sask. This is a distinct promotion, as Foam Lake is in the center of one of the most prosperous mixed farming and dairying areas of Saskatchewan. The creamery there has an annual output of nearly a half-million pounds of butter.

"Jack's" work in the local creamery has been attended by so little success. Coming here to re-open the plant which had been closed up, he had to start from nothing. Just how the business has improved steadily is easily traceable in the records and can be seen by the following figures. For example, the best week in 1932 was a "make" in the creamery of 3700 pounds of butter; the top week in 1933, 5400 pounds, and in 1934 this jumped again to 8500 pounds of butter.

Mr. Hollingsworth is leaving on Friday for the Saskatchewan town, accompanied by best wishes from his Vermilion friends.

Jas. C. Banks To Manage Local Creamery

J. C. Banks, well known locally as the butter maker at the creamery for the past two years, has been appointed to succeed Mr. Hollingsworth. Jim has already assumed his new position, where his considerable experience will stand him in good stead. Congratulations of a host of friends and business acquaintances are extended to him on his appointment to the responsible position.

HOCKEY TEAM WINS 2ND PLACE IN TOURNEY AT LLOYDMINSTER

Four Teams Participated

The Vermilion senior hockey team participated in the round-team tournament held in Lloydminster on Tuesday. They ended up in second place, being defeated by Lloydminster in the finals.

The locals trimmed hitherto unbeaten Edgerton in the first game, 4-2. In the second game they defeated Lloydminster 3-1. In the finals, Lloydminster proved too much for the locals, winning 5-1. Lloydminster were also defeated in the first game by Edgerton, 4-3.

Vermilion now engages in a two-game total-goals series with Edgerton for the championship and the right to meet Lloydminster in the semi-finals. The Rangers defeated the Edgerton team 5-3 in a game played in Lloydminster on Monday night. Vermilion attended the series.

SOCIAL CREDIT MEETING HELD MONDAY EVENING

Considerable Interest Aroused — Over 400 In Attendance

Work none too [illegible] people attended a meeting held in the Columbia theatre on Monday night based on Social Credit. Colonel Aberhart, the principle of social credit . . .

Mr. Landeryou, in commencing reported the opinion prevalent that there was between the Douglas and Aberhart proposals Aberhart had merely taken on the Douglas system which is outlined for federal use, and applied it specifically to the province of Alberta. He speaker further stated that he had used this system to be of assistance for all the economic ills and difficulties being experienced in the world today where there is dire poverty in a land of plenty.

The entire plan is built up around three principles, that is: the assuming [illegible] one dime or credit by allowing each person in Alberta over 21 years [illegible] the amount of $25.00 per month . . . [illegible] . . . [illegible] . . . [illegible]

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

The new university library at Cambridge, costing $2,500,000, will be officially opened by the King Oct 22.

An ancient monument built probably 4000 years ago has been brought to light at Megiddo near Nazareth, Bible of Masonry archaeologists.

Another of the scientific world's "problems" dissolved with the announcement by a pair of Chicago scientists that they had perfected a method of making liquid oxygen after eight years of private research.

In honor of the visit of the Canadian delegation to the fifth Imperial Press Conference, an avenue of maple trees has been planted in Downing St., Whitehall, and the pulling on the new is a red outer cloak, the wearing of which, the passing of the first and the second guard, the opening of the outer gate of the prison leading into the city, the going out and passing through one street, then the being left alone.

All this time Peter was dazed and did not know whether he were walking or dreaming, until he "came to himself" at the opening of the last gate, then he said, "Now I know of a truth that the Lord hath sent his angel and delivered me out of the hand of Herod, and from all the expectation of the people of the Jews."

Soldier Settlers' Union

Largely Attended Conference Broadly Held in Edmonton

Col. W. Rodger, Olds, was elected president of the Soldier Settlers' Union of Alberta at a conference held in Edmonton recently. Delegation from various sections of the province attended.

Discussion of the request, passed unanimously by all locals for provincial relief, and a private bill for relief of the soldier settlers, featured discussion at the meeting.

The meeting agreed cancellation of all interest charges on soldier settlement lands was needed.

Other officers elected were: Vice-president, J. E. Hammond, Strathcona; secretary-treasurer, J. R. Orr, Milfiel.

William Barker, Lacombe; M. Jarvis, Brightview, and E. T. Neff, Ledue, were elected to the executive which was formed to work with the central executive at Lloydminster. Major Packman, secretary and E. T. Stewart, vice-president, on the central executive, also attended.

Information about the Soldier Settlers Union will be gladly furnished by any of the above executive.

The fire prevention expert for the United States Department of Agriculture in a recent address stated that fire loss on farms would be substantially reduced if a ladder were part of the equipment of every farm and a ladder kept in a convenient place makes any roof fire quickly accessible and provides the means for occasional inspection of chimneys and flues.

Women Anglers' Competition

Winnipeg Women Wins Cup On Landing Largest Salmon At Canso

In competition with women anglers from Canada United States and the British Isles, Mrs Esther McMorran, 662 Broadway, Winnipeg captured the Schwengers' cup for having landed the largest salmon in the annual contest conducted by the Victoria and Scanlch Inlet Anglers' Association. Announcement of the award of the trophy to the Winnipeg woman was made by W J Halliday secretary of the association.

The fact the contest extends over an entire year, from March 1 to February 28 makes the possession of the Schwengers' cup more valued by women anglers to whom it is offered for competition. Mrs McMorran on a visit to Victoria landed a 36 pound salmon on a rod and line in accordance with the association regulations. In addition to the cup for the largest salmon landed annually by a woman, Mrs McMorran is also awarded the bronze button of the association.

PETER DELIVERED FROM PRISON

Golden text. Prayer was made earnestly of the church unto God for him. Acts 12.5b.

Lesson. Acts 12 1-19.

Devotional reading: Psalm 34:1-8.

Explanations and Comments

James Killed; Peter Imprisoned, verses 1-4. Herod Agrippa I, grandson of Herod the Great, was now king, and he began at this time to persecute the leaders of the church at Jerusalem. He had James, the brother of John, beheaded, and this deed pleased the Jews. It was the days of unleavened bread as the Passover was called because the loaves, or yeast, was allowed in Jewish homes while the festival lasted. It was a time when the Jews were especially hostile to those who differed from them, and Herod, as Josephus says of him, "pretended in living in good reputation" He sought to still further enhance his reputation by having Peter imprisoned to await his execution at the close of the Passover. Executions were not carried out during the Passover, as the festival must not be polluted by the shedding of blood and Herod was normally a Jew like grandmother, Salome, was a Jewess and most scrupulous as to all Jewish observances.

Peter Delivered From Prison, verses 5-11. First of all by the prayers of Peters escape we are told that the church was earnestly praying for Peter. Peter was kept in prison, but earnest prayer was made for him by the church, and this little word must lit was the night before his trial and execution as planned by Herod that help came

Peter was sleeping soundly. He was calmly sleeping. The circumstances of his escape are minutely told the coming of the angel (Jesus) messenger the light in the cell the waking of Peter the brief words to make haste the falling off of the chains the girding and the putting on the sandals and outer cloak, the command to follow, the passing of the first and the second guard, the opening of the iron outer gate of the prison leading into the city, the going out and passing through one street, then the being left alone.

All this time Peter was dazed and did not know whether he were walking or dreaming, until he "came to himself" at the opening of the last gate, then he said, "Now I know of a truth that the Lord hath sent his angel and delivered me out of the hand of Herod, and from all the expectation of the people of the Jews."

Soldier Settlers' Union

Largely Attended Conference Broadly Held in Edmonton

Col. W. Rodger, Olds, was elected president of the Soldier Settlers' Union of Alberta at a conference held in Edmonton recently. Delegation from various sections of the province attended.

Discussion of the request, passed unanimously by all locals for provincial relief, and a private bill for relief of the soldier settlers, featured discussion at the meeting.

The meeting agreed cancellation of all interest charges on soldier settlement lands was needed

Other officers elected were: Vice-president, J. E. Hammond, Strathcona; secretary-treasurer, J. R. Orr, Milfiel.

William Barker, Lacombe; M. Jarvis, Brightview, and E. T. Neff, Ledue, were elected to the executive which was formed to work with the central executive at Lloydminster. Major Packman, secretary and E. T. Stewart, vice-president, on the central executive, also attended.

Information about the Soldier Settlers Union will be gladly furnished by any of the above executive.

The fire prevention expert for the United States Department of Agriculture in a recent address stated that fire loss on farms would be substantially reduced if a ladder were part of the equipment of every farm and a ladder kept in a convenient place makes any roof fire quickly accessible and provides the means for occasional inspection of chimneys and flues.

LADY'S OWN TABLETS

GET RID OF THE CROWS

Dear reader, the above is only a flash of the cruel, wicked, murderous ways of the black nest robbers. Fortunately, in those days there were not many crows. Really I don't believe there were ten per cent as many of them as there are to-day. We must not blame the crows for their increase. This is man's fault. We have done it. We have committed our force with the crow's and destroyed the natural check upon birds. Yes, and song birds, too, and I have watched crows and robbers to multiply by leaps and bounds.

Twenty years ago no crows winter-ed in Ontario. Now they are with us the whole year around. In travelling from Windsor to Chatham, Ontario a distance of less than 50 miles, I firmly believe I have seen over 100,000 crows in less than an hour. There is only one reason for them multiplying so rapidly as they have, their worst natural enemy is practically gone. Twenty years ago, ravens were just about as numerous as the common crow. The raven is nothing but a big powerful, overgrown blue jay, he hasn't only he doesn't migrate. He will build early in the year and rob it of its eggs and young, treating them just the same as the crows treat our song birds. He is also a great destroyer of other species of lovely, desirable song and insect-eating birds. The raven is an inhabitant of the morning country. He is usually found in the far north, up until the last few years, very fairly thronged in northern Ontario and Quebec.

Between 1880 and 1905, the very height of the raven's prosperity, and now the doves nest and roost in great numbers in the city. Then when I shot a mouse I would beg like mad to get a few eggs and discover it with boughs to make it mysterious-looking to the wolves. Then I would shoulder the head and go to camp. When the party of us would get near the end of the day's outing, the most I have often seen as high as a hundred ravens fly up from the running gear of one moose. But now going over the same ground I haven't seen a single raven for two or three years.

You see, the price of furs started soaring in 1904 and kept right on soaring. I think it was 1907 when skins that sold for $1.00 each now sold for from $2.50 to $3.00, and skins that sold for $2.50 now bring $5.00. And a great many trappers scared in proportion. The result is that to-day there are in the woods who have been overrun with poison and although against the law, the majority make use of it regardless of strychnine and, just as soon as the snow flies, I expect to see every lake in northern Ontario, has poison laid in the bait around it. Some trappers will shoot deer and moose and then cut the carcass up to make poison bait of it. By injecting the poison into the most white warm, I have known a single carcass killed by hand of half. Putting bait on the lake gives the trapper the great advantage of finding the fox, wolf, fisher, lynx, or whatever else has taken the least bite of it. You might say with all this poison in the woods why don't these wolves and the number of wolves? The fact is that the wolves are very shy, and it is only the few experienced trappers who have the knack to get wolves to take poisoned bait.

In January, 1905, I was with a professional trapper. On going to his trap line, I found to my horror that a raven had taken a few pecks of the bait, and flown about 50 yards and died. A fox had eaten part of the raven and my stretched out within 30 feet of it. There was a fresh fall of snow and as the fox came from the direction we were going, tracked him back for fully one-half mile, and I am absolutely certain he did not get any other bait in that distance. Hence it is plain to see how the high price of furs has all but exterminated the raven. In fact, the crow's only enemy, now, are the fox, the great horned owl and red-tailed hawks, but these three combined aren't one, two, three, with the raven. I have been asked by a great many people "why didn't this poison kill all the wolves?" In reply to this, let me say, the wolf is the shrewdest animal to poison or trap on earth. So many inexperienced people, carelessly putting out this poison, caused the wolves to be shy of any old bait they saw. In fact, it is only experienced trappers that knew what that means. The most experienced trapper gets them taking bait weeks before they put any poison in it.

Before I go further, I want it distinctly understood that apparently all left me. But how can I call myself humane and stand and see these cruel, cowardly murderers of the air continually robbing the more desirable birds of their eggs and young and hear the mother screaming and crying, "help, help, help." How can I be humane and hold myself guiltless? I know he is coming back a thousand times more than I am. Moreover, I know that if one of these inconsiderate people were left to nature, it would do more good in ten minutes than a dozen of crow would do in a day. Think of all the good descendants of this one insectivorous bird would do had it been allowed to mature and raise young. Oh, but you sigh and say "Jack Miner, are you sure that you are right what you are writing about?" Yes, I am. I have tested it out.

In 1910, I started reforesting near my home, in fact nearly all around my home. I secured the majority of the trees from the Ontario Forestry Department. The first year I had one nesting pair of mourning doves and now the doves nest and roost in great numbers in the city. Then there are only one variety of desirable birds that nest in there under our protection from the crows, cop-pers and sharp shinned hawks. Robins and catbirds are wise to this protected spot. Really, just isn't it lovely to think, yes, to know, that these sweet, lovable creatures are so ready and willing to come to us for friendly, human beings for protection? Doesn't it take a face in face with God's kind promise, "Let man have dominion over all?"

SCIENTISTS FIND FASTER WAY TO RELIEVE COLDS

Aches and Discomfort Ended Almost Instantly Now

When you have a cold, remember the simple treatment pictured here . . . prescribed by doctors everywhere today as the quick, safe way.

Just take Aspirin and drink plenty of water . . . every 2 to 4 hours the first day—less often afterward . . . if throat is sore, use the Aspirin gargle.

But be sure you get ASPIRIN. It is made in Canada and all druggists have it. Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every Aspirin Tablet. Aspirin is the trade mark of the Bayer Company, Limited.

1. Take 2 Aspirin Tablets.

2. Drink full glass of water. Repeat treatment in 2 hours.

3. If throat is sore, crush and dip 2 Aspirin Tablets in a small of a glass of water. Gargle twice. Do not swallow your throat solution entirely.

THE TENDERFOOT

By GEORGE B. RODNEY

Author of "The Coronado Trail", "The Canyon Trail", etc.

SYNOPSIS

"You've fallen heir to a half-share in piney woods," the lawyer told young Gerald Keene. "The Broken Spur has been a ranch—a successful ranch, too, and old Jess Carr, your partner, is still running it. Now he wants to buy you out."

Dad Kane, desert rat and luckless prospector, had never returned to the Durbin and Spike Goddard, who had grubstaked him, of his discovery of a rich gold mine, and shortly thereafter died.

Durbin unexpectedly comes along while Stone and Edith are riding fence, and seeing them together, talks to Edith. He mentions their dispute about the ranch, and Edith refuses his proposal with re-marks that make Dustin furious. He insults Stone, who promptly throws him into a pool of water.

Dustin declares that Gerald Keene has been sent for, and also that Duro Stone has seen the Broken Spur ranch rustling Carr's cattle. He sets out with Dad Kane to turn in his claim of his gold discovery. Dad Kane shows Dustin the mine.

They go back to camp, and Dustin shoots Kane. He fixes the shooting on Peyoil Gregg, a half-breed, who is stupefied by the narcotic he had taken, did not know whether he was guilty or not. They bury Kane and Dustin returns to the Broken Spur ranch.

Meanwhile at the Hour Glass, Carr, Crews and Bruce speculate on the real meaning of entries in the notebook belonging to Dad Kane that Stone had found. Stone thinks of a possible solution, and, accompanied by Edith Carr, rides out to the mine. They work out his theory, which proves correct, and they send the rich gold deposit mentioned in the prospector's note-book at the Hour Glass to the bank they meet Dustin leaving the house, who purports to be Gerald Keene's attorney. Dustin unsuccessfully tries to settle the day before Gerald Keene's arrival in Deer Lodge.

Try this. Soon you'll feel like another person! Take either the familiar brand "PHILLIPS" or the convenient new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets. Made in Canada.

suggests a line of thought to him and he jumped at it."

"Yeah! Carr is a qualified nerd o' fool at that," said Spike. "Well, we'll see what we'll see."

He slumped out into the night and Dustin turned to his dessert.

CHAPTER XIV.

When Stone drove up to the Hour-glass, Crews was waiting for him and cried him shrewdly in the dusk.

"Come down here a minute," he said. "What did you discover?"

"Very little. It may help some, though. I'll be damned if I know what next-defense is."

It was just such a specious argument that Crews loved opposed in a drug-sodden brain Dustin stared at Peyoil till he was sure that he had read aright the murderous glean in the eyes. Then he turned to the ranchman heaved himself up and moved toward the door.

"I'll see what advisin' you to do anything, Peyoil. I can't. I can only tell you what I'd feel like doin' if I was you. I'd take a hoss and come into this country to hang me without my havin' a word to say about it. Then I'd go and tell your self together. I'll be back in ten minutes."

Within minute, Mist' Sam . . ."

Peyoil clawed at his coat-sleeve. "When's this here man Kane or Keene due to get here?"

"On the night train at Reno to-morrow night. Wait here. I'll be back in a little bit."

Dustin was absent considerably more than ten minutes. The night air drew cold in his nostrils as he rode down the Hour-glass' stare. Like a specter of the night a vision of Dad Kane faced him accusingly. He shivered a little and dully noted that hands were cold, yet, like night cool. Little pulses beat in unsuspected places in his mouth that he had to bite hard and from time to time a dull roaring in his ears sounded like thunder. When he finally went to bed he let coffee be ground at the dark. The drawer was open. The Derringer pistol and two cartridges were gone.

Spike Goddard found him huddled in his chair with his shaking hand buried in his hands. He was shivering and his face was white and drawn . . . like the face of a very old man . . . and not a good man either.

"What the hell ails you?" demanded Spike. "Been a ghost?"

"Yes . . . and I'm going to be a ghost ing sixth. "One a week old and one that ain't dead yet . . . I think Peyoil will attend to it, Spike.

A long silence fell . . . "Look here, Spike," he said suddenly. "Let's quit. Let's sell off the Broken Spur and get out of here We can clean up. . . ."

"Sure thing," said Spike. "That red-heifer of Carr's be damned glad to see you go."

For just a second red murder gleamed in Dustin's eyes. Then he laughed.

"Just for that," he said, "six months from now you'll be sleepin' in the bunk-house. My wife and I will need this house."

"Yeah! Well, she won't be no red-headed girl named Edith Carr."

Dustin went on:

"When old Jess Carr learns that the Hour-glass has passed out of his hands he'll be worth listenin' to," he said. "Peyoil'll fix everything for us all right."

"I'm sorry you've got that hair-wit in on any scheme," said Spike sobenly. "If he ain't got seam enough to git himself out of any murder plot, how can you count on him? If you've sent him to work on that scheme . . ."

"I haven't," said Dustin eagerly. "I didn't outline any plan. I just in time. And when it comes to marryin' my daughter . . . well . . . I got a pretty good cook right now in the kitchen . . ."

"Dustin kept his temper pretty damned good. I'll say that for him. "I don't want a cook," he says. "I want a wife.'

"Yeah" says Joe. Then why not stick to your own kind? Why don't you go down to the place where you keep your other women? My cook tells me there's been an old he-skunk under the barn for five years now. Come to think of it, that's just the same length of time you all've been in. Broken Spur stands Hour-glass cattle. I'm pretty sure that some day when that old skunk works himself into the right mood he'll get goin' to shoot him. Now, of course, Dustin, I can't say what Edith will do when he does. I got my own ideas about it, though. I'm damned sure of one thing. When that old skunk gets shot up my kitchen the cook'll shoot him. If any other women, either or two-legged, gits to hangin' his hat on my rack, sure as hell I'll shoot him, too. That's what he said. . . ." Old Frank Crews fairly exposed in his delight. "Old Joe's in one hell of a mess but he'll charge hell with a dipper o' water if he gits hot and he's right mad at Dustin now. What ails you now?" he asked. For Stone's face was a study.

"Well . . . now you listen to me, Crews. I've got something to tell you that you never guessed . . ." Crews stared as the newest employee of the Hour-glass called the foreman by his last name. Then, as Stone finished with him all of that had taken place that day and, Crews, bolstering himself to the corner, gave himself up to thought.

"You mean to tell me," he demanded, "that you an' Edith actually found the place that ore came from?"

Dictators rising and the fall of kings
Bank loans, new plans, and long term credits,

Monthly meeting of the I.P.A. local took place Monday. The president, Mr. W. McIntyre, occupied the chair. Letters were read from head office and the Vermilion local. The routine business being completed, the meeting adjourned. Previous to the opening of the I.P.A. meeting Mr. F. Bond of Borradaile formed a boys' grain club and he has kindly consented to forward to the Standard a report of the proceedings.

The 1935 Grasshopper Situation

That large grasshopper control campaigns will be necessary in each of the Prairie Provinces during 1935 is the statement of officials of the Entomological Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. The situation in Manitoba is expected to be at least as serious, if not more so, than in 1934; that in Saskatchewan will probably be very much less serious, and that in Alberta is expected to be somewhat less extensive and serious than during 1934.

This forecast has been made from egg surveys carried on in the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta during the autumn of 1934, by the officers of the Entomological Branch in co-operation with officials of the provincial governments. The surveys included the entire territory likely to be infested. Considering how closely former surveys have anticipated the outbreak of the following year, and the fact that they have been based upon the eggs actually to be found in the ground, there is little question in regard to the substantial accuracy of the forecasts.

In spite of the widespread reduction in the "severely" and "very severely" infested areas there will still be millions of acres of crop in each province which will require the most thorough and painstaking control measures if the greater proportion of the crop is to be harvested.

Accordingly, large scale and intensive control campaigns will be necessary in each province and the plans for the carrying on of this work, which is regarded of great national economic importance are already in course of preparation.

The campaign of 1934 area on surface of the acreage of millions of bushels of grain and feed that in question will arise in respect to the support which will be given the control work in 1935 by the individual farmers in the infested districts.

For the first seven weeks of 1935 shipments of live stock from Western to Eastern Canada included 4,955 cattle, 271 calves, 23,293 hogs, and 16,625 sheep.

A total of 5,499 cattle and 14 calves were exported from Canada to the United States from Feb 7 to 21 1935.

BOWTELL BULLETIN

Several of the Bowtell young people journeyed through the drifts to Turkey Hill on Friday evening to the dance. All enjoyed a good time and look forward to the next dance there.

Practices for the young people's play "Slips and Jerksnose Detective Agency" are going forward apace. They promise an entertaining evening for all who come to Bowtell on Friday, April 5th. The play will be followed by a dance under the Pleasant Valley orchestra. Watch for further notice.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM THEODORE ISERT

The funeral of the late William Theodore Isert, whose death occurred very suddenly at the Islay hospital on Wednesday, March 6th, was held from the Orange community hall, Dewberry, on Friday, March 8th. A very large number of friends and sympathizers gathered from the surrounding country for one of the most impressive services ever held in that village. The Rev. H. C. Gardner and his wife kindly came up from Portlandia to conduct the service and the address he gave will long be remembered by those present. Mrs. Gardner sang two beautiful solos during the service.

Mr. Isert was very highly respected in the district and his untimely passing is keenly felt in the neighborhood. He developed blood poisoning from an injured hand which quickly spread; he was sick for a short time only and although everything humanly possible was done, including the rushing of a specialist from Edmonton, he passed away on the Wednesday afternoon.

The casket was covered with floral offerings and Mr. Waring, who had charge of the arrangements, is thanking the people for their expressions of respect and sympathy, spoke feelingly of the high esteem in which Mr. Isert was held in the district. The interment took place in Dewberry cemetery.

William T. Isert was born at St. Paul, Minn. on Feb. 25th, 1906. He came to Dewberry district with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Isert, at the age of 7 years and was a resident in the district for 24 years. In December of 1934 he was united in marriage to Miss Gudrun Gunderson of Norway Valley. He leaves to mourn his loss a widow and three small children Lois, Joyce and Dale; his parents, Albert and Mrs. Isert of Hazeldine, and a brother, Albert Carl Isert of Dewberry.

A SMALL device which enables a physician to listen to the sound of the human heart magnified one hundred times, has recently been placed in experimental use, according to an announcement by Northern Electric Company, Limited, in Montreal.

The device is an Electrical Stethoscope, based upon the telephone principle with the heart doing the "talking". Or rather, it is released for a musical amplifier whose pulsating power is used by using the ordinary stethoscope; its success, however, depends entirely upon the physician whose hearing is keen enough and knows whose practice takes them into noisy places. Moreover, it is also found most useful in diagnosing pathological conditions of the heart, as by simply throwing a switch, high or low notes may be emphasized or eliminated, as desired, thus segregating the sounds to positively certain diseases for more careful attention.

The entire stethoscope weighs less than [illegible] and is about half the size of the ordinary [illegible] transformers. It forms a stethoscope [illegible] type model which was earlier developed in the laboratories, and is used for amplifying [illegible] hospitals where almost any number may listen at the same time.

A second Wainwright paper, which had had a precarious career for nearly two years, ceased publication recently and the plant has been moved away, from that town. No town, even though it were considerably larger than Wainwright, could possibly be expected to support two papers, especially when one paper is doing excellent work in that locality. Usually such a project is started by ill-advised persons who do not take into consideration the volume of business whether more or less in demand, or if they can possibly hope to attain the standard already set by the established local editor. "Saddling the hog" in varying degrees, on account of the name of the new paper possessed it takes all the support available to maintain one good weekly sheet. You have always to make a monthly or a revised weekly new paper editor who made his "pile" from that calling.

TO GIVE ATHABASKA RECORDER OF MINES

2,000 Claims Staked in Gold Area and Only 200 Recorded

REGINA March 12: A Saskatchewan mining recorder will be named shortly for the Athabaska Lake area, scene of the greatest gold development in the history of the province. Nearly 2,000 claims are reported staked and only 200 approximately have been actually filed. Col. J. E. Cross will now in the city, and Peter R. J. Greene, who returned from the northern area Sunday, stress importance of the new district.

Mining men here have been stressing the necessity for appointment of a recorder in the new field for some months. Filing fees collected will make it profitable for the Saskatchewan government to place an official in the field they claim.

INVOLVED CASE BEFORE COURT IN EDMONTON

An involved deal over the purchase of a hotel and garage was aired before Mr. Justice C. R. Mitchell presiding in supreme court on Friday morning. W. C. Purvis, of Saskatoon, brought suit against Burns and Company Limited, Neil F. Maclean K.C. is acting for the company, and S. A. Dickson K.C., is acting for the plaintiff.

Purvis alleges that the engine and boiler are not as the Burns company at Vermilion, and how it came to get there is a long story. Originally, it is alleged, the engine and boiler was part of the equipment of the University of Saskatchewan at Saskatoon. It was sold while there for 71 days when it was damaged in a fire and bought by Perry in a damage compromise. In June, 1928, the engine and boiler were sold by one W. F. Beal, machinery dealer, and shipped to Vermilion.

Perry claims that he didn't know where the boiler had gone for six years, until he learned that it was at the Vermilion creamery.

The company says that it bought the boiler in the ordinary way of business, and paid in full for it.

Here and There

Employed on railway construction 50 years ago, Thomas B. McGillivray, 83, of Edmonton, claims the distinction of having planted the last carload of dirt on the C.P.R. when that trans-continental line was completed to the Pacific coast in 1885. Despite his advanced age he still has a clear recollection of incidents on construction.

Miss Mary McNeill, superannuated in December after over 40 years' service as Public Librarian at Alexandria of the C.P.R. Great Lakes Steamships, spent almost her entire service as chief stewardess of S.S. Keewatin, sailing with her every season from her maiden voyage in 1908 until the close of the 1934 season.

Fortunes are being spent on research in the science of armaments but not one penny for research in the field of disarmaments, said Prof. Julian Huxley, famous grandson of the even more famous T. H. Huxley, in outlining the messiest and functions of science. He short-comings and possibilities, at the Lord Nelson Hotel, Halifax, recently.

"Our province will soon take as important place, if not the leading place, among the gold-producing countries of the world," stated Hon. J. E. Perrault, Minister of Roads and Mines of the Province of Quebec, in a recent address on "The Mining Industry of Quebec" to the Chateau Frontenac, Quebec City.

Interviewed at Victoria recently, H. B. Dunfordy, assistant passenger traffic manager, Canadian Pacific Railway, stationed at Winnipeg, declared that indications pointed to a better all-around tourist year for 1935 over 1934 much improved though that year had been over previous tourist seasons.

Shi-loving behind a fast running horse; smashing with a cane of bushing, shaking, or skiing on mountain trails all seem to be dominating note in addressing the problems of the day.

Amid voicing his sincere belief in the ultimate destiny of Canada, Mr. Beatty emphasized the necessity of a broader understanding between all sections of the country, and insisted that should this objective be achieved, the welfare of all citizens would be further assured solving problems which now threaten the integrity of the Union.

In the light of this argument Mr. Beatty felt that he had every right to discuss the tariff, citing the fact that the Canadian Pacific Railway was most decidedly susceptible to the effects of unstable tariff conditions. "Give me a tariff policy and arrangements the Canadian National Railways and I shall be content," he said.

Mr. Beatty was neither a free trader nor in free trade. He believed the maximum of national wealth is fairly distributed among the citizens. The Canadian tariff should be one which would encourage external and external trade commensurate with a maximum.

Mr. Beatty illustrated his argument by citing the fact that Canada enjoyed a greater foreign commerce per capita than either of the two more important of the American Republics, namely the United States and Mexico, and said that he would like to see the people enjoy a favorable balance sheet which would give an analysis of the effect of the tariff on the total income and purchasing power of the individual and external and external trade combined at

All leaders in their class

Man's Priceless Possessions

To keep one's head in times of emergency and crisis remain cool, refrain from excess emotionalism, hysteria and panic, is a sign of strength, and men and women who display these characteristics prove to be the real leaders of these fellow citizens. That leadership may be demonstrated without uttering a word or doing anything spectacular but merely by being unafraid natural and unconcerned

This truth was impressed upon us the other day by an incident reported in the daily press in connection with a fire which broke out on a railway car between Moose Jaw and Regina. There was a rush of frightened passengers to the corridor door. One man urged calmness and an orderly exit but little heed was paid to him. But another passenger remained quietly in his seat looking with unconcern out of the car window His attitude impressed others with the fact that there was little danger and no need for undue alarm. People spotted destruction and a near panic was averted.

The world is passing through the stress and emergency of an unprecedented economic depression. It is a time to try the caliber of men and nations. Under prevailing conditions the striking of a small spark might easily cause an explosion, and a small flame spread into a great conflagration. There are individuals in all countries striving to take advantage of the present situation to stir up trouble. They are playing on the emotions of their fellow citizens, emotions which have been stirred to the depths by the personal problems difficulties sufferings and loss with which they have been and still are confronted. They are ripe for the demagogue and the stirer up of strife to ply their trade, reckless of what the final outcome might be

But the strong men and women of the world, those who can be depended upon in times of emergency, are proving to be the real leaders in most countries. Were it not so almost universal chaos would by now be the lot of people everywhere. In the time of testing, the Canadian people have demonstrated their sanity and their strength. Notwithstanding all our problems and difficulties, and these are in no sense or degree to be minimized, the people of Canada, taken as a whole, have kept their heads, remained sane and avoided panicky action.

In some countries peoples have no last confidence in themselves and so given way to panic and become the victims of emotionalism, that they have sacrificed personal rights and liberties almost over night which it had taken generations of struggle by their forefathers to achieve for them Thoughtfully, in a spirit of peace, they surrendered some of the great fundamentals of life and living because they allowed others to unduly sway their emotions and be suspected to keep cool and think for themselves rather than allow others to think and act for them

Because this is so the hands of the clock of progress have been turned back in such countries, and their future in dark and discouraging compared with those other nations where the people and their leaders have kept their feet firmly planted on the ground and their brains cool and minds clear

Today in Canada and throughout the British Empire all people still enjoy that great safeguard of their liberties which is represented by a free and uncensored press and the utmost freedom in expression. Every man and woman, no matter what his or her station in life, is absolutely free to express opinions, publicly or privately, in relation to any and all matters of public policy. They are free to criticize and condemn as they see fit, to appland and praise. If they are dissatisfied and opposed to those presently in positions of authority, they are free to express their dissatisfaction and to organize to give force to their opposition.

No government agent sits in any newspaper office in Canada, no bill of censorship orders has on many editor's desk which must be obeyed. The radio, the pulpit, the public platform, is just as free to opponents of present governmental policies as they are to supporters of those policies This is not so in many of the countries of the world. Hundreds of millions of people are now denied free expression of their views, opposition to the powers-that-be is prohibited, even the news of the day is censored, regimented altogether, or colored to suit the views and policies of the prevailing dictator

The essential fact for all Canadians to ever keep in mind is that, even if a so-called economic system may be ultimately overthrown by violent or autocratic methods, the price to be paid is altogether too great. A show may easily securely prevail in such a manner, but the fact remains he is a slave and nothing more, and what Canadian citizen desires to become a slave?

What the whole world is in danger of losing today is the very people who have most to lose keep their heads, are the very fundamentals of civilization—namely the liberties of the individual citizen. Once these personal liberties are lost, and might, rather than right, occupies the place of power and authority, it will be the great masses of the people, deprived of their democratic institutions and their liberties, who will be the sufferers. Once lost the struggle to regain these priceless liberties will have to be re-commenced, because man was born to be free The battle to restore civilization, liberty and equality will again have to be waged.

Liberty freedom, personal rights are priceless possessions. They should never be surrendered for anything else, no matter how attractive that something else may be dressed up and presented. Nothing else nor everything else, can repay man for the loss of freedom of expression and liberty of action.

New War On Grasshoppers

Menace Serious As Last Year Alberta Farmers Told

Just as relentless a war against grasshoppers will have to be waged this summer and fall as last year by Alberta farmers or tremendous losses will result, Lieut.-Col. W. H. Strickland, professor of entomology at the University of Alberta who was a visitor in Calgary, states.

It is known that millions of grasshoppers will be massed ready for action as soon as their feeding season begins, but the counter offensive is more highly organized than ever before due to end experience in the past, resulting in a greater appreciation by farmers of the seriousness of the menace

Col. Strickland stated that the present outlook in regard to the grasshopper menace was as serious as it was this time last year. In 1934 he said, very considerable damage was done by the insects, but the damage was inconsiderable when compared with the grasshopper plague between 1919 and 1922, when crops on millions of acres here in the province were wiped out.

Efforts are still being carried on to discover new methods to control grasshoppers according to Col Strickland, but, so far, the most practical and efficient method has been the systematic scattering of poison bait.

A BARBER WHO HAD RHEUMATISM

Tells How He Carried On

A barber who had been "a martyr to rheumatism" writes:

"I have been a martyr to rheumatism for many years and for the last years I was so affected that it was only by great difficulty I was able to carry on my business. I only say I was a barber for I often had having tried numerous remedies. I was finally advised to try Kruschen and after using the first bottle I noticed using used Kruschen for some twelve months. I can truthfully say that aches and pains that I have been for some are years. In fact I have entirely got rid of rheumatism, thanks to Kruschen Salts." W. J.

Two of the ingredients of Kruschen Salts are the most effectual solvents of uric acid known to medical science. They swiftly dull the sharp edges of the painful crystals, then convert them into a harmless solution Other ingredients of these Salts have a stimulating effect upon the kidneys, and assist them to expel the dissolved uratic needles through the natural channel.

Shot Of From World

Four Nuns Working Among Primitive Tribes Of Papua

The four loneliest women in the world have passed through Port Moresby, Papua, on their way to what many must regard as a living grave

They are nuns of the Carmelite Order. They have gone to spend the rest of their lives in the silence and seclusion of a convent built especially for them some 30 miles inland.

There these four white women, who have dedicated themselves to a life of prayer and work among the primitive tribes of Papua, will live shut off from the rest of the world. They will occupy separate cells, and meet each other only in their little patch for flower gardening.

By the rules of their Order, they must eat no meat, wear no stockings and shoes, sleep on straw mats, use a mirror, and have no correspondence.

WHAT DOES YOUR HANDWRITING REVEAL?

By LAWRENCE HIBBERT
(Graphe-Analyst)
(All Rights Reserved)

(Editor's Note: Marked interest is being shown in these articles, and more are coming in in increasing numbers. Have you had your handwriting analyzed? Have you any problem in which this well-known writer could help you? See his invitation following this week's interesting article).

A surprisingly large number of readers have written to me from time to time, asking for advice regarding friends with whom they have become acquainted through the medium of correspondence clubs. Sometimes the object is merely to have a regular correspondents, and there is really no particular harm in this.

The real danger arises when the object is more intimate; when, in fact, the aim is marriage. The case in the United States in which a man became acquainted with a number of ladies through a correspondence club, and swindled them for their money must be still fresh in the memory of many readers. However, it is not every case that reaches this horrible height by any means.

Very frequently, however, women become engaged to men and marry them, only to find that their impressions of the man were superficial, and that they have married to rue their decision.

This applies especially to the man of the world, who has seen a little more of life than I have. He is the man who is always ready with a ready reply. He takes no about a man, he says, obtain a knowledge of human nature.

Now I have seen letters that he has written. And they reveal not only that he is selfish and self-centered, but also that a weakness per. I cannot imagine anyone living with him having any happiness, because he is still attached to his mother, and will break out into a frequent fury. He is the type of man who could be worse than this

This man is avarious He knows that this widow has money, and he thinks that he will be better able to get possession of some of it. And there is still another angle. He is one of the men who, I am told, is the type of man for my correspondent.

They have become acquainted through a correspondence club. And this widow is one of the very real dangers that lurk in these clubs. Here is a man who has not yet married on a single man, until he thought he could appeal for sympathy to this widow

I am not going to lay it down as a hard-and-fast rule that a widow should have nothing to do with correspondence clubs. Many have found happiness through them. But I do say that there are many people living in remote parts of the country and in many cases too retiring to go in for social life, who, through a club, find some similarly lonely soul with whom they become friendly, and conduct a correspondence that brings them much pleasure. In these circumstances, happy marriages result from time to time, but in the majority of cases the correspondents.

And it is especially to single girls that I would address this word of warning. Women who have been married before, have usually had experience. They know what to look for in a husband, and are not so likely to be taken advantage.

In the case I have mentioned before, my advice to the writer is to have nothing to do with her married correspondent. She is not playing fair, and believes that he will bring nothing but trouble to her in the correspondent if my marriage is to be successful.

One other word in regard to these correspondence acquaintanceships. Beware of them through their matrimony. It may seem surprising that such a warning is necessary, but as a yet I have known of women who have been married for years, and the interchange of letters brings them out of the routine.

The author will analyze your handwriting, interpret and he will tell you what your friends are really like, without any frills. Send specimens of the writing you wish to be analyzed, stated birthdate in each case and enclose 10c coin for each specimen. Send with a 3c stamped, addressed envelope to Lawrence Hibbert, care of Winnipeg Newspaper Service, 179 McDermot Ave., Winnipeg, Man. All letters are confidential. Please will be forwarded quickly as possible, but name delay is unavoidable owing to the large number of letters that are coming in.

A Pocket Submarine

Small Underwater Craft Valuable Addition To British Fleet

Britain's latest "pocket submarine," now being tried out in the Channel, is showing remarkable qualities of smoothness, quick diving and deadliness in attack.

The submarine, the H.M.S Shark, is a mere pigmy compared with the big monsters type of 1,500 tons which preceded her. She is barely 320 feet long, 24 feet broad, with a displacement of 670 tons. Yet she can "sink" over thirty miles in the surface or, at full power, travel at nearly 18 miles per hour underwater.

The rapid diving is accomplished by any other submarine. She can perform a crash dive in 30 seconds. All the bows are mounted six tubes for discharging the powerful 21-inch torpedo, a salvo of which would disable any battle ship. On deck two small quick-firing guns are mounted for use against hostile aircraft or light surface patrols.

Eleven of these powerful and handy little submarines are to be built. They are intended chiefly for coast defence, but are also being capable of undertaking operations farther afield if necessary. They have the additional advantage of being comparatively cheap, costing only about £50,000 each.

GARDENING

Gordon L. Smith

Sweet Peas

Sweet Peas must be planted just as soon as it is possible to get a spade in the ground. There usually are one or two days in early April when it is possible to work in the soil in the warmest part of the garden, and this is the time and place for these flowers. They have been known to withstand even the summer nights are inclined to be cool. They must have cold, water during dry weather. It is advisable to sow in a trench and support on brush, netting or pointed boughs. The trench should be dug a foot deep and in it put a layer of rich soil well rotted leaves, or manure. This, in addition to the plant food also gives moisture. Sow the seeds about two inches apart in the row. Cover with about 13 inches above the soil at the sides, and slope from the row to each rain to run off and also to catch the full rays of the sun. At first the soil will heat rapidly, but in about three days it will have cooled to around 60 degrees which is the proper temperature The seed is planted in rows about two inches apart, and the bed watered frequently. On warm days it will be necessary to ventilate by raising the window frame an inch or so When the second set of leaves develop thin. The seedlings are transplanted to a cold frame, which is the same as a hot bed only without the heating manure. Shade them lightly before going outside. Here they are hardened thoroughly before being set out in their permanent quarters No heating material is needed in the house, otherwise the procedure is practically the same Beans about three inches deep are filled with a mixture of sand and light soil and placed in a bright window, where, preferably, there is a double glass, to prevent cold draughts at night.

Little Journeys In Science

PROVING

(By Gordon H. Guest, M.A.)

Proteins are very complex substances which always contain the element nitrogen. Protoplasm cannot be formed without proteins, and thus we see that life itself is dependent upon them. The word protein comes from a Greek word meaning "to take the first place", because the importance of this group of substance was early recognized.

Proteins in animal living matter and are present in all natural food stuffs. Due to the fact that they are the chief constituents of living animal tissue, they are most plentiful in animal foods, such as meat, eggs and fish.

Scientists have found proteins to be the most complicated substances ever studied. They have found that all proteins contain carbon, hydrogen, nitrogen, oxygen and sulphur, while some also contain phosphorous Small quantities of other elements are found in certain proteins.

Proteins are used by the body for building tissue, and also for producing energy. For providing the material for growth in children, and for repairing waste tissue in adults, they cannot be replaced by any other food. Milk is a protein food from which animal foods, such as meat, milk and eggs are more valuable for these purposes than the proteins in vegetables Milk is a valuable protein food and is especially good for children.

Science has shown that there are thousands of different kinds of proteins varying in structure and quality. During the process of digestion, the proteins are decomposed into simpler substances, known as amino acid These are absorbed and recombined in new proportions, forming other proteins which have different properties than those which were taken into the stomach. Thus the proteins in food are different than those actually used by the body

IMPOSSIBLE TO STABILIZE POUND STERLING NOW

London. — Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, told the House of Commons it was impossible to try to stabilize the pound sterling on gold under the present circumstances. At the same time he strongly denied the exchange equalization fund was being used for the purpose of depreciating sterling.

"There is absolutely nothing in the position of the pound which need give Britain a moment's uneasiness," he said. "The pound buys the same amount of goods internally as it did three years ago."

(A downward movement of the pound during the past week in relation to the United States dollar and the French franc has caused considerable speculation in foreign exchange circles.)

Chamberlain said he was unchanged in his view that there was no better international standard than gold but he said that governments could not take steps to revert to the gold standard until conditions were so favorable that leaving revived, and were pretty certain or our ability to remain on it."

The chancellor of the exchequer said the exchange equalization fund "was never used and never was intended for the purpose of deliberately forcing sterling down." It was declined to explain how the fund had operated recently, saying publicity would destroy its value.

If Great Britain tied to gold and the policies of either the United States or France refused to rid ourselves of the gold we had or to put up the bank rate and begin to deflate," Chamberlain continued, "we would be bringing about a serious state of affairs in this country by restricting enterprise and increasing unemployment to a point where we are in a position at present to take the risk of putting the pound at the mercy of either the franc or the dollar

Silver Jubilee Fund

Contributions Received From Persons Within Province Of Alberta

It said such contributions were received from correspondences enclosed with subscriptions received and acknowledged by the Countess of Bessborough.

Where many plants are wanted, the best arrangement is to grow seed indoors in a hot bed, though they may be started in the house in a shallow box in a sunny window will be sufficient. Sow the seed simply on the surface of a box of soil and cover with a wooden framework about 18 inches high. Slope this so that the back is two inches of fine garden soil on a layer of fresh, slightly strawy, horse manure In an open place and facing south, dig a pit of the same length and as the window frame and about a foot deep. Into this put the manure, till frost prevents digging, simply pile on top of the ground.) When well packed down, the layer of manure should be about 18 inches thick. It is held in place by the sides of the pit and the frame. On top is placed two inches of light garden soil, preferably mixed with a little sand. The window is fitted snugly into place on top and should be about 15 inches above the soil at the back and 9 inches at the front to

Sow the seeds thinly in rows about two inches apart, and the bed watered frequently. Foster Tourist Trade

Ottawa Members Discuss Possibilities Of Development

Ottawa. —Members had a field day in the House of Commons extolling the tourist attractions of Canada as a whole and their own parts of the country in particular. In their enthusiasm they could not find time in the three-hour session to pass a vote of $300,000 to be used to foster Canada's inter-provincial and international tourist trade.

Railway Minister R. J. Manion sponsored the $300,000 vote, an increase of $100,000 over last year He listened to all sorts of suggestions from members. More highways—national highways built and maintained by the Dominion, extending across the country; a campaign in the United States to convince Americans that Canadians are not Indians or Eskimos; cheap week-end tickets on the railways; passes on Canadian railways for American senators and congressmen so they could discover something about the country, and right down the line to courteous customs inspectors and hotel keepers.

The only opposition to the vote was when several members claimed it was too small, one suggesting it be increased over the years to $30,000,000. The vote will be discussed another day.

Mr Manion said that in 1929, $309,000,000 was estimated as the value of the country's tourist trade and in 1934, $140,000,000 Canada should have a tourist industry worth $500,000,000 when properly returned, the minister said.

Dr. Manion paid tribute to Canadian newspapers which had assisted in developing agreements by any, All of the 21 signatory countries, All the big four countries Canada, the United States, Australia and Argentina - will begin planting in the next few months without any arrangements whatsoever so far as the world pact is concerned.

Robbery Is A Mystery

Big Gold Shipment Removed From Croydon Airport

London.—Scotland Yard had another puzzling case on its hands—how and by whom three boxes containing gold worth £21,000 ($102,900 at par) were stolen from the administration building of the Croydon airport.

No keys were missing and an outside oak door to the strong room was found locked, but the inner steel door was open and the boxes gone.

They were difficult to handle on account of their weight, and how they were removed from the administration building and the airport itself without attracting attention of half a dozen officials constantly on duty was a mystery to the investigating detectives.

No fingerprints were found and this was taken to indicate the robbers wore gloves.

WORLD WHEAT PACT ADMITTED A DEAD LETTER

London.—The 1933 world wheat pact admittedly became a dead document, five months before its annual meeting opens here, the "big four" wheat nations gave up attempts to secure Argentine co-operation in controlling exports for the remainder of the crop year.

Little hope has been held that anything could be done at this late date, but the collapse of the agreement for the pact at Budapest last November on the grounds it was unfair to her, and the refusal of Argentina to rid herself of the 1933 surplus.

Martial law prevails throughout Greece. The whole country appears paralyzed with fear and misgivings Rail telephone and telegraphic communication are cut off and normal life has come to a standstill.

While Greece proper apparently was free from military clashes yesterday Macedonia, Epirus and the Greek islands where the followers of former Premier Eleutherios Venizelos dominate appeared to be in a state of ferment.

Housing Plan

Would Involve Scheme To Construct Houses In Winnipeg

Winnipeg.—Winnipeg's civic housing committee pressed for revival of the old housing scheme and expenditure of $2,000,000 in 1935-36 on construction of homes for rental, sale or for rental with option of purchasing without reference to ratepayers.

At present the city has the right from the Manitoba legislature to go ahead with a $1,500 000 program or rehabilitation and new construction if and when the voters give their approval, it was stated at a meeting of the committee

The old housing scheme was in operation during 1919-23 and was administered by an independent commission of which the city treasurer was chairman, It made 713 loans totaling $2,761,651 and arranged repayments so that borrowers made regular lump sum reimbursement for principal interest and taxes

WHITE PAPER IS BLAMED FOR HITLER REFUSAL

London — Preparing formally to accuse the National government of endangering the peace of Europe, the Labor opposition in the House of Commons laughed when Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon informed the House he was to go to Berlin but been postponed on account of Adolf Hitler's cold

Sir John imperturbably informed the house that he had been in touch with the German government as to when he talks over the far-reaching proposals made in the British white paper on armaments. The white paper outlined Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's counter proposals to Germany's rearmament plans.

Sir John said he hoped to be able to make a statement on the matter in the near future.

Clement Attlee, deputy Labor leader, said the white paper he was discussing was "the most amazing document" he had ever seen in the history of the British parliament.

ELKS WIN CIVIC LEAGUE AND WILSE TROPHY

Take Two Straight Games From High School

The Elks, managed by Don Taylor, won the Civic league championship for the third consecutive season and four times in all, by downing the High School in two thrilling games in the play-off here on Wednesday and Monday evenings.

Wesbe Cup Winners

Winners of the Wesbe Cup since the formation of the Civic League in 1928 have been:
Season of 1928-29 — V. S. A.
Season of 1929-30 — Elks.
Season of 1930-31 — Vets (C.N.R.
Season of 1931-32 — C. N. R.
Season of 1932-33 — Elks.
Season of 1933-34 — Elks.
Season of 1934-35 — Elks.

First Game Goes into Overtime

What was no doubt the fastest game of the civic season was that of last Wednesday night when the Elks and V.H.S. met in the first playoff game. The Elks were not to be denied and emerged with an overtime win by 3 goals to 2.

There was no score in the first period but one minute after the opening of the second Geoff scored on Dean Timmerman's pass, the result of some scrimmishing combination. Barry Pelland the score when the hitch schoolboy defence slipped, and then Barry, the spark plug of the Elk team, grabbed Laderoute's rebound to put the Elks a good up. In the third period the Timmermen staged another combination act and tied the score at 2 all Deny scoring this time.

Overtime was started and at a face off on the V.H.S. blue line Bell managed to pass, slipped the puck to Brown, who in turn relayed to Laderoute and Preachy scored on a long low shot.

Elks Win Final Game 4 to 1

Scintillating goal tending by Jack Bell helped the Elks keep their goal off same. While his team mates only had an even distribution of the play, Jack held the High boy to one goal when they might well have had a half dozen. The Elks rammed home four counters, all of which "Hopie Mc ran" Bell had a hand in, while Miss Fraser counted the lone student tally from a melee. The game was fast and interesting throughout. Goal getters were: Elks, Bell; Laderoute from Bell; Bell from Banks; Bell. V.H.S., Fraser.

Jimmie Gilbert replaced Wilcox, who is sick, in the high school nets and turned in a fine game, being well backed by the shots that eluded him. Bob Brown was an absentee from the Elk line up due to an injured arm.

The Champs—Jack Beresford; Jim Banks, George Rennbech; Barry Bell, John Laderoute, Hugh Brown, Reg Kelly, A. Wilcox, Bob Brown, Tom Taylor, manager.

ONLY 50 P.C. PRODUCERS FAVOURABLE TO POULTRY MARKETING SCHEME

Supporters Considered Endorsation by 66 P.C. Necessary

OTTAWA, March 12 Scheme to regulate the marketing of poultry and eggs in inter-provincial trade will not be put into effect, Minister of Agriculture Weir announced in the commons Tuesday.

The recent poll of producers gave 63.5 per cent for the scheme in Alberta, 63.4 per cent in Saskatchewan, and 91.3 per cent in Manitoba.

"In view of the fact," the minister said, "the supporters of the scheme appealed for support on the basis that the plan would not be put into effect unless carried by at least 66 2/3 per cent of the votes, the scheme will not be put into effect in any of the three provinces."

The poll was held from Feb. 16 to Feb. 23. Every person owning 25 or more poultry was entitled to register at his local post office and vote.

WE'RE ASKING YOU!

A rather amusing episode was experienced by Inspector Parker at Manyille recently. Taking up a passage in "Big Sun Winkie" the phrase "intrigued Inheritance" was encountered. After the meaning of this had been made clear a youth asked the Inspector what it would be if it were inherited from the mother. A bright young lady vouchsafed the information that it would be "maternal scandal." Well . . . what would it be?

GARDENING

Dig—Dig—Dig

Cultivation is even more important than good soil or fertilizer. A consistently cultivated garden, will withstand much drought for the simple reason that this stirring of the top soil prevents evaporation of moisture, and it also keeps down those robbers of plant food and water, weeds. The mechanical texture of heavy clay can be remedied by good cultivation. Cultivation is necessary especially during the early part of the season and more particularly after each shower. With some of the many hand, horse or tractor drawn garden cultivators on the market, this task is done quickly and without the old time back-ache.

Killing Out

Most damage to shrubbery, perennial flowers, roses, strawberry patches, fall wheat and other plants occurs during March or April. It is not the extreme cold of January and February that causes the trouble, but the alternate freezing and thawing and the drying winds of early spring. On fine days things start to grow and the sap comes up from the roots, but at night frost returns and injury results. Crowns, and stems are burst, fruit buds frozen, and grass and other perennial plants heaved out of the soil, their tiny roots broken and exposed to the high drying winds. Protection in the form of snow, straw, leaves, or old vegetable refuse, is advisable at this time and is especially necessary in Southern exposures where the difference between midnight and noon temperatures is much more extreme than elsewhere. This protection must stay on until the dangerous period is over and then removed gradually. If left on too long, however, growth is spindly and backward.

A Short Cut

Good sized potatoes by early July are produced in most parts of Canada, and this is the time the crop is really appreciated and worth some money. As soon as the ground works up nicely, a small planting may be made. The further hurry things along, for two or three weeks before planting, it is advisable to spread the seed potatoes out in some frost proof place where they will get as much sun as possible through the window. Soon, healthy, stout sprouts will appear and if planted carefully, so as to avoid breaking off, the crop will be through the ground in a day or two.

Little Journeys in Science

(By Gordon H. Garst, M.A.)

Scientists have found that the element carbon forms a larger number of chemical compounds than any other element. At the present time over 300,000 compounds containing carbon have been discovered, and every year new ones are being made in research laboratories. This great number is due to the fact that carbon possesses the property of combining with certain elements in a number of different proportions, thus forming any of different kinds of molecules of the same element. For example, carbon combines with four atoms of hydrogen to produce nearly three hundred different compounds. These compounds containing only carbon and hydrogen are known as hydrocarbons.

Some hydrocarbons are gases, others are liquids, and still others are solids. Many of them are of great commercial importance. Certain hydrocarbons mixed in varying proportions make up such valuable materials as natural gas, gasoline, coal oil, lubricating oils, vaseline, and paraffin. Others serve as the raw material from which are made many of our most valuable dyes, drugs, and explosives.

Since there are so many hydrocarbons they are classified into groups or series. One of the most important of these series is the methane series. The members of this series are often known as the paraffin hydrocarbons, because ordinary paraffin is a mixture of the solid members of the series.

Methane or marsh gas is the first member of the methane series of hydrocarbons. It is the chief constituent of natural gas and is also often formed in marshes by the decay of vegetable matter under water. Methane sometimes collects in mines, and when mixed with air is called "fire damp" by the miners because of its great inflammability. "Damp" is the old name for gas. If such a mixture is ignited a very disastrous explosion occurs.

GET RID OF THE CROWS

A great deal has been said about the crows' diet, so let me add my testimony. Crows will eat almost anything. Yes, and all about everything. I have had enough pet crows to find this out. But shelled corn will kill young crows about as quickly as any diet you can feed them. If you have a young one and are anxious to raise him, feed custard, one hen's egg to half a cup of water (no sugar) and just watch him grow. I have fed them chopped up snakes and they always caved for more snake. Old crows will grow like a chicken. During the winter in this section of the country their chief diet is corn, but if they can find carrion that is what will tickle their palates most.

A great deal has been said about the crows' diet, so let me add to the value of the crows; let me tell you this. A crow will do no more good on the farm than a lightning chicken that will lay a dollar's worth of eggs a month, and as for the grasshoppers the crow destroys, let me advise you to keep a few pet crows and the next dense these grasshoppers into 50 cents per pound.

One corner of Jack Miner's crow trap.

And now to the sportsmen and bird lovers of the province, let me add this boiled-down sentence: Any respect law-abiding citizen of Canada to increase until the crows are decreased. Saying nothing about the game birds destroyed by crows in their eggs I honestly believe, especially in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, that by eating the duck eggs the crow destroyed half the increase of ducks more than the bunter and the gun. In Manitoba crows are to their eggs as a hen is to an egg on the telephone wires. This statement is not founded on what could be said study crows so much doing the last few years. To reduce them by shooting campaigns has proven a failure. Thousands of men are trying that and, in spite of their many varieties of decoys, the crows are increasing. Here is where we have study of them helped me out, for I know how shy and quite a little shooting will make them. At last the idea of catching them presented itself to me and immediately I could see results. More study increased my faith until I simply had to do it.

Since I knew I would have to bait, I at once called up Mr. Art Brown, one of our Kingsville fisherman, and he agreed to let me have a large load or so of fish heads, scales and guts. Immediately I got busy on the deck before the health officers put him off. Next, I secured a dead horse or an old mare and put all of the crow bait. Then I built the net on the same principle as I had built my net to catch and tag geese, but much smaller, the exact dimensions being six feet high, 12 feet wide and 70 feet long. I started operations first on a Thursday and finished it Saturday, doing practically all the work myself. I had my first catch the second day I caught $10 crows at one catch. While there may be a number of other ways to control crows, yet I do know this method, if put into practice, would soon reduce their numbers to a small proportion as they were 50 years ago.

About the only fault I have heard of my trap is that it is not as fast to go together too expensive. This surely must be a fault of imagination, for I know two young men that built a trap in less than half an hour and as high as 227 at one catch and the net is still in good shape. Of course this one was built of junk material, such as poles from the woods and fish netting, but it is one of the crows just the same. To build a trap that will last well because of use, without waiting for others, each one would adopt the injunctions of these crows as the binding rule and regulation of daily life." (F. B. Meyer).

Costs To University Of Alberta Amounted To $50,081

Full costs of the Fowlett "hazing" action against the University of Alberta amounted to $50,081, it was revealed in a detailed statement brought down in the legislature. The case followed confinement in mental hospitals of a student allegedly as the result of initiation brutality at the university.

Of the whole sum, the province is liable for a total of $48,701, while $1,500 was paid by the students medical service.

The amount payable to the Fowlett family on passage of the estimate by the fiscal year $495-36 is $26,228, made up of a judgment for $20,000 and costs of $8,228.

Explanations And Comments

Love Makes One Thoughtful of Others (vs. 8-12). Peter calls all to be likeminded, of one mind, Authorized Version. This centers of mind does not demand the monotony of similarity, but unity in variety. GILLETT'S LYE EATS DIRT

THE TENDERFOOT

By GEORGE B. RODNEY

Author of "The Coronado Trail", "The Canyon Trail", Etc.

SYNOPSIS

"You're fallen heir to a half-share in plenty of trouble," the lawyer told Gerald Keene. "Pete Rogers seems to have been systematically looting the ranch, and old Joe Carr, your partner, is drinking himself into ruin."

Dad Kane, desert rat and luckless prospector till now returns to tell Dustin and Spike Goddard, who had gratuitously befriended him, of a rich gold mine, and shows samples of the ore.

Dustin unexpectedly comes along while Stone and Edith are riding fence, and seeing them, stops and talks to Edith. He mentions their dispute could be settled by marrying him, and Edith refuses his proposal with remarks that make Dustin furious. He insults Stone, who prompt-ly throws him into a pool of water.

Dustin learns that Gerald Keene has been sent for, and also that Pete Stone has seen the Brokers Spur men rustling Carrs cattle. He sets out with Dad Kane to learn the location of his gold discovery. Dad Kane shows Dustin the mine.

They go back to camp, and Dustin almost kills Kane in the shooting of Peyoti Gregg a drug addict, who, stupefied by the narcotic he had taken, did not know whether he was guilty or not. They bury Kane and then return to the Rocking Chair ranch.

Meanwhile at the Hour Glass, Carr, Gerald Keene specially as to the meaning of entries in the notebook belonging to Dad Kane that Stone had found on the desert, and which is explained and accompanied by Edith Carr. Jo went to Red Water to test out her story, which proves correct, and then, find the rich gold deposit on it. The most important thing is that he's goin' to find Kane."

"That can't help much," she said. "My one hope is in Daddy's new partner, Mr. Keene. He may be able to help us if he will. Do you know what that beast Dustin has done to Daddy . . . ?" She told him pretty much what Gerald Keene had already said.

"Of course he wants to marry you," he said curtly. "Who in his senses wouldn't . . . ? And as for you, sudden light in his eyes, she gave bark a little and her laugh was a little strained. "The fool . . . the utter fool to think that he can buy a girl like you. . . ."

What do you mean by that? Buy her?"

For one brief minute he could not decide whether to tell her or not . . . Then he told. Her eyes widened as she listened and when he stopped, she laid a hand gently on his arm.

"I'm glad you told me this," she said quickly. "I know Daddy must have borrowed some money but I did not know from whom he got it. . . ."

"Your father doesn't yet know that Dustin holds the note," he said. "You'd better not tell him that yet. Wait till Keene gets here."

"I will be careful. I am glad to know the worst at least. . . . I know at least where the thunder will come from."

"You will not even consider marrying that man Dustin, will you?"

"Would you drink poison if you were dying and it if you knew it was poison?" she countered. "Good night." But her eyes told him unutterable things.

Crewe drew him aside after dinner the next day.

"Darn it all," he said. "Old Joe insists on goin' in to Seco with us. I tried to head him off. If he goes to the bank to get the money for the payroll, he may find out about that note. It's sure to come up. If he finds that Pegram sold his note to Dustin, he'll likely go on the prod."

Even Edith could not keep her father at home. During that drive he was cranky and querulous, and Stone a used fight

This night in the [redacted] Carr's usually pleasant voice was a snarl.

Stone headed the car for the bank and slipped under a tree and Carr with Crewe at his heels, strode into the bank. Peters, seeing them enter, stepped forward to meet them. Carr grum, his faced flushed to a dark tone, dived like a rabbit for his pistol pocket. But Crewe was the more quick. Carr burst into the room. A sudden lack of relaxed voices swung out of the empty bank. Then:

"Thank God," muttered Stone. The fat's probably in the fire by now. I wonder if I had better hide my head. I'm afraid that note of his that Dustin holds

He was dimly aware that the rest of the town had gathered about Pegram's private office. One of the men in the street, hearing the voices raised in anger, stepped gingerly ingeniously and went on up the street. It was no new thing in Seco to have a sudden war start in Pegram's office. Suddenly old Joe Carr shot out of the place. His very face was curling with wrath and his eyes were blazing. He stumbled into the car and Crewe pitched in beside him.

"Take it easy, Joe," he said in a low tone. "No need to let all Seco know your affairs. Take it easy I tell you. Did you get the cash for the pay-roll?"

"Oh, that! Yes I got that in a thirty-day note for fifteen per cent. . . ." He laughed inanely. "Do you know what that darned dog Pegram has done?" he said in a low, tense tone. He held up note for eleven thousand secured by the half of the Hour glass. Damned if he hasn't sold the note . . . To Dustin, of all men! That's why it's darned rur had the nerve to come to me to tell me he wants to marry Edith."

His face suffused with blood and his breath drew hard.

I told Pegram I'd rifle that note up on time . . .

So I will just as soon as I can make arrangements with Gerald Keene, my partner Damn it all!

Jubilee Services

Special Prayer Written For Occasion By Archbishop Of Canterbury

Church services throughout the British Empire will be marked by the singing of the national anthem during the celebration of the royal jubilee, it was announced in London.

It was also announced a special prayer had been written for the occasion by the Archbishop of Canterbury and would be said in all English churches.

Text of prayer:

"It is very meet, right, and our bounden duty, that we should give thanks unto Thee, O Lord, holy Father, almighty, everlasting God, for that Thou wast pleased, as on this day, to set Thy servant, our sovereign lord, King George, upon the throne of this realm and hath profited him, in days of sickness and of health, throughout his reign of five and twenty years. For the examples of unceasing service set by him and our gracious Queen Mary for the loyalty borne to him by the great family of peoples and in all parts of the world, we magnify Thy glorious name."

Financial Institutions Were Heaviest Borrowers In 1934 From Chartered Banks

Financial institutions and operators were the heaviest borrowers from chartered banks of Canada, according to a statutory return as on Oct. 31, 1934, made public by Finance Minister E. N. Rhodes.

Total loans to financial houses, including brokers' and bond dealers' call loans trust mortgage and investment house loans and loans to individuals against approved stocks and bond, totalled $275,987,430.

The mining industry was the lowest borrower, with $6,627,107. Total loans of all classifications on that date were $1,149,704,850.

Big expenditure was second to finance in the classification, borrowing $210,745,049 of which $64,229,745 went to [redacted] cattle raisers and fruit growers and $150,515,305 to grain dealers and exporters and seed merchants

Health Rules Drawn Up

To Lessen Danger Of Transporting Disease By Air

A set of rules designed to minimize the danger of disease propagation by aircraft moving from one country to another has been drawn up by the International Sanitary Convention for Air Navigation.

Great Britain is one of the 23 countries which have agreed to the rules, although British Empire lines are considered practically immune because of the repeated changes from one type of airplane to another en route.

The rules relate chiefly to the procedure at Customs airdromes of vessels for inspection, and if necessary for suggestion.

Had The Information

Lieut Alfred Hernandez of the Chilean police was the most astonished man in London when he was then to study British law methods. He had long sought a rare book on explosives. In vain he looked for it in his own country. Then he went to the European continent. In desperation he asked a London lobby in Regent street. Hernandez quickly told him the [redacted] Publishing Co. of Chicago had the information.

In five years the United States has added [redacted] to its area in the Pacific ocean.

It is [redacted] to say that the Pacific is [redacted] to the Atlantic ocean.

Little Helps For This Week

"Therefore my beloved brethren be ye stedfast, unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord. I Corinthians 15 58

Say not twas all in vain

Love thrown upon the waters comes again
In quenchless yearnings for a nobler life

Did you ever hear of a man who had striven all his life faithfully and singly toward an object and in no measure obtained it? If a man constantly aspires he is not elevated" Did ever a man try truth, heroism, sincerity of magnanimity, and find there was no advantage in them or that it was a vain endeavor?

Do right, and God's recompense to you will be the power of doing more right. Give, and God's reward to you will be the spirit of giving more, a blessed spirit for it is the spirit of God himself, whose life and open-handedness of giving Love, and God will repay you with the capacity of more love for love or heaven, love is God within you

Sorry, last issue name was spelled wrong in the Winks last week. Wilcold not mean it to be that way. (Ed note: That was a slip of the comps which was overlooked by the proof reader.)

NEIGHBORHOOD NARRATIVES

The U.F.A. held an enjoyable card party at the home of Mr. Cox on the 8th. Prize winners were Mrs. Annette La France and Mr. W. J. Doyle. By Consolations went to L. Yarwood and Mrs. T. H. Connaston. The next in the series of these parties is to be held at the home of Chas. Priedland on March 22rd.

The C.W.A. and U.F.W.A. both met at Cox's on the 6th and a schedule of meetings and meeting places was outlined for the rest of the year. The next take place at the home of Mrs. Jas. Rankin on April 3rd.

A special meeting of the Glee Club was held Tuesday evening, March 12 in response to a communication from the School Board in regard to a refusal aspect of social conduct. We cannot help but remark on the splendid way in which the meeting grappled with the problem, viewing the situation from every angle and presenting facts and opinions in a firm, unbiased manner. Naturally considerable discussion took place, the three trustees having been so obliging as to attend. The final decision was to suspend activities in the line until further notice, in lieu of more drastic or unpleasant action. All members sincerely trust in the resume of activities when conditions warrant.

At the last meeting of the Tolland U.F.W.A., held at the home of Mrs. J. Lyons, a great deal of business and literature was taken account of. Mrs. H. Portsmith was elected as an official member of the League Society, through whom the group will receive L. of N. literature. The ladies were very pleased to welcome to their midst Mrs. Bowerman, Mrs. Thos. Doyle, Mrs. Wm. Steele, and Mrs. O. Walters, and we sure hope the local will benefit thereby. The second meeting of the month took place at the home of Mrs. O. Walters on the 20th.

The Tolland U.F.A. listened to a talk by Mr Fred Haines at their last meeting, based on current events and interests. The chief phase of discussing meeting (April 6th at Stanton school) will be on "The topic of the month is the C.C.F." Speakers are Pte F. Van Wageningen and G. Trebible. Con: F. Haines and J. Lyons.

The Grizzly Bear Juniors held a concert and dance which was not attended . . . We are sorry that we have not the whole account of this social, but we hear that the dialogues were specially enjoyed. The piece showed snappy work, and the new orchestra made a good impression.

Tolland have welcomed back Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Webber and we are going to know that they are back in the Neighborhood, fine and dandy, always prospering in our midst—a friend or perfect neighbor.

During the recent short illness of Miss Hutton, tinsmith teacher, her position was filled by Mr. Harold Walker. Miss Hutton is now recovered and in her sphere once more.

Well, now the Neighborhood is fashionable. If not so lucky, since one of its members Miss M Connaston, caught those measles! Please leave us in town, May!

Reports are favorable concerning Mrs. W. Ford of Tolland, who recently underwent an operation in the Vermilion hospital. Best wishes, Mrs F. We lay claim to a real early bird, since one of our biddies elected, in spite of every sort of uncertain weather, to start her hearty duties of raising a family on March 13th.

Very welcome visitors at the home of M. de Breville this week end were Madame La France, who with her son Paul and daughter Lorraine, arrived to visit her daughter, Annette.

JR. GRAIN CLUB ACTIVITIES

Keen interest is being shown in Junior Grain Clubs throughout the Vermilion district. Parents as well as the juniors are realizing the value of club work in producing pure seed grain in this district, also the value of free information and instruction given by the Department of Agriculture. The Club, which was in operation last year was very successful in every way in local activities and the fact that the Club secured the third prize in club competitions in the recent Edmonton seed fair is a matter of great satisfaction to those who worked to organize and conduct the Club last year.

This year there will be three Junior Grain Clubs in operation in the Vermilion district, two clubs, one wheat and one oats, having been formed in Vermilion, and one wheat club at Islan Hill. The selection of projects for the three Clubs are: Vermilion Wheat Club, Howard Wheat; Vermilion Oat Club, Victory Oats; Island Hill Wheat Club, Marquis Wheat.

The re-organization meeting on 8th March was well attended and officers were elected for 1935. The list of officers is as follows:

Vermilion Wheat Club—Group Leader, Mr. F. Brent; Honorary President, Mr. C. Herbert; President, Mr. Bernard Carrey; Vice-President, Mr. Arthur Tovell; Secretary, Mr. Robert Galloway. The same set of officers were elected for the Oat Club.

On March 11th Mr. Scott travelled to Island Hill to assist in the formation of a Club in that district. Ten members are enrolled in this Club and the name was sold for Marquis wheat. The officers elected are:

Group Leader, Mr. H. A. Seaton; Hon. Pres., Mr. F. Scott, President, Patrick McCambridge, Vice-President Mr. Elmer Williams, Secretary, Mr. Eric Hawkes

Mr. and Mrs. Herridge thanked the congregation for their kind thoughts and good wishes, and said they would always remember the happy times spent amongst the parishioners of St Mary's church.

Bright Stories about Wine
THE DRINK OF EMPERORS

● Perhaps the most famous wine in the world is the Imperial Tokay of Hungary. One reads of it, generally in romantic books in which millions of money are tossed around and somebody is seen wearing the Russian Crown jewels. We doubt if any Canadian ever tasted it, or, having done so, could appreciate its peculiar, even unique qualities. The genuine stuff has rarely been offered for sale, although the name is bandied about, and maybe a certain flavor of the original remains. But, as we have said before, wines take their particular flavor from the districts in which the grapes are produced and the care given the vintage and the subsequent blendings

● But Imperial Tokay was grown in the royal vineyards, and nobody but the Emperor and his friends were ever permitted to drink a bottle of it. There is a story that one of the Rothschilds was advised by his doctor to drink some of the wine, and sent a humble request to Franz Josef that some might be forthcoming. The Emperor graciously responded by sending a bottle which the patient drank

● The inference is that he felt much better, because he sent a cheque for $1,750 to the town in which the Tokay vineyards lie, asking that it be used in the hospital. This is probably the most costly bottle of wine on record. But it sang? a bottle of it inspired a Rothschild to part with $1,750, it must also be the most magical and potent of all the fruits of the vine

Significant Trends

Whether they believe in them or not and irrespective of the fact whether they are ardent supporters or skeptical critics, people are deeply interested in the outlook of the many experiments now being tried throughout the world in matters of government, economics and finance. Quite apart from the fact whether or not they are convinced that the old order has, as some contend, irretrievably broken down, and the hope of repair and is now definitely and forever passing away—on the contrary, still others to be the view that while the old order has many defects, these defects should be eliminated, and improvements made then the order is essentially sound and will prevail and achieve greater prosperity than ever before, people cannot be indifferent to present tax chaos and the confidence which such events are bound to have upon their own and their homes in which they live.

But as has been pointed out by many writers, at no time were as a crowd people. Of the numerous people who read that they thought problematic, formed a noble experiment, and the saloon, and later that they thought the experiment promised and the bootlegger. Now, under N.R.A. the United States has undertaken another experiment. Here the business of making rules for business. Rules have been laid down in nearly 500 codes governing the industries and the protection to how those rules are to be forced. It has to be recognized that there are many codes on every trade and some to be completed on to prevent dealers as the bootlegger did, for chronic evasion.

As a matter of fact a small army is now employed across the line in the task of ferreting out evasions and seeking to convict violators of the various N.R.A. codes and thus protect those who are honestly endeavoring to carry out the obligations imposed upon them and their businesses under the New Deal. But notwithstanding all these efforts, a well known authority makes the statement that it is quite safe to say that in the great majority of codes there is no enforcement because any attempt to enforce the rules would lead to abandonment of the code. For this reason there is a strong group in Washington which contends that an immense section of the country be abandoned. In fact, the proposal is now seriously advanced that codes be applied only to those businesses which do an inter-State business and that they no longer be applied to the smaller concerns whose operations assume local and restricted to the State within which the business is located. Thus in a small agricultural development. It reiterates that practical suggestion of business has a limitation.

Turning to the Canadian picture, it would appear that much the same thought is entertained by people on this side of the line. The recent voting throughout the three prairie provinces on the proposal to establish a compulsory egg and poultry pool is a case in point. The scheme was defeated in Manitoba by a three to one vote, and in neither Saskatchewan nor Alberta was the required two-thirds majority obtained, and in Saskatchewan less than one-half of those entitled to vote even took the trouble to return their ballots, thus indicating either opposition or indifference which amounted to opposition in view of the two-thirds vote requirement to carry.

As a result of the voting it is announced from Ottawa that the compulsory feature will be dropped from all other proposals for the inauguration of schemes under the National Products Marketing Act, and that while efforts will be continued to further develop the idea of co-operation in support of prices and marketing methods, the plan of making any of these schemes compulsory upon an opposing minority has been definitely abandoned. This, too, is significant as indicating that the Canadian people are not ready to accept either the theories or plans of Communism on the one hand or Fascism on the other hand but that they are still firm believers in the ideals and methods of a free democracy.

But, while there is evidence of confidence in the existing order, and a belief that necessary reforms can be brought about to correct the evils and remove the abuses which have developed like barnacles upon it, there can be little doubt but that the minds of the Canadian people are firmly fixed upon achieving these very necessary reforms and to do so without delay or fear. That is to say that the realities of prosper, honest business and success have come to stay, and that no book, made to observe and live by the rules and fair dealing methods will be forced out of business after they have been established. There is going to be a New Deal, but it will be involved and enforced by a free democracy.

Canadian Aviation

Importance Of Canada As Link In World Air Highways

The importance of Canada as a main link in future world air highways was stressed by Hon. Croto Stirling, minister of national defence, at Montreal, in addressing the annual banquet which closed the two-day convention of the Canadian Flying Clubs' Association.

With the future of Canadian aviation in mind, the government decided to the C.F.C.A. to take a leading part The minister regretted his inability to promise the association further assistance at the present time due to the state of national finance

He trusted the opportunity would soon be forthcoming when he could feel justified in putting forward proposals to the cabinet that would enable the government, if they accepted his advice, to provide the assistance the association hoped for.

A distinct relationship exists between the department of national defence and the Flying Clubs' Association," he said. The one-time reported clash of interests between the non-permanent flying forces and the flying clubs' activities is overcome. It had been shown the clubs provided the very important task of training young men who, later, go into commissions in the military aviation services.

If it is merely a character delineation that you would like you will find it of immense value. See the invitation in the following article.)

A letter I received a few days ago from a young lady living in Toronto has given me a great deal of pleasure, and because it will show just how graphology can be extremely helpful in solving personal problems, I am reproducing it, in part, this week. It is as follows:

"Dear Mr. Hibbert: I was reading your column in the Star and noticed a certain Toronto girl concerning her dance.

"It was the first time I had ever had your column, and, as I am also this other girl's problem, I had the queerest feeling for it was like reading about "that other girl." Having read it, I decided right there and then that I would write to you again

"Knowing where my duty lay, this problem had been worrying me for the last few months. Nothing could have driven it home so much and have made me see so clearly that I must do this frankly for my own benefit as well as his as your article did.

"As I write this, I feel so grateful to you, Mr. Hibbert, and I want to truly thank you for taking it, and now I sleep all night—thanks to Kruchen's help and relief."—(Mrs J. H.

Presentation To Scientist

Medal Of Honor Is Given To Dr. Fred. Banting

A miniature bronze buffalo, modelled after the pair inside the parliament buildings in Winnipeg, was presented to Julian Huxley, distinguished British scientist, at Toronto, as a gift from the people of Winnipeg in appreciation of his lecture tour through the Canadian west.

The presentation was made at the conclusion of Professor Huxley's address. Dr. H. J. Cody, president of the University of Toronto, in a brief complimentary speech, recalled that in 1853, when a department of natural sciences was being formed at the Toronto University, an application for a professorship was received from Thomas Huxley, grandfather of the lecturer, and one of the greatest scientists of the 19th century

The application was not accepted. But the reason for the rejection was not clear.

China's Food Problems

Little Arable Land Not Now Being Cultivated

Although China's population has increased by 81 per cent. during the last 80 years, despite famines, floods and civil wars, the area of land actually being farmed neither increased nor decreased during those six decades, according to findings given out by the national agriculture research bureau at Nanking

The official report declares "too optimistic" the belief China's food shortage and over-population problems can be even partially solved by examining land now not used, or by directing settlement to the open spaces of the great northwest The survey confirms there is little arable land in China not now being cultivated, and classes the waste places of the northwest as largely unfit for farming

CENTRAL BANK GOLD RESERVE IS BELIEVED AMPLE

Ottawa.—The Bank of Canada has a gold reserve of $108,564,852 according to its first statement.

The statement was of assets and liabilities at the end of the first three days operations. The gold reserve is that turned over by the department of finance to the chartered banks. It also has silver bullion and sterling and United States funds, bringing total reserves up to $107,000,000.

Gold backing is well above statutory requirements for note circulation and deposits from the Dominion and from chartered banks which total $104,223,415. The statute requires a ratio of 25 to 100 whereas the ratio shown was 42.47 to 100.

All issue of notes backed by this gold remain in future in the hands of the Central Bank. During the last year the department of finance issued about $50,000,000 of new money to cover construction operations. This will not be possible in future. The government cannot and will put new money into such operations it must borrow it on securities.

Bank of Canada total paid up capital is $4,981,640, leaving a balance unpaid of $8,360. Delinquent shareholders will be given a month to pay the balance.

The bank already has Dominion government securities of $148,986,-580, turned over to it by the department of finance to cover Dominion notes in circulation and the bank starts off with no earning assets, except those set on these securities. There were $185,000,000 in Dominion notes out when the bank started operation.

All For Peace

Ramsay MacDonald Says While Paper Is A Peace Document

London.—Premier Ramsay MacDonald, tired and showing the ravages of the severe cold that has kept him out the past week, returned to duty to authorize another official of reports he is about to resign.

Nevertheless, rumors continued that the veteran leader's retirement is likely, with general reconstruction of the cabinet following.

The prime minister presided at the cabinet session and struck out vigorously in defense of the London naval agreement which he wrote to accompany increased estimates for British defence in 1935.

An old fighter for the cause of peace, the prime minister characterized the "white paper" as a "potent document."

"Peace is written on its forehead; peace is its concluding thought; peace is its purpose throughout," he declared.

Despite his physician's orders, MacDonald has been working very hard of late to get the naval plan in effect. His health is far from that robustness which he hoped last year's Canadian vacation would bring.

Suspension Of Interest

Mayor McGeer Not Asking For Reparation Of Vancouver's Obligation

Victoria.—"If the British Columbia government will give Vancouver the same kind of treatment as the province received from the national government, then we will be able to get by without default," Mayor G. G. McGeer told the private bills committee of the legislature.

The mayor was speaking to a proposal that Vancouver be given power to suspend for two years the payment of more than three per cent. interest on its bonds.

If the province would give the city an $800,000 grant as proposed in the report of Thomas Ernskine, Toronto financial expert, there would be no need to cut the interest, the mayor said.

He declared the city was not asking power to make a final repudiation of its obligation, but merely a suspension which would enable it to get straight within two years.

R. H. Pooley, Unionist, Esquimalt, suggested Mr. McGeer approach the government to pay the excess interest above three per cent. and get by that way for one year. Then there would be no question about the city's credit in future borrowings.

"I'd be delighted, if they did that," said the mayor.

West Will Come Back

Says One Good Crop Will Wipe Away Debacle

Toronto. — Premier Gardiner of Saskatchewan told Dominion Mortgage and Investment Association members that arrangements will soon be completed between Saskatchewan and loan companies to provide farmers with seed for the spring.

The fertile soil has not blown away in the west, Mr. Gardiner contended. With one good crop drifts will be put in place, crops will not blow away and even to-day, if it were not for the mistakes committed in the past, the people could maintain themselves.

Premier Gardiner explained that his mission to the east was to complete negotiations for seed wheat, and which will, it is hoped, bring about the re-establishment of thousands of prairie farmers.

In asking for the support of the east, Premier Gardiner mentioning goodwill said, "that is what we want in the west more than just money."

Study Production Tax

Alberta Government Plans New Ways To Obtain Revenue

Edmonton. — Before making its annual report, the Alberta budget board will study a production tax for this province, said Premier R. G. Reid in the budget debate in the legislature.

In view of a number of matters which the government must take up in the board, its final report probably will not be available for some time, he said. An interim report will be made to the house shortly.

Referring to new wage or sales taxes proposed or already adopted in other western provinces, the premier said that any suggested levies here would undoubtedly be given careful study by the tax inquiry board.

With statistics, the premier denied that Alberta's change that put provincial taxation was causing the confiscation of homes. He showed where provincial revenue from the supplementary revenue tax, for example, had materially decreased since 1927

The relief recipients were given $1 each as a Christmas gift and it was in cash. No action has been taken on the jubilee request.

British Law Will Be Strictly Enforced In London

London. — The unwary motorist who exceeds 30 miles an hour in London's built-up areas is due for an unpleasant surprise.

Plainclothes policemen and police-women in motor cars will be used to trap speeding drivers. The patrols will cruise at 30 miles an hour. Anyone who overtakes the police car will be signalled to stop by a commanding gong. The penalty for a first offence will not exceed £20 (about $97) and for a second offence £50 (about $243).

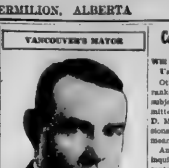
TARIFF BOARD IS TO INVESTIGATE MOTOR CAR COSTS

Ottawa.—Finance Minister E. N. Rhodes formally authorized Chairman Roger H. Sedgewick of the tariff board to undertake "at your earliest convenience" an investigation into the automotive industry in Canada "particularly as regards the bearing thereupon of customs and excise duties or taxes."

The reference is a broad one, embracing "the matter of the relationship of the production of parts to the larger industry, and of both to the general consuming interest."

The action follows a decision reached by the government over a month ago that the motor car manufacturers in Canada were advised by Mr. Rhodes that the disparity between the price of cars to the consumer in Canada in contrast with the price of similar cars in the United States was "giving the government considerable concern." He also stated the government contemplated taking the necessary steps to remedy the situation.

Stating that in his opinion such an investigation was "in the public interest," Mr. Rhodes wrote to the chairman that the inquiry should have regard for the principles at present applied under the customs tariff act, the sales tax and excise tax, as well as to such matters as content and costs of production. It should also endeavor to appraise the various factors which determine the prices at which motor vehicles shall be sold at retail in Canada."



Mayor G G McGeer of Vancouver, who recently appeared before the private bills committee of the British Columbia Legislature to discuss a bill to amend Vancouver's city charter.

Will Allow No Laxity

Penal Sections Of Reform Measure To Be Enforced

Ottawa. Rigid enforcement of the penal sections of the government's reform measures was promised by Hon. Wesley Gordon, minister of labor He was addressing a delegation of the Confederation of Catholic Laborers of Canada.

"If there is to be any laxity on behalf of persons or firms which break these laws, the effectiveness of these measures would not only be imperilled, they would be destroyed," he said.

On unemployment insurance, day of-rest and the eight-hour day bills all have penalty provisions. The minister assured the delegation asked that companies which break labor laws lose their charters after two offences and that dismissal of a workman because he has joined a union should be considered a misdemeanor. The minister said the complaints appeared more to proceed than Dominion laws but the reform statutes now before parliament would be vigorously enforced.

BRITISH NAVAL ESTIMATES ARE FINALLY PASSED

London.—The British House of Commons voted its approval, 150 to 40, of naval estimates for 1935 amounting to £60,560,000 ($291,813,-000 at par), an increase of £2,500,000 over last year.

The vote came after Sir Robert Eyres Monsell, first lord of the admiralty, expressed hope that principle of the Washington treaty in some manner could be perpetuated in order that navies of the great powers may continue regulated by international agreement.

Sir Robert also said Britain's desire to see the size of battleships, cruisers, and their respective guns reduced by joint agreement

He announced preliminary conversations with other naval powers to prepare the ground for "the preliminary naval conference" that has been of good service establishing friendliest contact with all delegations

He emphasized that the United Kingdom could not reduce the number of its naval vessels any further, but was anxious to get a joint international agreement for reduction of the tonnage of new H. M. S. He did not he thought it maximum for all future cruisers might be fixed at 7,000 tons and the guns limited to 6 inches.

The first lord assailed the Labor party for trying to make the admiralty think this government as a war mongering government, saying this is "the most senseless, groundless charge ever made by a political party against its country."

LAST HOCKEY GAME ENDS IN 2-2 TIE

What was advertised as the last hockey game of the season was played here on Monday night, when Lloydminster and the local Seniors played ten minutes overtime to a 2-all draw. The score is a good indication of the run of the play, each team in turn staging onslaughts which gave them momentary advantages. The teams resembled very little those of the regular season, several of the Positive players on the Vermilion team Tremeer and Geoff Brimacombe, Fraser and Matthew saw action with the locals.

The first period was scoreless, although the locals had an edge—Howe Kinney was penalized. In the second Corson picked up a loose puck on the edge of a stick handling melee, netted it from position and scored neatly. Mr. Iyer equalized on an individual effort going around the goal and poking in the disc. Vermilion men were penalized at one time in this period but fortunately one Lloyd player was off at the same time. Just before the end of the period Fraser was down on a nice rush, passed to Fred Brimacombe who scored. This was the best goal of the game.

Early in the third, Kinney and Mercer went down the right boards on a dangerous rush, drew the whole to

BOWTELL BULLETIN

On Friday, April 5, the young people of Bowtell will produce a 3-act comedy "The Slips and Jerkums Interior Agency." The cast is very well chosen and is acting under the direction of Mr. E. Robinson. The play will be followed by a dance with music supplied by the Bert orchestra. Don't neglect to set aside April 5 for a good time at Bowtell.

Various representatives from this district visited Woodvale on Friday evening and enjoyed the concert there.

We regret to hear that Mr. and Mrs. Jones and family intend moving to another district in the near future. They have been residents here for several years and will be decidedly missed.

We extend our sympathy to th Powell family of Turkey Hill on the passing of Louis Powell. Lou was well known to the Bowtell people and will be missed from their midst.

Noticed Around

Eddie Fenton doing a war dance as he scatters the mess of sowing two gophers. The farmhands tired being relieved out and drifted in for the 6th time. Bonny Riedale doing his work in dozens from Tomahawk to Dunedin via the whist drive. Frank Channell meeting to his new place of employment near Claymore.

Bill Dixon taking a bottle of mucilage (is this constipation you're on?) down to the practice.

The usual fortnightly whist drive will be held in the school on Friday, March 29th. It will be followed by a dance with music supplied by Sherman's orchestra. Admission will be 25c for gentlemen after 11 o'clock.

PETROLEUM

(By Gordon H. Ghent, M.A.)

Petroleum consists chiefly of a mixture of compounds known as hydrocarbons. It is found in large quantities in California, in Oklahoma in Russia, Mexico, the Dutch East Indies, Galicia, Persia, and Rumania. In 1920 the world's production of crude petroleum was about 1,900,000,000 barrels.

Crude oil is trapped in what the geologist calls an anticline which is a sort of inverted bowl of clay or shale, and is reached by drilling wells. The first oil well in America was dug by Colonel Drake at Titusville, Pennsylvania, in 1859.

Russian petroleum is found in and around Baku near the Caspian Sea. History tells us that as far back as 460 B.C. the eternal fires of Baku attracted the fire-worshippers.

Petroleum is separated into various products by a process known as fractional distillation. The compounds which make up petroleum boil at different temperatures and hence they can be separated by distillation. One fraction comes off as low as 1 a certain temperature and is collected in the receiver of the still. When most of this fraction has been boiled off the temperature is increased a little further and the product placed in the still is the fraction of the petroleum.

Petroleum contains gases in solution, such as methane (marsh gas) and ethane. When the crude oil is heated gently these gases are driven off and are used for the manufacture of carbon-black which is of value in the paint industry. As the temperature is slowly increased liquids which are known as naphthas come off as vapours and are condensed by cooling to liquids again. The temperature is then raised and consist chiefly of pentane and hexane. The fraction of the petroleum is used as a fuel in the rubber and varnish industries. The next fraction is gasoline which is used extensively as motor fuel and as a solvent. Kerosene (coal-oil) comes off next and is used as an illuminant and a fuel after the kerosene is distilled off the remaining oils and paraffin are obtained. The tar-like material which is left in the still is used as artificial asphalt and as a source of a light oil.

How Lessons Are Learned

Valuable Experience Is Gained Through Mistakes We Make

There is something to be said for the fool who steps in where angels fear to tread. At least he learns a lesson which will make him less of a fool than he was before. The man who never makes a mistake never makes anything. It is far better to appear ridiculous a few times and learn from those experiences rather than it is to hide all our lives behind a false modesty, and while maintaining an outward appearance of wisdom, remain fools to our death. Probably Blake had this thought in mind when he wrote: "If the fool would persist in his folly he would become wise."—G T Miller

Bad For Human Nature

If People Feel No Responsibility For Troubles Of Others

Time was when the misfortune of a neighbor down the street a bit was a matter of concern to the household. On baking morning an extra loaf of bread or an extra pie would be cooked and sent round to the home where the head of the house was laid up. Sympathy was such, with kindly hopes that things would be better soon. If things were serious, or was not looked upon as anything extraordinary for some one, after a day's work, to volunteer to spend the night sitting up and tending to the sick neighbor. To the trained district worker all this sort of thing may seem to be a desperately unsanitary hanging way of dealing with a crisis but no one dreamed of thinking that a bowl of soup sent in to the sick family was to be classed a "relief."

Of course the extraordinary conditions of the last few years have forced some form of organized assistance upon the community, but it would be a bad thing for human nature if all sense of personal responsibility for the troubles that lie next door to us were smothered under the formalities of organized charity assistance. Should this expression of human nature be crushed out, the loss to humanity is greater than would be realized. — Fort William Times-Journal.

YOUR HANDWRITING REVEALS YOUR CHARACTER!

By LAWRENCE HERBERT (Graphoanalyst) (All Rights Reserved)

(Editor's Note: This series of articles on Character from Handwriting continues to attract wide interest and many readers are taking advantage of the author's offer to get a personal character delineation. You still have an opportunity of getting yours.)

I have a letter from a married woman who asks my advice on a problem that is cropping up quite often nowadays. Here is what she says: "I am a married woman in my middle thirties, and have two young children. My husband lost his position about a year ago, and has not been able to get a new one. Consequently we have had difficult time making ends meet, and I got to the point where I am utterly fed-up with the situation. Before I married, I had a good position, and now that I find that I can get my old work back again, but with not so good a salary to start with, I am at a loss how to go along on. However, for some time, my husband and I have not been getting along very well. We have had many disputes, and I am seriously wondering whether to leave him, and take a place of my own. I don't know what I should be the one to work and keep the children, or let my husband do that. What do you suggest?"

I think I can give better in full, but merey the salient points. Now, turning to the two specimens of her writing, I can first of all that the writing of the lady who wrote to me shows that she is a well educated, trained, even to the point of being somewhat "finicky" from the point of view. She is shrewd, a quick-thinker, and has considerable ambition. But that factor of "self" stands out like a flagpole, and affects every other trait in her character. She simply cannot think of anyone else but herself. She blames her husband's writing shows more tolerance and affection. He is more sensitive, and is straightforward, honest, loyal and is capable of getting things done. Perhaps his particularly intellectual, but steady

It is quite true that in the first place that these bickerings have been caused by a lack of appreciation of the wife's part for her husband's inabilities which is by no means unfortunate, and my correspondent is taking a rather one-sided point of view, with little or no regard for sympathy. These are topsy-turvy days, and many men, similar to the writer's husband, are unable to obtain employment. They begin to lose their self-confidence. How is the husband's writing shows more tolerance and affection. He is more sensitive, and is straightforward, honest, loyal and is capable of getting things done. Perhaps his particularly intellectual, but steady

Your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour. "I think there is something very suggestive in the figures employed by the Bible to describe the aggressive activities of evil and night. The devil has a dirty enemy. Darkness is his most common and more familiar guises are of three types:—a serpent, an angel of light, and a roaring lion. It is on one or the other of these three shapes that the forces of sin most frequently assail us They come in the guise of the serpent. They appeal to our senses. They pervert our feelings. They enchant our imaginations. We are fascinated, bewitched, paralyzed, by the influence of some fluid and insidious poison. We come also in the guise of an angel of light! We would turn religion into life's elements; he would convert a deep devotion into a phosphorescent piety; he would transform a hallowed trust into a soft and flippant persuasion. And the devil also comes to us in the guise of a roaring lion. When the apostle wrote the letter the lion was about. News was at work; the Christians were being hunted into caves. In the vain attempt at stamping out their faith and devotion to the Man of Galilee by their favour and their Lord!" (J M Jowett).

Making Trains Noiseless

England's Pneumatic Railway Comes Very Near Success

Noiseless travel by train is the latest novelty in the campaign for the abatement of unnecessary noise, and people who subject a certain train slide out of Euston station, London, one day recently might almost have imagined it as a phantom passenger carrier. It was the current train that ever ran on a British railway so quiet that permanent-way workers did not hear it until the engine whistled them out of the way. Folks on wayside stations merely heard a swish of air as it passed.

The train was the new Coventry Pneumatic Railcar on the London, Midland and Scottish railway, running on pneumatic tires fitted to its 16 wheels. Noise was banished except for the rush of the wind and the faint hum of the 1-cylinder, petrol engine.

Railways for years have been trying to find a light and economical unit for branch lines and for intermediate services in populous districts. But they have laughed at noise and noise. This railcar looks like the nearest approach to success.

Earth Ebbs And Flows Like Tides Of The Sea

A favorite occupation of physical scientists is the carefree upsetting of history, fables, or common belief by the insertion of facts which prove or explain how things really happened.

From time immemorial the good dirt regions of earth have been considered stable. Even the Romans fanned indications of tall shelves never thought of calling the ground anything but terra firma. Now, Dr. Harlan Stetson, Harvard astrophysicist, tells us that not only are we walking on a thin upper "crust" of a wrinkled old apple called Earth but even this crust heaves to and fro like the tides of the sea.

Everyone knows the sea has its ebb and flow, but no one guessed that land areas could be affected likewise until Dr Stetson said so. With supersensitive clocks or chronometers, and more careful squinting at the stars, he corrected those "clocks" to the split second and found that Europe and America drift apart as much as sixty-three feet each century and come together again by a similar amount All of which means another time worn tradition is ready for the discard

But for all the astrophysicists, when Popeye and Barnacle Bill step ashore with their curious "sealegs" they can't get away with any tales about how difficult it is to get used to the billowing waves of land tides after a voyage at sea. If you are in sixty-three feet enough of a variation to excuse European or American tourists for seeking the sea when tempts are made to agree on anything of trade finance and world peace Christian Science Monitor

VICKS

In Meander's jacale, Peyotl took account of stock. Mendez was absent but Peyotl knew where to find what he wanted. From a hole in the trodden clay-floor he retrieved an old cigar-box from which he took a rod-and-green package of those ill-fragrant cigarettes. He one and down to think. The very first puff stimulated him; the next gave exhilaration. Dustin was a good friend who had given him excellent advice and the future seemed roseate and happy.

He passed rapidly from the first stage of half-lifted despair to the next, in which he saw complete fulfilment of his own desires. When he had smoked three cigarettes on an empty stomach he knew suddenly that he faced a golden future . . . . if only this man Gerald Keene . . . or Keene could be removed. Who was this stranger that he should hound a man to the gallows? "By Gar . . ." The home-made oath satisfied him He flung the cigarette on the floor, stamped out the spark, felt in his pockets and laid their contents before him the stubby little Derringer pistol and three cartridges Here he thought unseen, from Dustin's desk: a knife, a box of matches and a huge yellow-and-green bandana handkerchief. He stunk and reeked of the peyotl that he had been smoking. He very carefully loaded the pistol and the pistol snapped it shut, wrapped it in the bandana neckerchief and thrust it into his coat-pocket on the right side

This stranger must be removed' If he remained in Reno, his search for old man Kane, his uncle, would disclose the fact that he, Peyotl, had killed him The result was plain

He had left those papers that they were going to the Silver Dollar and, of all places, the Silver Dollar was the last place Keene, the only man who could help him in his hour of trouble He shook that hand as out in a life-preserver flung in roaring seas.

"If you're Gerald Keene," he said, "I'm sorry I have never darned glad to see you. We've got a lot to talk over this very night."

Never about some grub sir, first of all "

"Fine. And after that we'll have a few talks at the Silver Dollar and then home to the Hour-glass."

Those last words reached Peyotl standing among the freight. He was crouched in the dark doorway of the Silver Dollar and that would give him his chance. He shook off the drug-haze that still clouded the Mexican quarter of the town, while Stone headed with his party for the hotel.

That dinner with its long delays and frequent drinks that came slowly from the bar kept them till nearly ten o'clock and old Joe Carr fought his way from the table in search of more liquor. Dustin saw signs of what was coming and wanted to avoid it Carr insisted

"Of course Keene wants to see the sights," he chanored. "I haven't been in town for a year. I'm a wolf and this is my night to howl Hell, Dust! Come on. No one's going to get drunk. I just want to play my old favorite 'Cripple creek' once more. Let's get down to the Silver Dollar They have a big lottery there at eleven

They headed for the Silver Dollar

CHAPTER XV

Peyotl Gregg had friends in Reno of whom Ram Dustin knew nothing For five years he had supposed that he was the only source of Peyotl a dope supply but that was because Peyotl had successfully smuggled his stores into the Broken Spur unknown. If Dustin had known, it would have gone hard with Peyotl The moment he left Dustin, Peyotl sought out one of those friends

Pascual Mendez herded sheep and that shows how far Peyotl had fallen. Not for nothing does the proverb run "If a man will do that, he'll steal sheep"). Many of Pascual's sheep were black and Peyotl was not one of the whitest . . .

Little Helps For This Week

"He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty and he that ruleth his spirit than he that taketh a city" Proverbs 16 32

Purge from our hearts and strains so deep and foul;
Of wrath and pride and care.
Send Thine own holy calm upon Thy soul.
And bid it settle there

Let this truth be present to thee in the excitement of anger: that to succeed by passion is not manly, but that mildness and gentleness, as they are more agreeable to human nature, so also are they to be manly. For in the same degree in which a man's mind is nearer to freedom from passion, in the same degree also it is nearer to strength.

It is no great matter to associate with the good and gentle, for this is naturally pleasing to all, and everyone enjoyth peace and loveth those best who agree with him. But to be able to live peaceably with hard and perverse persons or with the disorderly, or with such as go contrary to us, is a great grace, and a most commendable manly thing

BLACK WIDOW SPIDERS
DISCOVERED IN BRIT. COLUMBIA

After a specimen of the Black Widow, the only known poisonous spider in North America, had been found in a banana feed at Summerland, British Columbia, other specimens were forwarded to the provincial entomologist from many interior points in the province, including Nelson, Trail, Nakusp, and from Kimberly south to the international boundary.

The specimen found at Summerland was identified by Dr. G. J. Spencer, provincial entomologist, as the Black Widow spider, which is the most poisonous spider in North America. Its bite is said to be fatal to children and old people unless a doctor is immediately available.

The specimens received from other points were identified as the Western Black Widow, which is not quite as poisonous as the Eastern species, but is nevertheless dangerous.

Baccalaureate Services Held At School Of Agriculture

The baccalaureate services in connection with the closing exercises of the Vermilion School of Agriculture, which take place next Friday evening, were held Sunday afternoon in the assembly hall of the school for the first time in the history of that institution. The sermon was preached by the Rev. H. A. Boyd of First United church, Rev. W. T. Crumb of the Presbyterian church assisting in the services. The singing was led by a massed choir representing the choirs of the different churches in town. Principal Elliott presided.

The discourse by the reverend preacher was based on the parable of the ten talents. At first reading the talk left from the poor and the giving to the rich might be considered a grave injustice, but the parable sought to teach more than that — it was the statement of an economic law — the inequality of human endowments. Those were those endowed with great opportunities and advantages and there are those whose attainments are limited. All men are entrusted with an unequal number of talents. There is a cause today for standardization—everything according to pattern—but humanity cannot be standardized; He does not start at the scratch. The great truth taught by this parable is that while all men are born with unequal endowments, still no one begins the journey of life empty-handed. There is no man so poor that he does not contribute something to the happiness of mankind, each one of us can do his part. We were all created with a purpose in life and it is up to us carry out that purpose according to the ability with which we are endowed.

Upon us rests also responsibility. The man with the two talents was as faithful as the one with the ten; his reward was the same. The one with the one talent did not appreciate his responsibilities—he lacked vision. He simply said if I cannot do great things I will do nothing. He hid his talent. There are many today hiding their talents—they lack courage. One must make faithful use of those talents with which he is endowed. The giving of a cup of cold water has often an eternal significance.

HEALTH CERTIFICATES NEEDED FOR MARRIAGE UNDER NEW BILL

Amendment to Present Act Would Bar Unions of Diseased

Bills of health will have to be produced by prospective couples in this province before marriages can be performed, under a bill introduced in the legislature by Hon. George Hoadley, minister of health, to amend the Solemnization of Marriage act.

Last year, a similar bill introduced in the house by the minister caused widespread interest and grew finally withdrawn, as it was felt that the public was not sufficiently informed.

An educational campaign has been carried on in the province during the year by those approving of such legislation and Mr. Hoadley expects it to receive a more favorable reception now.

The minister said the local council of women, women's institutes, U.F.A., U.F.W.A. and the medical profession had been consulted and approved of the proposed legislation.

Under the terms of the bill, a "certificate of due publication of banns and, in addition, an affidavit by each party to the intended marriage, setting out that the party making the affidavit is not then infected with a venereal disease or any other communicable disease," shall be produced before a marriage ceremony is performed.

According to the Canada Seed Act, no new variety of cereal grain can be offered for sale in Canada under its variety name unless that variety has been licensed by the Dominion Minister of Agriculture after tests conducted by the Cereal Division of the Dominion Experimental Farms.

President's Report, Vermilion Board Of Trade

Gentlemen:

In submitting this Report I propose to mention specifically only the main items which have had our attention during the past year, although you will understand that the work of the Board of Trade is not confined to those major events, as the function of the Board of Trade is to look after, in all lines, everything which directly or indirectly affects the commercial or social interests of the community.

I am pleased to say that the interest that we have during the past year held show a decen executive meetings, and a large number of committee members is dealing with matters of routine arising from time to time.

Taking the chief activities of the past year in order of time, I should mention first the dinner tendered by our Board to the Associated Boards of Trade at the Brunswick Hotel on April 20th of last year. On this occasion some sixty-seven present at dinner included seven members of the Association who were our guests for the evening. This dinner was a feature of the first quarterly meeting of the Associated Boards of Trade and we believe that all present benefitted from the opportunity to become better acquainted with our fellow members of the Association from neighboring towns.

Delegation interviews Minister of Public Works in South Africa

In June, your President, Vice-President and secretary accompanied Mr. Gilbert Shaue and Mr. A. J. Morrison to Edmonton to a delegation to wait on the Minister of Public Works. The purpose of this delegation was to urge on the Department the advisability of establishing the road south and west from Vermilion as a market road. The delegation was received and heard, but the road in question classified a market road by arrangements were made for the transfer of the Department for the diversion of part of the provincial grant by the Municipalities concerned, and steps towards laying the first road unit undertaken.

It affords me great pleasure to be able to state that since the return of this delegation, the different Municipalities concerned met together on the problem and with the whole-hearted co-operation of the farmers living on the road, very considerable improvement has been made in the road between Vermilion and Kitscoty, and many people in this locality realize that another such delegation should be arranged.

C. W. ROBINSON.

WILDMERE WINKS

Everyone is busy hauling what coal they have elsewhere, and the roads are while there is snow. By the way our Jack Frost hasn't strained the nights as much as he usually does this winter.

Wildmere Community Club held extended house at its usual meeting on Friday, March 15th, in honor of the Social Credit talk. Mr. Donaldson was not present and read a very good outline of the address which he was to have given. Those present who were supposed to be on the negative side, but Alex. not having seen Rolleda for a while, forgot about that line, so he spoke on a little different subject, dealing a remnant of time. The Social Credit theory was much enjoyed Alex came in a wonderful rebuttal and after answering questions from the audience, the meeting adjourned very nicely. It was when the first steamship pulled out in the St. Lawrence. A bunch of fellows were standing by, looking it over, they said "She'll never run, never run." Then when it steamed up and the screw got well up out of the water and the engine it pulled out, they said: "Well, she is running, but she'll never stop." Sunday, March 17th Messrs. Jones and Nellis Riley, Edith and Alice Gibson and Bobby Martin T. Hrdlicka, Ed Schroeder and Edith Medill were visitors at the Wallinatan home.

Alberta's provincial purse would be in a sorry plight but for the owners of the 86,119 automobiles and trucks distributed amongst the 11.4 per cent of the population, judging by some interesting statistics obtained from the provincial accounts of the last 5 years.

These show that in the period 1930-34, the total general revenue of the province amounted to $75,859,179 and of this $8,167,587 was obtained from gasoline tax and $4,1.52 from licenses. These figures prove, therefore, that of the $75,859,179 total revenue in the five-year period $16,579,-150 has been obtained from two taxes alone, a figure which on the average amounts to 22.3 per cent of the total general revenue and rumbled to two taxes alone.

LESLIE POWELL

The death of Leslie Powell at the Vermilion hospital on March 12th brought deep sorrow to his bereaved family and cast a shadow of gloom over the Turkey Hill district, where he was so well known and loved for his frankness, manliness, kindliness, all those qualities of mind and heart which made him loved and mourned. It was hoped that with every care that medical skill could bestow Leslie would recover, but a sudden turn for the worse made it clear that the Angel of Death was hovering very close, that the Creator was going to demand back Leslie's kindly soul. His father cannot go quickly as possible from Ontario but his boy had already passed peacefully away, resigned to God's will and fortified by the last Sacraments of the Catholic church.

The funeral Solemn Requiem Mass took place at Holy Name church and was very largely attended and was a magnificent tribute to the respect and esteem in which the family is held in the district. Very Rev. Father O'Neil Ival, Dean, of Vermilion officiated. The pallbearers were the following boys of Leslie's age: Jack Knoll, Reginald Schaack, Dennis Noonan, Leander Noonan, Jack Connanton, Percy McGaugh. Wreaths were sent by the following: Mr. and Mrs. Billy Reid; N. A. Hansen, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Donnelly, Mr. and Mrs. Amos Gehees, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Taylor, Mary and Andrew McGillvary, Mr. and Mrs. C. Hawley; Mr. and Mrs. Chrisp; Geo. Webb and Family; Matron and Hospital Staff; Senior Hockey Team; Mr. and Mrs. J. Young; Teacher and Pupils Turkey Hill School, Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Hansen, Optimist Softball Team Club. Family (a Cross)

Spiritual offerings: Mr. and Mrs. D. Noonan and Mrs. McLeod; Rev. A. O'Sullivan; Leonn Kehoe; Mrs. Allotaire, Marie and Frances; Mrs. Marie Gaudine and Family; Myrtle Killion; Dr. and Mrs. Knoll and Family; Mr. and Mrs. Noonan and Family; Kath aleen and Nora Powell, Helen and Anne Noonan.

Vermilion School Of Agriculture Stages "Little Royal"

An event of more than usual interest took place at the School of Agriculture, Vermilion, when the students held their "Little Royal Fair" for a month before the members of the graduating class drew lots for the animal they were to train and prepare for the day of the show. These consisted of horses, cattle, sheep and poultry, and needless to say the boys had all the experience of getting ready for a real fair. Many of the calves were young, so that it was a matter of halter breaking, washing, polishing and finally dressing in approved style for the show ring. Mr. H. A. Craig, deputy minister of agriculture, acted as judge and after each placing gave his reason for so doing.

Inside the building many and varied exhibits were shown covering the various activities of the Agriculture and Homeschold Science courses. The sewing work was beautifully shown and many favorable comments were heard regarding this display. The lovely decorated prize offered by Mrs. White brought out 20 loaves of home-made bread. There were laundry displays and in the household administration work many useful and practically made articles were shown.

The boys' section of the gymnasium included a very fine boot repairing display and also exhibits of wood and iron work. Mr. Craig declared that some of this work was as fine as he had ever seen. Two displays of Mark smithing one by Ed. Sloan, Mannville, a second year boy, and the other by Ole Olson, Hedgewick, a first year boy, were much admired. Some of the pieces of their work of tools might have come from the hands of experts.

There was also a very large collection of exhibits by the first year boys, consisting of cleaned samples of grass, grain and clover seed. This work gave the boys a practical idea of the preparation of grain samples for test plots at home, with a view to developing their own clean seed of good vitality. In the centre of the gymnasium floor was a large area representing a 320-acre farm, laid out with a definite rotation of crops. A full complement of miniature build ings, including a windmill, were arranged to represent the farmstead, and a definite system of windbreaks, shelters, flower gardens, etc., was included. The whole thing was designed to show how to lay out a shelter belt and arrange the curves and roadways to best advantage.

The purpose of this "Little Royal Fair" is educational, and the large crowd of visitors and students undoubtedly would receive some points that would be worth while. The practical nature of the whole plan appealed to many and the exhibits of student work showed very clearly the useful nature of the information that is received at the school.

In the cattle and horse classes the winners were as follows:

Senior Heifers 1, Henry Anderson, Whitelaw; 2, Roy Hawkins, Lloydminster; 3, Gordon McIlmiel, Fairview; 4, Justyn Rigby, Wembley.

Junior Bulls—1, Carl Sorvaaen, Holden; 2, Burton Seale, Ashurndale; 3, Stewart Brimacombe, Vermilion; 4, Philip Austin, Ranfurly.

Senior Bulls — 1, Gordon Wilson, Vermilion. 2, Torlief Larson, Irma; 3, Edward Sloan, Mannville.

Grand Champion — Burton Seale, Ashurndale

Clyde Mare on halter—1, H. Anderson, Whitelaw; 2, Harry Phelps, Barrhead; 3, Archie Jeffries, Vegreville; 4, Stanley Byrt, Lloydminster; 5, Lorne Stevenson, Sedgewick; 6, Hector McFarlane, Setzmith

First prize for bridling, donated by Peter Wylie, an ex-student, was won by H. Anderson.

The Deputy Minister pronounced the fair the best it had ever been his privilege to see.

TURKEY HILL TID-BITS

The bitter cold weather lately has prevented many of us visiting and so protracted us from showing any news bits of news, however our Tid-Bits are very short.

Skating and hockey have been completely abandoned owing to the stormy weather. The boys would indeed be weary of the task of clearing off the rink if we so inclice to the employment of the trails which have to be broken every time they are used.

Sorry Mostade Lavallee's party reported your concert from here but we hope you will understand our reason for not doing.

Mr Chipp we know you enjoyed teaching your big pupil on that evening Wednesday School days are the best after all, aren't they Annie?

Readers, we again remind you that our next big dance is slated for Easter Monday, April 22nd. Several have been postponed, so a big crowd and a big time seems evident McGaffey's again supply the music

Mr and Mrs Mahon and family will be able to enjoy their freedom again soon, and we know they will appreciate it.

Our deepest sympathy is extended to Mr. and Mrs J Powell and family in their recent bereavement. Many of us attended Leslie's funeral and all noted the presence of a large crowd and many floral offerings, showing to the high respect with which he was held here and elsewhere.

We loved him, yes, he told me so, tell,
How deep, how dearly, and how well
God loved him too and thought it best

To take him home with Him to rest
Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. R. Tattersall (nee Molly Dixon) on the birth of a daughter on Friday, March 22nd.

The editorette regrets her inability to again furnish the Tid Bits, as in leaving this district we will not be able to secure any Turkey Hill news. She will however keep in touch with The Standard for the future Tid Bits, hoping that someone else will send the news to be printed.

RIVERTON ITEMS

After a lingering illness from Bright's disease, which had been of more than four months' duration, Mary Anne Eldred East, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sol East of Riverton died on March 16th. She would have been two years of age on March 22nd. The funeral, conducted by Rev. M. Thompson, was held at the Dewberry church on Monday, March 18th

Rev. Stelle of North Park held Lutheran services at Riverton school on Sunday, March 17th, in response to their assistance during their recent bereavement and also for the lovely flowers.

Spider plant a tall growing annual, some splendid trailing, and a beautiful pantomime interspersed with a variety of musical numbers some by the orchestra, pleased the audience but perhaps the broadcast by the Riverton radio committee, including a long rhythmic parody on "Childe Harold's Pilgrimage," was the high light of the evening. Cafeteria lunch and a dance afterwards, completed an entertainment furnishing something to suit all tastes

The last of a series of whist and bridge drives and dances, given by the Riverton U.F.A. will be held on Friday evening, March 29th

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. Sol East wish to thank the many neighbors and friends who sent in thoughtful gifts and flowers in their assistance during their recent bereavement and also for the lovely flowers.

Is Democracy A Failure?

Articles appearing on this column from week to week have, over a considerable period of time, had two main objectives: to convey information and to stimulate constructive thought on the part of the reader. At the same time a constant endeavor has been made to refrain from discussion of questions which are the subject of partisan political controversy or of sharp difference of opinion among all of the people, or religious views. In the present distasteful state of the world when practically every financial, economic and social question has become part and parcel of some political creed it is an easy matter for any writer to find himself confined to meaningless platitudes unless he is prepared to take sides and express views which others may interpret as somewhat partisan in character one way or another. Notwithstanding the difficulty an honest effort has been made in this column to steer a course between these extremes, and to consider only matters of public interest to give some point and value to these articles.

The writer is firmly convinced that what is needed at all times, and more especially at present, is the dissemination of well grounded sound principles, the dissemination of accurate information and clear constructive thinking on the part of each individual citizen. A demagogue may be clever and plausible and may for a time, sway the people, but he is not a safe and constructive leader and eventually a dangerous thing.

This week we propose to submit a few questions but do not intend to attempt to answer them. Rather we expect the reader answer them for himself or herself and come to conclusions through thinking.

General Hugh S. Johnson, until recently director of Roosevelt's NRA programme stated the other day that democracy as the best government in the world in the peace and prosperity sense, and dictatorial government in the world for a great war or a great crisis." Is this true, and if it is true what does such a statement as actual mean? Does it mean that democracy as a peace time government is right, but that the people who constitute the democracy and therefore the government are unreliable and cannot be trusted in the event of a crisis or "great weak" Does it mean that when things are proceeding smoothly and the people have a minimum of worry and trouble democracy is the best form of government, but that when a crisis develops these same people become panic stricken, emotional and mentally ready to act precipitately without taking thought of the ultimate consequences of their conduct?

Does general Johnson's statement if true imply that the nations of the world are on an automatic progressive march from democracy to more autocratic and dictatorial forms of government thereby relinquishing the individual freedom which is now theirs, and returning to such more autocratic governments full control at all times, in peace and prosperity as well as in times of war and emergency and crisis?

If democracy is not to be abandoned, and we are not to accept Communism, Fascism, Socialism or other forms of government which involve the abandonment of existing democratic rights and freedom, how is democracy to be made safe for the world at all times because it cannot be thrown into the discard on times of trouble and emergency and resurrected and made to function efficiently the moment the crisis passes?

It would be admitted that with the coming of what has been termed the Industrial Revolution, of the Nineteenth century, human society was completely changed. The worker has risen from his old feudal state and there has been an extraordinary rise in wage levels and living standards. With the rise in the economic status if the worker there has been an even more pronounced rise in his social status. Public schools now supposes labor unions and the influence of wage-earners as consumers have completely changed the policies of stores and primary producers. The universal ballot without property or educational qualifications, have given control of government to the people.

Commenting on this development a professor of economics in one of the great American universities has written. Here lies the danger of industrial progress. This power is potentially enough in the hands of common knowledge. Calamity theorists and self-seeking politicians make people and distort the truth to their ends. Nobody wants to throw back this tide of democracy. Nobody can. But it needs to learn self-control and to gain understanding. It has neither at present."

Is this professor of economics right? Is democracy endangered by lack of self-control, and understanding on the part of those very people who have the power to use and destroy democracy? Are the people of a nation who have the most to gain and enjoy if democracy is maintained and made to function in times of emergency as well as in times of peace and prosperity? In a word are our present political rights and power under democracy to be unthinkingly shattered in a time of storm and emergency to overthrow and destroy democracy itself? Are people going to prove the truth of General Johnson's observation that democracy is not a safe system in times of crisis?

How can people be taught self-control in times of emergency? How can the tendency to panic be overcome? How can understanding be given to the masses so that they will refrain from panic and exercise self-control and thus overcome the crisis and prevent the taking of disastrous action? How when there are always demagogues agitators self-seekers whether in politics or in the labor movement ready to lead the masses into these masses of voters who locally, provincially and governments going to be educated to think for themselves refrain from being influenced by mob psychology and exercise self-control and understanding of broad knowledge and an understanding of basic unreliable principles?

Is the task too great for common sense that is for mankind itself? Or must mankind revert to the state from which it has struggled upward through the centuries, and have to depend on the wisdom of self-government in the mass, there is only one thing to do and that is to reappoint its trust and place the power in the hands of dictators and autocrats? Or is there a few to exercise full power directed and control over them? Finally, if this is done will the masses remain content to leave it so, or will the old struggle of man to command himself arise?

This is the acute problem facing the world to-day? Democracy itself must and will answer it. Will that answer be for its own preservation or will it be for self-destruction?

Bells Rang Electrically

Italian Villagers Looked For Miracle Until Mystery Solved

When they heard the bells of the little church of Santa San Pietro ringing for a number of days and nights, apparently by themselves, the villagers of Lucca, Italy, thought it portended a miracle. The clappers of the bells were tied and the parish priest locked the bell tower and put the key in his pocket. But still the bells went on ringing. Finally the local electrician discovered the bells were being rung electrically as the overhead wire for the tramway line between Lucca and Maggiano had come into contact with the belfry. Now the villagers are able to sleep again.

Law's Garage staff, comprising J. Korrigaard, Leo Liddiatt, Bill Hall and Geo. Law, have recently been attending conventions and schools in Edmonton on the new Pontiac of 1935. The mechanical course in this was for a period of four days so that there would be a good knowledge received on the new models, which are both six and eight cylinder. This car is now a much lower price than what it has been and a good sale of these reputable cars is expected this year. George Law has now been established here in the automobile business for the last 22 years and prior to that was some 5 years in the same business in Scotland. His first driving license, which he still retains and exhibited to the Standard, is dated 1905. He also showed us a picture which has appeared in his home town paper of the first auto which had come to that neighborhood and George states that he had lots of fun in those days with those experimental machines.

From Stephens returned last week end from a month's visit in the east.

WORLD CONDITIONS IN BIBLE LIGHT

Rev. E. M. Kirk of the Christian Missionary Alliance will give a second lecture in the Orange hall on Tuesday April 2nd at 8:00 p.m., showing the present world conditions of social, political and economic distress in the light of God's Word.

As one listener said, "The facts brought out in Mr. Kirk's lecture on Wednesday evening showing the sort of conditions in the world, were an eye-opener to me."

Mr. Kirk has given careful and prayerful study of the Bible for many years. His findings are balanced and to the point. Anyone in the habit of reasoned over present conditions should hear these lectures.

V.S.A. NOTES

Gradually the examinations are coming to a close and by Thursday night the students will utter a sigh of relief in between times the exhibits are being prepared for the closing day, which will be the 29th. As announced last week exhibits will be on display for inspection from 1 P. M. until 2 P. M. From three until four the Pashion Parade will take place and after that the exhibits will be open until 5.30. The banquet will be held at 6.30 sharp May we remind our good friends that because of the difficulty in handling in both the furnishery and the Gym. students, the dance will be closed during the time of the banquet and during the concert, so that there will be no possibility of getting into the build ing during those times. The dance will take place after the concert and the presentation of diplomas and prizes. It will continue until the students have to leave at train time

The division will furnish the music for the dance on Friday night.

All the people of Vermilion and district are cordially invited to take part with the students in the final day's activities. We are especially a very large attendance of parents at the graduating class and other friends.

CORRECTION REGARDING V.S.A. CLOSING DANCE

Admission is 75c per couple, stag gentlemen 50c. Dancing to the music of the Orioles orchestra will be from about 10.30 p.m. till 1:30 a.m.

VALUE OF BACON GRADING

Exports of Canadian bacon to the British Isles last year totalled 128 000,000 pounds and brought $28 000,000 to Canada. Yet the total amount of bacon exported was but half of the quota allotted to Canada by the Empire Trade Agreement made in Ottawa in 1932. Further, the ability of Canada to export the product of one million hogs increased the value of the remainder and gave an impetus to an industry from which farmers derived an income estimated at between $80,000,000 and $100,000,000 in 1934. To support this important industry, the Dominion Department of Agriculture maintains a number of services which cover the breeding feeding, and marketing of hogs and bacon. When considered collectively, these services form a comprehensive policy. Bacon grading is one of these services. Grading standardizes the quality, grade, and appearance of the product exported, so that the brand that export, establishes a basis of merchandising Canadian bacon as a national product, and consolidates Canada's position for the future on a highly competitive market

You will make no mistake by purchasing Mark Diamond Coal from R. H. Norton. Just phone your order to 73 42tfc

Long On Philanthropy

English Clergyman With Independent Fortune Made Many Happy

Golden deed. "Five-minute Frank." The Rev. Frank Tatchell, 1600-a-year vicar at Midhurst, Sussex, England, is the object of mourning throughout the district since the arrival of word of his death while on a health cruise in the Indian ocean.

Public spirited charity fortified by an independent fortune made him one of the best known philanthropists.

He converted the old vicarage—a mansion too big for a priest with no family—into almshouses for old people at a rent of one penny a week. He recently gave away 100 pairs of new boots to tramps. He provided emergency beauty at all hours of the day and night in cases of illness. Anyone in need had only to ring a special bell at the vicarage . . . no one was ever turned away. In summer the vicarage garden was as open to parishioners as a public park. He once spent $7,500 in a year on a party of local teachers a continental holiday

His nickname was earned by the fact that his sermons were never more than five minutes long.

YOUR HANDWRITING REVEALS YOUR CHARACTER!

By LAWRENCE HERBERT (Graphio-Analyst)

(All Rights Reserved)

(Editor's Note: Letters come in every day testifying to the help that this well-known Handwriting Expert has been able to extend to others. Can he help you?)

Here are some more replies to correspondents. Readers may find some of their own difficulties and problems dealt with here.

Miss D. C.: Your writing reveals that you are somewhat impulsive and to enlarge apparent slights and to resent them. Yours is not a nature to easily forgive; and this is where you might start to develop a broader point of view. Do not be too quick of a hurry to impute "bares" motives to anything that is done. Sometimes one allow yourself to get too easily agitated. And, above all, don't carry a chip on your shoulders. There is no surer way to lose your popularity in a hurry.

You are, perhaps, inclined to be a trifle frank. It is not very well to be methodical and to deal carefully with things that you have to do with. But don't over do it. It ceases to be an advantage when it becomes but only to yourself but to others.

Mrs. M. G. A.: In regard to your saying that you are "fed up" with trying downhearted and spasmodic about it. They will find a way to which you can expect to get anywhere in life is by sticking to it. You have a gift for this, and it would be a pity to ignore it, or not to try really earnestly to get the best from it, merely because of a few passing disappointments. Remember Robert Bruce and the spider!

Miss R. writes and declares: "I am 17 years of age and in love with a man of 20. My parents do not approve of my having anything to do with him, and yet he wants to marry me. I think the world of him, and you are inclined to be variable and ungrateful. Watch for any opinion, ore 'in love with love' than with our friend. It is not wise for one so young to do anything serious in this matter at the present, and it will do you no harm to wait a little.

Would you like to have your handwriting analyzed? And perhaps you have some other personal matter that interests you would much like to know? Mr. Hilbert can help you as he has helped so many others. Send specimens of the handwriting you wish to have analyzed, and enclose 10 cent coin for each. Send birthdate in each case and enclose with it a stamped addressed envelope to: Lawrence Hilbert, Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermot Ave., Winnipeg, Man. Letters are confidential and replies will be forwarded as soon as possible.

Finest Organ in World

Wonderful Instrument At Royal Albert Hall Completed

It took six years' work and cost $130,000 to complete the new organ at the Royal Albert Hall, London, England, at last ready for use. The organ has a most complete range of tonal color. It weighs 175 tons, occupies 10 rooms and 7 organ lofts, has seven tonal departments, four keyboards, 175 draw stops, 10,491 speaking pipes, 32 miles of wiring. One hundred and twelve craftsmen were employed during the course of erection and it will cost $1,000 a year to tune. Its capacity can be terrific and it has an embarrassing number of stops.

The history of sponges dates back to the time of Aristotle, when Greek warriors used them to pad their helmets. Not until the middle of the 19th century did microscopic research definately prove them to be animals and not plants.

Cycling Boom in England

Manufacturers Have Been Kept Busy Supplying Large Demand

Forced by the depression of a few years ago to give up their motorcycles, many young men in Great Britain quickly discovered a new stimulus to health and escape from crowded cities in the form of the humble push-bike. Out of this serious movement the great cycling boom of to-day has grown. Now, it is authoritatively computed, 810,000,000 people are riding cycles and tandems along the roads and by-ways of Britain, reaping untold health and enjoyment.

To cope with an unprecedented demand for new machines, British manufacturers have been compelled to reconstruct and, in many cases, redouble the output of their plants. One firm which produced 220,000 cycles and tandems in 1931, 270,000 in 1932, and 410,000 in 1933, already turned out 700,000 new machines. The total production of 1934 will, it is anticipated, reach the record figure of 1,000,000 machines, or 800,000 more than the previous peak year.

Both the Cyclists' Touring Club and National Cyclists Union have been inundated with new members in the last few months. The latter now enjoys a membership of 40,000 compared with 32,000 in 1933. In London alone there are over 400 cycling clubs. Two recently established are for women only.

One Of World's Best

Young Englishman Considers Imported Airways Commands Passenger Liners

The 25-year-old with the best flying job in England is Captain Jameson, who has just been promoted to the command of the enormous Imperial Airways 40-passenger liners, and who is now established to take full control of the world's largest air aeroplanes on the world's longest air line.

Air-minded, air crazy, nine years ago Percy begged and borrowed rides from pioneer pilots to learn the rudiments of the game.

"Men had knowledge of God before Christ came. Men could not grasp at the works of God without being reminded of his power and Godhead. The world inevitably suggested the thought of a Creator. But you can never learn a person's character from the works of his hands. The real secrets of personality are never to be disclosed by means of things. Personality can only express itself through personality. God could never disclose his nature by means of the stars. He could never reveal his heart in storm and tempest. If was only in and through a Person that God could reveal to men his real name and nature. And that is why He made himself known." (J. D. Jones).

THE HEAVENLY FATHER

Golden text: Like as a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear Him. Psalm 103:13.

Devotional reading: John 3:3-6; 4:20-24.

Explanations And Comments

Christ the Revealer of the Father, verses 8-11. If the disciples had fully apprehended Christ's mission they had fully grasped the fact of his divinity, they would have apprehended the Father also, Jesus told them. Philip wanted sight, not faith, and interrupted Jesus with his request, "Lord, show us the Father, and it sufficeth us." He longed for such a revelation of the Father as would banish all fear and inspire perfect trust. What he needed was not to have heaven opened but to have his eyes opened.

Patient at Philip's question, Jesus questioned softly: "Have I been so long with you, and dost thou not know me, Philip?" He that hath seen me, hath seen the Father; how sayest thou then, Show us (thus by saying, Moffatt's translation), Show us the Father?"

This word of Christ's to Philip expressed the very thing that had been in power to pass in my own life. For with me also it had become clear that to see Christ was to see the Father and to understand his love." (C. F. Andrews).

Jesus continues: "My words and works are the Father's. Believe that I am in the Father and the Father in my words alone, but if you cannot do this, believe me because of my life and words which prove this." What the Christ is seen to be in the five years of his recorded life, the spirit of God is in the history of the human race.

"Men had knowledge of God before Christ came. Men could not grasp at the works of God without being reminded of his power and Godhead. The world inevitably suggested the thought of a Creator. But you can never learn a person's character from the works of his hands. The real secrets of personality are never to be disclosed by means of things. Personality can only express itself through personality. God could never disclose his nature by means of the stars. He could never reveal his heart in storm and tempest. If was only in and through a Person that God could reveal to men his real name and nature. And that is why He made himself known." (J. D. Jones).

Miner's Queer Habit

Strikes On Food But Lit Pipe With Postal Notes

London, it seems, has harbored an odd miner who lit his pipe with five-dollar notes.

Edwin Thomas Howes was found dead in bumble lodgings in southeast London by charity visitors in the tenement pockets. He had $1,100 in postoffice savings.

He suggested a relative testified that Howes regularly stinted himself on food and the ordinary comforts of life—but had the expensive habit of lighting his pipe with one-pound notes.

More Poultry Exported

Poultry exports in February amounted to 786,000 pounds valued at $141,806, more than four times that of the same month last year when 141,035 pounds valued at 36,-936 were exported, the Dominion bureau of statistics reported.

Why certain animals sleep through the winter is not completely understood; lack of sugar in the blood is one possible explanation.

Little Journeys in Science

CELLULOSE

(By Gordon H. Guest, M.A.)

Cellulose makes up the chief part of the cell walls of plants. Cotton is about 85 per cent cellulose. Even the materials making up the remaining 15 per cent can be easily removed with certain solvents, leaving the pure cellulose. Absorbent cotton is almost pure cellulose. Scientists have found that cellulose does not dissolve in any of the ordinary solvents, but is converted into soluble compounds by the action of certain chemicals. Thus, it has been found that when cellulose is treated with lye, a compound is produced which is soluble in a liquid called carbon disulphide. This reaction is the basis of the production of most of the rayon in America.

Science has also changed this important plant product into many other useful substances. For example, when it is treated with concentrated muriatic acid it is changed into dextrose or grape sugar, which is used in large quantities in the production of candies, jellies, jams, syrups and other sweets. Cellulose is part of the proper strength converts cellulose into parchment paper, while a cold 20 per cent. solution of lye produces mercerized cotton. If cellulose is treated with a mixture of nitric acid and sulphuric acid a compound known as nitrocellulose is produced. Nitrocellulose is a white inflammable solid which under slight pressure is highly explosive.

Nitrocellulose has many important commercial uses. It is the chief constituent of smokeless gunpowders. Photographic films are also made from it. It is the basic material in all the lacquers used on cars and many other articles. Celluloid is made from it. It is the basic material in

ALBERTA VOTE BEFORE JULY 11 ESSENTIAL, OFFICIALS BELIEVE

Law Sets Definite Period as Maximum for Life of House

FIVE-YEAR PERIOD

A general election must be held in this province by July 11 next.

That was the opinion expressed in official circles at the parliament building Monday.

Some confusion has been caused by suggestions that there are various legal angles which would make it possible for the election to be postponed indefinitely.

As Premier Reid has made the definite statement that no legislation will be brought down with a view to extending the life of the present house, it is regarded as a certainty that the election will be held around June 15 to 20, as has been predicted time and again. Color to this is given by the fact that the U.F.A. nominating conventions are being called in various parts of the province.

Law's Provisions

Here is a specific provision in section 5 of the Legislative Assembly act:

"Every legislative assembly shall continue for five years from the date of the return of the writs for the election unless it be sooner dissolved by the lieutenant-governor acting on the advice of his executive council."

The last general election was held on June 18, 1930. Under the election act, 10 days are allowed within which the deputy returning officer makes his declaration of the result of the poll. Another ten days are allowed for the purpose of giving an opportunity for applications for recounts. This means that the writs mentioned in section 5 of the Legislative Assembly act must be returned to the clerk of the crown in chancery within 2 days of the date of the general election.

As that date, allowing 20 clear days, was July 11, 1935, the general election must be held, therefore, within five years, or by July 11 1935.

Ottawa Hockey Team Banqueted

Tribute For Fine Stand in The Civic League

A banquet royal was tendered to the members of the Ottawa hockey team recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. McKee of the north district. This was in recognition of the splendid battle they have made in the Civic league, losing out in the first round of the play-offs. Ottawa entered the league knowing that they would face many handicaps, such as difficulty in gathering players from their ridges, cold nights, bad roads and inability to obtain much practice. However, enter the league they did and they fulfilled every engagement, travelling from 12 to 15 miles each way, despite high cold winds and drifted roads which kept many town people from walking a few blocks to the hockey rink.

The banquet given the boys was one to for the crowned heads of Europe the best table talent under no less than three varieties of roast fowl, with dozens of other tasty foodstuffs. Following the dinner the boys went to the Ottawa school where a fine time was enjoyed at a dance.

Coach Harry Munson, Tommy Atkins and Albert Duncan, all members of the team, went out from town and reported the evening a huge success

ISLAND HILL

On Wednesday 27th March, the McCambridge Dramatic Club journeyed to St. Andrew's Hall, a hall by the way which reflects great credit on the community there, and staged the new comedy which was produced so successfully two weeks previous at the school here. The play was enthusiastically received and the players were tendered a hearty vote of thanks by the chairman, Mr. McConville, a gentleman who takes an active interest in everything pertaining to the welfare of his community.

It is interesting to note that Mr McCambridge has received an invitation to appear with his company in Vermilion. Date, etc., will be advertised in the Standard.

Mr. McCambridge and Mr. McInnes thanked the committee of the Provincia Celtic football club under whose auspices the entertainment was held, for their kindness and hospitality.

The sketch "A Ghost Story" was also staged and was well received. A high class concert program followed, to which the following contributed: Miss Currie, Vermilion, who was repeatedly encored; in fact she rendered twelve songs and even then the audience wanted more; George Martin, Wilson & Vermilion P.O. 47-2c

"Tag," appeared decorated with a huge medal on which was printed in large letters "Island Hill Merit Medal." "Tad" is wasting his time, he should be on the radio or in Hollywood; we have no doubt he would be a great success in either place if the opportunity presented itself. The brothers Mullen are a credit to the district and possess musical ability of a very high order.

Miss Elizabeth O'Connor's contribution to the evening's success was second to none. She possesses a very pleasing voice. Barney and Dan Connor received a great ovation and sang several songs in good style. Mr. Dan Connor's humorous selection "Mrs. Murphy's Chowder" was the cause of many a hearty laugh.

And last but by no means least, Jr. McCauley Jr.; Mick is always a great favorite, whether it is on the concert platform or in the play he's always the life of the party.

On the motion of Mr. Mullin Sr. a vote of thanks was passed to Mr. McConville for presiding.

The officers and committee of Ruejl via Celtic are: President, Alex Yorkston; Vice-President, Mr. Gordon Cloud; Secretary, John Phelan, Treasurer, M. Bradley; H. O'Donnell, Jas. Grant, John Lappen.

We must not overlook the personal welcome given us by Pipe Major Mac Millan. He gave us a real Highland hand shake, which is always a genuine one — and favored us with a pibroch on his famous sword, "Thanks Mac."

NEIGHBORHOOD NARRATIVES

From the Neighborhood of the South-East

Their many friends in the Neighborhood extend to the family of Leslie Tovey their sincerest sympathies and deepest regrets in their recent sad bereavement. Many homes and gatherings in the Neighborhood will miss the cheery company of this pleasant lad; and his many young friends have passed in their familiar activities to mark his passing. His memory shall abide.

Winter passed out with a final blast and spring popped shyly around the corner at a dazzling world. Next a hardy crow or two appeared, to be followed completely one nowhere on Sunday. We absolve all comradeship with the weatherman.

We join heartily in congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Doyle (nee Marion Fussell) on the occasion of their recent wedding. If I am appears to lose for a while its calm dignity — it's only chariyari proceedings.

Their many friends are congratulating Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Tattersall (nee Molly Dixon) on the birth of a daughter.

The winners at the last U.F.A. card party were Miss Joy Doyle (Lady Lee's team) for shining on your shoulder this season Joy!) and Mr. Clarence Peters (his luck just comes natural). Consolations were given to Mrs. W. Doyle and Mr. Alf Robinson. The lucky ones were pleased to welcome that evening Mr. and Mrs. J. Lyons, Tolland, who visited our party. Come again and bring more with you! The next card party will be at Cox's on April 6th

The Neighborhood generous in dispensing as it now includes a great grandfather and grandmother. In this case the four generations are comprised of Mr and Mrs. Chas. Fricdall, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wilhite, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Smith, and the baby daughter of Mrs. Smith. May they all continue in present health and heartiness.

SILVER WEDDING CELEBRATION AT MINBURN

A happy assembly of people gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Minter, Minburn, on the 24th to celebrate the 25th anniversary of their marriage.

Mr. and Mrs. Minter are a highly esteemed family who have lived here for the past 18 years. Mr. Minter operates the Post Elevator at this point

All of the family, except Thomas who operates his own farm, were present, live at home with their parents. They are Marjorie, Doris and Lily. Lawrence, who married here a year ago, is colonizing, and the Minters are typical English colonists. Dorothy is living in Alberta. Mrs. Bird been active services in the line, was having joined up with the 7th Battalion, Imperial Forces. He saw a lot of fighting around Grand Fort and took part in the capture of Passchendaele. Upon demobilization Mr Minter came to Canada and spent a survey party in northern Ontario. The survey was for the Canadian Northern railway, and Mr. Minter put in some strenuous years at this work. Then returned to England and was married to Charlotte Bruce on the 26th or March, 1910. Soon after they left south eastern Alberta and while there, besides fulfilling his duties on his homestead near that town, Mr. Minter operated the U.G.G. elevator and afterwards the Pool elevator at that place.

Among those present to congratulate the silver wedding at Mr. and Mrs. Minter were: Rev. and Mrs. W. T. Crumb, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lamothe, Mrs. A. H. Myers, and Mr. and Mrs. A. Potter

The gifts from the family to their parents were a silver berry spoon from Thomas and a casserole with a silver stand from Marjorie, Doris and Lily. Telegrams were sent by many by several of the guests present and were appropriately responded to by Mr. and Mrs. Minter

A sumptuous supper was served during the course of the evening by the daughters of the house, assisted by Miss Alleen Murphy.

"SALADA" TEA

A Welcome Declaration Of War

The people of Canada, under the leadership of Their Excellencies the Governor-General and Lady Bessborough, supported by the Dominion and Provincial Governments, all political parties, the churches, the press, the medical profession organizations of every description, and men and women of goodwill throughout the length and breadth of the Dominion, have decided to commemorate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the accession of King George V to the throne of the world's greatest empire on May 6 by a declaration of war.

Canadians are a peace loving people, they abhor war, and their whole history proves that they never engage in war except when absolutely forced to it in self-defence, but, once in, they fight to the finish with all the strength, energy and resources they can command. Fighting in their own defence they never remain on the defensive but adopt vigorous offensive tactics to bring about the defeat of the common enemy and safeguard their own existence. History proves this to be true.

So, with the lives of thousands of their people at stake, all Canada has decided to mark the Silver Jubilee of His Majesty, who has been well described as a kingly man and a manly king, by a declaration of war upon a common world enemy - cancer. The ammunition required to prosecute this war is - money. Money is necessary in the conduct of all wars, and in this 1919 Canada supplied it in the hundreds of millions, yes, billions. In the new and humanitarian war a substantial war chest is essential to success, although not in the same amount as referred to above. Every Canadian family is asked to contribute to the extent of their ability.

Mankind is forced to wage a continuing war against disease, and looking back over past years it is gratifying to know that, taken as a whole, it has been a successful war. A few years ago the great scourge was Tuberculosis, the White Man's Plague, which topped the list of diseases afflicting the race. To-day it is in retreat, now far down in the list, with a steadily diminishing number of victims.

Yellow fever, which once counted its victims by the thousands, is unknown; smallpox has been eradicated; diphtheria, which carried off children by the thousands, has been conquered through the discovery and use of anti-diphtheria serum, cholera, typhus, and other plagues are now practically unknown, with the result that the expectation of life has been more than doubled nearly trebled, within the past 100 years.

On the other hand, the ravages of cancer continue to increase until to-day it is responsible for more deaths than any other disease with the single exception of diseases of the heart. Cancer comes second on the list and in 1932 was responsible for 10,646 deaths in Canada as compared with 7,614 only seven years previously in 1926, and the toll is progressively rising higher each year, having increased from 93.9 per 100,000 in 1931-32 to 100 per 100 000 in 1932

This is the common enemy that now calls Canada to arms and has resulted in this Silver Jubilee declaration of war.

Contrary to a very widely held opinion, cancer is not an incurable disease. It can be cured if it is discovered and treatment commenced in its early stages. Early diagnosis is the all-important factor. But to secure early diagnosis involves, first, education of the public, the provision of a largely increased number of qualified diagnosticians, and facilities for treatment throughout the whole country. These are the essential materials in this war, and they cost money

The people of Canada, the rich, the merely well-to-do, even the poor, are called upon to enlist in the army of attack on his dread enemy which is now on the offensive against our people and securing a victory over us. As a Canadian people we must now take the offensive, take it boldly and in a large way, and fight back. If we do, success can and will be achieved.

The idea of the "King George V Silver Jubilee Cancer Fund for Canada is an admirable one. It will be administered by trustees and every dollar will be spent in Canada, in the saving of Canadian lives. To establish that fund each Canadian family and household is called to contribute one dollar, or as many more dollars as they can. Contributions may be sent to Lady Bessborough Government House, Ottawa, who will acknowledge every donation received, large or small, on a card bearing the portraits of the King and Queen

Thus does Canada propose to commemorate the Silver Jubilee of His Majesty by the creation of a permanent anti-cancer fund. It will be an expression of the loyalty and affection of the Canadian people to His Majesty and at the same time a lasting and humanitarian record of a great national event

We are glad to add the support of this column to the nation-wide appeal now being made in support of this effort to commemorate a reign that is one of the finest in British history in a manner which has received the gracious approval of His Majesty and so admirably conjoined to be of lasting value to suffering humanity

The Right Of Way

According to the new traffic regulations in Kingston the pedestrian has the right of way and motorists are not entitled to make anybody "get high back" at a crossing, the Magistrate's Court there, before Magistrate Ivan Snell, stated when he fined a woman motorist $2.50.

A police judge says women now do 70 per cent. of the driving. But men still hold the steering wheel.

No Indication Of Quality

Canoeist pens have the size of the pen nibs stated on the label of the can. No. 1 is a very small pen; No. 2 is not entitled to make anybody larger; No. 3 still larger, and so on. The size of pens is no way depends on the quality nor the quality on the size

Lexicons connect from the swindle 70 per cent. of the driving. But men still hold the steering wheel.

Building Traffic Subways

Paris Found First One To Be Huge Success

Because of the success of the first traffic subways, Paris is pushing the construction of additional ones. These passages are designed to insure the continuity of the circular road that is in place of the former fortifications surrounding Paris. This road, complete, will be 35 miles long, 135 feet wide, and will permit the passage of six rows of cars. Sidewalks on each side of the road are over three feet wide. Where this circular route meets the main arteries leading out of Paris it has been attempted, wherever possible, to make a connection around a central plateau which serves as an aute. This eliminates to a certain extent, the danger resulting from the crossing of cars from various directions and helps to reduce traffic tie-ups.

Arcades For London Streets

Expert Predicts City's Shopping Centres Will Be Covered

Women will soon be able to do all their window-gazing under cover in London, according to a merchandising expert, who says that the shopping centres will be in a series of arcades. Mannequins will emerge from the shelter of the stores, where they already are continuously on display, and the unsightly queues at the doors of the present wax figures, which have gone from the realistic to the fantastic and back again.

WAS CONSTIPATED FOR 30 YEARS

Woman's Long Search For a Remedy

The trouble with most remedies for constipation, as this woman found, is that they give only temporary relief. Having at last found a permanent corrective, Mrs. Wilde writes to tell us about it:—

"For upwards of 30 years I was a victim of acute constipation. I tried practically everything that it was possible to try. I admit I was a chronic case, and every new remedy I tried helped for a day or two—after that I was just as bad as ever. Three months ago I took my first taste of Kruschen Salts, and every morning since, and every morning so long as I live, my first duty upon rising is Kruschen. I honestly feel a different woman. My bowels act to the clock, and my friends remark how well I am looking. My only regret is that I didn't try 'Kruschen' years ago."—(Mrs.) A. E. Wilde.

Kruschen Salts is Nature's recipe for maintaining a condition of internal cleanliness. The six salts in Kruschen stimulate your internal organs to smooth, regular action. Your system is thus kept clear of those poisonous wastes which, allowed to accumulate, lower the whole tone of the system.

Installs New Equipment

Montreal Institute One Of Leading Cancer Cure Hospitals

The Radium Institute of Montreal became one of the leading cancer treatment hospitals in Canada with the installation of apparatus generating 500,000 volts. The institute hopes to raise the voltage to 1,000,000 in a short while, Dr. J. E. Gendreau, director, announced.

"Ultra penetrating X-rays at a voltage of 500,000 volts and in operation only after extremely careful physical measurements preparatory to each treatment, and the last apparatus he's been used for the first time on patients," Dr. Gendreau said.

"This apparatus is the largest and most powerful in Canada and is surpassed by but a few in the United States or Europe," he said. He stressed the necessity of adequate institutes in different countries to fight cancer with great success.

English Town Thrifty

The changing times have not changed the Yorkshireman's thrift. When the people of East Winton in North Yorkshire met to arrange their jubilee celebrations they found the village still had a balance left over from the coronation of Their Majesties' years ago. So East Winton will use it to celebrate their jubilee.

Best She Could Do

A rather stout woman was making herself a nuisance in the big shop which was bending its annual sale. Nothing, it seemed, would suit her, and the unfortunate shop-assistant was beginning to get a little weary.

"Haven't you anything ready-made that will fit me?" asked the customer at last.

"Yes; the umbrellas and the handkerchiefs are downstairs, madam," the girl replied.

There's A Reason

Interesting Explanation Of Place Names For Points On Vancouver Island

(By Frank Giolma)

Place names are not the Topsy, they didn't just grow, nor are they picked blindly out of a hat. There is a reason for each and a story attached. In fact, place names are the bricks of which histories are built.

Consider, for example, Vancouver Island, where quite possibly you will be spending your holidays this summer. Put a map of the island before you and look at the names, Victoria, Sooke, Albert, Duncan, Courtney, Qualicum, Cameron Lake, Ladysmith, Nanaimo, Comox, Campbell River, Mt. Arrowsmith, Victoria Peak, Shawnigan Lake, Parksville, Cumberland. Just a cursory glance at such shows you that Indians, Englishmen, Scotsmen and Spaniards have at some time or other visited and lived in cities, villages, settlements or communities sufficiently important to have special names, these names being given by or on account of their inhabitants.

But they tell us more than that, can't place having its name local history to which its name is generally the key, and of which it is also by many cases descriptive. Take the Indian word "Esquimalt", the name of the municipality adjoining Victoria on the west. It means shallow, shelvy beach, obviously just the kind of landing place the Indians coming in their dugout canoes would be looking for. So you see we know from the word that Esquimalt was an Indian harbour before the British navy used it as a naval base.

On the other hand, the name Victoria has nothing whatsoever to do with the aborigines or Spaniards, being straight English. The city was founded as a fort by the Hudson's Bay Company, being first called Fort Camosun after Queen Victoria's royal Consort, the name, however, being almost immediately changed to Victoria, in honour of the great queen then reigning, in 1852. Prior to the erection of the Hudson's Bay fort the the Indians knew the present site of Victoria as Camosun or Camosack-

Saanich, the name of the peninsula on which Victoria is built, denotes the land of an Indian tribe of that name while the name Malahat, which should be Malahut means plenty bait, referring to the waters at the foot of the Mount Sicker Mountain drive. And just to the west of the Malahat Mountain is Shawnigan and Shawnigan Lakes, Sooke being the home of an Indian tribe, and Shawnigan commemorating a great battle between two tribes, a battle fought on the quarter mile, on the days of yore, all the warriors were killed.

Moving further west we come to Cowichan Valley, the home of the powerful and warlike Cowichan tribe, incidentally one of the few tribes to take kindly to the white man's civilization. In the heart of the valley is the thriving country city of Duncan, named after its Scottish founder, and one of the most English cities on Vancouver Island, let alone in Canada generally. A very fine country town, Duncan, in the heart of a rich valley. These Scotch pioneers always chose well.

On the northern edge of the Cowichan Valley is the coal town of Ladysmith. Write in two separate words, Lady Smith, and your curiosity immediately becomes aroused. Called lady, yes, but a title tacked on to a very, perhaps one slightly on one of the most, plebeian names known. Who was this lady, the only person to have a title bestowed in its place name on Vancouver Island? Probably you will imagine she was some land easterly who won rank and distinction for actual deeds performed.

When arrangements were being made in 1900 to open up the coal mines and found a city where Ladysmith now stands, the South African War was being fought, and the eyes of the world were fixed on the brave men fixed on the town of Ladysmith, South Africa, in which British troops were being besieged by the Boers. On March 1st, 1900, the town was relieved by Colonel Lord Dundonald. The news caused immediate excitement and the owners of the new townsite on Vancouver Island named their property Ladysmith in honor of the event.

So far so good. It is not known that the whirligig of history has caused two towns to be named after Lady Smith, but you still do not know who the lady was. Well, she was the wife of Major General Sir Harry Smith, Governor and Commander-in-Chief in South Africa, South Africa. It was he his wife that the town of Ladysmith in South Africa was named after her. She was a Spaniard, and I often think the haughty dons may have turned up their noses when they heard she was marrying a Smith, for her maiden name was Juana Maria de los Dolores de Leon, and she was a lineal descend of Ponce de Leon, famous in history as the Knight of Romances and searcher after the Elixir of Youth.

Pedigree Certificates

The total number of pedigree certificates registered by the Canadian National Livestock Records, approved by the Dominion Minister of Agriculture, for the month of February 1935 was 6,916, as against 6,469 for February 1934. Horses numbered 238, cattle, 2,111; sheep, 481; swine, 650; dogs, 539; foxes, 2,926; poultry 190, and one goat.

The catacombs of Rome contain a total of 6,000,000 tombs. In places they are seven levels deep and cover a distance of 500 miles in area.

"Growing" A Sea Wall

Rice Grass Effective In Preventing Flooding Of Land

The cultivation of rice grass on the low-lying lands of Essex and other similar mud flats in England may result in turning thousands of acres of waste land into profitable pasture. Spartina grass became known in Great Britain about 100 years ago through a few seeds dropping accidentally from some cargo ships at Southampton Docks. They took root and formed a hybrid with British grass which attracted the attention of agricultural scientists who now purposely "growing" their sea wall instead of spending thousands of pounds on sea defence to prevent the land being flooded. Experiments have proved that such a wall is not worn away by the tide, and now Holland and Australia are planting rice grass with a view to converting large tracts of marshes into pastures.

Correspondence Of Kings

Findings In Palestine Date Back To 700 B.C.

The correspondence between two kings dating back to the time of Jeremiah, 700 B.C., has been discovered by the archaeological expedition led by Prof. J. L. Starkey, of Great Britain, it was learned.

The discovery was made at Tel Ad-Duweneir, ancient city of Lachish. It consists of 13 Ostaraka fragments, which are taken to be an exchange of secret letters between the Babylonian of Judea and the kingdom of Babylon or Egypt.

Details of the findings were made known to the Palestine government, but were not given out to the press.

Bonus Paid On Coal

Canada Has Paid Out Over Six Million Since 1930

Since 1928 Canada has paid $6,781,-176 in subventions and other forms of assistance to aid the coal industry in the Maritime provinces and Alberta, a return tabled in the House of Commons said. Of that amount $4,457,992 went to the Maritimes and $1,859,948 to Alberta.

Payments made generally by the trade and commerce department to assist the Canadian coal used in the manufacture of iron or steel on a basis of equality with imported coal amounted to $456,272, while "additional payments" made under the Domestic Fuel Act to the Maritime coal industry totalled $87,553.

From 1931 to the present the amount of bonus paid on wheat was $12,708,576. The outlay in the year 1931-32 when the five-cents-a-bushel bonus was in effect was $10,908,428.

HIGH SCHOOL DRAMATIC SOCIETY PRESENT MYSTERY COMEDY

"The Elusive Aunt Laura" Makes Decided Hit

The High School Dramatic Society, under the direction of Principal Steele presented a hilarious mystery comedy in two acts, "The Elusive Aunt Laura" in the High School assembly hall on two successive nights, Monday and Tuesday of this week. The hall was well filled on both evenings by very appreciative audiences. To say that the play scored a decided "hit" is passing a conservative estimate.

The play itself was somewhat of an innovation and was well chosen, being particularly adapted to the young people as it was a very modern comedy, the conversation was couched in present day vernacular, repartee was swift and witty and at times kept the audience in roars of mirth.

The plot centres around Aunt Laura, a stranger to members of her brother's family, who suddenly arrives at the home of her brother Benjamin Brett, in the older brother, a character analyst, pooh poohs his sister's hunches. Brett is represented by Peter Gianelli Gregis solves the mystery, but not until the visitor's strange personality and unusual actions have provided many hectic moments.

Bert and Georgia's younger sisters and friends, Laetitia and Janet, have prominent parts in the play, these two characters being exceptionally well taken by Eleanor Dunsmore and Perry Cooper. Both gave natural renditions of up and coming youngsters of the present generation and provided the comedy relief in the play.

The two friends, Irene and Harry Parker, were impersonated by Norma Welsh and Billie Bushell. The latter had up to a real brat act climax when, as a joke, each without knowledge of the other smoked an Aunt Laura's cigar, resulting appearance raised a gale of laughter. Norma took her part in a quiet, competent manner, was really heard and never at a loss of what to do or say. Billie was much at his good in a difficult part which required fine facial and bodily expressions, his portrayal of Aunt Laura could not well have been improved upon, and he was consistently good all through.

Jessie Peckenpaugh cast in the role of Ted Carter, the hero was well cast to the part, with a good voice and acting ability. Jessie looked and acted the part.

1935 Closing Exercises At School Of Agriculture

March 29th was a busy day at the Vermilion school of Agriculture.

From early morning the students were in a bustle on their exhibits and by noon the last items were in place making perhaps one of the largest exhibits the school has ever shown. The sewing work was tastefully arranged in the library, while the blacksmith and carpentry work occupied the class room in the main building. The cooking, nursing and household administration displays were in the school building. Many comments were heard with regard to the high order of the exhibits.

FASHION PARADE

Promptly at 2 p.m. the fashion parade began, with the gymnasium filled with interested spectators. The chairs were arranged circling the platform and "what the visitors would like to see" the gowns and the dresses.

After the fashion show the exhibits were again open for inspection, and the large crowd seemed to thoroughly enjoy themselves as they thronged from building to building.

GRADUATION BANQUET

At 6 30 the graduation banquet was held and owing to the large enrolment the invited list was small, as the dining room was taxed to its capacity at about 8 p.m. the concert began, and after a few remarks from the principal Dr. Sinclair, of the University, was introduced. He was followed by Premier R. G. Reid, who had made a hurried, hard trip from Edmonton to be present. Mr Reid's address then, short, was much enjoyed

LEADER OF C. C. F. SUGGESTS A SHARE WEALTH PROGRAM

Ottawa.—A share-the-wealth program was launched in the House of Commons by James S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. leader, when he continued the budget debate.

Conscription of high incomes and implements of production was urged by the third-party leader. He criticized the income surtax announced in the budget as a delusion and could see no reason why an income of $200,000 should not be cut to $40,000 or $50,000 by state taxes. The surtax would cut it to $180,000, apart from other taxes.

"We have reached the point," Mr. Woodsworth declared, "when we shall have to regard the great resources and equipment of this country as essentially the property of the Canadian people to be administered for the needs of the masses."

Eleven thousand Canadians, each with an income of $10,000 or over, receive more each year than 400,000 of the poorest paid workmen, the C.F.F. leader declared. Eighty per cent. of the people were paid $1,000 a year or less and the remaining 20 per cent. earned almost half the total income of the country.

Two other speakers took the floor: J. A. Fraser (Cons., Cariboo) and Dr. F. W. Gershaw (Lib., Medicine Hat). With the exception of Hon. J. L. Ralston, the financial critic, Dr. Gershaw was the first Liberal to speak.

Scouts Plan Beacon Chain

Lord Baden-Powell Will Light One At Windsor

Ottawa.—Plans for the celebration of the King's Silver Jubilee, May 6, by a chain of Boy Scout beacons across Canada, with Lord Baden-Powell lighting the "mid-Canada" beacon at Winnipeg, to pass the fire from east to west, were announced at Dominion headquarters of the Boy Scouts Association.

The first beacon will be lighted at dusk on the shores of the Atlantic by one of the easternmost Scout units in Cape Breton Island and as twilight rolls westward successive flare up at scouting centres across the maritimes, Quebec and Ontario, to Manitoba.

At Winnipeg, Lord Baden-Powell, world chief Scout, on his way east on a tour of the Dominion, will participate in the ceremony of lighting a beacon which has been designated the mid-Canada beacon. Lighting of this beacon will pass on the beacon celebration of Scouts of eastern Canada to those of the west, across the prairies and British Columbia, to conclude with a final flare on a headland overlooking the Pacific.

In addition to the beacons, wherever possible, a royal salute of 21 rockets will be fired.

Increase In Employment

Statistics Show Gain In Above Average For March

Ottawa.—The Dominion bureau of statistics reported an increase in employment in Canada at March 1 of 16,340 persons compared with Feb. 1. The figures were 982,301 persons employed March 1 and 885,961 Feb. 1. The report was based on returns from 9,043 leading employers.

The bureau said the gain was above the average for March and higher than that recorded for any preceding March except in 1922. "In consequence of this more-than-average gain," the report continued, "there was an increase in the seasonally corrected index that raised it to a higher level than in any other month since the late summer of 1931."

It said the greatest gains at the beginning of March occurred in manufacturing in which 12,903 additional persons were employed.

"Increase in textiles and iron and steel were most noteworthy," the report said, "those in the former being the largest recorded on March 1 in any of the years for which statistics have been compiled, while gain in iron and steel considerably exceeded the average.

It noted also increase in employment in metallic-ore mining, wholesale trade, shipping and stevedoring and highway and railway construction. It said, however, that the gain of almost 2,300 persons in the highway group was due partly to an increase in the numbers at unemployment relief camps and snow clearance.

Trans-Canada Highway Not Yet Completed

Unfinished Sections Are In Ontario And British Columbia

Ottawa.—About 700 miles of the trans-Canada highway remain to be built, according to a return tabled in the House of Commons. The gaps in the route exist in Ontario and British Columbia.

The highway, says the return, is a series of roads which in the main link up provincial routes. In Ontario are two incompleted sections. One is from Schreiber easterly to White River, approximately 125 miles. This is all new work and is estimated to cost $80,000 a mile. From White River easterly to North Bay alternate routes have been suggested. One is from Schreiber to North Bay the province estimates a total cost of $10,000,000. Surveys on the other route have not been completed, and the approximate mileage and cost have not been ascertained.

In British Columbia a gap exists between the junction of the Canoe and Columbia rivers and Goldstream, for 35 miles, and from the Canoe to Revelstoke 16 miles. The average cost per mile of this portion is estimated at $24,000 by contract. The canal and bridging the Canoe river is given as $45,000.

Short sections of the road have been built from Revelstoke to Gold stream, a distance of 60 miles. It is estimated approximately $18,000 a mile would be required to complete it over the whole length.

Demand Overtaking Supply

North American May Have Shortage Of Oil And Gasoline

Victoria. — Shortage of oil and gasoline in North America because of the rate of consumption is overtaking the supply was presaged by Counsel C. H. O'Halloran, when Mr. Justice M. A. Macdonald's commission investigating the fuel industry in British Columbia resumed sittings here.

Mr. O'Halloran read authoritative figures from trade journals which placed the proven coal reserves of United States at 3,500,000,000,000 tons, equivalent to 6,800 years' supply at the present rate of production. The natural gas supply was placed at enough for 30 years, while the proven petroleum reserves were reported down to 13,000,000,000 barrels, representing 14 years' supply on the present consumption basis.

"It is entirely conceivable that in a few years oil will be exhausted," Mr. O'Halloran said.

"We will get gasoline from coal then," said Justice Macdonald. "That has been discussed. The research council at Ottawa has been doing work on this."

Workers Are Warned

Victoria.—Prosecution of workers who knowingly accept employment at lower rates of pay than called for under British Columbia minimum wage regulations, Hon. G. S. Pearson, minister of labor, has announced.

Bill Given Royal Assent

Dionne Babies Are Now Special Wards Of King

Toronto.—Royal assent was given in the Ontario legislature by Lieut.-Governor Herbert A. Bruce to the bill which makes the Dionne quintuplets "special wards of His Majesty the King" until they reach the age of 18.

Minister of Welfare David A. Croll is made special guardian of the babies and the bill gives him power to appoint active guard'ans. These, he has announced, will be Oliva Dionne, father of the famous girls, and Dr. A. A. Dafoe, their physician. Control of the babies' persons and estate is vested in the minister, and he must approve all contracts regard ng the babies. Contracts previously not approved are rendered null and void.

JOHN BUCHAN IS TO BE CANADA'S NEXT GOVERNOR

London.—"I am extremely proud to have been chosen as His Majesty's representative in Canada, and not less proud to be given a chance of serving Canada," said John Buchan, Canada's next governor-general, in his first statement on his appointment.

Mr. Buchan pointed out he had known Canada for many years and said he was looking forward to increasing his Canadian friendships.

Lord Bessborough, the present governor-general, is due to retire shortly.

Mr. Buchan has been a Conservative member of parliament for the Scottish universities since 1927. He has already had experience as His Majesty's representative, having been lord high commissioner of the Church of Scotland assembly in 1933 and 1934, his successor to this office for this year being the Duke of Kent, His Majesty's youngest son.

He will be the first "commoner" governor-general, every occupant of the position since 1867 having been a member of the peerage. This is subject of course to the possibility that Buchan may be elevated to the peerage in the king's birthday honors.

Gripping stories of adventure, scholarly biographies, dramatic recreations of the past, have all come under his facile pen. His recent work on Oliver Cromwell was a masterly survey of the tense days of the commonwealth.

He was made a companion of honor in 1932.

John Buchan was born August 26 1875, eldest son of Rev. John Buchan and his wife Helen, daughter of John Masterton, of Kippilaw. The average cost per mile of this portion is estimated at $24,000 by contract. He was educated at Glasgow and Oxford universities and called to the bar in 1901.

He married Susan Charlotte, daughter of the late Norman Grosvenor and they have three sons and one daughter.

The exact date of the Bessborough's departure for England has not been learned. It is believed to depend on the progress of the House of Commons toward prorogation and dissolution of parliament. Governors General for Canada are named by the British government acting on recommendation of the Canadian government.

Jobless Riot In Toronto

Discontent With Relief Allowances Said To Be Cause

Toronto —Led by a stubby, grey haired woman wearing an old felt hat, 500 York township unemployed raided the municipal relief offices here, shattered windows and engaged in a stone and bottle-tossing riot with police.

The demonstration, which lasted for nearly an hour before the mob was dispersed, grew out of discontent of the jobless with relief allowances.

Six policemen were injured by flying bricks, glass and fists and feet of the rioters. None was seriously enough hurt to retire from duty

Thirteen were arrested and held without bail. Authorities stated they would be charged with obstructing police in the performance of their duties, or assaulting police, or inciting to riot.

EUROPE WAITS THEIR DECISION

Training Farm Purchased

Courses In Agriculture Will Be Given To War Veterans

Ottawa.—Purchase of a farm, complete with buildings and equipment, on which Canadian ex-service men will be given short courses in agriculture, was announced by Col. W. G. H. Wood, Dominion president of the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada. The farm will be administered by the association, with the training carried out by experts of the Ontario agricultural department.

Col. Wood announced the training farm, comprising 115 acres and situated near Whitby, Ont., about 29 miles east of Toronto, was bought outright by the Army and Navy veterans. The association will provide the livestock and considerable attention will be given to training the men in truck gardening. Col. Wood emphasized this was an experiment and was a practical contribution towards a solution of the unemployment problems among ex-service men.

HITLER ASKING FOR RETURN OF LOST TERRITORY

London. — High London quarters declared that Reichsfuehrer Hitler demanded from Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, that the powers grant Germany the following concessions:

An economic union with Austria.

The elimination of Pomorze—the "Polish corridor" which under the Treaty of Vermilles gives Poland a seacoast.

The return of some Czechoslovakian territory with the repatriation of 3,500,000 Germans there.

Aviation strength equal to the air forces of Great Britain or France, the level to be governed by the air strength of Soviet Russia.

A navy of about 400,000 tons.

He chatsubrer Hitler was said to have told the British foreign secretary that he regards Germany's eastern frontier as elastic and subject to revision at any time and that one of his first aims is the reunion of East Prussia with the rest of Germany, eliminating Pomerse.

He was said, however, not to fear any other force so much as that of Russia and said that Germany may at some time have to build armies of the forces of Great Britain or France in case Russia adds much more to its military air power

Informed quarters interpreted the Berlin denouement as a demand by Hitler for the removal of practically all treaty restrictions. Sir John made it clear that the British view on all demands except the naval one, was unchanged

Sir John was said to have reiterated Great Britain's firm support of the plan for an eastern European mutual assistance pact. He later was adamant against such co-operative assistance

The difficulties of the Moscow mission of Capt Eden were regarded as considerably augmented by the inconclusive outcome of the Berlin conference

The task now confronting the young diplomat, it was pointed out, is that of persuading the Soviet government to modify the principles it desires to see embodied in an eastern security pact and at the same time retain the substance of the projected agreement

Such modification, it was believed might go a long way toward meeting the objections of Reichsfuehrer Hitler who was understood to have insisted he would involve Germany in no undertaking which might later embroil the reich in war

Britain's high authority stated that Reichsfuehrer Hitler demands absolute military equality on a gun for gun basis with other European powers This authority said Hitler told Sir John Simon British foreign secretary who visited to London that Germany would be content with a small percentage of the British navy

The reichsfuehrer, the authority said strongly indicated that "even though France were to reduce armaments greatly Germany would not follow suit until it was certain what Russia would do

It was said that at every turn Sir John found Hitler standing firmly on the foundation stone of the Nazi foreign policy "equality"

Germany's return to the league Hitler was stated to have said, depended upon whether he judged Germany was being treated as a great nation should

Road Scheme For Alberta

Minister Of Public Works Announces Program Proposed By

Edmonton. — A $10 000 000 main and secondary highway construction program, spread over a period of five years and dependent upon federal aid on a 50-50 basis for main roads, was proposed to the Alberta legislature by Hon. J. J. McLellan, minister of public works

His pronouncement was made when the house was in committee of supply dealing with a capital vote of $1,000,000 for main highways construction in the next fiscal year, an increase of $800,000 over last year. This appropriation was approved, as also was a capital vote later of $500,000 for district highways, which was $300,000 more than last year.

Fifty miles of main highways adjacent to Edmonton and Calgary were ready for hard surfacing or paving this year, the minister announced. Queried later, he declined to give the definite locations but it is believed that the sections will be parts of the Calgary-Edmonton highway leading into these cities.

Mr MacLellan stated that work on the trans-Canada highway west of Strathmore and also west of Cochrane would be rushed as soon as weather conditions warrant. The work includes reconditioning and gravelling

San Francisco. — The steamer North Haven, bearing men and equipment to rear miniature cities on lonely islands destined to become way stations for trans-Pacific planes, sailed recently

Everything from pre-fabricated buildings to buttons and safety pins was on the 6,000-ton cargo. These little cities will be the home of 118 men no women on aviation's newest frontier

Anyone with a hobby of studying radio has had a glorious opportunity to view some very odd formations last Friday morning. At one outlook there appeared to be a fine dog but upon closer inspection it was seen that the dog has four distinct heads. Each head seemed to radiate from the main body. All we hope is that this means that spring is going to arrive in a hurry - but even this is a faint hope as we learn on good authority that two dogs do not face east a single thing so far as weather is concerned.

After a residence of over 30 years in the Campbell Lake district, where he homesteaded, Mr. Palmer passed away at his home on Friday, March 29th, 1935 at the advanced age of 82 years. Death was due to the effects of a stroke suffered on December 16, 1934, from which he never fully recovered being a patient sufferer since that time.

The deceased was born at Farmersville, Ont. on October 5th 1851. He came to Vermilion in 1901 and lived on a homestead in the Campbell Lake district, where he has resided ever since.

During his sojourn there he won the respect and affection of all, and after growing a kind, obliging neighbor at ways ready to help in time of need. He also did much to build up the community, helping to erect the school house and serving as a trustee for 26 years. He was also district postmaster for 11 years. He was an enthusiastic member of the Vermilion Old Timers Association.

He leaves to mourn his loss, his widow and two daughters, Mrs. Ernest McIntire of Los Angeles Calif. and Mrs. Edna Kendall of Telfield, Alta.

A Queer Combination

Six Blind Musicians Will Play For Dead Dancers

Six blind musicians in England can also thank the wireless for allowing them to form their own orchestra. By listening in to different broadcasts, they memorized their own pieces of music, being the only way in which they could learn the music of course Next month they are to head at a dance in Leeds Town Hall The dancers will all be deaf-mutes who have had to use their eyesight to learn the steps, but being able to hear their instructor They are taught by watching the steps of couples who are normal On the face of it this queer combination of dancers and musicians may appear pathetic But it is not rather triumphant that handicaps are not insurmountable" The musicians will not see the dancers the dancers will not hear the musicians . . . but the spirit is there!

By LAWRENCE HUBBERT (Graphe-Analyst)

(All Rights Reserved)

Mrs L. R. writes as follows: "I am a widow with two children, and have been corresponding with a man from the West He wishes to marry me, and although I have never seen him, his letters are so pleasant that I find myself drawn to him. He is married, but has not lived with his wife for some years, and offers to get a divorce if I accept his offer of marriage I feel that I should remarry because I am still young, but I naturally don't want to make a mistake My first marriage was very happy, and my husband left me a substantial sum of money. Any help you care to give me will be welcome"

I am sorry that I cannot be overoptimistic about your chances of making a really favourable marriage with this man, Mrs. R. He is not generous he is, as a matter of fact, of rather a narrow point of view and really broadminded.

He is likely to get very irritable, if he is contradicted, and whilst a lot of us have this little trait at times, also as it is in this case with the narrowness of mind, it shows that this man is not easy to live with.

He is rather changeable, too. He said he intermarried, but at all stable, temperamentally, but fickle in his moods It would be difficult to understand him at times.

Another characteristic that stands out in this man's vanity. His expenses this in one of his letters to you when he remarks on the number of lady friends that he has had, and, whilst he is rediscouraging to convey a subtle compliment to you, in that he prefers you to all the others, this is a double-edged conceit. And his handwriting bears this out very clearly.

I mentioned that he is not very generous. I would go further and say that he is economical and contentious to the point of parsimony

As regards yourself, your writing shows that you have a rather emotional nature, you are quick to feel love and affection, and possess a marked capacity for affection Yours is essentially a nature that needs company. There is nothing of the cold or aloof about you. You are ardent, lovable, spontaneous—like lots of fun, and have a liking for having "on the go".

You are still young, and I certainly agree with you that marriage would be an excellent thing for you provided that you get the right sort of partner. Your previous matrimonial bias gives you a standard that it may not be easy to parallel. But I have no doubt that eventually will again arise. In the meantime, I am sorry that I cannot advise you to accept the man whose writing you sent to me, without, at least, taking an opportunity of checking up my summing up of his character.

Would you like an analysis of your character? And have you any friends whose real natures you would like to know? Send specimens of the writing you wish to be analysed, stating birthdate in each case, and enclose 10c coin for each specimen. Send with S. stamped addressed envelope, to Lawrence Hibbert, Graphologist, care of Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 184 McDermot Ave., Winnipeg, Man. Letters are confidential and replies will be sent as quickly as possible.

Would Make Gold Cheap

Polish Scientist With Secret X-Ray Claims New Extraction Process

What would happen if Professor Dunikowski, the Polish scientist, should prove his claim that by his secret X-ray process he can extract gold from common earth eight times more gold than is possible by the methods hitherto employed?

Dunikowski claims that if this were so, gold would be so cheap that the whole monetary system would collapse. Gold would no longer be the standard of value.

Dunikowski claims that he has discovered a process by which he can extract gold from ordinary earth and rocks. After testing Dunikowsky's apparatus at San Remo, Italy, he says it is unquestionable that it permits the extraction of much larger quantities of gold than any other known process.

Madame Jean Charles Legrande, the Paris lawyer, stated that he intends to demand a retrial of the case in which the Paris court sentenced Dunikowsky to two years' imprisonment for fraud

Why He Was Excited

British Tommy Dropped Hens Goodwin Into Ballot Box

A friend of mine who was playing an official part in the management of the Boat Race, protests tells me of one incident which every student of International government will with pleasure. British soldiers were carrying the carefully sealed ballot boxes into the room where the counting was to be done.

At one of the tables a Dutchman was heard in voluble dispute with a British Tommy. The Dutchman, who talked English with a pronounced accent, was annoyed because he could not understand a word the Tommy said. My friend went to the rescue, but was quite unable to act as interpreter. The Tommy's Yorkshire was too broad

A sergeant who knew him was called in to help. He explained that Yorkshire was sometimes the that when talked by men who were drunk or excited. It turned out that the Tommy had quite good reason for being excited. He had dropped his ham sandwich into the ballot box.

To retrieve the sandwich meant specially opening the ballot box before the proper witnesses and with due formalities. When various protocols had been filled up and the proper officials had signed the necessary documents, the box was solemnly opened, the sandwich retrieved, and an international incident closed in perfect amity.—New Statesman and Nation.

CHRIST THE SAVIOUR

Golden text: For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have eternal life. John 3:16.

Devotional reading: Isaiah 53:4-9.

Explanations And Comments

God's Purpose in Sending His Son, John 3:16,17. "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son." This statement now is made that God so loved the world that he gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have eternal life. John 3:16 is probably the best loved of all the verses in the Bible. A Japanese has called it "The Fujiyama text of the Bible," meaning that it is the great background of all other truths of the Bible, even as the beautiful mountain, Mt. Fuji is in the background of nearly all Japanese pictures. "God so loved," the loaded combines with the brushes which is present in the heathen, gives more solidity and no one could answer. "The word so in John 3:16," he then said. "Try to weigh that word, if you can."

"The atonement was not the cause of God's love—it is the result, not the cause of the atonement." (John McDowell).

Christ Died for Sinners, Romans 5: 6-10 For while we were yet without strength, and the set time, Christ died for sinners. For scarcely will one die for a just (righteous) man; though possibly for the more lovable good man one would even dare to die. But God far surpasses this utmost manifestation of human love, and shows the excellence of his own love toward us by the death of Christ for us while we were yet sinners.

"God loved the world, He saw that we might be Made for Himself. He stooped to set us free

And did not spare the cost of Calvary.

God loved man so. Do we?"

(Grace E. Usher).

"If such grace was shown us, then, when we were in sin, and hence justified as we have now been by His blood, shall we be saved through Him from the wrath to come. An answer we get under the circumstances of God, and His wrath hung over us. This was the situation which had to be met before God in God equal to it? Yes, when we were enemies we were reconciled to God by the death of His Son; much more, then shall the love which wrought so incredibly for us in our extremity carry out our salvation to the end The Living God, in virtue of his life, will save us to the uttermost" (James Denny).

Little Journeys In Science

GASOLINE

(By Gordon H. Gaast, M.A.)

Gasoline consists of a mixture of liquid compounds known as hydrocarbons. The use of gasoline as a source of power in engines is due to the fact that the gasoline is easily changed to a vapour and that a mixture of gasoline vapour and air, when ignited, burns instantaneously, or, as commonly expressed, explodes. The mixture of gasoline vapour and air is led into the cylinder of the engine where it is ignited by an electric spark.

The "ethyl gasoline" which is now used so widely, is gasoline to which has been added a small amount of lead tetraethyl. The addition of lead tetraethyl prevents the "knocking" of the engine which is caused by under high pressure; the reason for this is as yet not known with certainty. The use of the lead compound alone causes engine to be set free during the reaction, and as a result the temperature of the spark plugs become clogged. When ethylene dibromide is added, the lead combines with the bromine which is present in the mixture, forming the volatile lead bromide which escapes in the exhaust.

In recent days bromine was the most important product obtained from sea salt. To-day, however, gasoline is by far the most valuable product obtained from sea water and bromine has put forth every effort to increase the yield. This is done by distilling immense quantities of salt at high temperatures under pressure. This process is known as the "cracking" of oils. The average crude oil from the large producing areas of Texas and Oklahoma contains about 30% gasoline. Modern improvements in the cracking process have enabled oil refiners to increase the gasoline yield to 70% of the crude oil or higher, depending on the nature and quality of the gasoline which is desired.

Recent experiments have shown that the gas hydrogen under high pressure changes powdered coal suspended in hot oil into lubricating oils, gasoline and similar products When the supply of petroleum becomes exhausted this process may supply man with three products so necessary to our modern civilization.

Undaunted by failure in 1931 to penetrate the Arctic by submarine, bearded Sir Hubert Wilkins said he was ready to begin construction of a special sub-ice craft for another attempt.

"The adventure of the Nautilus taught me," he said, "to leave off everything that was not absolutely necessary."

Clean Burn Of Old Tires

The process is beginning to absorb immense quantities of old worn-out automobile tires bought up by the Arctic fur trade market. THE TENDERFOOT

By GEORGE B. DOCHEY

Author of "The Coronado Trail", "The Canyon Trail", Etc.

SYNOPSIS

"You've fallen heir to a half-share in placer claims," the lawyer told Gerald Keene. "The Broken Spur has been systematically looting the ranch, and old Jim Dustin has been distributing himself into ruts.

Dad Keene, aged out and luckless prospector till now returns to tell Gerald Keene that Dustin, Sr., has grubstaked him, and Dustin, Jr., is out to the Horse-Glass. He advises it'll take some explainin' to make Edith understand."

With Logan's help they get the wounded man over to Epp's house and a woman was secured to act as nurse and Cherry Dunn made ready old and grave, stared at the pistol as Carey reached for it but Stone was too quick for him. He quickly retrieved the weapon and examined it carefully and a silence full that Dustin broke.

"I reckon this clears me of all suspicion," he snarled. "When the Hourglass gets to shootin' their own partners they're droppin' pretty thinned low. . . ."

Carey turned sharply on him:

"You're cleared, Dustin," he said. "But I'm givin' you a word of advice. Buy nothin' of this here till I ask. It may never get gone out, I'll know who told it. He'll have me to reckon with. Get me?"

Dustin left him, hurry and a chilly feeling ran up his back. He did not fear many men but he had a most healthy regard for old Jim Carey.

"Good Lord," he snapped: "I'm not interested in Hour-Glass hidin' off of nothin'. It's rat stuff as far as I'm concerned. I'll say not a word about it."

The door slammed behind him and Carey turned to old Carey.

"Listen now, Joe. . . ." His voice had changed to a soft and tired for he had been fond of Joe for more than a generation. "You got Dustin's number to do, Joe. Where'd you git that Derringer?"

"I never had a Derringer in my life," said Carey dully. "I ain't got now . . . ."

Carey quietly "broke" the pistol. One barrel had been fired, in the other the cartridge had been pushed the lower barrel was fired from the explosion. He extracted the empty shell and fitted to it the big lead bullet that Epps quietly handed him. It fitted. Still Carey stared at him. Then Stone took the pistol from Carey's hand and examined it. Joe's face was a study. He could not disbelieve the evidence of his own eyes: but . . . He knew old Joe Carr and loved him.

"I think we're barkin' at a knot, Sheriff," said Stone boyishly.

Carey turned on him.

"When I need a tenderfoot to tell me my business, I'll call you," he said coldly. "What you got that's new?"

"A little bit of brains," said Stone. "You can see yourself that the man's shot on the right side . . . Just above the liver. Every one in the country knows that he was standin' on Mr. Carr's right. Did Carr reach clear around the man and shoot right toward himself?"

Epps and Carey both nodded and Carey looked puzzled.

"Are you sure Carr was standin' as you say?" he asked.

"Absolutely certain."

"Here," said Epps quickly: "We can't wait till you solve this case before we treat the man. I want some one to help him over to my house. I'll take care of him till you can git a regular doctor."

"The only man who could have had a motive," he chuckled. "If Keene dies, Carr gets his half of the Hour-Glass. If he lives, Keene gets it and have the ranch and the mine too . . . And the girl . . . Wait!" A light flashed into his eyes and he turned to the door. He called to a man at him and he slapped his leg hard. "By God," he said. "I've got it and I've got the goods on him. I'll be hard on Feyoil. First of all I've got to find out if the man Keene will die."

He flung out of the car and almost leaped into the house. Spike Goddard was flung aside roughly as Dustin jerked the telephone from its hook.

"What're you callin' Doc Epps for?" demanded Goddard.

Dustin waved him into silence and Epps voice came tinnily across the room. "Gerald Keene's got it pretty bad. Better get over to his house as a great till we can find out what's to be done. If life man died, it'll be a charge of murder I suppose. You say his name's Keene?"

"Yes. Gerald Keene," said Crewe. "His and Joe own the Hour-Glass together. That's the best thing to do, Jim. You take care of Joe. I'll get out to the Hour-Glass. I'm afraid it'll take some explainin' to make Edith understand."

With Logan's help they got the wounded man over to Epp's house and a woman was secured to act as nurse and Crewe Dunn made ready stood staring at his partner as he flung up the receiver.

"What the hell has happened, Sam?" he demanded.

He considered Dustin in silence while Dustin told him all that had occurred. Finally:

"Look out you don't trip," he said curtly. "There was a man once who held all thirteen trumps but lost the game. . . ."

"How could that be, you poor fool?" demanded Dustin.

"He never played," answered at him. "It was old-fashioned Whist," he said. "One man held all thirteen trumps. It was his partner's hand. He led an ace and when his partner trumped it he got mad and shot him. The jury said it was justifiable homicide. . . . Mind you haven't bit off too much to chew."

"You fool. . . ." Dustin grabbed him by the arm. "Don't you see it yet? Feyoil Gregg shot this man Keene and planted the pistol on old Joe Carr . . . Joe, who inherits the Hour-glass by the death of Keene. We've got Carr's note and we alone know of old Keene's mine . . ."

"Nobody knows Feyoil killed him," said Spike

"Yes, old man Carr'll be held for the murder. He'll hang unless they find out about Feyoil. Don't you reckon Edith Carr'll marry me to get her father cleared . . ."

Little Helps For This Week

Be not slothful, but followers of them who through faith and patience inherit the promises. Hebrews 6 12

Where now with pain thou treadest, soft shall be
The whitest of the saints of God;
To show thee where their feet were set.

The light which led them shineth yet.

Let us learn from the communion of saints to live in hope. Those who are now at rest were once like ourselves. They were weak, frail, doubtful; they had their burdens and hindrances, their weariness, their failures and falls. But now they have overcome. Their life was once homely and commonplace as ours, and morning, noon and night went to them as to us. Little fretful circumstances and frequent disturbing changes wasted away their hours as yours There is nothing in your life that was not in theirs, there was nothing in theirs that may not be also in yours. They have overcome each one, and one by one, each in his turn when the day came, and God called him to the trial. And so shall you likewise.—H. E Manning.

When Is Middle Age?

English Judge Thinks It Might Be Around Sixty

What is middle age? The question was asked by Lord Hewart, the Lord Chief Justice, at the Sussex Assizes when the counsel in a case before the court referred to a certain man as "middle-aged."

"Can you tell me what is middle age?" His Lordship asked counsel. "I always a little further on than the man who is speaking has got?" He added that the age of the man in question.

"Forty-one," replied counsel "A mere child," retorted the Lord Chief Justice, who himself is 68. "Don't call him middle-aged for another 20 years"

The question of water for fire-fighting purposes was up before the council the idea at present is to install underground tanks of several thousand gallons capacity — one in the east end, another in the west end and a third south of the track.

YOUNG LIBERALS TO CONVENE AT EDMONTON

A conference (or convention of all Alberta Young Liberals here in the Capital) is the exciting news of Ted Jones, who has called its Edmonton May 23rd, 1935, under the joint auspices of the Young Women's 20th Century Club and the Young Men's Liberal organization of the capital city. The purpose of this convention is to further consolidate this youth movement by providing an opportunity for the exchange of views for the discussion among junior liberals of those special problems facing the younger generation today. It is hoped that through this consultation definite conclusions will be reached and recommendation for constructive action communicated to those who will soon be called upon to shape the New Deal for the people of this province and Dominion. Direct any enquiries re the Conference to the Secretary of the Committee, Mr. W. A. Lamb, 9932—110th Street, Edmonton, Alberta.

120 TONS FERTILIZER DELIVERED IN DISTRICT

S. C. Heckbert, District Representative for the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. of Trail, B.C., has completed the delivery of approximately 120 tons of Elephant Brand fertilizer in his territory. This represents six carloads of fertilizer and speaks highly of the results obtained through its use in 1934 and previous years.

Many of the leading farmers of the district are utilizing Elephant Brand this year, especially in view of the lateness of the spring. Results have proven that the maturity of grains is advanced from seven to twelve days by the use of ammonium phosphate and this fact alone has been found to repay the outlay necessary through increased receipts from the elevator.

The acquisition of a few years ago has largely disappeared and it is generally agreed among farmers who are qualified to say, that commercial fertilizer is here to stay, and that increased production from land at present under cultivation will be the situation in future, rather than the anticipated breaking of additional land.

NEIGHBORHOOD NARRATIVES

From the Neighborhood of the South-East

We sincerely regret the departure of the writer of Tid-Bits. We have a good friend, an interesting fellow reminiscent and a sparkling addition to our weekly news. That's the only draw back in all the things in life — to have to part with them. Our best wishes and fond memories follow the Turkey Hill writer to her new location. A new school district has suffered a severe loss with the burning of the school building. The high wind of March 25th helped make a thorough job of it.

Union concert was highly enjoyed by a good number of Woodvale residents. Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Doyle and infant son journeyed up from Dasa and for the occasion.

The last Glee Club meeting accepted the report of the concert proceeds and discussed future entertainment, to be announced when arrangements are completed.

The Union Co-operative Society held a general meeting last Tuesday evening, (March 26th). Mr. C. E. Cox announced his willingness in resign the position as general manager of the Union Co-op. store. The meeting was definitely not in favor of this resignation and Mr. Cox retained his position. Minor changes in the constitution were discussed and a report of progress given. Our infant Co-op. is growing lustily!

At the last card party held by the U.F.A. prize winners for the evening were Mrs. J. Brown and Mark Fraser. Consolations were awarded to Miss Alice Brown and Mr. Jud Robinson. The prizes were also given for the grand aggregate scores of the season the ladies' presented to Mrs. Brown and the gentlemen's to Mr. C. E. Cox.

WHEAT TRADE MORE CHEERFUL

A little more cheerful note has crept into the world wheat situation during the past few weeks and prices have been advancing in Australia, Argentina and Liverpool and to a lesser extent at Winnipeg British stocks have been disappearing at a fairly rapid rate and stiffening prices in the southern hemisphere indicate the passing of flush delivery periods. The suggestion that Argentina's crop was smaller than the first government estimate has been substantiated by the latest report of Argentine government which fixes 1934 production at 238 million bushels.

Some destruction was caused by Belgium's fat from the gold standard and the devaluation of the Belga, but this was only temporary. The continued exchange situation has been somewhat of a bonheur to the wheat trade but no one expects a quick solution of that situation.

Canada has hope to look forward to quite an active trade as British authorities say that Australian competition is over for the season, that Argentian deliveries are slowing down Prices in Australia have jumped three cents in one week to Canada.

Mr. John I. McFarland, in a recent statement, expressed the view that the situation was steadily clearing, that an active demand was in prospect for Canadian wheat abroad.

HUMAN BETTERMENT.

"The structure of human betterment cannot be built upon foundations of materialism or business but upon the bedrock of individual character in free men and women. It must be builded by those who, holding to ideals of its high purpose using the moulds of justice, lay brick upon brick from the materials of scientific research, the painstaking sifting of truth from collections of facts and experience the advancing ideas, morals and spiritual inspirations. Any other foundations are sand." Anon.

30th Anniversary Fair Celebrations August

In the days which are recalled with pleasure by the old timers, the first Vermilion Fair was organized, in the fall of 1904 people gathered from all over the district to view the stock and other exhibits and to renew acquaintances and friendships. At that time facilities were conspicuous by their absence, but the first Fair was an important event in the town and was rated a success.

During the years, since 1904, there have been held in good times and bad the adventure of the Fair has been carefully maintained all through the long period of time and a number of those who are especially interested in the Fair today were original boosters more than a quarter of a century ago.

The appointment of directors to the Vermilion Agricultural Society and the faithful performance of duties by those who shouldered the responsibility and carried on constructive Fairs has resulted in the Vermilion Fair standing the years of depression as two other fairs in Alberta have done, the work of the officers and directors of today is made manifestly easier because of the splendid foundation up on which the fair work was based in the Vermilion district; a splendid fair grounds, said to be one of the finest in all western Canada, an excellent set of buildings and best of all, the sincere support of the public, are among the greatest assets of the present constituted Fair Board which in at present preparing to make the Vermilion Fair in 1935 the most outstanding of all the fairs since its original in 1904.

The 1935 Prize List has been rewritten and will shortly be placed in the hands of the printer, every endeavor has been made to maintain a suitable grade in prizes so that exhibitors both far and near may find it worth while to bring their stock and other exhibits to the Fair. The day or days for holding "grand-national" showman be passed and our own district people accorded the same privileges as the Prize List as soon as available and to solicit for their stock and prepare exhibits in the Fair. Every section of the district shall be represented when the dates coming round for the 30th Anniversary Fair on August 1st.

The Vermilion Fair is a member of the Western Canada Fairs Association and will have awards the same as Agricultural Fairs in Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Ontario. Prizes will be paid on all classes in the Western Canada circuit this season will be realized by many. A high class and varied line of horses and other classes — in fact all States have the privilege of exhibiting at the Vermilion Fair and entertainment at the Fair.

The Agricultural Society is called upon to provide a program of entertainment for the week concentrating on public performances. The line of attractions will be selected with a view to the disposal of the Fair Board's funds which were quite considerable in 1934 and will be greatly augmented in 1935. The demand for some new attractions is quite evident and it will be met if the funds will permit. Rehearsal of a new feature will be one of the Fair.

It is planned to offer a number of short courses for girls at the Agricultural School beginning on July 1st and finishing on the last day of the Fair. Instruction in the canning of fall fruits and vegetables will be given by competent instructors and the last days of the course which will be held concurrently with that of the boys will be packed with events of interest. The cost to the girls and boys will be kept at the lowest possible figure and it is expected that it will not exceed the three dollars for the short course was the case last year.

The 1935 Prize List will be published in the nature of a souvenir booklet and will be considerably different from the usual book of this kind, present plans point to a booklet which will be informational in character and which the readers will wish to retain as a souvenir of an outstanding event.

The present standing of the Vermilion Fair is largely due to the close operation it has received from the people of the town and district and no one realizes better than the writer that in order to maintain the favorable position of our Fair this co-operation must be retained. It is the desire of the directors to have as large a membership as possible, the membership fee is as previously, $1.00 per year. Any director will be glad to accept your dollar and every citizen is urged to ally himself or herself with the Fair Board in putting over the Big Fair in the West in 1935.

The New Low-Priced 1935 Pontiac Now On Display Here

Pontiac for 1935 makes its local debut today with a new low priced six on display at Law's Garage. The Six available in both standard and De Luxe models is a six-cylinder edition of the Straight Eight and is announced by General Motors Products of Canada Limited as a result of numerous replies to the 1934 questionnaire wherein a substantial demand for a Six was shown.

The new Six reveals the art of automobile body designing as interpreted by General Motors engineers, producing a design that is utilitarian in its effect yet with an individuality that unmistakably stamps the cars as Pontiacs. The motor develops 81 H.P.

The following models are available in the Six: 2-door 5-passenger Standard Coach, 2-passenger Sedan Coach with trunk, 2-passenger Standard Coupe, 4 passenger Standard Coupe, with Rumble Seat, 5-passenger Standard Sedan and 5-passenger De Luxe Sedan with trunk and De Luxe trimmings.

Unmistakable, many refinements and improvements have been made. Briefly they include a marked change in appearance, newly designed steering wheel by Fisher, tight to 11-gauge spare concealed spare tire "V" type windshield, glass wider in front and rear seats new narrow-mat panel for easy check on all models, new large hydraulic brakes with double and triple sealed drums, new synchronizing clutch, automatic choke on the Eight, air-cooled generator with voltage regulator, interchangeable main connecting rod bearings, silver alloy connecting rod bearings, steel spoked wheels, increased steering gear ratio, knee action units mounted on rigid tubular cross members and new radiator and hood grilles carried out in distinctive and daring manner.

There is no cutting down in interior equipment to meet the low price, as these carry, although on the standard six cylinder models the knee action is replaced with new stabilized semi-elliptic front springs.

All new features have on their part to the enhancement of the common ideal performance, durability, safety, speed and riding qualities of the 1935 line, and emphasize the almost unbelievable real value of the current year Pontiacs. The motor develops 81 H.P.

The following models are available in the Six: 2-door 5-passenger Standard Coach, 2-passenger Sedan Coach with trunk, 2-passenger Standard Coupe &

Canada's Greatest Problem

The Canadian people are confronted with a gigantic problem. We say the Canadian people advisedly because, while governments, Federal, Provincial and Municipal are all struggling with it, the problem is one towards the solution of which individual citizens must make their contribution. The fact that it is a problem facing all other nations offers no consolation because the more acute and difficult it is in other lands only serves to make it more difficult in Canada.

The problem can be stated as two or three words—unemployment and relief.

The unemployed man or woman wants work and the wages which won't will bring to them. Failing work and wages, they must be provided by Governments with the necessities of life,—food, clothing, fuel and shelter.

Such necessities can, of course, only be provided by the State through the taxation of those other men and women who are employed, or still have some savings accumulated throughout the years of the past in order to make provision for their own future and old age. The only other way is for Governments to borrow money and add such borrowings to their public debts, upon which interest must be paid through increased taxation, and the principal sum of which is passed on as a liability for future generations to meet.

So far as municipalities with their small and limited sources of revenue are concerned, many have reached the limit of what their taxpayers are able to pay in order to care for those who are unemployed. Further taxation simply means that more people will be unable to pay it, and, failing to do so, will lose what they still have and will, in turn, be forced "on relief." Faced with this situation, a largely attended conference of the mayors of the leading cities and towns of Canada unanimously declared the inability of municipalities to any longer carry their share of the relief burden now established upon the Federal Government to assume it in its entirety.

On their part, the Provincial Governments, particularly the Western Provinces, which in addition to the general and world-wide economic depression, have suffered even more severely than others of the Dominion because of successive years of crop failures owing to the unprecedented drouth conditions with which they have prevailed,—now find it impossible to raise, either by taxation or borrowings, the Provincial share of relief expenditures and at the same time assume the share of the municipalities.

It must be recognized, therefore,—the truth cannot be ignored,—that the problem is a national one, and one that must intimately concerns every Canadian, if we are not every Canadian interest. That must be accepted as a fact even though under the constitution of this country the responsibility of making provision for people in need is primarily a municipal responsibility. That is, the actual distribution of relief supplies is a municipal and constitutional aspects.

There, then, is the other side of the picture. Tens of thousands of people who are "on relief" complain that the amounts allotted to them are inadequate to their needs and desires. They are insistent in their demands that relief allowances be substantially increased. They are organizing to enforce their demands, and all over the country communistic agitators are playing upon their distress and worrying and arousing their passions and making demands which it is manifestly impossible for the remainder of the people to satisfy.

These agitators all loudly object to people on relief being asked to render any service whatever in return for the payments being regularly made to them. They insist that no person should be called upon by the municipality in which they reside to perform any work in return for the assistance extended to them. They refuse to recognize that, in effect, people are being paid what is tantamount to wages in advance, small though they may be, by their other fellow citizens and that they have a moral right to require to render any service in return for such assistance is to make "slaves" of them.

Yet Canadians worthy of the name, and knowing their country's difficulties should be grateful for what is being done in their behalf, and if there is any manhood left in them they should not only be ready and willing but actually anxious to make what return they can to their fellow citizens and their country. Those agitators and demands are doing a disservice to the cause for those they would make their dupes,—and when work in its monthly accepted meaning cannot be provided any relief assistance is extended, they have the absolute refusal to work in exchange for such assistance, or even for a small fraction of it. Why? Because they are out to destroy the very institutions of government and the very system of society providing for the unemployed with the necessities of life.

Such is the main Canadian problem of to-day. It is one, let it be repeated and emphasized, that vitally affects every citizen. It is their problem and what are they going to do about it?

We submit that the citizen who is employed or has an income, or some reserves should pay his taxes unexpostulatingly, willingly and promptly and that the needy man in receipt of relief should be grateful for what is given him and every effort to provide a little work, no matter how small or temporary the job may be, for some one out of work, and thus relieve the pressure.

We submit further that all persons on relief should be reasonable in their demands, should endeavor to get along with as little as possible, rather than demand more. And they should show their manhood and self-respect by willingly and at all times, rendering such service in return to their fellow citizens as it may be in their power to render.

This is no time to "rock the boat," and any person who seeks to do so is not a true Canadian but a traitor to their native heaven, and may well be described as an enemy of the country.

To Abolish Noise

"Silent" House Will Be Shown At London Exhibition

London is to have a "house of hush", a house so quiet that in it a person may be able to hear the proverbial pin drop. There is to be a "silence" exhibition in June at which it will be possible to see—but not to hear—the following:

A silent house, with silent lift and silent locks, sound-proof ventilating windows, sound-proof doors; silenced motorcycles; a noiseless motorcar; silent vacuum cleaners; silent road drills; a silent factory room.

The exhibition, at the Science Museum, South Kensington, will be organised by the Anti-Noise League, of which Lord Horder is president.

HER ARMS AND LEGS IMMOVABLE

Ten Years With Rheumatism

Yet this woman it must have been like commencing to live a new life, when she began to use her arms and legs again, after they had been helpless for ten years.

"I suffered with rheumatism," she writes, "and had been bedridden for ten years. I could not move arms or legs, and had to be fed like a child. Everybody thought I should be an invalid for life, but I forced myself to fight against it, and tried a number of different things. Then Mrs. Kruschen that eventually saved me. Just to-day I have had taken Kruschen for ten years.

Other ingredients of these Salts have a stimulating effect on the kidneys, and assist them to expel the dissolved poisons through the natural channel.

Germany's Air Force

Hitler Reports It Is Numerically Stronger Than Britain's

The London Daily Mail said Adolf Hitler had informed Sir John Simon, British foreign minister, and Mr. Eden, lord privy seal, that Germany's air strength was reported to have caused grave concern in Britain, and that Cabinet Ministers held several informal meetings for a preliminary discussion on how the menace cannot be prevented. The paper says the attitude of the German statesmen when Capt. Anthony Eden, lord privy seal, and Sir John Simon were through European capitals.

His reception, to his surprise, was no warm that he remained there for a fortnight. He left the island on which they have been known ever since. Captain Cook had a turtle, which he presented to the king, and as a present for George III His gave it as a peace offering to King Tubou, of Tonga. Queen Salote, his descendant, inherited the turtle

Cures For Indian Ward

Several Indians Shown Canada By Not Neglecting Them

Canada's paternalistic care of her Indian wards was shown recently when an error and successful 11-day search in the dense, snow-packed northern bush of Ontario for Joseph Mann, an ailing Red man and his squaw, was revealed. Both suffering from a severe attack of influenza, the couple were taken to Timmins for treatment.

It is the kindly Rev. Canon George Frewer of Sudbury, famous Algonian missionary to the Indians, who directed the grueling search by dog team and airplane over an area of 600 square miles. The Dominion government paid all expenses.

Federal Taxation

Increased Taxation Brings In Large Sum Of Money

Since its inception in 1931 the increased tax on tax has brought $5,-658,181 into the Dominion treasury, a return tabled in the House of Commons said. Answering a series of questions on sums accruing to the treasury as a result of increased taxation since the present administration came into office, the return gave these figures:

Error In Scottish Notes

Money Millions Have To Be Withdrawn From Circulation

Following the detection of an error which had existed in the design in Scottish bank notes for many years, millions of them will be withdrawn from circulation. The Bank of Scotland, the National Bank of Scotland, and the British Linen Bank have been using the royal arms in the design of their notes. The royal arms are the ensigns of public authority, and can only be used by the King or government officials. It was only recently, when a question was raised as to why the Bank of England did not use one or other of the royal arms that their use by the Scottish notes was challenged. Francis J. Grant, the Lyon King-of-Arms, who investigated the matter, found that the officials were unaware of the regulation.

The reply was made in answer to H. H. Spencer (U.P.A., Battle River).

A Native Of Asia

The parsnip that is used here in Canada is of Asia and Europe. We have what are called Wild Parsnips in Canada, but they are poisonous. The parsnip differs from carrots and turnips in that it remains in the ground improved in taste by being left in the ground all winter in the field in which they have grown. The winter's frost seems to give it relish. But it will not keep long after being dug It is a splendid vegetable for fattening sheep and oxen It gives to mutton and to beef a superior flavour. The best half of March and the first ten days of April are the best for spring parsnips.

Out-Doing Jules Verne

English Wireless Foresees Passenger Rocket Doing 14,000 M.P.H.

Jules Verne, who thrilled a former generation by flights of fancy into the future, and even H. G. Wells, with his tales of the planets, are outdone by Charles G. Philp in a book about the "Stratosphere and Rocket Flight," just published.

His prophesies as of "not far distant date" passenger rocket airplanes capable of doing 14,000 miles per hour and of crossing the Atlantic eventually, in even faster planes, in 90 minutes.

Passengers, it appears, will be reasonably comfortable. They will sit down hermetically sealed in hammocks. Special measures are taken to counteract trouble with breathing, for the machine is out of sight of the ground in 30 seconds and passengers' bodies become heavier than lead.

When the rocket plane approaches its destination, retarding rockets check its heading dive. Mr. Philp's description of the flight makes one itch to take a ticket—for one's most detested neighbor.

Mr. Philp tells us that plans of the first passenger carrying rocket yet projected have been acquired by the German War Ministry. A 24-foot projectile, built after these plans, carried a passenger six miles into the air, two years ago, and landed him safely after 10½ minutes.

Another rocket projectile by Mr. Philp are an artillery shell, with a 500-mile range, directed by radio; and bomber planes cruising, 30 miles above the earth and screaming towards their targets at 2,000 miles per hour.

Long Distance Record

Telephone Call From Liner Covered Distance Of 3,000 Miles

Sir Julian Cahn, noted British cricket captain who took a British eleven to the United States and Canada in 18 months, holds the world's record for long distance telephoning Sir Julian's record, raid wireless telephone operators of the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Britain when the world cruise ship arrived at Hong Kong recently, was made two weeks before when the ship was at sea between Singapore, Straits Settlements, and Bankok.

Atmosphere prevented the reception of a call from the Empress of Britain to Nottingham, England, by the London receiving station. But the call was successfully completed by routing it direct from the ship to Han Francisco, overland to New York and by beam wireless to England.

At the time Sir Julian talked he was seven hours ahead of London time. The San Francisco control operator, however, linked London and New York, of course, three hours ahead of the Pacific station. Rough computation shows a distance of 7,487 miles over the conversation between the Empress of Britain and London off which 9,375 miles was a direct connection between Hong Kong and San Francisco. Direct, the voice would have travelled only 7,950 miles.

Records Made Years Ago

Carry Voice Of Jenny Lind But Cannot Be Found

Somewhere in Sweden or Denmark is the "voice" of Jenny Lind, the Swedish nightingale is believed to lie forgotten. Possibly it is in an attic or a storehouse. The famous singer, it has been revealed, made records in Paris in 1867, shortly after the first phonograph was put on the market. The records were of the old cylinder type. After Jenny Lind's death, it is believed, they were sent either to Stockholm or Copenhagen. Then the newspaper is appealing to its readers to search their attics, old trunks and boxes in case they may possess the precious records without knowing it.

Birds Like Rainbow Found On Hillside In Natal

A "Rainbow Hill," the soil of which is composed of six bright colors, has been found at Ladysmith, Natal.

Farmers who want to paint their homes now collect some of the clay, which is dried, powdered, and later mixed with water or oil. They can choose from red, pink, cream, green, brown and yellow. Almost every stone in the vicinity is dyed blood-red and looks as if it had been coated with red oil paint.

PLANNING FOR A DOMINION WIDE HOUSING PROGRAM

Ottawa.—A far-reaching scheme to start house building activity and thereby absorb many of the unemployed in Canada was laid before the economics committee on housing by Dr. W. C. Clark, deputy minister of finance. It provided for a national housing board with headquarters in Ottawa and local housing boards through the country.

By the proposals which the deputy minister submitted, a $50,000,000 building scheme could be started, he said, with contribution of $10,000,000 from the federal treasury. The Dominion would provide a part of what is termed the junior money for the building campaign.

The scheme and the announcement of the mortgage companies that they had over $25,000,000 they were anxious to get out on new construction in Canada were highlights of the meeting of the committee. Representatives of the mortgage loan companies gave a review of the housing situation throughout Canada. They had withdrawn from lending in the province of Alberta, they said, because of prior liens the Alberta government had put into effect in that province.

Dr. Clark's plan would provide sufficient money to a person owning a lot close of incumbrance to erect a suitable home. The money would be supplied by local housing boards and the inspection and appraising of the building would be done by the insurance and mortgage companies who would have the first mortgage on the property.

A local housing board would finance a building project in the case of homes for owners for say $1,000,—000 as follows:

First mortgage debentures to mortgage and insurance companies, $650,—000

Preferred stock to be purchased by the central housing board out of federal money, $300,000.

Common stock to be purchased by municipal, provincial, charitable bodies, public-spirited citizens and contracting interests, $100,000.

Amounts of all sums were worth 10 per cent. of the cost of the buildings constructed on them, the total value of the properties would be $1,100,000.

The mortgage companies would be advancing 60 per cent. of that total which is the amount provided by statute An alternative suggestion by Dr Clark was that mortgage companies advance 80 per cent. and the Dominion government guarantee the top 20 per cent. The process might be simpler. In the case of houses for rental, the scheme would be less.

It was emphasized there is abundance for first-mortgage money, that is the 60 per cent. of the appraised value of property. The scarcity is in the junior money, the remaining 40 per cent

First Silver Dollar Minted

Canadian Coin Will Be Sent To King George

Ottawa. Canada's first silver dollar was minted April 4 by Finance Minister Edgar N. Rhodes and carefully preserved for transmission to King George on his 25 years of reign it commemorates.

In the presence of J. H. Campbell, master of the mint, Mr. Rhodes and other officials and spectators, Mr Rhodes lifted the lever on the huge stamping machine and then was created a glittering silver piece that is to be known as the "George dollar"

The first issue will be 100,000 and by May 1 they will be in the hands of banks throughout the Dominion for general issue of the public.

Ireland Would Trade On Equality Basis

Anxious To Deal With Other Countries Unless Dublin Lord Mayor

Toronto. — Ireland is anxious to trade dollar for dollar with other countries England not excluded—if she may do so on a basis of equality, Rt. Hon. Alfred Byrne, T.D., lord mayor of Dublin, said in addressing a luncheon meeting of the Canadian club.

Ireland, he said, would welcome any influence which would bring the people from the north and south together voluntarily in a spirit of cooperation. Such an influence might come from an outside country.

"Canada has shown the way," he added, "why should not Ireland do likewise?"

Domestic difficulties in the Irish Free State arose from conditions similar to those in Canada, he said. Youths have left farms derelict for the glamor of large cities. They had come to cities and the government was unable to offer them the employment they looked for.

As a remedy for this condition he advocated government stabilization of farm produce prices.

Meeting With Success

Chancellor Asks Nova Scotia Theatres To Close Good Friday

Halifax. — Thirteen theatre managers in Nova Scotia had promised to lock their doors on Good Friday, Rev. Dr. C. F. Curran, chancellor of the Roman Catholic diocese of Halifax, said as he outlined success encountered in the drive to make the day one of universal observance.

Three more managers had announced their intention of opening their theatres only for night shows, and several others were giving the proposal careful consideration.

No question of a boycott on theatres was being used, Dr. Curran said.

Since the advent of motion pictures, Good Friday gradually had become a holiday instead of a holy day, he said.

Plan Limited Inflation

Bank Intended To Guard Against Issue Of More Than Five Hundred Million

Washington.—Inflation, limited but none the less certain, has been revealed as a significant by-product of new United States treasury financing policy.

The government has so much cash in its vaults it intends of pay off a quantity of maturing obligations in currency, thereby adding to the amount of money in circulation and available for new investments.

At the very utmost, $500,000,000 of inflation would be involved.

Jail Term For Stowaways

Halifax.—Three stowaways who got their sailing schedules crossed wound up in jail with 10-day terms ahead of them. Ralph Taylor, 19, of Lethbridge, Alta., and Leo Vautour, 26, first of Moncton, N.B., had New York as their destination when they boarded the liner, Aurania. But when they came out of hiding three days from Halifax, they found they were on their way to England. They were brought back on the return voyage.

Explosives For Argentine

Buenos Aires.—The Argentine government will spend 10,000,000 pesos ($3,300,000) on the construction of two modern grain elevators in the port of Rosario. The construction of these elevators will mark the beginning of the government's plan to erect a total of 14 terminal grain elevators in the main shipping centres of the country

Austria Increasing Army

Decision To Follow Example Of Germany For Arms Equality

Vienna.—The Austrian government decided to follow Germany's example in increasing its armed forces.

A 60-word communique, issued shortly after the cabinet met with Premier Kurt Schuschnigg presiding, disclosed steps to achieve that end already have been started.

Under the treaty of St. Germain, Austria's army was limited to 30,000 men, this figure including officers and "depot troops."

The communique asserted Austria's right to arms equality, saying: "The cabinet expressed the unanimous conception that the granting to Austria of full equality was a self-evident supposition."

Whether military conscription such as that re-instituted in Germany in mid-March was contemplated was not revealed.

Military circles, however, lent attention to reports an immediate effort would be made to increase the present army from 30,000 to 60,000 and that such effort would be "accompanied by the gradual elimination of private armies such as the Heimwehr and the Catholic storm troops."

For Direct Relief

Federal Government Loans To B.C. Is Authorized

Ottawa.—Loans amounting to $1,-250,000 and $1,000,000 for British Columbia and Saskatchewan respectively have been approved by the government to assist these provinces in taking care of direct relief, according to an order-in-council submitted in the House of Commons.

Saskatchewan's $1,000,000 is to pay outstanding accounts for relief in the province, while the grant to British Columbia is given some further relief from immediate payment of loans made by the Dominion which matured last month. These totalled $1,-929,015. They were extended for another year.

SEE DANGER TO CANADIAN CREDIT IN ONTARIO BILL

London. — Commentators in the Times and the Daily Telegraph saw a danger to the credit of Canada in the Ontario government's bill to revalidate power contracts with four Quebec companies.

The Times said the city felt the deeds in question would be destroyed if contracts authorized by one Ontario government were to be destroyed by another.

If the bill was enacted, said the Daily Telegraph, "a blow will be delivered against the standard of Canadian provincial bonds in this country." It said the Dominion government should step in to prevent grave ills credit being thrown upon Canadian securities as a whole

The Financial Times said it had been suggested in several quarters that the matter be raised in parliament at the earliest possible moment and J. H. Thomas, Dominions secretary, urged to take the subject up with Canadian authorities

"Ontario is regarded as the rich est province in the Dominion. The action she now contemplates threatens the whole basis of credit," said the paper. It added that the circular letter of the attorneys-general of the provinces to the Privy Council in London, recently, and here we see the ceremony of inauguration. U.S. Drouth Conditions

Hotter Arid Area Is Beginning To Spread Eastward

Washington. — Severe dry conditions which observers noted closely paralleled those marking the beginning of last summer's disastrous drouth were reported in the weekly weather and crop bulletin of the United States weather bureau

The bureau said the precipitation still was deficient over most of the northern great plains region and that the arid area was beginning to spread eastward. It was recalled that this was what occurred last year.

"Some adjacent sections to the eastward are becoming dry, notably eastern Kansas, while precipitation was deficient over most of the northern great plain," the report said. It noted the continuation of dust storms in "the severely dry western area."

Kansas is the largest wheat producing state in the United States most of the crop being grown in the eastern part of that state

Amendment Carried

Senate Rules Limit Of $5,000 On Farm Loans

Ottawa —By a vote of 13-3, with party lines divided, a maximum of $5,000 was placed on mortgage loans of the Canadian farm loan board under an amendment carried in the senate banking and commerce committee

Moved by Senator Lendrum McMeans (Cons., Winnipeg), the amendment, in the words of supporters of the change, is to "spread out the fund and make it available to the greatest number."

The repayment period remains at "not in excess of 25 years." An amendment by Senator C. C. Ballantyne (Cons., Montreal) to limit the period to 15 years was defeated, while an amendment of Senator E. R. Little (Lib., London) to make the period 20 years encountered the same fate

Ethiopia Moves Troops

Government Explains Action Taken To Defend Frontiers

Addis Ababa, Ethiopia.—Ethiopia is moving troops to her frontiers, authoritative sources revealed, to meet what her government regards as a threat from Italy's East African forces.

The Ethiopian detachments were said to be moving in large numbers to the Eritrean and Italian Somaliland borders.

Government sources were quick to explain the activities were solely for defensive purposes. Another force is being organized on a more efficient basis than Ethiopia's tribesmen ever before have been, the troops are under strict orders from Emperor Haile Selassie to avoid contact with Italian border guardsmen.

Ethiopia has no intention of undertaking an offensive, it was authoritatively explained.

Fights Blinding Snow Storm

Aviator Makes Hazardous Trip From North With Wounded Man

Winnipeg The record of northern aviation has had still another glowing achievement recorded

Flying through a driving snowstorm, Pilot Ted Stull, of Wings, Limited, brought two seriously injured men from God's Lake, 400 miles north of here. Visibility was almost nil, with every other plane in the area grounded

A flying piece of steel lodged in J. Revckenridge's eye, and it was feared in hospital here he would lose the sight of that optic

His fast almost covered in an accident while swinging an axe, Mr. Nordstrum was in serious condition.

BUDGET RATIFIED AFTER DEBATE IN HOUSE AT OTTAWA

Ottawa Winners in three straight divisions the "result" government majority was ratified by the House of Commons as the climax to the strangest debate in years

With majorities ranging from 153 to 25 Conservatives beat back two amendments from the opposition and passed the main estimate Then they trooped from the greenwalled chamber shouting and cheering Finance Minister E. N. Rhodes

Conservatives and Liberals combined to pass under 165 to, the Liberal resolution censuring the government for its unemployment policy. The vote was 165 to 140 Conservatives and Liberals voting with the government, Speak- Rene Thibaudeau and six U.F.O. Labor members with the Independent Member Madeleine Wookey Heaps and Mrs. Mac-Phail.

Then came the main motion, the whole estimates of the budget, which passed 153 to 128 Progressives joined with the Liberals but A. M Carmichael (Prog., Kindersley, sang along with the government.

Although it was a short-lived debate it had one unusual feature as usually speakers 21 were content to make their pronouncements and three Liberals retired to the sidelines after the 165 to, the Liberal resolution was defeated. Speakers hammer away at a government stream in the budget debate The Conservatives blocked their own budget by putting up nine speakers.

A NAZI PLEDGE NOT TO START ANOTHER WAR

Berlin. Official sources said Adolf Hitler would startle the three-power conference at Stresa with an offer to accept Germany's present boundaries for at least 10 years

The offer, it was said, will be made through Sir John Simon British foreign secretary, who already has Der Fuehrer's proposals in black and white

A typewritten memorandum was given Sir John when he was here 10 days ago

A Nazi pledge not to go to war, it was said officially will be in the form of non-aggression pacts which Chancellor Hitler offered as a substitute for the proposed eastern Locarno pact

The offer Hitler made Sir John contained four things

1 Non-aggression.

2 Non-interference with internal affairs.

3. Non-assistance of an aggressor

4. Consultation among the powers in case any treaty should arise

The pacts would be signed betw en individual countries but later could be united into a general scheme.

Sir John also will take to Stresa two other Hitler offers, less clearly defined, and it is understood, not detailed on paper:

1. Willingness to sign an arms limitation treaty but with the proviso that Germany be accorded full numerical equality with France or Britain, whichever is stronger on land and in the air.

2 Willingness to sign a Danube pact which would closely define what non-interference with Austria The importance of this is minimized by official belief that a definition to satisfy cannot be found

House Dissolving In August

Five Years From March For 1930 Election Writs

Ottawa. — The present House of Commons will dissolve automatically Aug. 18, it was intimated in the House of Commons by Minister of Justice Hugh Guthrie. That day will be five years from the return of the writs for the 1930 election

A series of questions dealing with the duration of parliament were submitted two or three days ago by Liberal Leader Mackenzie King

The latter minister said he was not prepared to say what day marked the return of the writs in the 1930 election, but in all probability the house will have to adopt the day stipulated in the proclamation which, it appears, was August 30

Later Mr Guthrie was asked by the Liberal leader if the government had decided on a dissolution date. He could not say definitely, Mr. Guthrie said but in his own opinion, the practice would be followed

Three prizes fell in well-deserving hands, the recipients were steady supporters and enthusiastic players for the whole season.

A Social Credit meeting will be held at Woodvale school on Friday evening April 19th

At the last meeting of the U.F. and I.P.W.A., it was decided to organize a Union Junior U.F.A. Supervisors chosen were Mrs. T. Priedhand and Mr. H. Connamon. The first meeting to accomplish this will be held at the home of Thos Priedland on Saturday the 13th in the evening. Now, kids, there's your chance!

The next meeting of the U.F. and I.P.W.A. is scheduled for May 1st at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Cannon of Union district.

If the news is short this week, it's because we're so "stuck up." Wallpapering did it! But the result justifies all our efforts.

Misses Annette La France and Ruth Arthur left our district this week end for a brief trip to Edmonton. We're sure the city brightened up!

Lady Luck bothought herself to give a Nighthawk a real tussle over a disappointing diamond in 1929. She couldn't make out!) for a tough quarter of an hour before the Official Scorekeeper suddenly remembered and aptly remarked "Why! that diamond is just making an April Fool out of Bill." Was there a disconcerted Nighthawk for a while!

But the scorekeeper himself nearly had the tables turned when the Night Hawks threatened to drop on him almost without notice and fill his pocket chamber to capacity. The tire was arrested, however, and all ended well at the home of the Big Chief. A grand old game!

HIGHEST AWARDS AT LIVESTOCK SHOW TO VERMILION RAISER

W. L. Robinson Has Two Best Animals; R. D. Lunch and Provincial Farm Big Prize Winners

An exceptional showing was made by three local exhibitors at the Edmonton Spring Livestock Show held last week. In competition with the best stock breeders and stock in the west, Mr. Robinson, Mr. Lynch, and the Provincial Farm carried off a goodly share of the prizes

Has Two Best Animals

The two highest awards in the Shorthorn class were captured by W. Lyle Robinson with his two bulls Golden Gladstone, 16 months old, proved the class of the show winning the grand championship. Placed second to him was Lyle's other entry, Golden Defender, 11½ months old bull, Reserve Champion. So evenly matched and pretty were the two that a third judge had to be called into the ring before a final decision could be reached.

At the last sale the reserve champion returned the decision and sold for $2500 more than the champion Mr. Robinson averaged over $200.00 per head for three bulls at the sale.

Golden Defender was the highest seller in the Shorthorn class and was purchased by Mr. Wilson of Medicine Hat. The Dominion Government Farm boasts the champion and Lyle's other sale offering.

Entering in a little different class of the stock show, R. D. Lynch sent known Clayamore farmer carried off first prize for the best carload of steers, comprised of 15 animals.

Man Has Strange Fear

Remember In House 30 Years To Avoid Misery Tonight

In Sheffield, England, lives a man who, for the past 30 years, has never gone outside his own house. His self-imprisonment is caused by his fear of pneumonia—he feels that if he goes into the open air he will catch a cold and that will develop fatally. Although he never leaves the house, the man, John Bradley, is in good health and operates his business from his residence. Contact with other than members of his family and those connected with his business is another thing he forbids. His dread of the supposed dangers of the open air is not held by his wife although in these days such a dread is rather hard to understand The medical effect of health in the southern shire, whose duties take him into the houses of the richest and the poorest, tells of cases of rich tagves who never open their windows and who after he has smashed them (the windows, not the cottagers) in an effort to get the house thoroughly aired immediately cover the openings with their paper Medical advice to the contrary, they have a horror of open air And, remember our ancestors, with their canopied beds which kept out the faintest suspicion of a draught."

Sportsmen, "Treat That Crow"

Interest In Crow Destruction Week Growing Through The West

Canada's National Crow Destruction Week, commencing April 22nd, is getting well under way This movement, in the interest of conservation of wild bird life, initiated by the Saskatchewan Fish and Game League, is spreading from coast to coast. Since the preliminary announcement two weeks ago, the Alberta Fish and Game League has circularized all its members urging cooperation. The Manitoba League is falling in line Publications of national circulation, are urging sportsmen to accept the challenge thrown out to them to fight for the heritage of a plentiful supply of game bird and song bird life in this country. This battle with crows is not limited to the sportsmen alone as chief participants. Farmers and ranchers are vitally interested. Those who prefer to hunt with the camera instead of the gun will do their part to rid the country of this most pestilent marauder of the spring crop of other birds nests and of the black hearted pilferer of the young birds that succeed in hatching

But calling the crow what he should be called and finding him guilty of his crimes, will not suffice It is execution on the scaffold in the literal sense of the phrase, that is necessary for the success of this campaign The duck are on the way to open their centuries-old flyways, to the prairie breeding grounds, in greatly diminished numbers. Soon, the sharp-tailed grouse, equally as defenceless as the duck, against the attack of the crow on the nest or the young, will be laying their nests full of eggs. From sixty to eighty per cent. of the early nests of these birds will be destroyed on the prairie area, where cover is scarce by reason of the last four years' drought. Chicks starving for green food, during the dry summer and fall of 1934, weaned off undernourished to such an extent that nests will be as visible to the crow from an air plane as to a pilot. One quarter of a million crows, each destroying one nest, will deprive one million game and song birds of the right to live.

Branches of Game Leagues everywhere are urged to get down to business in active organization, to reduce the crow population by at least one million during the spring and summer of 1935 There is not much use in waiting on governments to assist After all the sportsmen ultimately is the best friend of the game bird and of the sportsmen rests the responsibility of fighting for the continued existence of his game, for himself and posterity.

Ten men in any community, interested in this problem, by expending one dollar each, can provide for the school children of the community sufficient bounty at one cent per crow's egg to dispose of one thousand eggs. It would not be difficult to destroy one million crows by that means alone.

Then what about getting rid of a million crows before they have a chance to lay their eggs. Make the bounty five cents per pair of crows' feet. The weapon, that has been seized and put away, for the winter months, can be taken out again, and put to the most useful purpose for which it was ever employed, by making well directed charges of shot, at the crows, in competitions organized by sportsmen for that purpose. When the weather is still too cold, to employ the hour in the sheet-field or at the traps, competitions of this nature will not only render real service, but will bring back that fine old feeling of camaraderie, which comes only from a tramp in the out of doors, with a gun in a crook of the arm. A crow call between the lips and the old heart pounding out some of the sluggishness, that it has gathered up in the winter's inactivity.

Sportsmen, treat that crow, in the Crow Destruction Week and for the rest of the summer as well.

Campaigns of this nature need assistance which can be given by active membership in Fish and Game Leagues organized in every locality.

NEW SUPER-LINER "QUEEN MARY"

The decision of Canard White Star marine designers to retain the knife-edge bow in the new super-liner "Queen Mary", as against the so-called bulbous bow, has started quite a controversy in shipping circles. All of the large liners built within the last few years feature the bulbous bow. However, it was the knife-edge bow which enabled the Mauretania to keep her place as the fastest ship on the Atlantic for 22 years until the Normandie assumed the "Queen Mary" is expected to enter the trans-Atlantic service in La early summer of 1936.

Birds Cause War Worry

Superstitious People Of Northern Europe Dislike Wax Wings

Because birds known as waxwings have been seen recently in northern countries of Europe and superstitious people are predicting a European war or some other great calamity, for centuries the arrival of waxwings in winter has been regarded over a great part of Europe as a harbinger of war, plague or death. They are said to be the devil's own birds and bear his mark in the shape of a globe of what looks like scarlet sealing wax at the end of the shaft of some of the wing feathers. In ancient times the old belief has been strengthened by their being seen during the winter preceding the World War and the Franco-Prussian war.

Livestock Industry Is Very Valuable To Canada

The Dominion Bureau of statistics reports the value of farm livestock in Canada for 1934 at $413,827,000 compared with $460,135,000 in 1933, estimated the average value per acre of Canadian farm land and buildings at $23 compared with $24 in 1933 and the combined monthly value of wages and board for the 1934 lumber season at $38 for men and $23 for women.

It said the wage and board rate for men was $1 a month more than in 1933 and the same in both years for women.

THE FUTURE LIFE

Golden text: I am the resurrection and the life: he that believeth on me though he die, yet shall he live. John 11:25.

Devotional reading: Psalm 23:1-6.

Explanations And Comments

The Empty Tomb and the Good News, (Luke 24:1-12). Early on Sunday morning after the crucifixion of Jesus, Mary Magdalene, and Joanna and Mary the mother of James, and other women came to the tomb where his body had been laid, to embalm it with spices which they had prepared. To their great amazement, the stone that guarded the entrance to the tomb they found rolled away, and on entering, they found the tomb empty. They fell on their faces in fright when two men suddenly appeared and questioned, "Why seek ye the living among the dead?" Recall Peter's words in his sermon at Pentecost, "It was not possible that he should be holden of death." "He is not here, but is risen." Then the messengers reminded the trembling group that Jesus had foretold his crucifixion and resurrection.

Can you not imagine in what excitement the women hurried off to tell the disciples? But the disciples could not credit their story. The words appeared to them "as idle talk." Peter hastened to the tomb and looked in to behold the linen wrappings there but no body of his Lord and went away wondering at what had happened.

"The Promise of Christ, John 14:1-8. Let not your heart be troubled," Jesus bade his sorrowing disciples in his farewell talk with them. It was no mere exhortation to keep up their courage, no comfortable optimism that he bade them hold, for he gave them a reason for untroubled hearts. "In my Father's house are many mansions." Jesus did believe also in hell. He believed in God, believe also in me." In spite of everything they must trust in the goodness of God and in their Lord's loving thought of them.

Separation was at hand, but there would be a reunion. By going away Jesus would make ready for his followers a better place in His Father's home. The Greek word translated mansions means places to dwell in, and the margin of the Revised Version has the translation abiding places. All people have a belief in a future life and this belief, Jesus' words tell us, is true, for otherwise he would have told them of the error of his followers.

Cowbidos to the value of $377,547; sheepskins, $134,444; calfskins, $117,-441, and horsehides, $332,940, were used during 1933 by the Canadian miscellaneous leather goods industry, which includes harness, saddlery, trunks, bags, purses, and belts. Other farm products in the shape of groceries and provisions were also used in smaller quantities.

Never in the history of Canadian golf has so handsome or valuable a trophy been donated for competition as the Seagram Gold Cup, presented by Seagrams for the six-man-team competition in the Canada Cup at the Hotel Open Golf Tournament to be played at the Lookout Point Golf Club, Fonthill, Ontario on July 11, 12 and 13. The cup stands eighteen inches high, is mounted on an ebony base and is a very fine example of the goldsmith's craftsmanship of several hundred years ago. Moulded from Ormolu metal and plated with eighteen carat gold, it could not be duplicated to-day for less than two thousand dollars. Through Christie's of London, England, this trophy was secured from the estate of Lord Darnley.

The presentation of this famous

$2,000 GOLD CUP FOR INTERNATIONAL GOLF TOURNAMENT AT FONTHILL, ONTARIO, JULY 11-12-13

revives memories of the ill-fated Lord Darnley (1545-1567), great grandson of Henry VII, first husband of Mary Queen of Scots, and father of James I. of England. Lord Darnley was considerable of a rake and his marriage with Mary was opposed by Queen Elizabeth to anger John Knox as it would place their heir, a Catholic, in line for the throne Lonely for the continental life she had been accustomed to, for Mary was brought up at the court of the Dauphin in France, she brought Rizzio, an Italian musician, to the Scotch court to entertain her. Returning one night in a rage, the jealous Darnley had Rizzio murdered by his followers. The Italian's dead body was then presented to the Queen. A short time later, when he was twenty-one years of age, Lord Darnley was murdered at the instigation, it is believed, of Mary and the Earl of Bothwell, for in the middle of the hunting lodge, when Darnley and his followers were celebrating at his hunting lodge, it was blown up

The Cup's magnificent workmanship makes it a most attractive trophy and the winning team returning the lowest combined aggregate score for the seventy-two holes of medal play will keep it for one year. In addition, each member of the team will receive $50.

Entries are contemplated from teams representing Canada, Japan, native-born United States professionals, and foreign-born United States professionals and amateur teams from both the United States and Canada.

You And Your Country

Throughout the length and breadth of this Dominion at public gatherings of every description, banquets, Canadian Club, Service clubs, Board of Trade meetings, political gatherings, school assemblies, etc., men and women hustle sing "O Canada, we stand on guard for thee," while in the south across the line of the 49th parallel our neighbors sing "My country 'tis of thee. In Canada, on July 1st we proudly celebrate the uniting of the several Provinces into one confederation thus creating this young nation while on July 4th our American cousins rejoice in commemorating the obtaining of their independence.

Both countries to-day, in common with the rest of the world, are facing grave difficulties, difficulties of an economic character resulting from the Great War and the insane wave of narrow economic nationalism which has since swept over the nations, leading them to think of "my country" only and utterly regardless of the fact,—which should never have been lost sight of—that in this modern world no country can think only of and live unto Itself alone.

Now, because these policies of national self-sufficiency, of economic isolation, have failed to work,—on the contrary, have resulted in a stagnation of world trade and loss to all nations and peoples,—and unemployment on a gigantic scale with all its attendant losses and sufferings for millions of people prevail, men and women everywhere are no longer thinking in terms of their country but are thinking solely of themselves.

As the direct outcome of their personal difficulties, and that thinking of themselves instead of their fellowmen, their community and their country,—in a word, narrow nationalism developed in its ultimate and inevitable evil,—men and women are now demanding that, instead of standing on guard for their country, the country should do everything for them as individuals. Wrong thinking has brought many people to entertain the idea that, instead of them owing any duty or obligations to their country, the country owes everything to them, and if the country is to survive it must provide all their needs and desires, then they are prepared to destroy their country.

All governments the world over are now being asked to do the impossible, because people have forgotten that governments are, after all, but the people themselves acting in a corporate capacity. So it is that, as individuals, people are demanding that their governments shall do for them, and assume burdens and responsibilities on their behalf, which are too great and too heavy for the people as a whole to bear, and ultimately, become whatever a government does the people must pay for.

There is a crying need for reconstruction in our thinking in these trying times. It is absolutely necessary that as a people we give much more thought to fundamentals and less to the trivialities of life.

One of those fundamentals is that no person should expect or ask a government to do anything for him that he can possibly do for himself. We create governments not to do things for us that we can and ought to do ourselves as individuals, but only to do those things that single-handed we cannot do, but collectively we can do. What we can do ourselves, we ought to do and must do because we can do it better, more economically and more efficiently, and more to our satisfaction, than any government can possibly do.

A second fundamental is that in order that those things we must rely on governments to do for us in our community or national life can be done we, as individuals, must supply with means through taxation to enable the government to act. Therefore, one of the first efforts of all people should be to pay their just taxes and pay them as promptly as possible. Unfortunately, a habit of mind has developed to an alarming extent that the payment of taxes is the last thing about which an individual should concern himself or herself. Many people are prepared to pay any and every other obligation before their obligations to governments, indeed, many go about gratifying their desires and wishes with money which actually does not belong to them, but is rightfully the property of the State,—that is, the property of all the people to be used for the benefit not of one individual but of the community and nation. So long as this idea prevails, and is acted upon, governments cannot do what they are created to do, are expected to do, and would do if they had the means where with to do it.

Within recent years thousands of people, lacking employment, have received hundreds, and some thousands in a few cases, of dollars in relief payments to provide them with the necessities of life which in more normal times they provided for themselves out of wages earned. Half if they are asked to do a few days or weeks work here or there, or against the advances made to them during these years, many of these people refuse to make payment through the rendering of the service asked of them. Yet they have already been paid for much work at a rate which actually totals hundreds of dollars in excess of what they might now do.

Are they giving a thought to their country now, or only thinking of themselves? Are they helping their governments to continue to help them, or are they weakening their governments in the efforts being put forth in their behalf.

What is your attitude to your country?

Secures Speedy Motor Torpedo Boat From Great Britain

Siam has bought from Great Britain the world's fastest warship—or as it is claimed to be. She is one of the new motor torpedo boats, carrying a crew of five, two 18-inch torpedoes, two depth charges, four Lewis guns and the last word in smoke-screen laying apparatus. On a trial run she developed a speed of best over 41 miles per hour, rather more than 50 miles per hour. The ship will carry a crew of five, and is designed for counter work with an average cruising range of 300 miles. Quite a useful little craft, and Siam is to purchase two more of them. Of course, they are not new. The Royal Navy had them at least three years ago. Then they were very much in the mystery-ship class, and a guest in one of His Majesty's ships for dinner one night, got severely reprimanded for his naked questions about them. The navy was not giving away say secrets then. From which it may be safely presumed, that, as they are now selling this craft to foreign powers, they most certainly must have a newer and improved model "up their sleeve."

AT 62—IN BED WITH RHEUMATISM

At 65—Working Again

Why worry about rheumatism? This old fellow had it almost as bad as it could be. But he just found the right remedy, stuck to it, and now he's working again—at 65 years of age.

Let him tell you all about it—"For two years I had a bad," he writes, "I have suffered from rheumatism. For eighteen months I could not turn over in bed, nor help myself in any way. My legs and feet were swollen, and I could not sleep or get any rest until I started taking Kruschen Salts. I am taking my bottle, I went back on two cases. I kept on taking it, as I found the pains were leaving me. I have taken six bottles, and now I have started work again. I am 65 years of age, and everybody that knows me says I am a wonder to get on, after what I was."—J. H.

Do you realise what causes rheumatism? Nothing but sharp-edged uric acid crystals which form as the result of the eliminating organs Kruschen Salts can always be counted on to clear away these painful crystals from the system.

Vessels Along Coast Of China To Be Armed To Repel Attacks

Investigations following the piracy of the steamer Tungchow, attacked early in the year while she was carrying 75 mission school children, including many Canadians, from Shanghai to Chefoo has convinced the China Navigation Company that it pays it to be armed while along the China coasts, passenger ships must be protected by more guards than are "quick on the draw."

It was indicated the heavy pistols used by the Russian guards on the Tungchow were unwieldy to be drawn quickly. The British-owned company has now announced the guards on its vessels will be increased 50 per cent., and be supplied with weapons which can be brought into action promptly.

Session Prorogued

Manitoba Government Authorizes $1,050 Sum For Hydro Extension

The third session of the 19th Manitoba legislature has prorogued, Lieutenant-Governor W. J. Tupper giving royal assent to 56 bills passed during the last few days of the session.

Among bills given royal assent were money measures providing for total expenditures of $14,052,000 during the next fiscal year, and authorization for the expenditure by Manitoba hydro extensions over a large area.

Enabling legislation making Manitoba the first province in the Dominion to take steps to provide pensions for blind persons also was approved.

Little Journeys In Science

THE STRUGGLE TO LIVE

(By Gordon H. Guest, M.A.)

Every plant and animal is exposed to unfavorable conditions and the organism must successfully contend with these conditions in order to remain alive. No two plants or parts of plants are exposed to exactly the same living conditions and a plant meets its particular conditions either by dying, or by adapting itself to them.

The tree withstands the cold by stopping its active growth, hardening its tissues and dropping its leaves. Many herbaceous or soft-stemmed plants meet the cold by dying to the ground and withdrawing all life into the root parts. Some plants combat the cold by growing outright, and providing abundance of seeds to perpetuate the kind next season.

Plants adapt themselves to light by growing towards it; or by keeping their leaves in such a position that they catch the light. In land plants where they increase their leaf surface, or greatly lengthen their stems so as to overtop other leaves, as do trees and vines.

The struggle for existence and adaptation to conditions are among the most significant facts in nature. The sum of all the conditions in which a plant or an animal is placed is called environment. Environment comprises the conditions of climate, soil, moisture, exposure to light, relation to food supply and contention with other plants or animals. The organism either adapts itself to its environment or else it weakens and dies.

The plants that most perfectly meet the conditions in which they are placed are able to persist, and they transmit themselves. Their offspring usually inherit some of the characteristics which enabled them successfully to meet the battle of life, and the fit, that is those best fitted to their environment, survive.

Adaptation to conditions depends on the fact of variation. If plants were perfectly invariable, that is, all exactly alike, they could not meet new conditions. Conditions are never exactly new for every organism, and it is impossible to picture a perfectly indefinite and variable plant, or plants or animals.

Man has modified plants and animals for his use. All our common domestic plants are far removed from their original ancestors, and our common and long-cultivated plants have varied from their original forms.

By selecting seeds from a plant that pleases him, the plant breeder may, under given conditions, produce numbers of plants more or less as he desires them. From the best of these, he may again choose, and so on until the race becomes greatly improved. This process of continuously choosing the most suitable plants is known as selection. A somewhat similar process goes on in wild nature, and it is then known as natural selection.

Why Your Head Aches

Too Much Air In Ventricles Accounted Cause Of Headaches

Does your head ache? Then there's too much air in your ventricles—tiny little spaces within the brain containing liquid to the ultimate extent.

Science has ascertained, Dr. Frederick Tilney told the New York Academy of Medicine that headaches are apt to occur when air gets into the third and lowest of these little spaces.

Hyper-sensitive persons may derive a headache from consuming milk or eggs, Dr. Tilney and other doctors for Alexander Lambert told the symposium. Excessive smoking may bring pain to smokers. Some persons get a headache from coffee; others may use coffee to cure the same ill.

Population Readjustment

Many Families Returning To Farming Occupation Throughout Dominion

"A great readjustment of population is taking place throughout Canada and the return of families back to farming occupations will, I am sure, have a beneficial effect upon unemployment conditions," stated Dr. W. J. Black, of Montreal, director of colonization and agriculture for the Canadian National Railways, in an interview at Winnipeg.

"The offices of the company in the Western region handled close to 5,000 land enquiries in 1934. From these enquiries it has developed that 882 families from other parts of Canada, United States and drought areas were placed upon 117,000 acres of land. Our district offices also cooperated very closely with the provincial governments under the Dominion-provincial subsidized back-to-the-land schemes," Dr. Black said.

"In the three prairie provinces 823 relief families in addition to the above were transformed from urban centres to farms, making a total of 1,727 families returned to the primary industry.

"During the last four years our western offices located 9,857 families on over one million acres of land. This readjustment tends to effect a better balance between urban and rural population.

"Several new settlements were commenced in the northern areas of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. These are offshoots of various national and religious parent colonies whose younger generation is anxious to build farm homes for themselves."

A Matter Of Economy

Mme Ceremony In Shanghai Cuts Cost Of Wedding

The Chinese government delivered a telling blow at the high cost of weddings when 87 couples married in the altar together and were married in a simple ceremony, with General Wu-Teh-Chen, mayor of Shanghai, officiating.

Aimed at setting an example of economy to the nation in accordance with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's "new life" movement, the ceremony was devoid of all the frills and extravagance characterizing the traditional Chinese wedding.

To the labored strains of Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" played by a Chinese brass band, the marriage candidates paraded down the crimson-carpeted aisle while a crowd of 5,000 persons, largely relatives, looked on.

The couples consulted the platform in groups of four, bowed three times before the statue of Sun Yat Sen, "father of the republic," bowed twice before each other and one to the mayor. They then received brilliantly decorated certificates which made them man and wife.

The traditional wedding vows in heaven, earth and ancestors were dispensed with and each marriage was completed in two minutes. The government charged each couple the equivalent of $7 for the ceremony, the price including the certificate and a gift to the bride.

"Eat More Eggs" Campaign

No Article Of Food More Nutritious Or More Universally Used

Notwithstanding the fact that Canadians, with an annual per capita consumption of eggs of 250, the highest of any people among the countries of the world, the Winnipeg Board of Trade is evidently not satisfied that the people of the metropolis of the province are fully conscious of the value of eggs as food. An egg campaign was launched in the city on April 1 to continue for three weeks.

Aside from the commercial importance of eggs, which is very significant, the offices of the campaign, no article of food is more nutritious or more universally used. Ninety-seven per cent. of the edible portion of an egg is digestible, a claim that few, if any, of the other foods can make. It has vitamins A, B, D, and G. It also has mineral elements including sulphur, phosphorus, iron, calcium, and magnesium in easily digestible form.

In 1934, Canadians ate more than 3,800,000,000 eggs, which, if placed end to end, would extend to a distance more than four times the circumference of the earth. The market value of the eggs produced in Canada in 1934 was about $80,000,000. The Dominion was the first country in the world to introduce egg grading, which came into force in 1918 for export purposes only at that time. In 1926 egg grading regulations were enacted to apply to domestic consumption and since then has proven to be a decided advantage to both producer and consumer.

MOSLEY CALLS WAR ON JEWS IN BRITAIN

Fascist Leader Says They Command Chief Spheres

LEICESTER, England, April 15 Sir Oswald Mosley, British Fascist leader, flayed Jews Sunday. Repeated scuffles broke out at the stormy meeting between black shirts and booing hecklers. Many hecklers were ejected by police.

For the first time I openly and publicly challenge Jewish interests in this country," Sir Oswald said. "Jewish interests are killing industry with their sweat shops."

WINTER SPORTS WINDING UP

Winter sports are being rapidly terminated and soon the hockey, curling and badminton will be replaced by baseball, tennis, football, softball and the dozens of other outdoor pas times possible in an Alberta summer

---

Final skating was indulged in Sunday; Dr. Knoll and Fred Long met in the last 1931-35 curling game on Monday night. Badminton is still being enthusiastically pursued but the Club will close any day now. It has been a long chilly winter and the average person can feel himself expanding physically and mentally in the bright sunshine and warm air of the past few days . . . No bring on your summer sports and would that they remained with us for eight months instead of four.

A large and enthusiastic gathering of people representative of the Camp bell Lake, Allandale, Gap Lake and Island Hill school districts, met at the school here on Monday to hear the Rural Credit system explained by M Landerkin.

Mr. H. A. Searle occupied the chair. The lectures kept the large audience enthralled for over three hours

A rural credit group was formed to which the following men were elected officers

President, W. Snyder Vice-president Wm. Sutherland. Secretary P. Mc Daniel

The lecturer went into every detail of the system and several questions were asked.

We venture to express in verse some of the edible things that the lecturer wished to convey.

"But . . . My God, man! To do that you've got to inform on Peyoil . . ."

"Well . . . What if I do? What good is Peyoil to anybody?"

"You . . . You can't do it, Sam. You just can't do it."

"Who? Me? I'll show you. I mean to have that girl. We've got our safe full of cash right now. In a week we'll own the Hour-glass and Boda Springs and the mine that old man Kane found. In a year I'll be travelin' with my red-headed wife and you can buy one for yourself. Like it?"

Spike did not like it and said so. The risks were too great. But Dustin did not even listen to his objections. He rose suddenly and seized his hat.

"I'm goin' over to the Hour-glass right now," he said.

Spike watched him go and shook his head.

"I wish to God I'd kept clear of Sam," he muttered. "They got nothin' on me though. It's always been Sam gave the orders about the cattle. It's been Sam tended to the money end of it. Come to think of it, if anything happens maybe I'll prove to be the smarter man. Sam's headin' for trouble if his foot slips."

But Dustin was heading at that moment for the Hour-glass. He knew that Crewe and Carr with Stone would be driving in Reno and he wanted to be the first to tell the news to Ellen.

She met him as he was dismounting said a ring or angry man for the Broken Spur was not loved at the Hour-glass. Dustin stared them down and faced her calmly.

"I came over here to-night as a neighbor should," he said. "I've got some bad news for you . . ."

"So you came to enjoy telling it . . ." She flung the words at him "Go on. Tell your news . . . and go."

"All right . . . If you want it like this. But I warn you, you'd better send them men away and run me in private."

She scanned him even-eyed. There was some indefinable thing about him that convinced her that on this occasion at least he was telling the truth.

"Come then," she said shortly. The man stared after them as she led the way into the house and a slight tremor arose that Red Thom quieted. The moment they reached the office she turned shortly on him. "What," she said: "What is it? To what do we owe the honor of this call?"

"Do you know where your father went?" he asked.

"Of course. To meet his partner, Mr. Gerald Keene, who came on the evening train."

"Right. I'll tell you where he is now . . . They all went to the Silver Dollar saloon. Your father, Crews, that wrangler Stone and the man Keene. They had hot words there of some kind. The lights went out. There was a shot fired. When the lights came on again the man Keene was lyin' over the roulette table shot through the body and they searched everybody. They found a Derringer pistol that had been fired in your father's pocket. He was standin' right by Keene . . ."

For just a fraction of a second Dustin shrank back from the light in her eyes.

"You . . . You liar. . . ." Scorn ineffable rang in her voice. "To come here and tell me a thing like that . . . You mean to tell me that my . . . my father shot this Mr. Keene?"

"No. . . ." He held up a delaying hand . . . "I mean to tell you that the Sheriff has got evidence that will send your father to the gallows for having shot Gerald Keene. I'm the only man in the world who can prove he didn't . . . Get me now? The first thing they'll search for is a motive. Why should Joe Carr shoot his partner? They'll find the motive in old Peter Vinton's will. The man Keene died a little while ago. You can verify what I say by telephoning. Call up Doctor Epps. He's taken the wounded man to his home. By Keene's death, your father gets the other half of the Hour-glass. He owns one more than he can pay. There's the motive. The fact remains that I've told you the truth. The Sheriff has got proof that your father shot his owner partner to get his share of the Hour-glass. . . . That's part of what I've got to tell you. . . ."

She swayed on her feet and her face, once red-and-white turned pale but the light in her eyes never changed.

"Call up Epps in Reno on the phone," he said.

She stepped to the wall-instrument, snatched the receiver and got the number. Dustin could not hear what was said from Reno but he saw her face blanch and her lips quiver. Her free hand grasped at the wall for support.

"Then as I understand you, Doctor, my father is under arrest for the . . . the killing of Gerald Keene . . . Is that right?"

Followed a buzzing again across the wire that her clear voice cut.

"What? . . . You say Mr. Keene died a short time ago . . . ? Oh . . . I see. . . ."

She turned away from the telephone and faced Dustin and her whole demeanor changed. She seemed to have shrunk and loosened but her eyes shone with an indomitable glow.

"He . . . Doctor Epps says you are correct . . . That my father undoubtedly shot Mr. Keene. He says Mr. Keene died. . . . And . . ."

For the first time she broke down and sank into a chair and buried her face in her hands while her body shook. Dustin came over and stood by her and ventured to lay a hand on her shoulder.

"It may not be quite as bad as you think," he said.

"How? Not as bad as I think . . . I know Daddy never did it. Of course he didn't do it. . . ."

"The Sheriff has evidence that he did," said Dustin. "They've established the motive. They found the man dead across the roulette table. Shot with a big soft-lead bullet from a Derringer pistol They found Carr standing right by him and in his pocket was a Derringer pistol. It had just been fired and the bullet from Keene's body fitted it. Will a jury want more evidence than that? Use your brains."

She could not. They seemed atrophied.

"There's one way out," he said His eyes sought hers but her gaze wavered and dropped. Some occult sense told her what was coming.

"What would you give," he said, "if a man could be found who could refute all that circumstantial evidence? What price would you be willing to pay to save your father a coroner's inquest, an indictment, a trial and . . . a conviction. That conviction means a hanging."

"You mean . . . To hang some one else . . . ?"

"I mean to hang the ressy guilty man. Look here. He beating about the bush! I know who shot Keene. I'll come forward and give testimony that will clear your father and hang the guilty man. . . . If you will marry me. . . ."

Her eyes stabbed him like a knife.

"You . . . you cur," she said. "The bargain over a man's life. I know what you were. . . ."

"Stick to your tin-type," he said. "If I forget what I know, your father hangs. . . ."

In less than ten seconds she reconstructed the evidence. She knew that Dustin told the truth. The evidence was sufficient for any Frontier jury. Her face would hang.

"I . . . I . . . You mean that if I marry you, you will clear my father?"

"Exactly. You've put it in a nutshell . . ."

"I . . . I want time. . . ."

"It's twenty-four hours the man will have left the country."

"I . . . I can't tell you now . . . I want time. . . ."

"I give you till to-morrow. . . ."

"Can't you be decent just once? There is no question of love in this . . . I hate you . . ."

"What difference does that make? I break my heart in my corral till he answers to my hand. You'll do the same. I want you. That's enough. If I choose to marry the daughter of a cold-blooded murderer who shot his own partner . . ."

The telephone jangled again and she leaped for it.

"Epps again, Miss Edith. Crews is comin' right out. Stone is staying in for the night." She turned to Dustin.

"Come over to-morrow," she said wearily. "You know of course that I will try to find some way out of this . . . If there is no way I . . . I . . . I'll have to pay the price."

He had to be content with that but he almost stunk to his horse as he walked to the horse-block under the malignant stare of the Hour-glass waddies.

Stone went straight to Jameson's office and stayed there till Jameson stormed back into the place

"Go back at the Broken Spur," he said. "Peyoil isn't there. And I can't get any trace of old man Kane. Have you telephoned Epps?"

"Listen to me, Jamesone. I'm layin' all my cards on the table . . . But one. I'm keepin' an ace buried. Joe Carr never fired that shot. The man who shot Keene had the gun wrapped in this. . . ." He held before the editor that yellow-and-green bandanna . . . . "Look at the shot, holes in it. Smell it."

Stone fished from his pocket the broken fragments of cigarettes that he had found by the lonely camp fire up Red Water canon and the single specimen that he had taken from Dustin in the golpe de caballo.

"Check 'em up," he said. "Who do you reckon fired that shot?"

Jameson considered carefully.

"Some one who uses peyoil," he said.

"All right. Who's that?"

"I only know one. . . . Peyoil Gregg and he ain't to be found at the Broken Spur."

"There's only one other place he can have gone. If he's not at the Broken Spur he must be here in Seco."

"We can probably find him down in the Mexican settlement," said Jameson. "That's the only place he can get his drug. Let's go there."

It took three hours but they finally dug Peyoil up, a drug-addicted wreck from the jacals of Pascual Mendez. He reeked of sotol, that drink that has a special stink of its own, and they crammed him unceremoniously into the rear seat of Jameson's car.

"You question him," said Jameson.

"Where did you get the pistol that you shot that man Keene with?" demanded Stone.

Miners Have Sentiment

One Reward They Apple Tree Growing Below Surface

In an Ontario nickel mine, 600 feet below the surface, miners found a tiny, stunted apple tree doing its best to keep alive with no more encouragement than the rays of a light bulb.

Evidently some workman's abandoned apple core had contained a seed that took root far down in the earth.

Instead of crushing the plant, the man who found it rushed to the surface called his fellow-workers, and after shoring it to them, tenderly lifted the small tree and carried it to his home.

The English poet Grey wrote about a flower that wafts their sweetness on the desert air. It might have been expected that that would be the fate of the apple tree. For who would expect to find sentiment and softness in a mining camp?

Perhaps it was the unthinking courage of the plant that appealed to those men whose fortitude is tested every time they go to their labors.

There is every hope for a world in which the most grinding of toil cannot crush the poetry out of a man's soul.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

TO A SOUTH

Never doubt that spring will come,
Lacking not one flower,
Song of thrushes, bees loud hum,
All its age-old dower.
To any spring, let mind be young
Loss may seem Earth's ending,
Spring will teach that Old Truth
Hearts were made for mending.

Never doubt that spring will wear
All of beauty a gown
Blossomy petals in her hair,
April's gay surprises
How always near the thing
Life from you has taken.
Still the lark is on the wing,
Still the rose will waken.

Remarkable Sentence

A sentence in a handbook of Useful Russian Phrases for the Tourist runs: "Good Heavens! Our position has been struck by lightning." This reminds us of an old French exercise book which contained the following remarkable sentence: "My little dog has beautiful hair but I cannot eat this greasy soup."

The voices of many foreign nations are immediately heard in the United States at once.

Little Helps For This Week

"God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in time of trouble. Therefore will we not fear, though the earth be removed and though the mountains be cast into the midst of the sea." Psalm 46:1-2.

Though waves and storms go o'er my head,
Though health and strength and friends be gone,
Though joys be withered all, and dead,
Though every comfort be withdrawn,
On this my steadfast soul reflies:—
Father, thy mercy never dies.

Your external circumstances may change, toil may take the place of rest, sickness of health, trials may thicken within and without. Externally you are the prey of such circumstances, but if your heart is stayed on God no changes or chances can touch it, and all that may befall you will but draw you closer to Him. Whatever the present moment may bring, your knowledge that it is His will and that your future heavenly life will be influenced by it, will make all not only tolerable but welcome to you. Nothing can affect you greatly when you know that He who holds you in His powerful hand cannot change, but shields forever.

Applications Falling Off

Not Very Many Patents Sought For New Inventions

According to figures of the United States Patent Office there has been a great falling off in applications for new patents the past few years. A noted inventor wonders why.

One reason may be that with so many men in the mechanical industries out of work they have lost contact with their work, and have had no occasion to think of ways of improving on what they are doing, or of inventing anything new. Another reason may be that modern machinery has reached such a degree of perfection that the scope for new devices is very much narrowed.

Until some new principles are opened up, the field of invention is nowadays limited. Perhaps the world needs a rest anyway from all these inventiveness. If thinkers had not been so restlessly inventive there would be fewer unemployed everywhere. St. Thomas Times-Journal.

Queer Things At Auction

Only Curio Dealers Bid For Head Of Witch

A witch's hand was offered at auction in London recently. It was that of Mary Holt, a Pulborough woman, who was hanged for witchcraft. It was not sold. Only curio dealers bid for it. They went up to nearly £20, at which point the hand was bought in by its owner. The sense thing happened to a beart pierced with pins, another old Sussex witchcraft charm. One Hallet, who lived at New House, bragged with considerable success and prospered greatly with the aid of his charms. Examples of his "life-giving" stockin-trade were on sale A glass-encased "orator" called by Hallett a Nativity brought $53.

Constipation Gone Says Montreal Woman

Mrs. J. H. Laliberte, 7236 Drolet St., Montreal tells under oath how Fruit-a-tives brought her quick relief from constipation. She gave her experience before a notary as you would be sure that it is true. Mrs. Laliberte relates,—"I used to be taken with bad spells of irritability and lassitude. I could not eat right. I did not sleep well and could do my work only with great difficulty. This was due to chronic constipation from which I suffered severely. Soon after I started using Fruit-a-tives I became regular, my headaches and irritation disappeared. I have lots of energy now and can do all my work without any trouble."

Steaming Ashes And Nile Mud Hatch Chicks In Egypt

Every year Egypt exports hundreds of millions of eggs to other countries, yet hens with chicks are almost never seen there. The explanation is that eggs are artificially hatched by a system that has not changed in 4,000 years. The eggs lie for a while in steaming ashes, deep down in the hatching pits. Later they are put beneath black cupolas of Nile mud, lying on camel dung and covered with palm leaves. The system is so accurate that attendants can tell to the hour when the chicks will hatch.—Detroit News.

THE IMPORTANCE OF CANADIAN RAILWAYS SHOWN BY STATISTICS

WINNIPEG, April 17. The place which Canada's railways occupy in the dominion's affairs is strikingly shown in some statistics recently released. Last year 182,000 tons of freight were transported by Canadian rail ways and 17,252,000 passengers travelled on their trains. The total payroll of Canada's railways for the year is announced to be $141,975,000 paid to an average of 119,000 employees. The railways are one of the largest consumers of Canada's coal and our figures in this respect covering Canadian National lines show that out of every dollar of the $121,250,000 spent last year in operating the rail ways approximately a cents went to coal. The rate paid for locomotive coal amounted to $10,705,000 in the year, the water bill amounted to $10,000,000. Approximately 60 cents out of every dollar of revenue is absorbed in the operation handled over Canadian National lines throughout the year gives a valuable guide on the extent to which Canada's mining industry has grown. Products of the mines constituted the largest portion of the total revenue tonnage 52,942,000 or 37.7 per cent. Agricultural products account for 22.2 per cent, animal products 12.7 per cent, forest products 12.5 per cent, manufactures 10.5 per cent, miscellaneous 4.4 per cent.

Two other sales approved by Council and initial payments accepted, subject to approval by Minister of Municipal Affairs.

DEMANDS OF GERMANY ARE BAR TO LEAGUE

Stresa, Italy. — Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of Britain told the premiers of France and Italy, it was learned on high authority, that Germany's demands made at the Anglo-German conference at Berlin, precluded immediate German re-admission to the League of Nations.

MacDonald said further, those sources added, Britain wants a proportional disarmament agreement among the continental powers, with the establishment of a control body, Britain would adhere to such a plan without reserve, he declared.

The British stand was reported summed up as follows to the delegates at historic Villa Barromeo:

1. Britain considers it the duty of the three nations represented at Stresa to make their solidarity in the face of reich re-armament. Britain has decided to do all in her power to give proof of this solidarity.

2. Britain favors collective security. Within the framework of the league she believes security should be organized.

3. Such a task is to be achieved less through disarmament measures than through the fixing of a relation between the armaments of the principal powers with the establishment of a strict control system to which Britain will adhere without reserve.

4. Britain desires to see Germany enter the League of Nations but in the present circumstances, and given the new demands for power the time for such action considers it impossible to open the doors of the league to Germany, holding [illegible] as attempts made by the "disastrous" example.

A clash of opinion between British and French delegations developed, authoritative sources said, after France moved unexpectedly to get British and Italian support for her approach to Geneva against German re-armament.

The French, it was learned, tossed into the midst of the afternoon session their memorandum on Adolf Hitler's alleged repudiations of treaties.

Reliable sources said MacDonald and the British foreign secretary, Sir John Simon, sought to soft-pedal the complaint at Geneva.

Drouth Relief Bill

Action Will Be Taken To Fight Drouth In Prairie Provinces

Ottawa. Twenty-four hours after R. B. Bennett had announced the drouth relief bill passed through the House of Commons. It had the blessing of all parties but warnings were issued against building extravagant hopes.

The bill will appropriate $750,000 this year and $1,000,000 for each of the next four to fight drouth in the prairie provinces. Dams will be built to store water. Shelter belts will be grown, trees planted and illustration stations established to show farmers what can be done to reclaim their parched lands.

An advisory committee will be formed to guide the federal department of agriculture which will co-operate with provincial agencies.

John Brown (Lib., Lisgar), a west-ern farmer 53 years, believed the most good would come from grass-strip farming and other cultural methods.

The minister said no one must be too optimistic over the scheme. Dams would be built to conserve water but that might or might not produce rain. The main objective was to raise the morale of the people and try to prepare for another drouth cycle.

While supporting the bill, Hon W. R. McDerwell (Lib., Melville), thought the government should have acted sooner.

Oppose Plan To Sell Land

Doukhobors Unwilling To Give Up Land They Have Lived On For Many Years

Winnipeg.—Internal disagreement in the Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood appeared following a recent announcement of J. P. Shukin, vice-president of the brotherhood, that 30,000 acres of Doukhobor land in the Saskatchewan district of Veregin, Kylemore and Kevington would be sold.

Andrew F. Bloodoff, a member of the brotherhood at Veregin, has declared members of the sect in that district are unwilling to leave the home they have lived in for 30 years.

Learning of this alleged complaint from the Veregin district group, Mr. Shukin arranged an interview with Peter Veregin, president of the brotherhood and sect leader who is serving a two-month term in Headingly jail for having assaulted his interpreter.

Mr. Shukin declared, prior to seeing Veregin, the land would be sold and that "any statements to the contrary made by such people as Bloodoff or other Doukhobors in Saskatchewan should be disregarded."

It was feared the celebrations would have to be called off when musicians, members of a union organization with headquarters in the United States, declined to start work until a promise was made for their service. Alderman Dr. W. A. Lincoln said the city could not afford to pay [illegible]

Conferred By Chancellor Of University Of British Columbia

Vancouver.—The honorary degree of Doctor of Laws and Letters was conferred today upon the Earl of Bessborough by Chancellor R. E. McKechnie of the University of British Columbia.

Immediately following the ceremony Lady Bessborough was presented with a bouquet of yellow roses by Miss Clare Brown on behalf of the students of the university.

Jap Nationals Admitted

Ottawa. Japanese nationals admitted to Canada during the four years ended with March 31, 1934, totalled 546 of whom 183 were adult men, 195 adult women and 78 children of both sexes. During the same period 1,000 nationals of Japanese birth were admitted to the Dominion. The information was contained in a report tabled in the House of Commons.

WANT PREMIERS TO MEET WITH MAYORS IN EAST

Montreal.—Premiers of all nine Canadian provinces were invited by wire to meet here on April 22 with members of the continuing committee of the Dominion conference of mayors to consider "further decisive steps" in connection with the mayors' claim that the Dominion government should take over complete responsibility for unemployment relief.

The invitation was signed by the entire continuing committee, composed of Mayors Camillien Houde, Montreal; James Simpson, Toronto; G. G. McGeer, Vancouver; John Queen, Winnipeg; George Wenige, London; E. J. Cragg, Halifax, and Fred Bancroft, Toronto, general secretary.

Mayors Houde, Simpson and Wenige, with Mr. Bancroft, met here to discuss the question, the other mayors being consulted by wire.

The wire to the various premiers said:

"You have received a complete copy of the decisions and proceedings of the Dominion conference of mayors which met in Montreal and Ottawa on March 25 to 28 and you will have noticed that one of our two main demands was that for the very strong reasons therein stated the Dominion government should assume the entire responsibility for unemployment relief.

"We have not as far received any answer from the Dominion government. It is urgently necessary to take further decisive steps. We strongly urge you or your representative on behalf of your government to attend a joint meeting of representatives of provincial governments and our continuing committee, in order to discuss the immediate calling of a joint conference of the provincial and municipal governments of Canada. We propose that this first meeting should be held in Montreal on Monday, April 22nd."

Following their meeting Mayors Houde, Simpson and Wenige wired their colleagues of the continuing committee that "notwithstanding the appalling situation which was laid before the members of parliament and the cabinet indications have reached us that the government is not yet alive to the existing menace to the grave order and good government of Canada," through the unemployment relief situation.

The conference between the provincial representatives and the continuing committee would be preparatory to the mayors' plan, to a conference between all Canadian mayors and provincial representatives with the intention of securing a united decision to lay before Dominion authorities.

The mayors now such a conference "immediately following the attendance of Rt. George Perley, acting prime minister last month to the mayors that unemployment relief matters should be taken to the provinces.

Held As German Spy

France Arrest Man Who Frequented High Political Circles

Paris. Police claimed to have unmasked an important nest of spies in Paris with the arrest of a German, Edward Bernhueber, who they said frequented political circles posing as a spectacle of Franco-German rapprochement.

Authorities said they had found on Bernhueber a list of questions asking information on varied military, diplomatic and political subjects which he had asked a French army officer named Armand Arroumet to answer.

Bernhueber, who police alleged was one of the cleverest members of the German intelligence service, was held on a warrant issued by Judge Benon the magistrate who conducted the original investigations of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Bercowitz, naturalized Canadians and 19 other suspects on spy charges.

A search of Bernhueber's flat, police said, yielded nothing but a curious pencil case containing tear gas. A persuasive and interesting talker, he often frequented high political circles, they said.

Jubilee Medals

Want To Know If Medals Are Available For Sale In Canada

Ottawa. Minister of Finance E. N. Rhodes promised to inform the House of Commons if medals commemorating King George's silver jubilee would be available for sale in Canada and whether they would be received from the royal mint in England for Canadian distribution.

The finance minister made the promise in a discussion launched by John Vallance (Lib., South Battleford) who told Secretary of State Hon. Hugh Guthrie he had received a telegram from the minister Sask asking if 500 medals could be obtained from the Canadian mint for distribution among school children.

Charles F. Bothwell (Lib., Swift Current) prompted Mr. Rhodes promise when he asked for information "because the fact is I have written letters giving information to people in my own constituency who have made inquiries." He added: "I hope I have not been misled in the matter."

FEDERAL PLANS FOR RESCUING DROUTH AREAS

Ottawa.—Plans for rehabilitating the drouth and soil drifting areas of the prairie provinces were laid before the House of Commons by Hon Robert Weir, minister of agriculture. He was introducing a bill which provides $750,000 this year and $1,000,000 annually for four years thereafter, to put these plans into effect.

The prairie farm rehabilitation advisory committee will be appointed to advise Mr. Weir on plans for rescuing the drouth harassed areas. The minister will go west as soon as parliament adjourns for Easter and the recess when the committee will be set up and begin operations.

The program in a general way has been worked out, but the committee will advise on its development. Five rehabilitation areas are planned, three in Saskatchewan and one each in the other provinces. Each of these will include about 36 square miles where methods for saving the lands will be demonstrated.

About 50 large illustration stations, ranging from one to two sections will be provided, where the best farmers in any area will be selected to proceed with illustrative work. They will be supplied with proper seeds and allowed certain payments on an acreage basis for carrying out work of reclaiming the land.

Certain abandoned lands will be taken over and efforts made to bring them back into pastures.

Extensive tree planting will be carried out under contract with farmers in two areas, including shelter belts.

Possibly 1,000 small dams will be built in individual farms to conserve water supply. Owners of such farms will be supplied with engineering advice by the department of agriculture. In the case of some owners and in some instances farmers will be assisted to procure materials.

A number of larger dams for the bulk spring freshets of mountain ranching areas of the three provinces will be constructed. The lakes thus formed will provide both water supplies for livestock and for irrigation purposes.

In addition there will be township areas where supplies of grass seed will be provided to ranchers and farmers when range must be closed to feed seed [illegible].

Annual Tennis Meeting Next Tuesday Night

Fine Season Is Expected

The annual meeting of the Vermilion Tennis Club will be held in the town hall on Tuesday evening next, April 30th at 8 p.m. Every person interested in the future of tennis in Vermilion is urged to attend. Preliminary arrangements have already been made and with the remaining two months leaving the earth play should commence during the next ten days. The club has had its secretary for some years, and the president who has occupied the chair for the past six years is also retiring from that office. The best courts in rural Alberta offer accommodation for one hundred playing members and it is hoped to have nearly that many this season. A lengthy membership will enable the club to carry out a progressive policy of improvements, such as tree planting and would also make a small club house possible.

Thirteen men implicated in the recent Venizelist revolt, including M. Pistoakis, godson of Former Premier Eleutherios Venizelos, were sentenced to prison terms ranging from two to 20 years. Nine were acquitted. Pistoakis got 20 years.

Great Britain is quietly mobilizing her civilian forces for defence against gas and bombing attacks; it was disclosed when Colonel E. M. Cowell, director of the British Red Cross in Survey appended for 1,000 men and women for volunteer first aid nursing work at Croydon airport.

More than 160 fighting craft will take part in the royal jubilee naval review off Spithead, July 16 and flags of 12 admirals will be flown and the assembly will constitute the biggest peace time demonstration of naval strength since the "last mobilization" in the same waters in July, 1914.

Indians Win Appeal

Judgment For $18,300 Awarded Northern Saskatchewan Band

Judgment for $18,300 and costs was awarded members of the Mistawasis Indian band, near Leask, Saskatchewan, against the federal department of Indian affairs by Hon. Justice F. H. Angers in exchequer court, according to word received at Prince Albert.

Action for $28,300 was based on the promises made of the Indians and been improperly used by the department, contrary to the treaty of 1876, Richard Maicuster, K.C., assisted by W. G. Elder, Prince Albert, appeared for the Indians at the trial at Prince Albert last fall. R. G Hamilton, Regina, acted for the crown.

The successful action was based on the construction funds of the Indians were used to provide medical services, purchase stock, pay the farm instructor and for other purposes for which, under the treaty, free provision by the Dominion government had been promised.

The judgment also restrains the Indian agent at Leask from farming on the reserve.

YOUR HANDWRITING REVEALS YOUR CHARACTER!

By LAWRENCE HERBERT
(Graphic Analyst)
(All Rights Reserved)

I have often been asked of what practical value it is to anyone to have mine handwriting analyzed? Well, in most lives of ourselves, our innermost natures, the greater will be our understanding of ourselves, qualities, characteristics, talents. And the more we understand ourselves, the greater our opportunity of getting on in the world, the better we are to make friends and keep them. In other words, to be happier, popular and successful.

Are you, happy? or are you continually frowning at life, with a constant chip on your shoulder?

Are you progressing in your work? Are you dissatisfied, a square peg in a round hole; unable to make the real progress in the work you are doing, yet not knowing what to do to effect a change for the better? Are you married, are you contented?—or is disquiet and unhappiness creeping in, with perpetual bickering between yourself and your wife or husband?

Do you make friends and keep them?—or are you living the life of a lone wolf—restless, unable to enjoy the society and companionship of real friends?

Are you self-confident?—or are you diffident and doubtful, restrained from realizing yourself to the full because of inner qualms and self-consciousness?

If you go through life without knowing and understanding yourself—your faults and your virtues; your weaknesses and your weaknesses of character and disposition—you will be severely handicapped.

Graphology helps you to know yourself, to the end that you will be able to make strong points and aids the most of them; and shows you the way to overcome the weak traits, so that you will not be handicapped in the way of happiness and success.

Handwriting is not merely a matter of putting your pen to paper. You do not use your brain in order to write. And because the brain is the seat of your body, everything that you do emanates first from your brain. Handwriting is merely the physical expression of the brain impulses! Whatever you are will show you might be if you make the fullest use of your capabilities, are up-to-date in your writing.

A character analysis from your handwriting will not, of itself, effect a change in you, but it will show you wherein you need to strengthen yourself, and what faults you have but are not utilizing to the full. And knowledge is the forerunner to action.

Would you like to have your character analyzed from your handwriting? Have you any friends whose characters you would like to know? The author of these articles will send you a personal delineation. Send a specimen of the handwriting you wish to be analyzed, stating birth-date, if desired, and 10c coin in each specimen, and enclose with a 3c stamped addressed envelope to Lawrence Herbert, care of Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermot Avenue, Winnipeg, Man. All letters will be treated confidentially, and replies will be mailed out as quickly as possible. Please allow at least two weeks for your answer, however, owing to the volume of mail that is coming in.

Had No Sentiment

Sentiment apparently has no place in the business philosophy of an East Boston junk peddler even where a dead horse is concerned. Seven hours after the animal dropped dead on Huntington Street the junk peddler, whose name was withheld, returned with hammer and chisel and removed the shoes from the feet. He then went his way, leaving to police the task of arranging removal of the carcass.

Coal Output

Since 1929 there has been a steady decline in the per capita consumption of bread in Canada. This, says the statistical report of the industry for 1935 is no doubt due to two factors, viz., the lessened demand resulting from a decrease in purchasing power and the changes in the dietary habits of the people.

Medical Science Advances

New Approach To Unsolved Problem Of Blood Trouble

A new approach to the unsolved problem of coronary thrombosis, the heart trouble that threatens those who worry under high pressure, was described by scientists.

The report was made to the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology by Jane Sands Robb, M.D., of Syracuse University College of Medicine.

Coronary thrombosis is a failure of the blood supply to one or more of the 12 muscles which operate the human heart. Dr. Robb's work is a method of identifying some of the specific heart muscles which go wrong.

It is an advance of a technique which physicians have been using for 20 years in analysis of the meaning of motions of the electric tracing pencil in electrocardiograms of the heart. The machine which does this was invented by Einthoven about 1900.

These motions are notionably disturbed in coronary thrombosis. Dr. Robb has been able to interpret these designs on the heart chart in terms of individual heart muscles at work shows that small muscle when injured, as in coronary thrombosis causes a different pattern on the electrocardiogram.

The result is a further solution of the riddle of coronary thrombosis in animals and is good evidence that the solution will work equally well on human hearts.

New Principal For McGill

A. S. Morgan Prom Hull, England To Succeed Dr. Tolmie This Fall

Arthur Eustace Morgan, M.A., principal of University College, Hull, England, has been appointed principal and vice-chancellor of McGill University to succeed the late General Sir Arthur Currie, it was announced by H. R. Beatty, chancellor of the institution.

The famous Montreal educational institution, the oldest of Mount Royal, founded in 1821 by the late Sir James McGill, had been without a principal and vice-chancellor since Nov. 30, 1933, when Sir Arthur Currie, former commander-in-chief of the Canadian corps in France, died at Montreal after a long illness.

Announcement of the selection of Sir Arthur's successor was made following a special meeting of the university's board of governors.

Principal Morgan was educated at Trinity College, Dublin, and has occupied professional positions in the University of Bristol, University College, Exeter, and the University of Sheffield, in which university he occupied the chair of English language and literature prior to his becoming principal of University College, Hull, in 1926.

The new principal is a distinguished author and recognized as one of the leading authorities in the empire on the subjects of English language and literature. Mr. Morgan is in his 49th year and will, it is expected, arrive in Montreal Sept. 1.

THE HOLY SCRIPTURES

Golden text:
Oh how love I thy law!
It is my meditation all the day.
Psalm 119:97

Devotional Reading: Psalm 119: 105-112.

The Value of the Scriptures, Psalm 19:7-11. The law, the testimony, the precepts, the commandment, the ordinances of Jehovah—all of these expressions are terms for the Old Testament Scriptures, especially for the sacred Law which they contain. This the Psalmist declares, in perfect, restoring the soul; sure, making wise the simple; right, rejoicing the heart; pure, enlightening the eyes; true, and righteous altogether.

The fear of the Lord is clean, enduring for ever. "When among the five lessons each clearly significant of the Scriptures, the Psalmist introduces the abstract expression 'the fear of the Lord,' he must mean the law, the obedience, the discipline and inspiration of the Book whose praise is the burden of his song." (George Adam Smith).

More to be desired are they than gold, yea, than much fine gold. Then, with heart aglow, the Psalmist cries, More to be desired are they than honey, and the droppings of the honeycomb. His pursuit of the honey, however then never failed; then never will. Moreover by them is thy servant warned; in keeping them there is great reward.

Public Works Undertakings

Inclusion Of Railway Equipment In Government Program

Contracts of equipment securities of the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways to the extent of $18,000,000 is a feature of Dominion government legislation, it which resolution has been given to create employment by public works and undertakings throughout Canada.

Inclusion of the railway equipment works in the government's re-employment legislation had been forecast but it is not expected the amount would be double the figure named in the resolution. Extensive railway equipment programs launched last year, and other works undertakings are to be included in the measure.

Meanwhile a year the government has been considering representations from the makers of railway equipment in Canada seeking Government assistance to cover equipment orders for both systems. Some employment had been created by the Algoma and Pacific steel plants a year ago by the Dominion government guaranteeing the cost of rail orders until such time as the companies took delivery. The equipment orders suggested in early representations had been for around $30,000,000.

GARDENING

Gordon L. Smith

Lengthening Vegetable Season

It is good business to make several sowings for each vegetable. If this is not done, all will mature at the same time, and there will be a feast or a famine. After all, with such things as radish, spinach, peas, corn or practically everything else, the best way to use them is when they are fresh, that is just mature, and taken right out of the garden. They must be quickly grown and used immediately when they are in their prime. Some vegetables will keep, but whether they are left in storage or ripening in the vegetable room. The good gardener, to avoid this, has his crops coming along continuously, a few feet of lettuce and baby carrots and beets ready for the table all season. It is a good plan to sow a third of the package, a week or five ahead of the regular time. Another third a fortnight later and the balance still later. With some things like peas which must be put in early as they mature their growth during the cool weather, but two sowings can be made, one in the earliest potatoes moment and the other ten days later, but by using both you can have them over the season can be extended up to six weeks.

These Flowers Will Grow

It is not any more difficult to grow beautiful flowers than the more rows of common vegetables. Of course there are certain things like gorgeous roses, dahlias, etc., that are less under stately Lilies which certainly will not flourish unless they are also a dozen or so annuals and perennials, which are not quite practically no skill and the minimum of attention. The little Alyssum, the Candytuft, edging walks or borders. It means to several things to add six or seven to height. It will bloom all season and will grow almost anywhere if the dead flowers are sheared off with scissors, even a few minutes every two or three times. Portulaca is another which one can plant and forget. It will self-sow, but seedlings do not not want much moisture. It will bloom all the time. Calendula or pot Marigold is a little larger. It will bloom almost anywhere, but should not have too much shade. After thinning no more attention is needed to its hobby and also the California Poppy. Cosmos and ornamental sunflower. This selection will give plenty of bloom in a fair range in color and height. In rough and ready perennials are Pink Everlasting Primrose, practically any of the Daisies, Pansies, Lupins and Oriental Poppies.

Personal Paragraphs

Not Studied Sufficiently By British Financial Authorities

C. T. de Water, Bank commissioner in London for South Africa, said he believed the foreign policies of the nations of the world and especially that had not been studied sufficiently by Britain or by the countries of the empire to a great.

Addressing delegates to the imperial press conference, he said: "We have not studied the problem of our relations with the world sufficiently closely. The world should be inoculated with the germ of peace rather than over-excited as at present with the tragedy of war."

Mr. de Water urged that the press could perform invaluable service to the world in that direction if it was organized to mould public opinion.

Cecil Harmsworth, brother of Viscount Rothermere, was guest of honor at a banquet tendered the delegates, said during their visit to South Africa they attended "three parts of heaven, six garden parties, 16 receptions, eight banquets and—" he ago in so whether they would enjoy any further hospitality."

Major J. J. Astor, chairman of the Times, declared the hour he "an excursion into wonderland." He said the delegates returned with a greater appreciation than ever of the hospitality and durability of the structure of the empire.

"Anti-Suicide Service" In Berlin Is Kept Busy

Berlin's "Anti-Suicide Service," with headquarters in a quiet street back of the police headquarters, is reported to be busy. Clients are received by a kindly old man and woman who do not ask the names of their visitors. The aged couple give visitors advice and try to persuade them that life is worth living. They ask for nothing in return. Among those who have taken advantage of the "service" and most of whom leave the little house with renewed hope are people who have just left prison and dare not return to their families, wives who have lost their trust in their husbands' fidelity, students who have failed in their examinations and and, of course, young lovers.

LAUNDRY MAN FORGETS $342.00 IN BANK HERE

Further unclaimed bank balances reveal that Ging Look has an account of $342.56 in the Royal Bank here. Just what happened to Look, a Chinaman, who was connected with the Ping Kee Laundry in Vermilion a number of years ago, is not known. But any person who could furnish the bank with information that will lead to the location of the depositor. He quoted "the man is himself was fit to govern another." One must have divine guidance. He said "Man cannot serve God and Mammon." We are now trying to serve Mammon in the capitalistic system. Mr. Aberhart is basing his economic system on truths as revealed in the scriptures. We had come to the parting of the ways. We must either continue to follow the capitalistic system with its evils and failures or follow Social Credit with its enormous stores of progress, development and happiness for everybody.

Mr Bury did not agree with those who thought that this economic system could not be put into use if the B.N.A. Act worked an injustice on anyone. British jurists would see that these injustices were removed. There might be some things in our proposals which are not constitutional, while others were. Then let us work on those that are intra vires or constitutional and mould them into a system of government based on Social Credit. Mr. Bury spoke approved of the establishment of a provincial bank. There would be no difficulty there in the. He would press for this at the convention; he said it would be a rleading house for all our financial transactions with outside interests. He deprecated an economic system which forced you to sell in a definied market and buy in an inflated market. He saw in Social Credit the only system that would give the producer and consumer the opportunity to deal on a fair and equitable basis.

Mr. Shaue announced himself one hundred per cent behind Social Credit. It was the system we have been looking for. It will not be long before other political groups will be taking result for it but the people will always be to Mr. Aberhart. He reminded the gathering that the only way to get Social Credit was through the ballot box. He considered the present economic system simply a school for the propagation of crime.

Mr. Kwasnicf declared Social Credit was the only economic system that guaranteed work for our young people. They were now at loose ends and nothing was or could be done for them. We had plenty of everything but most people were living in poverty and misery. We must change that system. Social Credit will do it. Under it youth will have the chance it has been looking for.

The other delegates named pledged themselves to do everything that was possible could to forward the Social Credit movement and appealed to those present to put their shoulders to the wheel and all push forward.

The only reference that might be construed to the sitting member, Hon. Mr. Fallow, was one in which it was said that those who were clean on the wheels of industry, as remarked by the president, might find themselves out of a job. "Never mind he has already had his job" shouted a listener from the floor.

The deceased was born in Vankleek Hill, ontario only 10 years ago. He came west in January or 1906 and homesteaded two miles north east of Mannville. There he married and his homestead and purchased the Islay Livery barn, which business he ran for a number of years. Also a dray line and hauling on the farm before he left since lived. During his life here Jim Jerred was a very active worker in the Methodist church and a member of the choir.

He was laid to rest on a grassy part of the little cemetery which he was a familiar although not a worker attended on a number of occasions since.

He leaves to mourn his loss his sorrowing widow and one son Jim of the West Mine and six stepchildren at Vankleek Hill, Ontario.

Devotees Of Social Credit Organize District Association

Mayor Fallow, Vermilion, Elected President—Delegates 100 Per Cent Behind Movement

FAMOUS SPEECHES FROM U.F.A. TO NEW ECONOMIC SYSTEM

About 150 devotees of the cause of Social Credit present, of whom some 60 were accredited delegates from different study clubs, a Social Credit convention for the nomination of delegates to attend the provincial convention at Edmonton on April 24th and 25th and for organization purposes was held in the Orange hall at Vermilion on Saturday, afternoon last. The convention was under the direction of Mr. A. Landerjou of Calmgy and on the platform with him was Mr. A. H. Wray, also of Calmgy, who has been in the district the past few weeks organizing study clubs. After a brief address by Mr. Landerjou the convention proceeded to the election of officers, which resulted in a failure. President, Mayor W. A. Fallow, Vermilion; Vice president, C. J. Kwasnicf, Mooreembe. Secretary, Robert Beattie, Chalkey; Treasurer, Henry C. Bury, Kitscoty.

The method of selecting delegates caused some discussion and finally it was decided to divide the district into three parts, the south, Vermilion and Minburn as the centres for the south and lowermost, Myrnam and Mannville for the north, with one delegate to be named for the territory between and to be known as Chalkey The appointed delegates from these centres then met and chose their representatives as follows: Vermilion, Gilbert; Mannville, David Mark; Minburn: Harry Hoffman; Mooreembe, C. J. Kwasnicf; Beaurallon, O. Hansen; Isenwest: Henry C. Bury. Myrnam will select a delegate before the Edmonton convention as well as also possibly Innisfree which had not yet been fully organized. These delegates for the time being will act with the officers as the executive of the District for the convention.

In responding to his election as president of the district association which he won from several nominees, Mr. Fallow said a few words in which the sterling worth and integrity of Mr. Wm. Aberhart, Mr. Aberhart, he declared, was a great economic freedom. He had no apologies or excuses to ask for for that statement. It was the first time in his life he could remember of only make it, he said. For centuries you have had an economic system which has been a rich on the wheels of human sorrows. You will have organized spellbinders who will tell you "it can't be done." You have them in Vermilion. "I have been" he said "for twelve years demonstrating to the "it can't be done." In Vermilion that it can be done." He reminded his selection as president of this association as the proudest moment of his life. Aberhart simply tells you that Man has been told for 2000 years such the truth. Learn the truth for yourselves — do not take anybody's word for it. Nothing but the truth will set you free. He cautioned in closing against those "messengers of woe" and "spell-binding orators" who will break in upon you, but don't pay any attention to them; they have nothing to offer you. He was proud to follow Aberhart as a leader Mr. Fallow was awarded a storm of applause at the close of his address.

Upon being selected, the delegates were asked to address the gathering which all did, their remarks being well received by the audience. Mr. Wray who will represent the Mannville district, based his thoughts upon the writings of the apostles. He quoted "the man is himself was fit to govern another." One must have divine guidance. He said "Man cannot serve God and Mammon." We are now trying to serve Mammon in the capitalistic system. Mr. Aberhart is basing his economic system on truths as revealed in the scriptures. We had come to the parting of the ways. We must either continue to follow the capitalistic system with its evils and failures or follow Social Credit with its enormous stores of progress, development and happiness for everybody

Mr Bury did not agree with those who thought that this economic system could not be put into use if the

WHAT GOES ON IN EVERY HOME

Watch in your own home how The Vermilion Standard — or any other good newspaper — is read. Possibly the weather for the day is a first matter of interest; and perhaps the main headlines on the front page are scanned; but it is a pretty safe thing to say that women readers will turn very early to the advertisements of local firms which advertise fashion items, food items, and other offerings related intimately to current needs and desires.

Every woman knows what she wants — not perhaps in the precise form or color, or variety or manner, but certainly in the main matters of her desire or need. This applies to clothes, hats, shoes, food items, beauty preparations and many items pertaining to home furnishing. And so women are eternally on the watch for information - -and for temptation! They are swiftly perceptive of the advertisements which present and propose the things of their desire or need. And obviously it is those retailers who advertise to them who stand the best chance of their custom.

It is the same in the case of men. Few men buy impulsively. When they leave home each day for their place of employment, it is not just to get rid of their money. What they buy is, mainly, something whose purchase has been planned—clothes or other forms of apparel, hardware items, motoring sundries, shaving and other bathroom needs, plants, books, and so on. Men, like women, have been reading between the lines with their ripening desires and intentions, and of course they go in largest numbers to those retailers who have been informing them and soliciting their custom.

All of us, instinctively, go where the light is, not where the darkness is. Advertisements are light, and so they attract the buyers to those stores which they illumine.

The way to get business is to ask for it. Can the truth of this statement be successfully disputed? And here is another equally true statement: The public buys from those who invite its custom.

AGRICULTURE THE ROOTS

"The well being of a people is like a tree accordingly to its roots, manu factur and commerce are the trunk so. If the root is injured the leaves fall, the branches break away and the tree dies." Shaoyang (Chinese Empire (1786 B.C.)

The town clerk is in receipt of very encouraging letter from a tax payer. The writer hopes one point in the return it would like to see adopted in the event it possible and for which the schedule of discounts allowed this year had the same point in view. The writer says, I am sure if the tax payers could be brought to realize the importance of early tax payments as a profitable business transaction between themselves and the town it would be of great benefit to all concerned and would result in benefit to the mill rate again.

WHITE BREAD, THE COMPLETE FOOD

Every some years efforts were made by individuals and organizations to induce people to eat less white bread and more bran bread. Month those efforts were calculated to be fair justice to the manufacturers of patent foods containing large quantities of bran flour—in advance of the Minnesota "Bran Day however Minnesota issued a warning against consuming bran to excess—saying there are little health to be derived from its use. The human alimentary tract with quantities of indigestible fibre in bran flour—the white bread regarded as being a complete food because the baker adds vitamines to the flour to make it rise and sometimes the calcium carbonate and when a man eats a pile he usually adds butter. Then supplies are taken which is also deficient in the milling. For thousands of years men have struggled to obtain and purify their flour and make a tasteful dough digestible. Perhaps we are tending why we should run away from a food that has served our fathers so well!

A More Beautiful Canada

Canada has been richly endowed with great natural beauty and, except where man in cities, towns and villages has turned that loveliness into a backdrop of garbage dumps, the land is a vista of endless charm. Just as a man is oft-times judged by his clothes, so is a community appraised by its environment, and that environment is at once the responsibility of every member of the community, individually and collectively. The home attire all is the starting point for the most effective re-beautification of the spots despoiled of their natural grace, and where each home is beautified, the fulfillment of a comprehensive scheme of beautification on civic or community lines is made a comparatively easy matter.

This has been amply proved by the success of the More Beautiful Canada campaign sponsored by the Canadian Horticultural Council a few years ago. The idea of beautifying the home surroundings had in many places, only to be suggested to be acted upon, and the Canada possesses many more beautiful towns, villages and homes come lately by all the more lovely in their loveliness. The use of flowers and plants on the porches and walls of a home, in the gardens, and in odd vacant spaces is not a matter of money, but of taste. It does deeper than that, in reality it strikes at the roots of civilization. Beauty represents the supremacy of the higher over the lower, of form over matter. So much so, that if the world were one beautiful garden and every inhabitant interested in it, there would be no more war. Every human being is influenced in a greater extent by his surroundings than is generally realized. Where there is harmony and the harmony of flowers symbolizes the liberation of the higher impulses—there can be no discord.

The story is the oldest one known. Adam was appointed to dress the garden of Eden and to keep it (Gen. ii 15). He did not do so and was sent out of the garden to till the ground, (Gen. iii 23). Children reared to love flowers have their hearts filled with love for beauty and thus have less room in their hearts and minds for the things that hurt and destroy.

Still another point of view. The progressiveness and thrift of a community or municipality are often reflected in its appearance, and, while the Dominion is stressing the importance of the influx of tourists, the best advertising that any community can do is to present a pleasing appearance.

Miss Lottie Elliott returned to her home at Lavoie on Wednesday from a visit to Kitscoty, on Thursday morning.

BOWTELL BULLETIN

The Young People's play was a decided success and we feel we have discovered, or rather, rediscovered, several might be Hollywoodites. The play produced was a 3-act comedy, "The Slips and Jerkaeene Detective Agency." The Deacon Slips as played by Bill Dixon was very well done and we feel Bill has only added another laurel to an already large wreath; he was favorably accepted by an appreciative audience. Mae Pruton played the part of Freda, the Deacon's daughter, and made a charming flapper. She was especially charming to Leslie Jerkaene up-and-coming sayer for Coyote suits. This part was particularly well done by Glen Nelson, a stranger to the Bowtell stage and who made a fine debut. The lady of the farm (a busy whose ownership the plot thickens) Mildred Greendale, was delightfully filled by Violet Debard, who was perfectly capable in it. Her lover, Paul Sherman, an earnest young man, was effectively carried out by Donald Harrison another old-timer. The villain Caleb Slagbird, a would-be city slicker, was carried out by Eddie Preston, whose "smoothness" was oft-time spoiled by his up-to-date costume (not fashionable son. Harold Wrighting; this latter part was played by Charlie Young of Turkey Hill, who was kind enough to make several unpleasant rides to practises. Between the two Slagbirds, the Coyote sales agent and the Deacon the show was boosted onwards. The attorney, who made customary remarks, was played by Harold Knutson. Miss Eunice Moredough the old maid in the matrimonial market, was taken by Gwen Dunsmore and offered a good comedy part.

The young people owe a sincere and hearty vote of thanks to Mrs. M. E. Robinson, their director, who spared neither time nor effort to make the production a success. We realize that without her help our play would have lacked many finishing details. Mrs Robinson has had a busy winter directing plays, but whether it be at an evening sandwich filling or making boards for the Deacon, she showed herself perfectly capable and willing. We trust she will continue her interest in amateur dramatics in Bowtell.

We regret to report the departure of Mr. and Mrs. James and family from this district. They have made a wide circle of friends here who will greatly miss them. We wish them all success and prosperity in their new home in the Wildmere district.

Col. W. C. Craig of North Paitlerord was in Vermilion this week.

OTTAWA SCOUTS IN EDMONTON

Scoutmaster Marshall, Commissioner and four scouts at the division and district troop, went to Edmonton on Thursday where they will attend the garden rally in honor of Sir Robert Baden Powell, Chief Scout Accompanying the Scoutmaster were the following scouts: Roy Chamberlain Ottawa; Albert Tovell, Ottawa, Jim Rothern, Byrd Hill; Mason Dixon, Queen's Park.

These scouts made a smart appearance here before leaving, being dressed in brand new, complete uniforms.

A noteworthy feature also is the fact that these boys have worked and earned enough money to finance their trip and new uniforms

Peyoil goggled at him.

"Oh, hell, man! There's no use skirmishin' with us. We found the bandanna you dropped when you stuck the pistol in old man Carr's pocket. Come across."

"I got the pistol from Mitt' Sam's desk," said Peyoil. "What now?"

"You come with us," said Jameson shortly.

CHAPTER XVII.

Sheriff Carey sprang to his feet as Jameson's car stopped outside his office. He had just taken the steps and a bedroom and seen him tucked away for the night under a dose of Bromide. He ran down the steps and almost jerked Jameson from the wheel. Then he saw Peyoil huddled in the back seat.

"What the got, Ken?" he demanded. "This's as bad a mess as I ever saw. Old Joe's quietly crazy. He seems to didn't tell me about that shootin' because he can't."

"Is he drinkin' again?"

"He is not but I gave him some dope. Anybody who can throw some light on this biz'll be doin' a favor . . . ."

"That's what I brought Stone and this man for. Take him inside, Jim."

Carey drew Peyoil forth and gave one indignant sniff at him.

"You smell like somethin' the dog buried," he growled. "Where'd you get that stuff from?" . . . Peyoil crouched and gibbered . . . "I been pinchin' the people who use that for three years an' now I'm gonna be nerve to come right to my office stinkin' of it. Come inside."

Inside the little office, Carey flung Peyoil into a chair and turned to Stone.

"Shoot," he said tersely. "And for God's sake try to git on the target the first shot."

Without a word, Stone laid on the desk the bandanna neckerchief, the Derringer pistol, the pieces of cigarettes and the entire one that he had taken from Dustin. Then:

"I reconstruct the affair this way," he said. "Here's what I can swear to. . . ." He told them only what he actually knew . . . That he had taken those peyoil cigarettes from Dustin's pocket. Then he swung on Peyoil, who sat staring dully at him.

"Where did you get this pistol?" he asked shortly. "We know you shot Keene. The smell of the peyoil on the neckerchief gives you away. Where'd you get this pistol from?"

"Unless you want to hang, you'd better talk," said Carey.

Still Peyoil stared at them. Finally he muttered dully:

"I took the pistol from Mitt' Sam's desk . . . ."

"Whose desk?"

"His nemme Dustin," said Jameson quickly. "How did you put the gun in Mr. Carr's pocket? Better tell all you know. . ."

"Easy enough," said Peyoil. "I slipped in through the back door that minute the light went out. I shot the gun an' stuck it in Mr. Carr's coat. Then I got out before the fight came on again."

"Why did you want to shoot a man you'd never seen?" asked Stone. "A man you didn't even know. . . . Why?"

"I knowed who he was," said Peyoil. "Mitt' Sam told me. He was a man who come out here to . . . to . . . His name's Kane," he said.

"Keene," said Stone sharply. "Not Kane but Keene. . . ."

"Same thing," said Peyoil obstinately. "Mitt' Sam told me so."

"I see . . . ." Stone leaped to his feet with an exih. "This poor fool was played on by Dustin. Dustin holds Carr's note for half the Hour-Glass. He wanted the other half that Keene owns. He played on this poor fool . . . . When he jammed the gun and pistol in Carr's pocket he did Dustin tell you to shoot this man?" He wheeled on the shrinking man.

"No, sir. He didn't know I had the gun . . ."

Carey's face was blood-red with astonishment, stared from man to man.

"Why would Sam Dustin be mixed up in a thing like this?" he asked.

"I'll tell you. . . ." Stone repeated about the note. He told about his fight with Dustin at Soda Springs. "There's another reason why he wants the Hour-glass, too," he said. "I'll show you. I've got it in the car."

He almost leaped down the steps to the car and was back instantly with a leather portfolio such that he emptied on the desk.

"Gold ore," he said. "From a vein that Keene found on the lands of the Hour-glass. Look at this piece. . . ."

His hand lit on that brown-stained piece that he had picked up by the road. Carey looked at it unbelievingly. Peyoil gave a half-scream and slumped into a heap over the desk. "Mitt' Sam!" he shrilled. "For Christ's sake not that! I didn't go to do it. . . . My God . . ." And Peyoil moaned and moaned till they thought he had lost what little mind he had.

"There's a lot behind this that we haven't uncovered," said Stone. "Peyoil . . ." His tone rang out sharply. "Where's old man Kane?"

"I . . . I don't know . . ."

"I told you what Dunton said," said Jameson. "That's blood on that stone. . . ."

". . . I didn't go to do it," quavered Peyoil. The sound of his own voice scared him. "Mitt' Sam said you'd find it out. . . . Oh God! He knows I never meant it. . . ."

Stone shook his head at the others who half rose from their seats.

"How'd do you come to do it, Peyoil?" he asked.

"I never! I never! God I don't know," wailed Peyoil. "I was layin' by the fire . . . Mitt' Sam had some o' them cigarettes. I got 'em from his pack . . . . He I didn't . . . He got 'em out and laid 'em by his saddle and I swiped 'em. . . . Then I went to sleep. . . . When I come to they Sam was shakin' me and old man Kane was lyin' there with his head all bashed in. That rock was in my hand but. . . . I swear to God, I don't know no more'n you do about a fight. . . ."

"He wonder we couldn't find Kane," said Stone in a half-whisper. "Where'd you bury him?" he asked quietly though the very hair on his head was rising.

"Up there. . . . In Red Water canoe," said Peyoil vaguely.

Stone turned to Carey and Jameson.

"The whole story hinges on whether this poor fool is telling the truth or not," he said. "If he's tellin' the truth, then old man Kane's been murdered. Get me two posses at once, Carey. If it's all right with you, I'll take this poor devil to show me the place. If we find Kane's body then we'll know Peyoil's told us the truth and that Sam Dustin is the man we want. . . ."

"For the murder of Gerald Keene," quoth Jameson.

Stone laughed and Carey stared at Jameson.

"I got Epps to give out the false news of his death," he said. "He's not dead and he isn't going to die for some time, I hope. I just want to see what Dustin's game'll be when he hears Keene was killed by Carr."

"What do you reckon'll happen . . . ? You'll be gone three or four days. You can't keep a dead man that long. Dustin'll find out that Keene's not dead."

"He'll have a better sweat out a warrant against Dustin. You can arrest him, Sheriff, and hold him for murder. Days are be will and know I've taken Peyoil off into the bills."

"That's better. . . ," Carey and up . . . . "What'll you charge him with?"

Stone considered. "I could sweat out a warrant for cattle rustlin' but, he'd get out on bail. I might lodge a charge of complicity in the shooting in the Silver Dollar. . . . What . . . ." He emitted a whoop of joy. . . . "I've got him as sure as shoot. . . . Peyoil's got some of them cigarettes on him and Peyoil says he has been supplied with peyoil by Dustin. . . . I charge him with violation of the Dope Act, Carey. That's a Federal offense as well as a State violation. Grab him on that charge."

Carey rose tempestuously.

"By God," he said; "I'll do it. It's takin' a big chance. All depends on what you find. If that evil Peyoil has told the truth . . . which I don't believe . . . then Dustin is in one hell of a mess. If he's lied . . . and if I accept the richest cattleman in Seco valley on a false charge, then I'm in one hell of a fix and I'll have just cause to be fired."

"That's all right . . . ." Stone grinned. "You get me the posses and after I've gone, arrest Dustin and don't let him talk or get word I'll leave at day-light."

They left at dawn with a sandstorm brewing. It began in fitful puffs that started the tumble-weed rolling across the mesa and raised whirling "dust-devils" across the plain. All day they pounded along through the growing storm and made a dry camp at Coyote Crossing. The posses made no attempt to forage but stood with lowered heads and turned their rumps to the wind that drove the sand like shot and piled it deep in the blankets.

"It'll be clear to-morrow," growled Peyoil. "A sandstorm never lasts but three days."

Dawn came clear and cold and Peyoil lapsed into sullenness that grew with each mile. Old dreams came to him, old visions appeared in that long, Dustin'll find out that Keene's not dead."

a series of broken scenes. For years of one of that debasing drug had worked on a brain that was never too strong. They were never pleasant dreams. Peyoil does not work like that; they were just the horrible phantasmagoria of a partially disordered brain.

Grinning faces bobbed above a saw-toothed sky-line. They hung to that sky-line with claw-like hands as birds hang to a telegraph wire and they gibbered and gibbered at him and then ducked behind their menacing claws. A sweeping face, the face of old Ded Kane, stared at him from a distant pile of rocks where Stone saw only a coyote yelling. From time to time Peyoil wiped the sweat out of his eyes and furtively looked at Stone. How much of these things was real? How much did Stone see?

But Stone rode on through the shifting sands deep in thought. Peyoil took no one of his infernal cigarettes into pieces and chewed the fragments as a dog chews an old boot. Suddenly:

A burro blundered out from the mesquite-tangle and jogged across the trail, a loaded burro with a topheavy pack of two bundles, a pick and a shovel . . . Exactly as old Ded Kane used to make up his packs! Peyoil could even see the "Square-hitch" that held it! That burro was not six paces in front of Stone when Peyoil shouted, his voice shrill with fright. Then the unspeakable happened.

Stone rode straight through that burro as a man rides through smoke. Then the burro with his pack disappeared in the sand-laden air and Stone rode on, his head bowed down over the place where he had been.

Peyoil shouted aloud in shrill-voiced terror and Stone turned on him with a hearty curse. He saw at once that something very real was troubling Peyoil. The man was mad-crimsoned with fright but there was no sight in them. If he was seeing things they were not the visions seen by mortal man. His mouth was working and white foam lay in the corner of his mouth.

"My God," he moaned, and his voice broke . . . . "Did you see that? You rode right through him! A loaded burro right in your face and you rode straight through him!"

Stone jerked him from his saddle, swung from his own horse and stood over the cowering man.

"This sand-storm's bad enough," he growled, "without my havin' to ride the range with a man who's half a drug-addict. Where's any burro?"

"There! . . . My God! There he is again! . . . ."

Peyoil's wavering finger swung to a spot; then it bobbed up and down though following a moving burro. Stone's eyes narrowed. He licked a finger and saw, above a mesquite bush, the figure of a burro! For a second he stared at it half-paralyzed, then he realized what it was and he began to laugh; a relieved cackle of shrill-voiced laughter that startled himself.

"It's a mirage, you fool," he said. "Look! That's from . . . see the line of light under his feet; between him and the ground!"

He picked up a rock and threw it with all his force at the spot. The ground exactly where the burro stood.

Some prospector over in another valley has got in just the right position for his reflection to be lifted over to us. Let's go on."

But Peyoil would not go on. He hung to Stone's stirrup leather and he babbled wildly as Stone had never heard a man talk before; exactly like a frightened child trying to talk courage into itself.

"Say, Stone," he said in a burst of incoherence, do you believe the dead kin come back?"

"What? Come back? Come back from where? Do you reckon any man who's got a warm place in hell would try to come back to this place? Who'd you think you saw, Peyoil?"

"It looked to me like old Ded Kane was at that burro's head. He seemed to see him with a chaw of tobacco as big as a lemon in his face and a six-shooter in each stickin' in his boot like he always carried it."

New Building Material

Phoenix like, German ashes of the future will rise out of ashes of rather ash cans scientific ashes assert. Garbage from ash cans is to be processed to produce a building material having the elasticity of felt, the solidity of wood, the non-conductivity of cork and the non inflammability of asbestos, it was asserted by German professors charged with research in 'ersats'.

Airways Across The Seas

Working Out Plans To Straddle The World With Airship Services

Air travel pioneers of various nations are working out plans to straddle the world with airship services running to a regular schedule.

American and German interests are in the forefront of the negotiations.

Already plans to run German and American airship lines across the North Atlantic have been announced. The South Atlantic is already spanned.

Now the Pacific, the Far East, Europe, North and South American, Canada, and probably other Dominions are to be linked.

South Africa will be joined to Germany by zeppelin.

A giant new ship is near completion on the airship docks at Friedrichshaven, Germany.

When it is ready it will make a few trial trips across the North Atlantic. Then it will be replaced by other ships and will run on the South American service. .

American plans include a Pacific service and a trans-Atlantic service. A base will be made in Britain either at Cardington's R.A.F. station or at Southampton.

Southampton's place, as yet incomplete, includes a floating airship dock, but this will only be built if a regular part of call is made there.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

UPON THIS HOUSE

A mark is set upon this house which is
With sadness broken and one faded door
Left open for the wind's impatient hands
To clutch and slam, to seize and slam once more
Through hours and days for lack of better toy.
But, though its portal thus ungoverned wails,
Not caring whether sorrow come or joy,
The mark is there, the stranger beholden
To brave the sullen aspect of the place.
Is it the spell of utter loneliness.
Is it the mockery of its one-time grace,
Is it the threat its shadowing walls express
That makes them pass in haste and silently?
Upon this house, the mark of mystery!

Find Butterfly in Mine

Miners in Frickley Colliery at Yorkshire, England, recently saved a brilliantly-colored butterfly from the mine. They found it one and one-half miles from the pit bottom and 1900 feet below ground. It was thought to have been taken into the mine with straw for the pit ponies. The men carried it to the surface and released it.

Customer: "What do you mean by sending me such a tough fowl?"

Butcher: "Why my good man, do you happen to know that that bird has won first prize at all the local poultry shows for the last 12 years."

Little Helps For This Week

Now unto Him who is able do exceeding abundantly above all that we can ask or think, according to the power that worketh in us, unto Him be glory throughout all ages, world without end. Ephesians 3 20-21.

We would not ask for meagre gifts
When Thou dost yearn to give us all;
But for the life, this little hour,
Ask all Thy love and care and power.

God so loveth us that He would make all things channels to us and messengers of His love. Do for Him sake deeds of love, and He will give Himself unto you. Still thyself, thy eyes cares and thoughts for Him, and He will speak to thy heart. Ask for Him power and He will give thee Himself. Truly a secret hidden thing is the love of God, known only to them that seek it, and to them also secret, for what man can have of it here is how slight a foretaste of that endless ocean of His love.

A Body Builder

Mr. Jean Fraser, of R. 2, Pte. St. Hamilton, Ont., writes: "I was run down, had no appetite, I lost weight and strength and could not sleep. The state of my health was a source of worry to my friends. Fruit-a-tives or Fruit-a-tives Tablets were recommended me but I did not believe they would help me. However, I got a box and before I had finished the first box I felt better. I continued taking them and now I am in perfect health, sleep well, have a good appetite and weigh 170 pounds. Fruit-a-tives have done me a world of good and I am glad to recommend them to others."

Fruit-a-tives are picked up in every fruit orchard in Canada. Get a box today. Large size, unless or boxes, 25c.

A Valuable Painting

Grime-Covered Picture May Prove To Be Original Rembrandt

A grime-covered picture sold at auction for $36 may be an original Rembrandt and worth from $20,000 to $30,000, it became known at Ottawa. Steps to learn the authenticity of the painting were immediately taken by the purchaser, Professor J. H. Graham, the auctioneer, refused to divulge.

Potential value of the painting was not realized until after it had been cleaned and the signature of the Dutch master appeared, together with date, 1673.

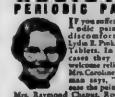
RELIEVE PERIODIC PAIN



If you suffer periodic pain and discomfort, try Lydia E. Pinkham's Tablets. In most cases they bring welcome relief. As Mrs. Caroline Newman says, "They ease the pain".

Mrs. Raymond Chapel, Route 4, Tilbury, Ont. says, "I suffered something terrible. Had such backaches and headaches I was worn out. Your Tablets helped me". Let them help you, too. Ask your druggist.

There are 11 breakfast food factories in Canada of which 11 are in the farm, two in British Columbia, and one in Manitoba. Canadian prepared breakfast foods have gained an interesting national reputation. Sending their way into almost every country of the world. The greatest amount however valued at $2,500,000 goes to the United Kingdom.

Beauties With Their Beasts

Just another bunny and the usual picture, but the beasts are overshadowed by the beauties in this display of feminine and pachydermic pulchritude.

The girls hail from three nations, Canada, the United States and Great Britain, and the handmade ear elephants were acquired by them during a visit to Ceylon. They are bringing them home in their baggage—pardon us, trunks, but that won't be until their world-cruise in the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Britain is over in May. The picture was made on the boat-deck of the Empress of Britain at Colombo.

THE POPULAR GLADIOLUS

The gladiolus is deservedly one of the most popular flowers in Canada. It is a very little care except at planting and during time. About the middle of May is a good time for planting, but as pointed out by the Dominion Experimental Farms Department there is no reason why a start cannot be made earlier, especially because the time must be one of the ground and the soil found sandy loam well fertilized. It is always best to plant in rows as by doing so it is easier to keep down weeds. In a fairly large soil they should produce a fair display even if they were not looked after. Planting the corms at different times will make quite different in appearance. Among the large-growing varieties are becoming more popular every year. The corms are obtained from the seedsman should be planted from four to six inches deep and about three inches apart in as sunny position in the garden.

ISLAY NEWS

KNOX UNITED CHURCH, ISLAY
Services each Sunday as follows.—
Sunday School at 11 a.m.
Preaching Service at 3 p.m.
Rev. W. B. Leard, Pastor.

Mr and Mrs Baiden take this means of expressing their sincere thanks to the people of Islay, Kitscoty and district for the presentations made to them on the eve of their departure. The tokens of esteem are greatly appreciated.

Miss Margaret Givens of Camrose Normal is now enjoying the Easter holidays at home after spending a week practise teaching in the two school rooms here.

Miss Alison Beverett is home for Easter from the Carbeau high school, Edmonton.

Mr W. Wray of Calgary was a Social Credit speaker at a well attended meeting on Monday afternoon, held in the United church.

Miss Lila Bigwar arrived home half week after spending the winter in California. On the way home she visited Mrs. Reid (nee Margaret Cavill) at Coleman, her brother Earl and family in Pincher Creek, and Mrs. Bert Stoffer in Edmonton.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd McFadden of St. Albert were Easter visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hughie Goldthorpe.

Mrs. Leard and Mrs. Bill Roebuck and daughter Marian are visitors in Vancouver and Victoria at present. The local teachers are spending the holidays at their homes Miss Cain north of Mannville and Miss Goodwin in Vegreville.

Miss Dorothy Stone of the Lamont high school staff is spending the Easter vacation at home.

Dr Webber of Lamont was an Islay visitor at the home of Mrs. H. Stone.

The sympathy of the entire district is extended to Mrs. James Fraser on the loss of her husband and to the Pleasant Valley community in the loss of a good neighbor, friend and church worker.

The two last arguments attending Vermilion high school in Grade XI made a very creditable showing. Kath Bell with 76 per cent. This speaks well for the ground work received in the Islay schools.

TO PROTECT SHRUBS FROM DOGS

A dog at liberty, even in the seclusiveness of newly-found freedom, seldom misses an opportunity to explore every hole and corner in the course of his perambulations, and a cat just goes and fights where it likes. Unfortunately this super-abundant energy is accompanied by damage to garden and other property in the environs. Neither the dog nor the cat have the slightest respect for flower beds or for the cherished ornamental palms by the front porch and often these animals show a distinct antipathy to shrubbery. In their boisterous way they cause a lot of damage and it is not always possible to drive them away in time. However, an enterprising entomologist has found a way out of the difficulty. Taking a hint from the methods of entomologists in dealing with insect pests on garden plants, it was discovered that nicotine sulphate, the widely used insecticide, provided an effective measure to keep dogs and cats at bay. The colour of nicotine is very repulsive to dogs and cats, and as their sense of smell is very much keener than that of human beings it is possible to use the compound so diluted that flowers, shrubs, buildings, walls or gates are not damaged, but cats and dogs will avoid the sprayed areas. The spray evaporates in time and will not be washed off by rain. Therefore it should be renewed every two weeks, and after heavy rains. A final solution should be used, such as a tablespoonful of nicotine sulphate to five gallons of water. The solution is also a good insecticide. Nicotine sulphate is sold in seed and feed stores.

Here and There

Lieut. F. A. Georgine, recently retired secretary-treasurer, Canadian Pacific Steamships, Ltd., has been elected president of the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association at the annual meeting of the Association held recently, succeeding Lieut.-Col. R. C. Cross, of the Ministry of National Defence.

D. S. Thomson, who has been appointed assistant superintendent, Canadian Pacific Railway, Smiths Falls, was, prior to his promotion, chief clerk in the office of the vice-president and general manager of the railway at Montreal. On leaving to take up his new appointment he was presented with a gold standard railroad watch and a purse of money by his fellow-workers in the office.

Just 116 years ago the first Daily arrived in Saguenay and a few nights ago his descendants, Marjorie and John Daly, celebrated the momentous occasion at a supper dance at the Royal Yacht Club, Quebec. This makes the sixth generation of the Daly family continuously resident in Canada.

Sixty-two calls at European ports will be made by the Pre dent press "Bester" class cargo steamers of the Canadian Pacific Fleet this summer, according to the sailing schedule recently issued by Canadian Pacific Steamships. Transiting will be made and 8 half days in each direction and visits each at London, Antwerp and Hamburg.

An appeal to the press to mould public opinion in support of larger grants for medical research, particularly into the cause and control of cancer, was voiced by Lt.-Governor Bruce of Ontario, at the Royal York Hotel recently at the banquet which wound up the seventh annual convention of the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association, Ontario-Quebec Division.

Skl-ing and bear-hunting were combined at the Bruce Lodge, Metamora, recently, when two young skiers and Toronto, accompanied by a photographer, routed a bear out of his den and stood over while the animal was "shot" by a movie camera.

The Orient with its mystery and its allure, its brilliant colors and picturesque scenes, will form the inspiration for the Banff Arts Ball, biggest event of the spring season, to be held the week after Easter at the Canadian Pacific Royal York Hotel, Toronto. The historic theme for the ball is the royal festival at Samarcand held in 1404 to celebrate the Emperor Tamerlane's conquest of India.

Musical and literary England and the England of the great cathedrals will be visited this summer by a party under the leadership of Dr. Alfred Whitehead, organist of Christ Church Cathedral, Montreal. Itinerary of the tour which will take about a month has been arranged by Cox Tombs, Ltd., in connection with the Canadian Pacific Steamships.

Mind the same research bent put into other industries as has been employed in the automobile bust now, you would not hear so much to-day about the black rust of living, said Col. Frank Chappell, of General Motors, Ltd. speaking at a lunch at the Lord Nelson Hotel, Halifax, recently.

Bright Stories about Wine
HOPE FROM THE BALKANS
We said in our last piece that wine-making might become larger in interest than it is at present as it gets cheaper. It is from the beginning that the grape native to North America, the vitis labrusca, had its own special merits, and had not persisted in their thousand and one experiments with vitis vinifera, which is famous but consumptive so far as this continent is concerned. It is worth noting, though it may be more interesting to the vineyardists than to the general public, that in Ontario we have been conducting some further experiments with the vine of Europe which give promise of greater success than ever before. We have been testing a variety of vinifera which grows well in Bulgaria in the hope, if not indeed the expectation, that it will prove more suitable to our climate on the Niagara Peninsula than any of its numerous brethren which have had all merits but the important one of being able to live.

Stranger things have happened than that the traditional European grape should prosper on our soil. There is knowledge reaped by experience now at the disposal of the horticultural experts which was not available a hundred years ago or even ten years ago. What has happened to the wheat in the West may well happen to the grape in the East. The hybridists are at work and are prepared to swear that sooner or later they will produce a grape which will have all the disease-resisting qualities of the native grape and the special qualities so much admired in the European grape. There is no reason why it shouldn't be so. There is the man in Russia who is called the Russian Burbank. His name is L. V. Michurin. He has developed grapes to flourish in Siberia. And if in Siberia, why not in the Peace River district? And where grapes grow, sound wine can be made.

THE WEATHER

Each week brings its own features—a heavy one-hour rain fell over the entire district here on Sunday night. This did much to draw the frost from the ground and also to help make the remaining snowdrifts disappear. The rain, like the high of the measure from the snow, had all sunk out into the ground by morning. Much higher temperatures have prevailed, although slight frosts are still registered at nights.

ISLAND HILL

The many friends of James Fraser [illegible] will be pleased to learn [illegible] his position. He was well and favorably known to the large majority of our community as a good Christian man a real sport and a faithful husband.

A meeting of the Social Credit group will be held at the school on Monday, 29th inst. Mr. Snyder, the president, has an important message to convey to all members from the convention. Our motto is "Join Social Credit and Save your Homes."

One thing that struck us at the Vermilion Convention—and we have attended many conventions in our time—was the expeditious way in which the business was conducted and the real grasp possessed by a large number of the delegates of the principles of Social Credit.

Moreover, another good sign was when the delegates were requested to contribute towards the expenses of the meeting they subscribed willingly and spontaneously the cost tumbled over. When men do this during the period of so-called depression it proves in a tangible way that there is something substantial behind the movement and that they are prepared to give its support, not alone by their pocketbook by subscribing generously their hard earned cash.

Noticed During the Week—
"Tall" at the convention: Mr and Mrs. Hawkes heading south on a visit to Mr and Mrs. Jenkins; Pat McCann bridge Jr heading for town accompanied by three ladies (two's company; Pat, there's a crowd); Mary McKinnon and Maggie McCann having a friendly argument whether a loaf was a raisin one or not. (now, ladies, it stands to reason that a loaf which contains one raisin is a raisin one!)

Phillip Hawkes was the first worker on the land of John Arnold the first man to need.

Mod Acheson as the only one in this district to face the elements last Saturday week by bringing a load into town to herds awarded on May 20-20-1

Bob McCann and John McDonnell celebrated Easter Monday by [illegible] Barrie Harmon and several [illegible] boys debating "what do we [illegible] Social Credit, of course."

The value of egg farmers sold in Canada during the year ended May 31, 1931, was $876,202.

Builders And Wreckers

Glancing through a little trade magazine the other day the writer came across a short bit of verse entitled "Wreckers", which, in these days and times, is worthy of still wider circulation. So we reproduce it

I watched them tearing a building down,
A gang of men in a row;
With a bo-heave-ho and a hey yull,
They swung a beam and the side wall fell.

I asked the foreman, "Are these men skilled
And the men you'd hire if you had to build?"
He gave a laugh and said, "Why, no!
Just common labor is all I need.
I can easily work in a day or two
What it took years to build."

I thought to myself as I went my way,
Which of these roles have I tried to play?
Am I a builder who works with care,
Measuring life by the rule and square?
Am I shaping my deeds to a well-made plan,
Patiently doing the best I can?
Or am I a wrecker, who walks the town,
Content with the labor of tearing down?

All over this world of ours there are men and women earnestly striving to build,—people in governments, in churches, in education, in finance, in industry; in business, statesmen around the League of Nations council table, sitting in international conferences, or engaged in diplomatic negotiations. They are trying to build anew out of the wreckage and upheaval of political, economic and social conditions thrown into chaos by the Great War and its bitter aftermath. They are striving to save civilization, and make it a finer thing than anything hitherto known.

But because the times are temporarily out of joint, weaknesses have developed in the economic system, and social evils have become multiplied, in a word, because abnormal conditions exist and many people are in difficulties, the "wreckers" have become bold and with the born blatantly engaged in the cement of all tasks that of tearing down. Men and women who never constructed anything, who lack both the ability and the incentive to construct, are busying themselves in criticizing the efforts of the builders, imputing unworthy motives to them, seeking to wreck anything and everything of a constructive nature that is attempted.

Even the best and most patient of people are inclined to be critical and become fault-finders. In fact, people are people now heard to speak in praise of anything, of any institution, or of any effort that is being put forth." Rather is it not the general attitude to denounce and attack and blame?

The popular thing to-day seems to be to destroy. In some countries they are deliberately trying to immerse nations and all to prevent to the dark ages, in some and other countries the attempt is being made to deprive people of liberties won through suffering and bloodshed of past generations. The wreckers would in a day tear down the constructive work of centuries.

There are those, of course, who still hold fast to the faith that is in them who still believe in liberty as the sacred right of the individual citizen, who hold true to democratic forms of government and trust in the people and hatred of dictatorial autocracies.

Builder or wrecker—which are you? Which class has brought mankind to its present civilization? Which class lifted mankind from the caveman stage? Which group has developed modern medicine, which is responsible for modern inventions, which built our transportation and communication systems our modern towns and cities, which brought into being the higher standard of life in this twentieth century? And was it not the wreckers who precipitated the Great War and are responsible for the whole train of evils which have followed.

The builders are still building in the face of enormous difficulties and the opposition of the wreckers, the builders are striving to save civilization while the wreckers would destroy through revolution and bloodshed in order that out of civilization a crash they may reap goulish benefits.

Each of us may well take stock of ourselves, study our present habits of thinking, examine our actions, watch our words—in brief, take a measure of our lives and see whether we are builders, patiently doing the best we can, or merely wreckers—content with the labor of tearing down.

Indian Did Not Forget

Omaha Girl To Lawyer Who Saved His Son In Trial

Sixteen months ago at a Manaimo jury acquitted Andrew Mosez, shepherd Port Alberni Indian, of a charge of attempted murder—a charge laid after an Indian from the west coast of Vancouver Island, who had allegedly stolen Andrew's girl-wife, was stabbed through the heart and saved from death by a young Victoria surgeon.

For two days the jury listened to how Andrew had followed his pretty 18-year-old wife whom he had married according to Indian custom.

When he found her there was a fight and Charlie Sam was stabbed in the heart. Sam's life was in doubt for more than a month but he recovered eventually and Mosez went on trial

When the jury returned its verdict Chief Mosez, Andrew's father, broke a two-day court room silence. "I don't forget you," he said to R. L. Maitland, K.C., his son's counsel. "I don't forget you save Andrew's life. Andrew's good boy. You won't forget me."

Recently Mr. Maitland received two eight-foot intricately carved totem poles. What each figure and character denotes he will probably never fully know, but whenever he looks at them he will know that the old chief did not forget.

BROKE HER LEG AGAINST A STAIR

Whilst Hampered by Rheumatism

"Two years ago," writes a woman, "I was suffering with rheumatism in my legs, and when walking upstairs one day lost my balance, fell backwards against the stairs, and broke my leg just below the knee. I was in hospital for four months, and when I came out someone advised me to try Kruschen Salts, so I did, and never have no trace of rheumatism. I would not be without a bottle of Kruschen, which I take every morning half a teaspoonful in warm water."—Mrs. M.

The six salts in Kruschen stimulate the liver and kidneys to healthy regular action: assist them to get rid of the excess uric acid which is the cause of rheumatic pains. When poisonous uric acid goes—then the agonies of needle-pointed crystals there's no doubt about those aches and pains going too.

Bank Of Canada

Will Pay Its First Dividend To Shareholders Next July

When the Bank of Canada pays its first dividend next July the amount going to each shareholder will be based upon the time the shareholder has held his stock, it was learned at Ottawa.

Applicants for shares were required to send their orders for $12.50 for each share requested, representing one-quarter of the cost per share. Dividends will be declared therefore, on $12.50 per share from September 1, 1934, to January 2, 1935, and on the full purchase price of $50.00 per share from January 2 to the date of declaration, probably July 2.

The actual rate of dividend will not be known until it is declared by the board of directors, but under section 16 of the Bank Act it must not exceed 4½ per cent. a year, cumulative. Any excess profits over the maximum dividend requirements go to the rest fund and the consolidated revenue fund of Canada.

West Branch Lines

Plan In Mode For Completion Of Two Branch Lines In Northern Saskatchewan

A plan for completion of two branch lines of the Canadian National Railways in northern Saskatchewan was made before the select standing committee on railways by C. R. McIntosh (Lib., North Battleford). Mr McIntosh was supported in his request by F. G. Davies (Cons., Assiniboia).

At present a branch line runs north from North Battleford, Sask., to Mt. Wallberg, a distance of 90 miles, but the remaining 100 miles to Beaver River Crossing is unfinished. This line was projected originally to join North Battleford with Edmonton. Mr McIntosh urged the road be completed, and estimated the cost to be not more than $850,000.

The other line was from North Battleford to Edmonton, via Spruce Lake.

Idea Netted Personal Fortune

Sir Guy Standing Made Money Selling Old War Equipment

If it had not been for the Great War, Sir Guy Standing might not have been able to take up acting as a hobby.

He is well known for the excellence of his paintings and his adventures in the British navy, for which he was knighted by the king. But he said that when the king's sword descended on his shoulders, he had but $40 in his pocket.

Sir Guy, after the war, observed the use of United States tanks, tractors, automobiles and other equipment lined along the Rhine. He formed the Motor Organization, Ltd., set out to buy this equipment and sell it to Europe, which was trying to rehabilitate itself.

When the transaction was completed, Sir Guy discovered Britain had a like amount of leftover war material it would have to get rid of. Such competition would ruin his company, so he managed to buy this equipment as well. It took him years but the company to sell and clear its books, but the result was a large personal fortune for him.

"A fortune," he explained, which permitted me to make acting my favorite hobby.

"That you must be sure of one thing. I'm through with big business. It leaves too many gray hairs."

Sir Guy is 60 and one of Hollywood's popular characters.

Drinking And Driving

Danish Professors Conclude That Three Tots Do Not Mix

Drinking and driving don't mix well concluded two Danish professors, who recently tested the reactions of a group of drivers who had been given the alcoholic equivalent of three nice highballs. Tested by apparatus designed especially to note mental lapses and alertness, it was found that the highball squad were 17 per cent. slower to react than those persons who had gone barefy.

Consumption of alcohol, showed the experiments, adversely affected the speed of the eyes in applying the foot brake and the strength of his grip on the steering wheel.

Little Journeys In Science

THE SPECTROSCOPE

(By Gordon H. Guest, M.A.)

Scientists have shown that the earth and every star which can be observed by its telescope, including the most distant, are composed of the same substances. Of course the proportions are different, but the substances are not.

A great prism in the hands of the great scientist Sir Isaac Newton in 1672 commenced the train of thought that led to this discovery. Newton observed that the prism split up ordinary sunlight into the various colors of which it is composed. The prism was the beginning of a very powerful instrument of science, namely the spectroscope, which was developed about 150 hundred years later. It is this instrument that tells us that all the suns and planets are composed of the same materials in different proportions.

The spectroscope sees more than our eyes enable us to see. Man can only observe those substances that give off vibrations to which our eyes are sensitive. The spectroscope is sensitive to all vibrations that matter sends out. We cannot see colorless gases, but the spectroscope can. In fact this instrument can see gases so plainly that it can tell one from another. This is because every solid and liquid—and every kind of gas sends out vibrations, each having a rate of vibration of its own. Science has determined the rates of vibration of the various solids and gases of which the earth is composed. When the same vibrations come from other planets and suns scientists know that they are composed of the same materials that are in the earth.

Work Carried On By This Body Is Worth Millions To The Farmers

With their work estimated at hundreds of millions of dollars in value to farmers, associate committees of the National Research Council ended their seventh annual convention held at Winnipeg.

Dr. H. M. Tory, president of the council, declared in his windup address that the group had much of Canada's future in its hands as any other body of Canadian citizens. The work was worth millions to farmers, he declared.

Farwell was said to Dr. O. S. Aamodt, University of Alberta, who will shortly join the staff of the University of Wisconsin. Regretting Dr. Aamodt's departure, the council members extended him best wishes in his new work. Tribute to Dr. Tory's work was voiced by Dr. W. C. Motor Car Industry

Demand For Cars In United States Puts Industry In High Gear

The No. 1 industrial colossus of the United States is the motor car industry, is in high gear. In haul-away trucks, in freight cars and in driveaway processions the product of the assembly lines is moving from factory to dealer and on to consumer in greater volume than at any time during the last five years.

Gaining momentum steadily under the impetus of a revitalized consumer demand, the industry has assembled more than 1,813,000 passenger cars and trucks since Jan. 1. During 16 weeks of 1930, the industry produced as many units as were manufactured in all of 1932. Output for that year, in the depression, was 1,431,494 cars and trucks.

WORKS PLAN IS LEFT OVER FOR EASTER RECESS

House ... The House of Commons started a five weeks' Easter recess with the $33,000,000-construction bill left high and dry. After a long day of verbal battles several appropriations were imbedded when the 6 o'clock adjournment hour rolled around and will be re-considered May 30 when parliament reassembles.

The Liberals were charged by Minister of Railways R. J. Manion with blocking the construction bill but they shouted angry denials. The chief stumbling block was a vote of $1,000,000 for a tunnel between the Toronto mainland and a summer resort on Nanlan's Island in the harbor.

Liberals urged the vote be changed and enlarged, if necessary, to start a slum clearance scheme in Toronto, claiming there was no necessity for the tunnel. Conservatives argued the Dominion was obligated by a 1912 agreement to connect the mainland with the island with a bridge or tunnel and painted in glowing terms the development of a seaport base for harbor which would become the serial hub of the continent.

Indication the government intended to do something to relieve slum conditions was given by Minister of Public Works Hugh Stewart.

The Toronto vote should not be shifted to slum clearing, he said, but he advised the house to wait for the legislation to be introduced after the recess dealing with the recommendations of the housing committee.

When the members packed their bags and dashed for the station, the following appropriations had passed through committee stage: Railway grade separation fund, $1,000,000; geological surveys, $1,000,000; Montreal harbor improvements, $3,500,000; Quebec harbor improvements, $1,125,000; canals, $750,000 and western water conservation works, $500,000.

The appropriation of $15,000,000 to guarantee railway equipment securities of the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railway had not been reached.

Flight To Honolulu

Clipper Plane "Pioneer" Makes Trip Under 18 Hours

Honolulu.—The big clipper plane "Pioneer" alighted on Pearl harbor here, after a 2,400-mile flight from Alameda, Calif.

Gliding gracefully down in a wide circle, the giant plane made a perfect Pearl harbor exactly three minutes before her scheduled landing time. The ship had spent 17 minutes crossing over the city and adjacent cane fields.

The clipper travelled the 2,400 miles in 17 hours and 45 minutes, cutting seven hours off the standing record for the distance. At times it hit an 180 mile-an-hour clip.

The clipper's time was just seven hours better than the previous mark in the air service set by the Pan-American Airways when it inaugurated its regular service between San Francisco and Honolulu.

The ship had spent 24 hours and 45 minutes, Eastern Standard time, on the take-off from Alameda, Calif., to the time it touched the water here.

Its crew of six flashed back frequent messages of progress.

Reference to the moon sunset, moonlight, and the beauties of soaring above cloud banks that obscured the water at times, were the only ones which otherwise were no routine as the constant flight of the graceful four-motored craft.

Message Of Loyalty

Premier Bennett Tells Of Canada's Love In Address To The King

Ottawa.—The senate united with the House of Commons in the address to the King expressing loyal and respectful congratulations on the 25th anniversary of his accession to the throne.

Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, senate leader, on motion, and Senator Raoul Dandurand, Liberal leader, as seconder, moved that the upper house join in the address passed last week by the commons.

"We, who possibly best of all citizens of the empire," Senator Meighen said, "know of the blessings that flow from the occupancy of the throne by a person of the character and good common sense of His Majesty the King, are particularly pleased to offer our congratulations. To us who believe that we are of a country wherein the best forms of democratic government had their birth, it is a matter of extreme gratification that at a time when the institutions of democracy have been subjected to a continuous and formidable challenge, as never before in their long history, our institutions, in the full flush of their democracy, should enjoy as practical such as blesses the British Empire."

"We all join heartily in wishing His and happiness to His Majesty King George, to his gracious consort, and to members of the royal family," Senator Dandurand said.

The wheat consultative committee probably will meet in London May 15, it was reported.

SENATE APPROVES BILL TO COMBAT DROUTH MENACE

Ottawa.—Sweeping legislative decks for the Easter recess, the senate gave second and third reading to bills to provide for rehabilitation of drouth and soil drifting areas in the prairie provinces, supply of one-twelfth of the main estimates, and to permit the Bank of Canada to export gold under license as in the case of chartered banks.

The latter statement was precoded to give first reading to measures for a minimum wage, authorizing provision of moneys to meet expenditures and to debentures of the Canadian National Railways during 1935, changes in the copyright act relating to performing rights in music, and to amend the Canada grain act.

The rehabilitation bill to spend $750,000 this year and $1,000,000 annually for a specified period provides a solution of the problem of drouth and soil drifting areas in the western provinces, new Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, senate leader; Senator Raoul Dandurand, Liberal leader; Senator W. A. Buchanan (Lib., Lethbridge), and Senator J. A. Calder (Cons., Regina) take the floor. All agreed the legislation was desirable to fight the menace.

"A large section of our heritage is threatened," Senator Meighen stated, in speaking of drouth and dust storms in the southern portion of Western Canada. Consequently, he continued, it was the part of wisdom for the Dominion to conform with and fund some way of rescuing from this devastation as much of that area as could possibly be saved.

The problem was not a simple one, and many had advanced schemes of solution, Senator Meighen said. Opinion of those whose judgment ought to be best differed in important features. For the present, reforestation seemed to hold sway in the minds of public men in the United States, but there was grave doubt as to whether or not that would accomplish anything in the immediate future.

In speaking of the proposed personnel of the commission, Senator Meighen stated the intention was to combine practical with the theoretical, to associate scientific men with those who had actually lived among and wrestled with problems on the land. The commission would devise experimental tests, the cost of which would be met by the moneys provided.

Senator Dandurand believed the bill would be unanimously accepted by the house.

Senator Buchanan declared he looked upon the bill as important not only to western farmers but to the whole Dominion, because if it succeeded in solving the problem it would benefit every person who had an investment in those provinces. The we were to allow the southern parts of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, which are affected by drouth and soil drifting, to be abandoned without any effort to reclaim them," Senator Buchanan stated, "the loss to the elevator companies, the railways, the mortgage companies and individuals would run into hundreds of millions of dollars.

"I think," Senator Buchanan said, "the commission will probably find it desirable to make a systematic effort to determine the best means for reclaiming and rehabilitating certain areas, and to this end some studies will probably be undertaken to find out the most suitable uses to which the lands can be put."

Increase In Rates

Railway Commissioners Grant Request Per Increase On Interprovincial Traffic

Ottawa.—The board of railway commissioners has decided to grant the request of the Canadian railways for an increase in rates on interprovincial traffic between Canada and the United States to conform with the new emergency increases granted U.S. lines by the interstate commerce commission. Increases which range up to seven per cent. and are limited by maximum rates per hundred pounds, will come into effect on April 23.

The board was convinced shippers would have to pay the increases on international traffic in many cases. The difference would be that if the board refused the application of the Canadian roads the increase would all go to the United States railways.

The principal commodities which will be excluded from the increased rates are Grain, flour, mill products, [illegible] straw, fruits of all kinds, vegetables, livestock, poultry, horses, milk, pulpwood, lumber except certain woods, and fertilizers.

More State Intervention In Business Is Deemed Necessary

Ottawa — Creation of a federal trade and industry commission with wide powers of law enforcement, supervision over business and suppression of unfair, unethical commercial practices, was the main recommendation of the price spreads commission.

It would be a commission of five men, operating directly under the prime minister in somewhat the same way as the Dominion board of railway commissioners.

"We have been forced by the evidence," the report stated, "to conclude the situation calls for a frank recognition of the necessity of more state intervention in business."

The trade commission would be empowered to:

Enforce the Combines Act to retain and restore competition.

Regulate industrial monopolies where open competition cannot or should not be enforced. An industry would be declared monopolistic, exempted from the operation of the Combines Act and subjected to it comes within the supervision of the trade commission.

Sanction and supervise agreements between industrial units modifying cut-throat competition and generally regulate the industry.

Prohibit unfair competitive practices.

Supervise or co-operate in administering laws relating to merchandising and business practice for which no agency exists.

Administer laws to protect consumers.

Regulate security issues for the protection of the investor.

Co-operate with chambers of commerce and boards of trade in development of commercial arbitration or refereeing of business disputes.

Co-operate with other government agencies, federal, provincial or municipal, in solution of trade problems.

Railway Dining Car Rates

Propose Longer Period Of Layover At Winnipeg

Montreal - A proposed rearrangement of dining car runs between Montreal and Winnipeg will not have the effect of transferring the headquarters of the dining car department from Montreal to Winnipeg but result in the longer period of layover being at the latter city, W. W. Swanson, general superintendent of sleeping and dining service, Canadian National Railways stated, here.

Mr. Swindon was making a reply to Ald. Dave Rochon, pro-mayor of Montreal, who stated at a public meeting "Mayor Camillien Houde will fight to the last ditch any decision by the C.N.R. to remove dining car headquarters on the two trans-continental trains from Montreal to Winnipeg."

RE-ARMAMENT OF GERMANY IS LEAGUE PROBLEM

Geneva. — Germany's re-armament and the whole question of preventing further side-stepping of the international treaties was thrust squarely on the doorstep of the council of the League of Nations.

Clarifying the hitherto confused picture of just what procedure would be followed here, French Foreign Minister Pierre Laval submitted a draft resolution on behalf of the governments of Great Britain, France and Italy, and on his own behalf backed it up with a strongly worded denunciation of German re-armament and attempt repudiate treaty obligations by her military decree of March 16.

Great Britain, Italy supported the French spokesman in moreover tain terms but Foreign Minister Joseph Beck of Poland promptly challenged the draft proposed at sitting of the league council and with a scarcely-veiled reference to the Franco-Russian pact said Poland wondered whether certain suggested agreements were not calculated to prejudice rather than ensure the peace of eastern Europe

The draft resolution was couched in such vigorous terms in its expressions that Germany had failed to keep her obligations, and in denouncing unilateral repudiation of treaties generally, as to bring immediately even Berlin semi-official word that it is approved as it stands the league statesmen might as well abandon entirely efforts to get Germany back into the league.

NAZI CIRCLES SURPRISED AT LEAGUE DECISION

Berlin.—This capital was the centre of a series of startling rumors following condemnation of Germany by the League of Nations council for violation of the re-armament clauses of the Treaty of Versailles.

General opinion was there would be a brusque retaliatory gesture by Chancellor Adolf Hitler and the form it would take was the subject of various conjecture. It was variously rumored, although in each case without confirmation, that:

Chancellor Hitler would now denounce the whole of the Versailles Treaty.

Germany would break off diplomatic relations with Britain, France and Italy, which framed the resolution of condemnation voted by the league council.

Germany would admit no further restrictions on its sovereignty and would disregard the demilitarized left bank of the Rhine

A more plausible report was that der fuehrer would call for a nation-wide referendum to show the world that all German people were behind him in his international policies.

In Nazi circles the league's decision came as an overwhelming surprise.

Newspapers contented themselves with attacking the Geneva decision and those who participated a serious in it. Official circles maintained silence It was intimated however, that passage of the Russian resolution constituted obstacle to the return of the reich to the league and to the favorable development of the European situation.

Until a few days ago Germany had regarded France as isolated in its determination formally to ensure the reich for its treaty violation. Britain was viewed as the German spokesman at the Stresa conference and the Italo-Ethiopian wrangling, and to the last the Germans could not believe that the resolution would be passed.

Berlin newspapers indulged in unusually strong language in reporting and commenting on the vote, and "perfidious Albion" and "the Boersen Zeitung, leading financial paper, said in a big headline, and the words "provocation" and warning" marked press comment.

No Wheat Shortage In U.S.

Estimated Production This Year Placed At 625,000,000 Bushels

Indianapolis — The United States need have no fear of a great wheat shortage resulting from drouth and dust storms, said G. E. Farrell, director of the division of grains of the agricultural adjustment administration, here.

Farrell, who conducted the first of a series of conferences to be held throughout the middle west and west on plans for holding a referendum on continuing the wheat control program, pointed out the estimated wheat production for this year is 625,000,000 bushels, which is the normal consumption of that grain In addition there is a surplus of 120,000,000 bushels on hand.

A Song Of Thanksgiving For The KING'S JUBILEE

LONDON, April 30.—John Masefield, the poet laureate of England, has penned a sonnet, a song of thanksgiving for the King's Silver Jubilee, which appeared in print for the first time today. It follows:

"Scattered beneath the mansions of the sun
In distant continents, in every sea,
The many nations are that make us one
King, law and language, give us unity;
Our many peoples seldom speak together,
And yet, in stormy days we link and stand
In consonant purpose facing to the weather,
Swayed by one will and striving as one hand,
Being for freedom and for peace, our way
Is worth men's caring, we may still behold
The world's tomorrow spring from our today
With happier morning brighter than the old;
In hope of such a morrow's dawn we sing
God prosper, bless, and save our Gracious King."

JUBILEE MEDALS FOR THREE LOCAL CITIZENS

Miss Alice Keith, Miss Dorothy Oakley and S. C. Heckbert To Receive Honors

Three Vermilion citizens are to receive handsome silver medals on the occasion of His Majesty's Silver Jubilee celebration of May 6th. They are Miss Alice Keith, matron of the Vermilion municipal hospital, Miss Dorothy Oakley, member of the Vermilion public school teaching staff, and S. Carl Heckbert, well known and prominent business man of the town.

The above information, along with the decorations was received by Mayor Fallon on Wednesday morning. The mayor will present the medals during the Jubilee celebration ceremonies in the park on Monday morning. Three hundred Albertans in all have been selected by the King to receive the medals.

A despatch appearing in the daily papers says that the King personally worked out the basis upon which some of his subjects are to receive medal commemorating his silver jubilee.

A full program on the Jubilee celebration will be found on inside page.

Public School Children To Get Souvenir Flags on Monday

Every public school child attending the Silver Jubilee ceremonies on Monday will receive a Jubilee Flag as a souvenir on the occasion.

MUSICAL FESTIVAL WEDNESDAY, MAY 8th.

The annual Musical Festival will be held in the school auditorium on Wednesday, May 8th, beginning at 1.30 p.m. Entries from schools throughout the district are heavy, there being twenty-three schools represented in the competitions.

The adjudicator on this year's festival is Mrs. Vergne Barnard and Madam J. J. Duggan in the music sections, and Mr. A. L. Doerrie and Mrs. J. L. Mahaffy in the elocution. Both rooms will be utilized for the classes and every effort is being made to prevent overlapping or competition at all events may be run without delays.

Arrangements are being made for the ring of flight Jubilee as was done last year so that younger children who attend from long distances may be properly taken care of while at the school.

It is hoped that the public will continue its generous support of the Festival as a fair remuneration for such a time-consuming service will encourage its financial success.

Washington State Claim

Matter Of Damages From Sulphur Fumes At Trail, B.C., Nears Settlement

The state department at Washington has announced that a conference for the final settlement of the controversy arising from damage done in the state of Washington by sulphur fumes from a smelter at Trail, B.C. was agreed at Ottawa.

The convention, signed by Prime Minister R H Bennett for Canada and by Pierre L. Boal, charge d'affaires, for the United States provides for the appointment of a joint arbitration tribunal which will pass on all damage alleged to have been done to Washington forests, crops and livestock, since Jan 1 1932.

The tribunal will consist of jurists named by the United States and Canada with a chairman to be appointed by both governments from some neutral country.

The convention must be approved by the United States senate and the Canadian parliament.

State department officials said it would be transmitted to the senate immediately for the earliest possible action

The convention also provides that the Canadian government will cause to be paid $350,000 for damages up to Jan. 1, 1932, as recommended by the report made by the international joint commission in February 1931. The tribunal also is expected to make recommendations for the installation of fume elimination apparatus or other measures to prevent future damage

Mosquitos Always Were

Specimen Preserved In Amber From 200 B.C. Period

In the year 200 B.C. mosquitoes apparently were just as annoying as the modern species, if size is any indication. A mosquito whose proportions are larger than those of its average present-day descendant is preserved in pure amber owned by H. C. Page, Saint John.

Geologists estimate the insect was entombed more than 2,500 years ago. The nearly cut piece of amber, crystal-clear, preserved the mosquito perfectly, including even the fibrous hairs on its body and legs.

Amber, a solidified refinement of tree balsams, is found mostly in the bituminous fossils of timber along the shores of the Baltic and other parts of maritime Europe Page said. The jewel in his possession came from the northern coast of Russia, where vast areas were under water for centuries.

Miss B.L.—You are inclined to be somewhat highly-strung, and are apt to get easily excited when things do not go just as you would like. This is not a weakness in the ordinary sense of the word; it is more a temperamental disadvantage brought about because you are so swayed by your feelings. You are so quick to feel joys and sorrows, and will probably suffer a good deal as a result.

There is not a nature that would find nursing a very suitable occupation, and it is fortunate that you recognized this and discontinued your training. The ideal nurse needs to be well-controlled, able to "keep her head" in emergencies, and at the same time to be sympathetic and kindly. You do have the latter characteristic, certainly would not mind at your best during tense moments.

You are independent, in the sense that you are chary of accepting the help of others. And you have a good regard for order and neatness and are careful about details. All in all, you should do fairly well at your office work, and be far happier than in the occupation of nursing.

Mr. A.G.T.: You have a fairly normal nature, with a slight leaning toward ardour, but are by no means intensely emotional. Your sense of judgment is well to the fore, and will, as a rule, prevent you from doing anything too impetuously.

You are, perhaps, too prone to view the future a little cynically, without that faith and ambition that a young man like you should have. He who is definitely ambitious, makes your plans for the future, and then get down to hard tacks to try and realize them.

Miss P.A.D: It seems to me that most of your trouble can be traced to the changeable nature that you have. You flit too readily from one thing to another, and don't succeed in any of them because you don't devote sufficient energy and concentration. You vary in your moods and mentality to that no sooner have you become interested in one particular thing, than something else turns up to distract your attention and interest temporarily. I am writing you this because it is essential that you adopt a more definite course to follow in order to make any real satisfying progress in the future.

MAY 3

SIN, REPENTANCE, AND FAITH

Golden text: If we confess our sins, he is faithful and righteous to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness.

Devotional reading: Psalm 51:1-10.

Explanations And Comments

Great Sin, Luke 15:11-13. At the demand of the younger of two sons, a father divided between the two his living. The younger son's portion would be one-third; that of the elder, two-thirds. Dt. 21:17. The prodigal, as we call him, had long been chafing under the restrictions of home and at once set out for "a far country"—a place where he could "live his own life."

There he wasted his substance in riotous living. He had fine reckless fling. He came a spendthrift and a reprobate.

Great Resolve, Luke 15:17-19. "I have sinned against heaven and in my sight. Moses had wrought into the warp and woof of Jewish conscience the conviction that sin was a crime against the Eternal, and the Psalmists had invested this view with singular pathos. It mattered not what wrong a man did, it was in the last issue the heart of God he touched. And only God could loose him from the intolerable burden of guilt. Sin was not only the transgression of a law written on the conscience, it was a personal offense against the Holy One. Jewish penitence therefore was very tender and humble. "Against thee, thee only have I sinned." Jesus, in his monograph on sin, incorporates this discovery when he makes the prodigal say, "Father, I have sinned against heaven and in thy sight." (Ian Maclaren.)

And he arose and came to his father.

Great Forgiveness, 15:20-24. His father's love is far greater than he had dreamed. While he is yet long off his father sees him and is moved with compassion and runs to meet him.

The prodigal began his confession, but he did not say anything about being made a hired servant, for his captain the forgiving-born and native-born teams of United States professionals which will compete in the $4,000 General Brock Hotel Open Golf Tournament, which is to be played at the Long Point Country Club at Puslinch, Ont., on July 11, 12, and 13. GARDENING

Screening

Growing screens offer a solution to things which are better hidden. The straight lines of a residence should be broken by a few bushes and vines. These growing screens are divided into two classes, annual climbers and tall plants which of course must be renewed each year, and perennial creepers and shrubs or trees. The latter are permanent but take more time to produce and may be supplemented the first year or two with annuals. The annuals, instead, have the advantage of speed, in a month or two they are performing their duty of shutting off an objectionable view, or screening the back clay sun from the verandah, and the very fact that they are there for one year only, allows an opportunity for change, and changing things about in one of the fascinations of gardening. Of the annual plants, African Marigolds, Cosmos, Ornamental Sunflowers, Larkspurs, Castor Beans, and other bushy, fairly tall plants will make satisfactory screens by early July. Among the annual climbers are Morning Glories, Nasturtiums, Sweet Peas, Hops, Scarlet Runner Beans, Cobea, Gourds, Cardinal Climber and Canary Bird Flower.

Grow Vegetables Quickly

If vegetables are to be tender, they must be grown quickly. Especially with such things as radish, carrots and beets, slow growth is disastrous. The root becomes woody and filled with objectionable fiber. But this also applies to the salad materials like lettuce. Therefore, growth should be pushed along with frequent cultivation. Then in addition to checking weeds, also conserves moisture. Cultivation alone will often keep the vegetables going through a dry spell, but of course a few pails of water or an hour or two with the hose as much at time, will prove beneficial. Where the supply of water is not large, plant those things, most in need of extra moisture, such as radish, lettuce and celery, closest to the pump. Fertilizer is another way of hurrying growth and thereby ensuring vegetables of the highest quality.

Flowers

Flowers divide themselves into main planting groups. The first to be sown are those very hardy kinds which naturally reproduce themselves in Canada. Cosmos, California Poppy, Alyssum, Calendula and Candytuft are very hardy and can be sown first thing in the spring. In the second group are the Zinnia, Marigold, Nasturtium, Stocks, Aster and Petunia, which do not stand serious frost, and of the tender things, which must be kept back until all danger of freezing is over are the Dahlias, Cannas, and Gladiolus. As the latter are all bulbs and do not come up until a week or so after planting, they can be started only a few days of the arrival of really warm weather.

Aid For Passengers

Time Table Is Produced By Frenata, a Radio

An invention recently installed in the Victoria Station in London allows the railway passenger to press a button and produce at the instrument's illuminated window a time table for the station desired. Each station is numbered; pressing the corresponding number key brings a printed card into view bearing the complete schedule of trains between Victoria and the station in question.

Similar machines are to be installed at all the principal stations on the Southern Railway, the London Times reports.—New York Sun.

Scout Rally Outstanding Event

On the occasion of the visit to Edmonton of Sir Robert and Lady Baden Powell last week there was witnessed one of the outstanding gatherings in the history of the province of Alberta. The arena at the Edmonton exhibition grounds was packed with spectators on the occasion of the rally and the colorful display of uniforms and flags was one which will not soon be forgotten.

Sir Robert and Lady Baden Powell were escorted to the platform amid the cheers of approximately 10,000 people and then began the formation of the various groups of Scouts, Cubs, Brownies, and Girl Guides, twenty-six hundred young people, all in uniform, were formed in companies with not the slightest hitch, the standard bearers first entering the arena and forming the background for the for [illegible] of the youthful army.

The March Past was carried out smoothly, the Chief Scout taking the salute from the Scouts and Cubs and Lady Baden Powell, Chief Guider of the world, acknowledging the homage of the Girl Guides and Brownies.

The Girl Guides carried out a number of rope drills to the music of a band and considering the short time in which these young women had a chance to train, the display was remarkable; the Brownies held the attention of the large audience with some items of display and the Cubs gave the cub hunt to their leader, who was placed on a raised platform in the centre of the arena to receive the hunt or from the youngsters.

The Boy Scouts gave half an hours acrobatic program, three groups performing simultaneously; the pyramids with which this work was carried our drew much favorable comment. A pleasing feature of the Scout display was the receiving of the flag of the First Edmonton Scout Troop; the flag at one time carried by Lord and Lady Edmonton and was carried in to the centre of the arena by an officer of the troop accompanied by the colour [illegible] ex W. R. Wop' May, who was [illegible] then air pilot and a former Boy Scout.

The grand finale was reverted shortly after noon when all the boys in the bleachers at the end of the rink to [illegible] the Scout flag with coloured cards, and Field Fairbairn, the well-known [illegible] on the green back around a perfectly formed and when the band began to play "God Save The King" the boys turned their squares to [illegible] and presented a [illegible] singing of the National Anthem.

It was addressed to McLaughlin Carriage Company, successors of the pioneer great automobile manufacturing company and superseded by the all [illegible] of motor cars a score of years ago. The writer inquired for a "Four wheel carriage equipped with rubber tires, similar to "Bunker Hill Pike." Phoenix Number 565 in the catalogue. Reluctantly the order had to be turned down. The catalogue must have been a quarter of a century old. The next thing at Oshawa now is "runner like with rumble seat" and there are no shafts attached.

THE AVERAGE MAN

Five years ago the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company in Montreal contributed one million ten and odd thousand to make a large news paper full of statistical matter about the common run of mankind—the average man.

He was dead.

What statistics of average men can be compiled from a dead man? Only such as are available from his life insurance company, which will be very few indeed, as a man who is worth insuring for large sums is not average. He is above average. He is above average in ability, above average in determination, above average in energy.

He was not average in the average man's sense.

It must be assumed that these figures were arrived at through the use of averages. Mr. Metropolitan Life Insurance Company might, for example, measure the average height of men by measuring Base by Squadron and Base by Squadron and then dividing the total by the number of squadrons measured. Or he might measure all the men in a certain school and divide the total by the number of pupils in the school.

Some such method as using would be required to arrive at the average man.

All statistics are of significance to the regular monthly meeting of the school board held Wednesday night. Proceedings were begun at a regular meeting with all members present except Mrs. Hall. Minutes of the previous meeting were read and adopted.

Correspondence was then dealt with, the most important being a letter from Inspector Bell. Letter was to the effect that the school building be made safer for the winter months. Suggestions were made that the stairways be widened, and that the doors be made to open outwards.

Mr. Bell's letter also suggested that the basement be made more comfortable for the winter months. Suggestions were made that the basement be cemented, and that the walls be whitewashed

Enthusiastic Annual Meeting Held Tuesday Evening

Sidney Millward, one of the leading tennis enthusiasts of the town, was elected at the annual meeting of the tennis club to guide its destinies for the current year. The complete slate of officers elected follows :

Hon. President, His Worship, Mayor Fallow
President, Sidney Millward.
1st Vice-President, Miss Lorie Hesketh.
2nd Vice-President, Douglas Cooper.
Sec.-Treasurer, Ashley Cooper.
Grounds Committee: Douglas Cooper, Bill Pilkie, Maurice Sadler.
Tournament, General Executive
Social, Mrs. Clark, Mrs Richardson, Mrs. Miller.

Tennis fees were set to cover the estimated expenses of $170.00 for the season, but it is hoped that instead of a payment of $50.00 on the bank loan that the complete note of $100.00 will be liquidated.

The fees are. Child (with restrictions) $1.50; Student (full playing right) $2.00; Adult $5.00; Married Couple $8.00. Family $10.00

As the club has only 57.20 on hand, 17 members volunteered to sell four memberships each, during the present week. Tickets may also be obtained from the President or Secretary at any time

Plans made to have the opening day on Monday afternoon, May 6th, a public holiday, may have to be altered on account of the distinct change for the worse in the weather

During the evening votes of thanks were passed to the retiring president for the work done in his long tenure of office and also to the ex-grounds men, Bill Pilkie and Fountain Cooper, for the excellent condition in which the tennis courts were kept

Manager tennis balls were recommended at the meeting for general club use

No playing is to be allowed unless membership fees are paid. These dues are strictly in advance. Members are also asked to make themselves thoroughly conversant with the rules, and in varying the court when others are waiting, etc. These are posted at the court.

ISLAND HILL

He who is popularly believed to be the future M.L.A. for the Vermilion constituency—Mayor Fallow of Vermilion—delivered an eloquent and inspiring address on Social Credit at the school here Monday before a large and enthusiastic gathering representative of the major voting power of the community.

He went minutely into the details of the whole system and left no doubt in the minds of his hearers that it will work for the better interests and advancement of the common people.

The Mayor was rewarded a hearty vote of thanks which was passed by acclamation. President Snyder seconded the chair. The organizer, Mr Lauderyea, also attended and answer ed several questions.

It was decided to hold the next meeting of the group on Monday 6th inst. At this meeting delegates will be elected to attend the convention at Vermilion which will likely be held on Monday 27th inst.

Social During the Week —

Miss Muriel Hall heading west on a visit to Mrs. Geo Sullivan.

Mr. Bury heading home Friday after a busy week on Social Credit business.

John McCambridge leaving Vermilion after shipping a load. (Some load, John!)

Bill Hall and Geo. Sullivan having a combo about their experiences in the world war

Alf Searle having his hands cursed long a stubble fire

Gem Field having his first run this season in his automobile

Mrs. Ingman and Mrs. McDaniel having a combo about what they'll do with all the money coming under Social Credit

Having reached her sixteenth year, a birthday party was held at her home in honor of Miss Edith Searle on 23rd April. A number of friends were invited and all had a jolly time. We wish her many happy returns

The Willey family, located here on a farm for the past six years, have gone to Edmonton to reside there

It is very seldom we have had the opportunity of showing Geo. Schmidfield in our picture but we caught him the other day heading home with a big fat gobbler under his arm. Don't misunderstand us — he had a legal right to the gobbler.

AMATEUR HOCKEY RULES MAY BE CHANGED

Delayed Penalty Rule To Be Introduced

WINNIPEG, April 28.—"If they did nothing else, the final playdown games in the Allan Cup series firmly convinced me that the amateur hockey rules are weakened by not adopting a delayed penalty rule. So impressed am I by the value of the delayed penalty rule in both the middle and the home ice that I will introduce a covering notice of motion for a change at the next meeting," declared E. A. Oliver, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, who returned from the East over Canadian National lines a few days ago.

"I hold no brief for either team in the Royals-Wolverines semi-final, but as a result of referee rulings during one of the games the Royals were playing three men against Halifax five. The Halifax team rammed up on their opponents and ran in two goals.

"The effect of having two or three men in the penalty box because of rule infractions is demoralizing to a team and certainly is not appreciated by the home public. Fans do not pay good money to see a team play three men against five or six, just because there happens to be a couple of minor tools on the ice. It makes a poor game and I am absolutely convinced of the value of the delayed penalty system whereby the team could play with less than four or five, as decided upon by the C.A.H.A. It was clearly demonstrated at Halifax that the delayed penalty rule should be in the amateur hockey code.

"Whether as the residence rule question is concerned, we clarified it in the book and fair warning is issued that the transgressing will be allowed. The rule will be absolutely lived up to as enforced. Players who left their franchises last year too late to participate in the season just closed will be O.K. to play in their new branch next winter providing they have continued to reside in that new branch and not again changed their residence. But we give fair warning to all that the residence rule is in the book and will be rigidly enforced," emphatically declared Mr Gilroy

(This paper does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by correspondents.)

April 30th, 1935

Editor, Vermilion Standard.

Dear Sir—I attended a meeting of the Aberhart Social Credit Party this week held in our vicinity. The speaker was very able and told us a lot of things and exhorted us to go home and study over these things out. From what he told us, he evidently realized that we didn't know much. I have been trying to study some of the things in question and present my answers, hoping that someone will reply, and tell me whether I have the correct answers or not.

In the first place, this Basic Dividend, as they call it, does not appeal to me as a dividend at all. I always had the idea that anybody being lucky enough to draw dividends were solo owners thereof; but as soon as you get your dividend the government is taking it back from you as quickly as possible in taxes so that they can give it back again to you. I would call it a reposeing monthly loan. This is to create a continuous flow of credit and a continuous collection of taxes.

After going right after the bondholders and giving them back in general, the speaker showed us how they, the Social Credit party, would make another lot of bondholders. People having deposits in the banks were to be asked to give those in exchange for bonds with interest at four per cent. Also if any of us didn't spend our credit during the year, our balance in the State Credit house was to be appropriated and we would be given bonds in exchange. I must have got this all wrong, for why would Aberhart wish to create more bondholders and pay more interest, when he can create all the money he wants with the stroke of a pen?

I now come to something of real interest to me as a farmer, namely, the Just Price. The speaker was asked to explain, how, in the event of the Just Price of wheat being set at $1.00 a bushel in Alberta and the exporting price only 50c a bushel, how this would be worked out. This was shown very simply with the aid of the chairman (though really he could have done it without his aid); taking one bushel as example, the farmer received $1.00 from the Government for his wheat. The Government sold the wheat for 50c. Then the Government bought 50c worth of oranges with the money and sold them to the farmer for one dollar.

Just as easy as that! Why didn't he say, "You can call it $1.00 if you like but you will only get 50c worth of goods for it"? The Just Price real ly means nothing as long as the government can fix the price of what we have to pay for goods.

It is all very amusing, but it would be carrying the joke too far if this school happens to get a mandate at the next election.

Yours truly,
"OLD TIMER."

SALVATION ARMY SELF-DENIAL WEEK

Denial of self in some special way during one week of the year for the Army's needy work is the original and fundamental idea of the Self-Denial effort. Again the Army is making their annual appeal for finance for their great work.

The Army's aim throughout the world is to assist the poorest, the down and outs, the weak and indirective derelicts and all who have been broken to pieces by the cruel buffetings of life. If you desire to have a partnership in helping mankind you are asked to give your donation during this month to the Army's representatives when they call upon you or you can send it in care of Captain A. Cuzzon, Box 236, Vermilion, Alberta.

B. Of T. Compliments District Farmer

W. Lyle Robinson Guest of Honor At Luncheon

CONSISTENT PRIZE WINNER

The weekly luncheon of the Vermilion Board of Trade on Monday was featured by having as its honored guest W. Lyle Robinson, the occasion being to pay tribute to him as a real coastal winner, not only as local fairs but at Toronto and the Edmonton spring show. Complimentary remarks were made by the President, Mr C. W. Robinson, and Messrs J. W. G. Morrison, K.C. and David Andrew. The former emphasized the fact that the district of Vermilion had always been classed as a diversified farming district and that the opportunity to win such successes as Mr Robinson had done was available to every farmer in the district. Mr. Andrew noted that there was today a trend or gravitating away from the purely exhibition product in cattle to the commercial type and he felt that the day was coming when the latter would be found the more profitable to develop and to market. Mr Robinson thanked the Board for its reception to him and for such appreciated the complimentary remarks made by the different speakers

Mr. H. H. Lynch was also present as a guest, and in thanking the members said there was only one secret to the production of cattle prize and price winners and that was proper care and feeding

The President announced that nothing further would be done for the time being in connection with the Hamlet scheme of settlement but that the General had advised the Board to maintain its pressure with the riding's representative in parliament.

The record established by Mr. Robinson, it was stated, not only reflected great credit upon the producer but upon the district as well. In 1932 he went to the Royal show at Toronto and came second in the summer yearling class with Golden Hero, bought as a calf from the University of Alberta. He came 10th in a class of 22 with Beauty's Model, finished by himself. In 1934 the steer Golden Lass, bred by Mr Robinson and shown by the University of Alberta, stood 1st in the yearling class. At the annual spring show and sale of bulls at Edmonton Mr Robinson has in recent years won many prizes, competing with the best of Northern Alberta herds. Starting in 1932 he took the reserve championship, sharing with the provincial farm the honor of getting the highest average price of the sale. In 1933 he came back to take the grand championship of the show. In 1935 he took both the grand championship and reserve championship, topping the sale of Shorthorns with $290.00 and getting the high average of the sale of his three bulls of $215. Mr Robinson has also been a consistent winner in the Class B Fair at Vermilion since 1917 and at the Lloydminster Class B Fair in 1923 and 1924 he took all the major prizes.

Your Boys

I have four sons two of them approaching the age when they must go out and face the early of a living writes a man to a newspaper In the dark hard and cruel over the prospect of the difficulties which for the time being may confront these young men in obtaining employment and making a start in life? They will be in wise enough and has had experience enough to realize that countless thousands of other young men starting to carve out careers for themselves had to face difficulties and had many obstacles to overcome. No doubt he passed through such experiences himself. It has been the way of the world since time immemorial

Nevertheless this father of four boys is worried. He has reason to be, and so, too, have other parents all over the land. This man writes that all this worry originates, these are days of repeated demands that the Government should guarantee the security of the home, the security of livelihood and the security of social insurance causes him to wonder if the prospect of so much sheltering, so much safeguarding, so much financial protection, so much paternalism will cause his boys to discount, disregard, despise his handiwork.

I have, he says, tried to impress upon them that they must fit themselves to make their own way in the world, that they must develop self-reliance, that they must cultivate a spirit of manly independence, that they must be prepared to enter upon every coming by them, that they must expect nothing for nothing in this world.

To achieve this, I have emphasized that they must be studious and industrious, that they must renew rational frugality and self-denial until they have accumulated a competency, that they must acquire not only to take care of themselves and their dependents, but to acquire means to aid generously those who are in need

I have warned them against extravagance, ostentation, thriftlessness, thoughtlessness, in order that they may escape the hardships and humiliations which befall so many in old age, exposing that it is infinitely better to be able to be another charity has to be compelled to accept it.

Don't let any professor convince you," I tell them, "that 'the world owes you a living' Get it through your head that it is up to you to fit yourself to earn a living and that you will encounter plenty of competition. Don't hesitate to sacrifice in the fore part of your life if you hope to fare well in the later part of your life. Many days will come. Make diligent preparation for them

I tell them that, going forth in the spirit, eager to put more into the world than they hope to take out of it, and possessing unshakable faith in the eternal laws of justice and righteousness they will find life joyous, they will accept difficulties as a challenge to their manhood, that, doing the right, they will never be tempted to evil, that they will be happy, but will find their own life increasing in happiness and service with the passing years.

Above all, that they must not be drones, loafers, bankers; that they must exert themselves to the utmost to be useful, that through self-discipline and self-denial they may reasonably hope to earn the means to prosper in economy and unselfishness.

Now however, there is dangled before them the prospect of an earthly Utopia, ushered in a Santa Claus Government, pictured as prepared to shoulder responsibilities which I was taught could be and must be discharged only by each individual for himself, responsibilities which were portrayed as not only as inescapable, but as essential to the development of sturdy manhood, the development of the most splendid type of citizen.

I am somewhat troubled lest my own young men and other young men may imbibe the notion that hereafter there is to be less need for supreme effort, less need for self-denial and self-discipline, less need for sacrificing to save, less necessity for self-reliance, less occasion to worry over finding work to do in the world or to invest, to perform it unstintedly, less reason for systematically striving to provide for old age.

Perhaps this man is needlessly concerned about the effect which all the loose talk of to-day about taking no thought of the future that the Government will look after everybody at all times and under all possible sets of circumstances, or having the profits of the country Pumsby has annuities and questionings will prove wholly unwarranted. Let it be hoped so for his sake, and the sake of the four boys and of all other young men who may be tempted to disregard the teachings, the lessons and experiences of past generations and likening self-reliance and self-effort to be the weeds, become Danors on the state.

Nevertheless all thoughtful and conscientious fathers and mothers must be disturbed by witness the outpourings of dreamers and faddists preaching false doctrines and seeking to wean the young people of to-day away from acceptance of and belief in those cardinal qualities which constituted the chief tests of men and women who have left their impress on the life and progress of the world and lived useful lives. The worst enemies of youth are those self-appointed advocates and saviours who present to them no ideal a life of aimless contentment and leisure free of personal responsibilities free of worry, free of difficulties with Governments playing the role of Santa Claus every week and month of the year

Improve Montreal Harbor

May Move Passenger Section Five Miles Eastward

Plans for the complete rebuilding of Montreal harbor were outlined at a meeting of the Montreal harbor commissioners. The plans would allow deeper water, easier dredging in the outer harbor and elimination of the "St. Mary's current."

It was learned the harbor plans will in time move the whole passenger harbor about five miles eastward. The drawings show eight new piers, four of which will be long piers likely accommodating two ships, while in between there are four shorter piers. It is expected the new piers will accommodate about 40 vessels

Decision to move the harbor further east it was learned, came after a statement by Chief Harbor Engineer Paul Lesaffre that dredging is a much easier task in the softer bed toss further down the river.

Moving of the passenger section eastward with softer bottom dredging easier dredging which would deepen the water, is expected to bring larger ocean-going ships to Montreal. In time it is hoped to have the channel deepened to 40 feet.

The St. Mary's Current, which makes dredging at times hazardous, is practically negligible further down the river, it was stated.

The new harbor development would cut down the time in the run from Quebec to Montreal by about an hour.

SHE PLAYS ORGAN AT 75 YEARS

Takes Kruschen To Keep Rheumatism Away

Writing to tell how she keeps her active old age free from pain

"My hands were becoming so crippled that I had to give up piano playing altogether almost. I feared I'd surely give up knitting. I have been using Kruschen Salts for nearly two years, and am very pleased with the result. Last August I played two organ services and the choir. I am hoping to do so again this August. My fingers are nearly straight, and quite supple, and I am 75. I have recommended Kruschen Salts to many people."—(Mrs. H. B.)

The six mineral salts of Kruschen help the liver to get rid of the whole bloodstream, neutralizing uric acid, which is the principal cause of rheumatism. They also restore the eliminating organs to proper working order, and so prevent constipation thereby checking the further formation of uric acid and the absorption of poisons which undermine the health.

Currency Stabilization

Want Anglo-U.S. Conference To Settle The Question

Stabilization of world currencies was introduced into the budget debate in the British House of Commons by Sir Herbert Samuel, leader of the Liberal opposition, and other members.

"I wish the chancellor in his report had empowered a dustre to secure the consent of abatement of currency and could have told us some form of a conference is contemplated with the United States upon which, as much as upon ourselves and France, the decision rests," said Sir Herbert.

"Japan depreciates the yen, America the dollar, Belgium the belga, Britain the pound," Sir Herbert continued. "Depreciation is one of the prim ...nsons for the low level at which the state of the world continues.

"I regret the chancellor has made no survey of this important factor."

Percy Brailsford, Conservative, and Sir Herbert's sentiments.

Domestic Cotton Industry

Japanese Wrecking The Industry From Chinese Territory

Japanese commercial expansion in North China has reached the point of almost complete domination of the cotton industry, most Japanese cotton interests in the area, with only one mill remaining wholly under Chinese ownership.

Threats of actual military penetration of this region, formerly the seat of the United Kingdom's trade, long since died down, but observers point out the Japanese conquest of the vast territory north of the Yellow river continues with Japanese capitalists, diplomats and businessmen taking up where the soldiers left off.

Red Racket For Seeds

Canada Imports Thousands Of Pounds From Many Countries

Since last July Canada has imported over 1,000,000 pounds of field crop seeds and 827,000 pounds of garden seeds not including flowers, among the biggest importations are 484,000 pounds of alsike seed, 80,000 pounds of blue grass, 32,000 pounds of Chewing's fescue, 466,000 pounds of red clover, 130,000 pounds of Red Top, 98,000 pounds of perennial rye grass, 249,000 pounds of timothy seed, 47,000 pounds of white clover, 742,000 pounds of mangel seed, 57,000 pounds of rape, 1722,000 pounds of sugar beet seed, 125,800 pounds of vetches.

In the garden seeds there were 63,000 pounds of beans, 64,000 pounds of beet seed, 70,000 pounds of carrot seed, 122,000 pounds of corn, 15,000 pounds of cucumber seed, 97,000 pounds of lettuce, 28,000 pounds of onion seed, 297,000 pounds of peas, 61,000 pounds of radish, 81,000 pounds of spinach, 14,000 pounds of turnip seeds.

The source of origin of these seeds is of interest: for instance the peas came chiefly from the United States and the British Isles, but there was also some from France, New Zealand, Holland and Japan. Over four hundred pounds came from Japan. The beans came chiefly from the British Isles and the United States and also from Holland, Denmark, Japan and China.

The seed of kohl rabi was collected from the United States, Great Britain, Holland, Denmark and Italy.

The sugar beets came chiefly from Germany, but there were also sizeable amounts from Holland, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Britain, the United States and Denmark.

Spain enters into the picture in the onion seed as well as the U.S.A., British Isles, France, Holland, Italy, Japan and China.

Something Went Wrong

English Firm Had Way Of Out-Distancing Competitors

They're telling this story in shipbuilding circles in England.

Some years ago the Japanese admiralty invited tenders from all firms to send specifications of a certain type of destroyers renounced for their speed and efficiency. The designs were sent, but after a long delay they were returned to the company with expressions of regret and thanks that they were not available to the Japanese admiralty. But in due course the Japanese launched several destroyers of the exact type submitted to the British pattern.

About two years ago the Japanese admiralty again asked for designs for to submit plans of a destroyer type. These were sent, but were returned with the same apologies as before. A few months ago a new destroyer was launched which bore a suspicious outward resemblance to the designs accepted by the British company." But the moment it took to the water, the boat capsized."

Wonder what's wrong?

Anyway, the Japanese are not likely to ask for any more blue-prints.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

At a recent meeting in Nova Scotia of the Potato Marketing Board, representatives of the retail trade complained egg grading, which was introduced in 1923 by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, as an example of what could be accomplished in standardizing a product. This is of particular interest, because some of the members who paid the highest tribute to egg grading had previously been prosecuted for violation of the regulations.

The milkman is becoming quite diversified in his line of products. Not only does he deliver orange juice, eggs, cheese and milk to New York residents, but in Providence he has added oysters to his morning delivery.

The skull of blind persons in using their other senses to guide and inform them was commented on as early as 1749 when Diderot published a "Letter on the Blind."

SOAP

(By Gordon H. Guest, M.A.)

When fat and oil and alkali are heated together under proper conditions soap and glycerin are produced. Soap is made commercially on a very large scale. The oil or melted fat is poured into huge kettles together with a solution of lye. As a rule the kettles are very large, 500-800 pounds or more of soap being made in some of them in a single heating. They are provided with coils of steam-pipe for heating the mixture. The fat and alkali are stirred by forcing live steam into the bottom of the mixture. The chemical reaction which takes place in soap-making is completed in about one day. The soap is then suspended as very fine particles in the liquids present, or the chemist would say that the soap is in the form of a colloidal dispersion. To obtain the soap "nailing" solid form common salt is added and this process is known as "salting out". After the salt is added and the mixture heated, the soap rises to the top of the liquid and the soap thus obtained is purified by washing and settling processes and is then run into the mixing machine called the crutcher. Here it is mixed with substances such as perfume, borax, waterglass, or various dyes, and is then run into large molds called frames to harden, after which it is cut and pressed into cakes of the desired size.

Transparent soaps are usually made by dissolving dry soap in alcohol and adding from 15 to 25% of sugar. Castile soaps are made of olive oil. The colour of mottled soaps is produced by the addition of Prussian blue or some similar pigment. Floating soaps owe their lightness to bubbles of air and naphtha that have been added when the petroleum naphtha. Scouring soaps contain from 5 to 10% of soap and from 30 to 50% of some material such as fine sand or volcanic ash. Soap powders usually consist of a mixture of washing soda and ground soap to the extent of 10 to 20%.

Branded As Traitors

Men Who Have Been Found Tampering With Voters' Lists

Men who had been arrested as tampers of provincial voters' list in the city of Montreal were branded as traitors to Canada by Rt. Rev John Farthing, Bishop of Montreal, in his address to the 67th annual session of the synod of the Montreal diocese, Church of England in Canada.

Bishop Farthing expressed alarm at action had been taken against them and there had been no sign of public indignation. He called upon the Quebec government to institute a thorough, impartial judicial inquiry and to take action at the present session of the legislature to amend the law, if legally possible, so the roll could be thoroughly overhauled before the next provincial election.

The value of rat flowers sold in Canada during the year ended May 31, 1934, was $376,303. This amount represents 62 per cent. of the total value of Canada's floricultural and decorative plant production, which includes outdoor roses, outdoor trees, shrubs, plants (outdoor and indoor), and flowering bulbs.

Strange Substance

Produce Hormone That Has Effect Of Tanning Wild Animals

Isiah's prophecy that the lion and the lamb shall lie down together and a little child lead them has been shown to be a scientific possibility at the American Philosophical Society meeting in Philadelphia.

The chemical substance to tame both animals is available if anyone wants to try it.

The society was shown motion pictures of a fierce, flesh-eating, grown rat lying down with a new-born squab and trying to mother it. The pictures were shown by Dr. Oscar Riddle, of the Carnegie Institution of Washington.

The rat had received an injection of prolactin, a hormone produced by the pituitary glands of humans and all mammals, including lions. The rat was an unmated female, with nothing but wild instincts, and no previous experience with mothering anything.

The prolactin induced immediately a maternal instinct so powerful as to mask the rat's natural appetite for eating young squabs.

Prolactin was discovered three years ago by Dr. Riddle. Previous experiments with it indicate that it acts on all animals in similar fashion.

Its primary function is to cause female mammals to give milk for their young. It has done that even when given to males.

MORE FREE HEALTH CLINICS URGED AT CONFERENCE

Ottawa.—The compulsory medical examination of the Canadian people at least once a year was one of a possible recommendation of the first Dominion-provincial health conference which under the chairmanship of Col. the Hon. D. M. Sutherland, minister of national health, was held here.

Linked with this was the emphasis placed by all conferees on the need for educating the public in the personal advantages of such annual examination as a preventive measure against sickness.

The first session was occupied in a general discussion on state medicine and health insurance.

A number of important features developed, among them the suggestions by Col. Sutherland for creation of a royal commission which, some time this fall, might investigate the whole question of state medicine from every standpoint.

Such a commission, he urged, might be representative of medical and allied professions, various industrial groups within the community, financial and insurance interests. Chiefly his function would be to collect data which would be available to the Dominion and provincial administrations when they came to formulate policies dealing with these matters.

Several members of the conference were in agreement with the Dominion minister in the matter of a royal commission. Dr. C. W. Weir, of Manitoba, however, was lukewarm. British Columbians did not like royal commissions, he said.

Hon. D. M. Sutherland, chairman, was not opposed to a commission, but believed the information needed could be acquired with satisfaction under provincial health departments.

The conference returned time and again to the matter of education of the public in health matters. Cancer was cited as the disease demanding the most urgent attention.

The public had to get into its mind that the doctor was his friend, said Dr. Weir, while Premier J. P. McMillan, of Prince Edward Island declared the big need was for the people to get "cancer conscious."

Members of the conference agreed that medical attention should be a Dominion responsibility, but that all educational features should be coordinated and executed by the provinces.

The manner in which this should be carried out was not discussed. Hon. Geo. Hendley, of Alberta, instead the best medium was the multiplication of free clinics, where, he could and should go for examination and advice

There was a general agreement on this point. Representated by Mr. Hoey and Dr. J. M. Ulrich, Saskatchewan health minister, that public health nurses be trained to come in contact with people in their own homes could render invaluable service. The second could be used in spreading health education.

Dr Ulrich paid tribute to the self-sacrifice and devotion of the doctors in Saskatchewan. The King George V. cancer fund was warmly praised by that. It would be applied to the awakening of an intelligent public opinion in the matter of health generally

The Saskatchewan minister declared one of his province's ... problems was the prevalence of tuberculosis among the Indians The mortality from tuberculosis among these wards of Canada was 600 to 100,000 population, while among the white people the ratio was only 26 to 100,000.

The Western Grain

Halifax The prairie farmer could solve his difficulties partially by balancing grain production with that of animal feed would be produced. M. A. MacPherson, former provincial treasurer and attorney-general of Saskatchewan declared before the Canadian Club here

The unified market for Canadian beef in the United Kingdom the speaker said, held the solution Fork could be finished in the maritimes, Quebec and Ontario, by the use of western grain.

He urged that both east and west get together to try to bring freight rates to a level where the plan would be practicable. "Our problems are your problems, and we can best solve them together," said Mr MacPherson.

Search Impossible Just Now

Deep Snow Buries Man Killed In H.E. Slide

Bridge River, B.C.—Recovery of the bodies of several miners from the snowslide which claimed their lives at the Tunnelo Mother Lode gold mines north of here, probably during British Columbia's severe January storms, will be impossible for another month, Provincial Constable R. J. Weisman reported on his return from the scene of the tragedy.

Roland and Bill Allaire of Tyax Lake, brother trappers, were members of a search party with Constables Wilsman and L. W. Rader Brown on the grueling snowshoe trek to the mine from Bridge River after the Allaires had returned to report the mining camp had been wiped out by a slide.

The constables returned here, they left the Allaires camped at Tunnelo lake, waiting an opportunity to recover the bodies. The police were 10 days en route.

Wilsman reported a blanket of snow, 15 to 20 feet deep, renders search for the bodies impossible at present.

Automobile Inquiry

Tariff Board To Take Trip Through Western Districts

Ottawa.—M. N. Campbell, vice-chairman of the tariff board, disclosed that the board will start this week a trip through western Ontario during which it will visit Windsor, Tilbury and Chatham in connection with the inquiry into the automobile industry.

The board has been empowered to examine officials of companies under oath, to compel production and parts with a view to determining if justification exists for the difference in price between cars manufactured in Canada and the United States.

In its oil inquiry the board will investigate the effect on the oil industry of existing tariff rates and examine the financial structure of companies processing gasoline and other oils. It expects to leave about May 15 for western Canada, arriving in Vancouver in time to begin hearings there May 20, by both investigations. It will meet probably May 27, at Calgary for further hearings in the oil case.

Predict Normal Crop

Prospects For Canadian Wheat Display Very Favorable

London.—Prospects that the Canadian wheat crop this year would not be above normal and that the United States crop would be poor, were seen by well-informed circles here.

These and other factors were revealed in a report published by the London price of wheat The other factors, these circles said, were:

1. Poor harvests in Australia and Argentina.

2. The success of Canada's price stabilization policy.

3. Regulation of French exports

The Canadian crop is not expected to be above average, lack of moisture preventing a good yield, it was indicated. Heavy rainfall might make a considerable difference. It was compared to last year's crop.

For the third successive year, experts predict, the United States will not be able to export any considerable amount of wheat Drouth and dust storms have seriously damaged the crop.

Infants Recovering

Doctor Says Quintuplets In Excellent Physical Condition

Callander, Ont. — Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne were no longer worried over the condition of their quintuplet daughters. Leo Melvin, Dionne's manager, said the parents were satisfied with the examination of the ailing children by Dr O. W. Smith of North Bay, appointed by the father

"I know they were satisfied with this last examination," said Mr Kerr. "For I was speaking to Mr. Dionne" He said the parents had at first wanted two doctors of their own choice to inspect the babies, but were satisfied with the findings of Dr Smith

Dr Smith pronounced the infants free from head colds and remarked on their excellent physical condition He was in consultation at the hospital with Dr Allan Roy Dafoe, physician to the quintuplets, and commended the splendid care that had been given the children.

WOULD EXTEND DELIVERY DATE FOR MAY WHEAT

Winnipeg.—An offer to consider extension of the date beyond which he would demand delivery of all May wheat purchased in the Winnipeg grain futures market was held out to the grain trade by John I. McFarland, head of the government wheat agency. Deferment in delivery date would be effected through transfer of hedges to a more distant month.

In a letter to the grain exchange council, Mr. McFarland said the government "was willing to co-operate with bona fide owners of cash wheat hedged in the May option" to the extent of assisting in the transfer of hedges from May to July. He also expressed a willingness to pay storage at 1½ cents a bushel to carry such hedges

It became clear, however, the government has not entirely abandoned its plan to assume ownership of considerable quantities of wheat before May 31 and for which it holds contracts. The approximate amount of wheat involved for tender against May contracts is estimated at more than 50,000,000 bushels.

The proposal modified to a certain extent a previous announcement the agency would demand delivery of all May wheat purchased in the Winnipeg market. Proof of ownership would entitle the second party to the contract in consideration that the wheat not required until July is distributed.

In a signed statement Mr. McFarland said: "The time has now arrived when we wish to co-operate with all those who have cash wheat hedged in the May option and located in various positions so that we may assist to the best of our ability in the switching of hedges from May into July.

"Owners who now have their wheat hedged in the May option may be interested but all others will forward to us full particulars of quantity and location as specified on that we may be enabled to determine an equitable distribution

The period will be made on a basis of July at 1¼ cents over May and the information you send must be compiled as at the close of business on April 27."

SNIPPING RED TAPE

With an eye to the cash revenue from motor tourists, Ottawa has made a few wise adjustments of regulations at the border. The bond of the guarantee company previously required at the frontier by tourists who proposed to stay for a period of ninety days and up to six months, will no longer be necessary. The same relaxation of the rule in vate-ded to those who enter for sixty days and later decide to remain longer. Neither bond nor deposit will be necessary. A change, too, has been made in the rule about issuance of permit to temporary visitors. The twenty four hour period has been extended to forty-eight hours to include week-ends and public holidays.

Workers Donate Planes

Nine Have Been Added To China's National Air Force

Nine new airplanes, eight of which were donated by employes of government-owned railways in China, and one of the Overseas Chinese in Java, have been officially added to China's national air force. The eight railway planes cost $680,000 and the one from Java $130,000. More than 3 000 government officials and National Party leaders and over 10,000 spectators were present at the Old Ming Palace Aerodrome in Nanking when Wang Ching-wei, president of the Executive Yuan, accepted the planes from China. He spoke of the importance of the development of aviation as a step toward national reconstruction in China. After the planes had been christened and the National and Party flags removed from the machines Chinese aviators gave a formation and stunt flying exhibition.

COBALT AND NICKEL

(By Gordon H. Guest, M.A.)

Cobalt and nickel are two metals which play an important rule in modern civilization. They are usually found together in ores which contain also silver, and copper, in combination with arsenic and sulphur. The world's chief deposits of cobalt are located at Cobalt, (Ontario) and in the Belgian Congo, while the chief mines of nickel are at Sudbury (Ontario). The mines at Cobalt are also rich in silver.

Both these metals are silvery in appearance and take a high polish. They are slightly heavier than iron, and melt at a lower temperature Unlike iron, these metals do not rust Sheet nickel is used in the production of all forms of dairy equipment, and nickel powder is used in many chemical industries.

The chief uses of both nickel and cobalt are as alloy metals When alloyed with iron, copper, chromium, silver, or with combinations of these, they give alloys of a very wide range of properties and uses.

Nickel steel is very hard and tough and is used for structural purposes and to make armor plate Nickel-chromium steel is still harder and is used for railway switch-points and crossings. An alloy of nickel and iron known as permalloy made possible an increase in cable communication from 600 to 1,500 signals per minute.

Monel metal (67 per cent. nickel, 28 per cent. copper, 5 per cent. iron or manganese) and other alloys of similar composition are tough, possess high tensile strength, and do not corrode easily. This type of alloy is used where pleasing appearance and resistance to mild corrosion are required, as in the construction of restaurant fixtures, washing machines, and soda fountains Rifle bullets have about the same composition as Monel metal.

Other alloys of nickel are resistant to heat and electricity and are used in electric heaters and electrical instruments Nichrome (trade name) is a good example of this type of nickel alloy Invar (steel with 36 per cent. nickel) is an alloy which does not expand.

Metallic cobalt has no direct use, but its alloys, which are similar to those of nickel, are of growing importance The chief alloys are stellite (trade name) a cobalt-chromium alloy with small amounts of tungsten or molybdenum These alloys are very hard and are used for cutting tools, especially for lathe tools.

Provided For Islanders

London Solicitor Looked After People On Tristan da Cunha

There is a great deal of romance, and a certain amount of disillusion, perhaps, to be got out of being a Robinson Crusoe in real life. Mr. Glass, a Scots corporal in the Artillery, was one of a garrison of eighty-seven soldiers landed at Tristan da Cunha—the loneliest island in the world—when the garrison was imprisoned at St. Helena. He and two others, when the garrison was taken off, decided that they would like to live the rest of their lives there. They obtained the requisite permission. They drew up a proper constitution, where-by "the governor of the island (one nonwealth) should assume any superiority whatever," and there they stayed. Mr. Glass had a Creole wife, and as the island was a favorite place on which to get shipwrecked the population gradually increased. Bachelors were occasionally supplied with a wife by a passing sea-captain. Half it was Mr. Douglas Chase, a stout solicitor of Gray's Inn, who died a short time ago at the age of 72, who has had all of the romance and none of the disillusion. Forty years he has thought of Tristan da Cunha and has played the part of Mercful Provider to the descendants of William Glass and his friends. Destroyers, gunboats, and an occasional cruiser in the South Atlantic station have been told off from time to time to take stores, boats, necessaries of all kinds, to Mr. Glass's progeny, some of late years even "luxury liners" have made one or two pilgrimages to the island. Just before he died he left a most interesting collection of documents connected with the origin of Mr Glass and the foundation of the island community to the British Museum. If ever one man played the part of Providence to a group of his fellows it was surely Mr. Glass.—Country Life, London.

Creates New Fuel

"There is no sadder sight in the world than aimless and dissipated youth." The man who has just said that is a man of action—the Prince of Wales. He is not confining his sympathy to words. As a national thank-offering to celebrate the King's Jubilee the Prince announces the creation of a fund to extend the great work of all the important voluntary movements which guard the welfare of boys and girls at the critical span between 14 and 18.—Manchester Sunday Chronicle.

YOUR HANDWRITING REVEALS YOUR CHARACTER!

By LAWRENCE DOUGLETT
(Graphic Analyst)
(All Rights Reserved)

It would not be out of place for me to say a few words here about vocation and the various desires that people have for getting somewhere in the world. Many of my correspondents speak of "dabbling" in certain things. Some "dabble" in writing; others in something else.

You will never get anywhere if you "dabble". No matter in what direction your desires and ambitions are directed, you have to work hard and to devote concentrated and industrious effort towards its attainment. If you want to write stories, for instance, then get down to it, and write —and keep on writing. Remember Robert Bruce and the spiders. If at first your efforts don't meet with overwhelming success, never mind. Do not jump to the conclusion that you are aiming in the wrong direction. Redouble your efforts. That is the way to succeed. It may sound trite for me to write in this way, but believe me, the most inspiring truths of the world can be summed up in a few pounds' expressions—and my mailbag shows me the need for a little timely advice of this kind.

C.G.: You are too much of a procrastinator at present ever to get very far ahead with your ambitions. You need to cultivate more persistence, determination and will-power. Never mind dreaming about the future, but set to work to make your own future. Your present writing future is in your own hands. Success does not come to the average person like manna falling from heaven. It is the result of well-directed effort towards a clearly defined goal. You must also have definitely what you want to do most, and then get busy learning all you can about it. Then you will succeed. You can succeed if you want to badly enough. Do not expect to get for the price in self-sacrifice and hard work.

Mrs. A: I cannot see much real happiness for you, with your present husband. He is selfish, self-conceited drunkard, as you state, but he has a very violent temper, and apparently lacks self-control. His brutality to you, and to your children through this, even if his handwriting were not so definite on the point. And his drunkenness. He is a source of much other wonder shows that he is set on having his own way.

There is only one thing for you to do, and that is to carry on with the plans you speak of in your letter. A separation will be best for all of you, and will at least give your children a real chance in life—a chance which they do not appear to have under present circumstances. You are fortunate in being sufficiently self-supporting to be able to gain your freedom. I do wish you more happiness in the future.

Would you like to know what your handwriting shows about your character? Then send a specimen of the handwriting you would like to know the truth? Send specimen of the handwriting you would analyzed, stating birthdate in each case. Send 10c for each specimen, and enclose with a 3c stamped addressed envelope, to Lawrence Douglett, care of Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermot Avenue, Winnipeg. All letters will be confidential and replies will be mailed as quickly as possible. Please allow two weeks for your reply to reach you, owing to the volume of mail that is coming in.

Headgear For Aviators

British Army Order Designates Busby For Air Force

A British Army order, issued with a special view to the proper trappings for the King's Bodies, confers the busby the full-dress headgear of all artillery corps, heavy as well as light, and also of the Royal Engineers.

The Royal Horse Artillery have worn the busby from time immemorial. The Royal Engineers, the Garrison Artillery, before the Great War, wore what was officially known as the "Helmet, Universal, Home Pattern."

The R. H. A. retain the black sabretache and the gilt chain and feather. Other Royal Artillery and the Royal Engineers are authorized to wear a black cross belt with gilt mounts. Its goat's hair plume. The full-dress headdress of the Royal Corps of Signals—a pouch-over unit—will be a black lynx busby with scarlet plume.

Promotes Growth

A Russian Scientist Believes he had discovered the secret of promoting growth in physically stunted humans. His hormoglandol (his thyroid gland) of a 12-year-old child who had just died onto a stunted child of 15. The latter, it was stated, soon resumed his growth and in a few months was developing normally.

THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Golden text: So we, who are many, are one body in Christ, and severally members one of another. Romans 12:5.

Devotional Reading: Ephesians 2: 11-21.

Explanation and Comments

Life in the Early Church, Acts 2: 41-45. On the day of Pentecost about three thousand were baptized and became faithful members of the Christian community. They were specially noted in their attention to the teaching of the apostles, lived in wonderful unity and comradeship together, and shared in the breaking of bread and public prayers. The "breaking of bread" has reference to the blessing which was uttered at the beginning of a meal when the bread, which was in the form of thin, flat cakes, was also shared by the guests.

At first the followers of Christ made no effort to form any ecclesiastical organization. All that believers were together. They used in private houses, they used the Psalms for praise, they repeated the Lord's Prayer daily, and they generally, probably weekly, to partake of the Lord's Supper, which was followed by a church supper, partly for social purposes, partly for the relief of need for those in need. The one condition of their fellowship was love and loyalty to the Master; they lived without friction and vainglory, in an absolute, equal brotherhood. The rich shared with the poor, selling their possessions to provide funds for the latter as there was need. They were not communists, but they acted under the spur of a fine community spirit, realizing that they were God's possession and that their wealth was to be used for others as well as for themselves.

"The Church, as I understand it, is a living social and spiritual organism through which flows the life of the great Master Spirit of humanity, Jesus Christ. Each individual church is a branch of this Living Vine. The Church as a whole is the continuation of the Christ personality—his spirit and teaching. It is his living representative, his organ of expression, his continual reincarnation." (John Wright Buckham).

Trans-Atlantic Air Service

Experimental Flights May Be Carried Out This Summer

Provided arrangements can be made for suitable aerodromes at Galway, Ireland, and in Newfoundland, experimental flights across the Atlantic may have been put within the next six months in connection with the proposed re-introduction of transatlantic air passenger service. C. H. Glendining said large United States-built machines are available.

One of the great seaplanes under consideration is a Glenn Martin monoplane which would carry 46 passengers. Twelve of six, and a crew of aircraft across the 1,500 nautical miles separating Galway from Motts Cove bay, Newfoundland, in about 18 hours, 35 minutes. Mr. Glendinning also said a smaller seaplane constructed by Igor Sikorsky might be used.

An Important Discovery

London Doctors Find Snake Venom Will Stop Bleeding

Important results have been achieved by Dr. MacFarlane, pathologist, St. Bartholomew's Hospital, and Dr. Bansell, curator of the reptile house at the London Zoo, in the use of snake venom to stop bleeding. The snake, Russell's viper, yielded the most striking results. Its venom diluted to one part in 100,000 causes blood coagulation in one minute.

Snakes Are Costly

Snakes for museums, made in their own likeness, have become a craze among smart women on the Riviera in France. It is claimed that they enable their wearers to rest assured wearied by a constant "fashionable" guile. Such costs a small fortune.

Iron wire has a tensile strength of 60,000 pounds per square inch; that of silk 64,000, says a writer.

GARDENING

Directed L. Smith

Garden Soil And Care

An open position sloping towards the south or south-west and having a loam makes the best garden. Of course it is impossible to secure these ideal conditions, and Canada is fortunate in possessing a climate which will produce good vegetables on almost any kind of soil. If possible an exposure towards the south or east should be arranged since the sun is supposed to be the best for encouraging growth. But with soil, any kind can be built up and made into a fairly good one. Sand is better than clay because the former is warmer and it also gives quicker returns from fertilizer. It should be made to retain moisture, and to do this plenty of humus, or rotted vegetable manure must be incorporated. Digging in straw manure, green crops of sweet clover or even weeds, will prove a splendid benefit to both sandy and clay soils, especially after this additional material has rotted. If the clay is very heavy, and the garden area small, coal ashes can be added. Drainage is essential. Well rotted barn yard manure is the best fertilizer, but, of course, is not always obtainable and it is sometimes objectionable. Commercial, chemical fertilizer will take its place.

Other gardeners should guard against planting too deep. Very few seed like that of the poppy and alyssum, for instance, is best mixed with a little dry sand and the mixture sown With small seed merely pressing into finely prepared soil will be sufficient. The general rule is to sow to a depth of three times the diameter of the seed. This will mean pressing in most flowers and vegetable seeds, except things like Beans, Nasturtiums, Peas, Corn and Squash, which are large and should be covered about an inch and a half deep. Bulbs or tubers, such as Dahlia, Gladiolus and potatoes may be put down quite a piece, from four inches to a foot.

Ban On War Materials

France Decides To Forbid Export Of Needed Metals To Germany

A French decision to forbid exports of bauxite, raw material from which aluminum is made, served to emphasize difficulties the Nazis are having in their efforts for military self-sufficiency.

Determined to bring Germany back to the level of Europe's great powers, Adolf Hitler's aggressive administration is finding the manufacture of war materials more troublesome than the mobilization of men.

[illegible] shipments newspa[illegible] counted out, must seriously hamper the self-sufficiency program since Germany, producing no bauxite herself, has been buying half her supply of that material from France.

A further difficulty, it was asserted, is that Germany has devised an elaborate scheme for substituting domestic ores for those of more expensive metals, all of which may go by the board unless other sources of supply can be found.

"Dustin tells a different story," suggested Garcy. "There's the cattle rustled off the Hour-glass. Corse and Cray'd come across there. You're a partner with Sods Springs. You're good for five years at least. . . ."

"You listen to me, Garcy. . . . If Sam Dustin says . . ."

But Garcy swept on:

"The State isn't especially anxious to get you for rustlin'. That lies with Joe Carr. What I can do, Goddard, is to promise you immunity for all acts up till now provided you come across with a signed statement of all you know about old man Kane and this man Keene."

Spike breathed hard and considered the irons on his wrists. They were proof positive that Garcy meant business. They had the goods on Dustin. He had always warned Sam that he was biting off more than he could chew. It would not help Dustin in the slightest degree. They had enough on Dustin now to hang him. If they failed to hang him, they would "put him away" for years. In the office-safe there was enough to get away with; a trifle over seventeen thousand dollars, proceeds from the hundred cattle from the Hour-glass that no one knew of but himself and Dustin. He studied the three men before him.

"If I make a statement will you promise me there'll be no publicity?" he quavered.

"Sure. That's all right. You'll be subpoened later probably as a witness," said Garcy. "All I'm tryin' to do is save him from being expensive suit. Your affidavit will show Dustin the sense in pleadin' guilty to second degree murder. That'll save his life. But he'll be locked up for, Bfe . . . That'll mean really about twenty years."

"I . . . I . . . My God . . . I'll give you my affidavit to all facts I know in exchange for your written promise of immunity."

"Get paper and ink. I'll take that affidavit right now. Jamison here is a Notary Public," said Garcy.

It took nearly an hour to get that affidavit for Goddard know much more than he realized. Dustin never set down, fragments of talk that he had from time to time with Dustin. His threats against Edith and his scheme to hold up Joe Carr at the last all came out. When Garcy had that paper signed and sworn to and witnessed by Stone and himself he turned to Goddard.

"I suppose Dustin'll be admitted to heavy bail in this case. His lawyer'll look out for that. But if he gits out, I'll take it to be in your shoes when he learns of this statement."

Spike Goddard was of the same opinion. He had not the slightest doubt shot around a turn in the Sero trail he was the busiest man in Crevasse County. In two minutes he had his well-afe opened. In ten more he had packed a valles that he flung into the back seat of the battered little runabout. The old cattle baron's arrest on the narcotic charge because I needed Peyote Gregg's story about Kane's death and I didn't want Dustin to know about it. That's why I had Garcy pinch him. I couldn't guarantee your immunity very long though. Crewe spotted me. You would have too, Mr. Carr, if you hadn't been so occupied that you couldn't get around."

"Does Edith know?" asked Joe Carr.

Stone shook his head. "By the way," he said, "we'd better send for the real Duro Stone. He's gettin' worried about his son."

In the riotous hour that followed, old Joe Carr's eyes seldom left his second employee, Duro Stone. He followed every little movement with an interest that was pathetic.

"Now that I know who you are, I can see Victim in your face and manner," he said. "I want to see Edith's face when she's told."

"Why, I'll be glad to do it, Mr. Carr," said the new Gerald Keene ingenuously.

Edith, warned by the telephone call standing in the porch. The sun shining full in her eyes, filled them with a curious light and made a halo of the golden bronze of her head as she stretched out a hand to the new Gerald Keene.

"I hardly know how to greet you," she said eager naivete. "I'm glad to give Duro Stone a warm welcome. . . . Duro Stone who saved my life and me and the ranch but now . . ."

"But now . . ." He took the word . . . "Let 'em all go in the house, Edith. I've got something to tell you. . . ."

They watched the others go into the house and they stood watching the sun set behind the last blue line of the foot-hills A golden fog seemed to fill the air with an aureole dust and afar a coyote set up his shrill weird yelling. Stone . . . Duro Stone . . . now Gerald Keene took both her hands in his and drew her to him. She came unresistingly and was drawn into his arms

"You . . . needn't . . . try . . . say longer. . . ." Her voice was muffled as her face pressed to his "No longer . . . now."

"No longer what, Honey?"

"To pose as an amateur," she confessed. Then she backed away from him and looked at him as Frank Crewe came out, took one hasty glance and fled inside the house The next moment darkness shut down on them and the desert night began

Relieve Heart Disease
New Operation Reduces Activity Of Thyroid Gland
A new operation for heart disease was reported to the American College of Physicians meeting in Philadelphia.
The operation hobbles the thyroid gland, and is one of a series of similar, rapid steps made in the last two years toward relieving the suffering of heart victims.
The operation was described by James Alexander Lyon, M.D., and Edmund Horgan, M.D., of Washington. They reduce the activity of the thyroid, one of the body's chief energy producing machines, by cutting down both its blood and its nerve supply.
The arteries running to the gland are tied off, and with them the gland's connection with the sympathetic nervous system. The gland is hobbled, that is, does not entirely stop.
The energizing product it pours into the blood stream, thyroxin, is much diminished. The result is an easier off on the work done by the heart.

Changes Their Color

Zoologist Finds X-Ray Has Queer Effect On Mice

Colored mice are now available in St. Louis, in all colors except green, blue and lavender, and probably the addition repeal has nothing to do with it. It's science. This was announced by Dr. Gregory E. Snell, assistant professor of zoology at Washington University, who has been studying the effects of X-ray in the heredity of mice. A combination of dieting and exposure to the roentgen rays produced the startling colorations and in some instances strange malformations and abnormalities. Dr. Snell reported.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

MY JOY

Joy is not an ordered thing.
Portioned day by day
This much happiness for Spring,
That, when storms will stray

Rather, it is like a bird
Singing who knows why?
By what winds of fancy stirred
Into melody?

Joy is careless where it dwells,
How it takes a form;
Who can say what charm impels
Song that heavenward flows?

I had thought my joy was spent,
Fluttered from my hand.
I had sought to find content
In a silent land.

Then upon a golden day,
Fairest, loveliest,
Joy took a lark in May,
Singing in my breast!

The general tendency of more than nine persons out of ten is to spend what they get. If they are spending little, you may reasonably conclude, they are making little

Our Democratic Sovereign

Amusing Episode Of Visit Of Royalty 150 Years Ago

To-day the members of the British Royal family are most democratic. In celebrating the Royal Jubilee the British people feel their King and Queen are not only their sovereigns but their friends. And if this detracts in any way from the romantic atmosphere of royalty it adds infinitely more to the human relationship—a deeper and warmer bond than the merely remote and picturesque.

We could never imagine our King George and Queen Mary permitting much stilted behaviour among their personal friends as was exacted 150 years ago by George III. when he paid what was presumably a friendly call on Mrs. Delany. The visit is thus amusingly described by Agnes Repplier in her charming book "To Think of Tea."

"When the king entered Mrs. Delany's parlour, all its occupants except the hostess backed respectfully to the wall, and stood there at attention. Then Miss Post backed out of the door and brought in two extra candles which she placed on the tables; backed out a third time, and brought in His Majesty's tea on a large salver with bread and butter, and cake and a napkin. While he drank it she returned to her station at the wall. When he had finished, she took his cup, backed out of the room a fourth time and brought him a fresh supply. It was well he did not drink state-cups in Dr. Johnson's fashion, or Miss Post's legs would have given way under her. Of course no one partook of tea with the king. He drank it in solemn state . . . and took his departure, leaving the company overwhelmed by a profound sense of his condescension."

Sweepstake Building Burned

Fire In Dublin Destroys Structure Owned By Irish Free State

The Plaza building in Dublin where prizes are drawn in the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes, was swept by fire, rumored to be of incendiary origin.

None of the 300 young women employed in the building were at work. Many of them later joined the throng of spectators and wept as the walls of the blazing structure collapsed with a tremendous roar.

The elaborately decorated drum from which the counterfoils are taken in the sweepstakes draw was found in the debris, a mass of twisted steel.

The building, of frame and brick construction, was owned by the Saorstat (Irish Free State) government and contained the sweepstakes offices. It was situated on Hatch street, near O'Connell. The sweep draw was held on its second floor in a space room once used as a ball-room.

Observing Jubilee Year

Tribe In India Pronounce Not To Shoot Tigers

Unless there are backsliders, there will be no cattle killed by one of Punjab's most primitive tribes in the next 12 months. That will be the tribe's gesture honoring King George's silver jubilee.

Responding to the appeal of British Commissioner C. C. Garbett, 100 of the tribe's leaders solemnly agreed not to steal any cattle during jubilee year. The tribe is notorious throughout the Punjab for its cattle rustling.

Trampled To Death

Seventy-Five Beggars Die When Mob Scrambles For Cash

Seventy-five beggars were trampled to death in scrambling for a rich merchant's alms on one of the minor islands of the Bahrein group in the Persian gulf reports reaching Baghdad stated

The mass tragedy occurred in a glamorous setting of Oriental extravagance as 2,000 ragamuffins, learning the fabulously wealthy merchant was about to celebrate by showering out money, swarmed to his mansion.

Little Helps For This Week

The Lord shall preserve thee from all evil, He shall preserve thy soul. Psalm 121:7.

Under Thy wings my God I rest.
Under Thy shadow safely lie;
By Thy own strength in peace possessed
While dressed evils pass me by.

A heart rejoicing in God delights in all His will, and is sorely provided with the most firm joy in all estates; for if nothing can come to pass besides or against His will, than that soul cannot be vexed which delights in Him, and hath no will but his, not only when He shines bright on them but when they are clouded. That flower which follows the sun doth so even on cloudy days. When the sun does not shine it follows the hidden course and motion of it. So the soul that moves after God keeps that course even when he hides His face, and is content to do His will in all conditions.

Labor Under Handicap

Child With Defective Hearing Or Sight Often Neglected

"There is no child so completely neglected, so completely misunderstood as the child who is losing his hearing," says an investigator. "He does not even understand his own plight, he feels no pain; he only knows the impatience, the hard knocks, the lack of sympathy or the bitterness of being passed over or neglected. There are many thousands of these hard-of-hearing children in the State of New York. Some of them are being discovered through surveys."

The New York State Federation of Women's Clubs has been hard-working committees, attacking what is often the origin of juvenile delinquency and the quotation shows their feeling: "The child with eye-defects is also isolated and often anti-social.

A Country's Real Enemies

Are Not Those Which Exist Across Some Boundary

Every nation of the world is laboring under the terrific illusion that its enemies exist across some geographical boundary. We do not obey our enemies when we slay our brothers; we merely multiply them. State, fear, ill-will, greed, ignorance, pride, racial and nationalistic bigotry these are the real enemies of my country, and your country, and every country — Dr Harold Phillips.

One day she happened to mention this to the doctor, who wrote a large notice with the words: "Please remember the night nurse," and placed it on the hall table

Next evening, when she came on duty, she found, beneath the notice, a shilling, a sixpence, and a few coppers!

DEWBERRY BUDGET

Well, folks, we cannot compete with the little town of Callander, Ontario, which has become famous as the place where the centipedes were born, but we think we can put lay claim to some fame in the line of the increase of the population of this fair Dominion. Dewberry has now a Jubilee baby. About four p.m. on May 6th a son was born to Mr. and Mrs. William Elsen, at their home in the village. Of course several names have been suggested, but George should be one of them Let's hope the young fellow as he grows up will be one of Canada's outstanding citizens. It should also be recognized at this time that it was the skill of Mrs. J. Armstrong, who is a registered nurse by profession, that made his advent into this world a comfortable one for himself and his mother. Dewberry wishes them all the best this life can give them.

Like many other points along the P.R. we have had our share of mercuries dealing with the much discussed question of "Social Credit." We hope to hear more about this matter later, and have been promised speakers, who will enlighten our minds on finance with all its complexities and how to escape from our economic ills.

On Jubilee day the town was quiet, most folks staying at home to hear the empire broadcast. The municipal secretary was seen nailing up a Canadian flag on the office building and the morning milkman gave him an encouraging "Atta boy, Harry!"

Hugh Hagen has been at work in the municipal office for over two weeks, and his cheery smile may be seen of an evening as Hugh takes a stroll to breathe the prairie air after seeing a columns of figures all day.

Last Friday, the school dance took place in the hall where these assemblies had tripped the light fantastic until three a.m.

All farmers are busy on the land the season being late, so that the sprint from one front line to the other has started.

Miss Jean McGillivray was on a visit to the home of her brother, but seems to prefer the farm, as we notice those visits are of short duration.

Well, in the beautiful words of the poet, which are familiar to all of you but which at the present moment have escaped our memory, we will say good-bye until the next time.

SAYS WHEAT CONTROL NEEDED UNTIL 1940

George F. Parrell, director of the grains division of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, told a number of farmers at Enid, Oklahoma, recently that control of wheat plantings will be imperative until at least 1939. He warned that a return to normal weather conditions would again mean bumper crops. Because of diminished exports, Parrell said, "it appears that our top limit on wheat acreage should be from 56,000,000 to 58,000,000 acres, instead of the 66,000,000 acres we grew in the base period."

SEEDING NOW GENERAL

Seeding, delayed by a late spring, subsequent blizzards and a heavy rain, is now general. Many of the farmers estimate that they are between two and three weeks later than 1934 in seeding their wheat.

Very little land was in readiness to seed, other than summerfallow, as owing to the extremely dry fall a small percentage of fall plowing was done It is likely that the acreage seeded to wheat will be less than last year with a subsequent gain in the acreage sown to coarse grains.

The Cabaret de Luxe is having a spring brightening up and now presents a pleasing appearance to its many patrons.

THE WEATHER

The weather still remains cool, absence of spring and summer heat being noticeable even at midday. Thursday dawned brighter and warmer and gives more promise of ushering in the much-needed hot spell than any day so far.

Confidence

Confidence is the bedrock on which human society rests. The entire world in all its varied activities is motivated by confidence. Destroy confidence and our civilization would disintegrate and fall into ruin. Confidence is a truism that there is so little but one absolute certainty, which is death. And, strip one writer, all other activities, to a large extent, are dependent upon confidence for their being.

There is no word in our language that is more powerful in its full meaning, one that carries with it so practical an agency to accomplish our ends, or to transmute our hopes into realities than that of confidence. It has been said that it is a panel of slow growth. Yet it is one that can be nurtured by individuals and groups of individuals and brought to full fruitage with little effort. It is akin to faith in that faith in a particular proposition can be made an actuality by confidence. It is in a measure a question of application. Sometimes it is an outgrowth of reason, sometimes instinct, but however acquired it is, as stated in our opening sentence, the bedrock on which human society rests.

A home is established on confidence, the confidence a man and a woman have in each other which begets respect and love, confidence which children have in their parents; confidence which parents seek of their children and which in turn which they repose in their offspring. Lacking confidence, a home would be impossible.

A successful business can only be built up and maintained where there is confidence. The confidence which one partner reposes in another, which the shareholders have in their managing executive, which an employer extends to his employees, and which employees have for their employers, and finally which the business man has in his customers and his customers' patronage for him. Lacking such confidence, a business will inevitably and speedily disappear.

So, too, is the life of the community founded in confidence. First there must be confidence that there is a future for the community or there will be no community because people would not remain to constitute one; people who constitute the community group must have confidence in the goodwill, ability and enterprise of their associates, otherwise confidence in the community itself would be lacking. And what is true of the community is true of the nation.

It is not only essential that the citizens of a community or nation possess confidence in themselves and in each other, but it is vitally necessary that other communities and nations repose confidence in them if they are to achieve the greatest success and rise to a proud place in the world. When confidence between peoples and nations is lost, the world is headed for trouble.

Furthermore, when a community or nation assumes an attitude or adopts a course of action which is a withdrawal of confidence from it, such community or nation is bound to be the sufferer. Once a man loses faith with another he destroys faith in himself, after all, in his greatest asset, the confidence which his fellow men repose in him. It may have taken a long time to win the confidence of others, but by one act it can be quickly destroyed and forever lost. And if a community, built up as communities are by the confidence that people have given to them, proceeds to evade its responsibilities and repudiate its obligations, it thereby destroys its most valuable community asset.

A dollar bill is only valuable because of the confidence which the public has in the Government or bank issuing the bill, lacking such confidence the piece of paper would be worthless. If a pupil lacks confidence in his teacher, the teaching will be largely in vain. The sick patient's confidence in the doctor is half the battle to a successful recovery. Lacking confidence in the safety of the track, or bridge to be crossed, of the engineer at the telegraph key, of the trained engineer in the locomotive cab, few people would be induced to undertake a railway journey.

Let the reader consider what his or her own position in life would be if they lost all confidence in their fellow citizens, in the institutions of their nation, in everything animate and inanimate which surrounds them. The world would become ill inmated for a madhouse. Without confidence mankind simply could not continue to exist.

Notwithstanding this great truth, the fact remains that throughout the world to-day organized efforts are being put forth to destroy confidence in practically all things. Men and women are asked to place no confidence in the excellence of land, in the products formerly held religious beliefs, in report forms of government which it has taken centuries to fashion, in the surrender confidence in themselves, their convictions, abilities, initiative and energies, in a word their individual importance, to place confidence in themselves, to become mere cogs in an economic and political machine controlled by forces over which they will have surrendered all control.

Lose confidence in yourself and you destroy yourself, because with loss of confidence there is loss of self-respect, loss of self-control, loss of ambition, loss of initiative and the power to do.

A Whale Of A Smelt

The largest church ever caught in the net was landed by fishermen in South Africa when nature was stepped in of the city. The ancient church, Bethesda, a fisherman's net at Hout Bay, near variet Templum, in Budapest, Hungary. It was 27 feet 6 inches gury, is to be moved 16 yards up-long, 12 feet in girth, and weighed half. It will be eight yards higher five tons. It fought madly for freedom for two hours before it was finally hauled into shallow water. Fishermen had to kill it with 34 bullets were needed to kill it.

To make way for the replanning of the Moscow Circle, the ancient church, Bethesda, in Budapest, Hungary, will be moved 16 yards up-hill. It will be eight yards higher than before. Exhibition In Belgium

Big Fair In Brussels Bid For World Trade

Belgium's gesture to the cementing of the peace of Europe is an international Exhibition opened at Brussels, April 27.

Amid the tumult and shouting, the talk of impending conflict of nations and the stricken world, Belgium projects her "World's Fair" in the hope of forwarding the friendship of nations and helping to re-establish the business of the world on a firmer basis.

With 600 acres of grounds and 150 palaces and pavilions the promoters have planned to make the exhibition the shop-window of the nations. Practically all countries of the hemispheres have places in the great show.

Science and technology, commercial exploitation and industrial development of the great modern discoveries are special features of the exhibition.

Celebration of the centenary of the first railway line and the first train between Brussels and Malines in 1835 furnish an opportunity for giving special attention to transport and means of communication.

In the departments of historical development, commemoration of founding of the independent state of Congo has given this section an impetus.

Ancient and modern art, domestic and foreign, will be displayed in special buildings. With the ancient arts will be seen tapestries, of which Belgium was one of the most reputed centres, together with sculpture, pottery and lace.

Figures Are Interesting

Statistics Show Important Place Occupied By Canadian Railways

The place which Canada's railways occupy in the Dominion's affairs is strikingly shown in some statistics recently traveled by the Canadian trains. The total payroll of Canada's railways for the year amounted to $141,-978,000 paid to the average of 119,000 employees. The railways are one of the largest consumers of Canada's coal output. Some figures in this connection are: Canadian National lines show that out of every dollar of the $151,896,074.56 spent last year in operating the railway, approximately 10 cents went for fuel. The fuel bill for locomotives amounted to $14,-976,000 for the year; the water bill amounted to $393,706.64. Approximately 60 cents out of every dollar of expenses went for labor. Information as to the amount of business handled over Canadian National lines throughout the year gives a similar idea on the extent to which Canada's mining industry has grown. Products of the mines constituted the largest portion of the total tonnage, though, 12,092,546 or 32.7 per cent. Agricultural products account for 22.1 per cent, forest products 12.7 per cent, animal products 2.7 per cent, miscellaneous 29.8 per cent.

Girls Are Bad Spellers

Work Harder Than Boys Opinion Of Toronto Teacher

Girls are better spellers than boys "probably because they work harder," declared Miss Mary Dickinson, of Central High School of Commerce, Toronto, says. Mr. Dickinson has just completed a survey of the spelling of 4,000 Canadian students which he will submit to the commercial section of the O.E.A. "Bourgeois" and "beau" were about the children found hardest to spell," he commented. "The easiest, we found, was 'accordance'." The survey he said showed that pupils in commercial schools are better spellers than students in academic and technical schools.

The February movement of lumber from Canada to Great Britain, viz., 14,705,300 pounds, was unusually large the volume for February, 1934. In Bed With Neuritis Every Winter

Until Kruschen Brought Relief

"For three years," writes a woman, "I have been sick in bed about three months every winter with neuritis in my hips and legs. Last winter I started taking Kruschen Salts, and got relief from the first dose. This winter I have not been in bed at all."—Mrs. D. M.

Neuritis is a result of impurities in the blood. And it is impure blood, circulating all over the system and setting up inflammation in the tissues, that causes those excruciating pains. Kruschen Salts can be safely trusted to set the matter right. Because Kruschen contains just what Nature needs to persuade your internal organs back into a healthy, normal state.

Took Part In Convention

Blind, Crippled Child Astonishes Delegates With Her Skill

Kindliness which all good school teachers possess, coupled with unusual readily for Lucille Lemp, a little blind and crippled girl from Twintch, Ontario, who took an important part in the public school department's session of the Ontario Education Association's convention held recently in Toronto.

Lucille was brought by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John K. Lemp, especially for the occasion. In a shiny plak frock she evoked the kindliest of attention as she was carried into the stage and set on her father. But when she began to play her number, admiration and sympathy mingled together in the hearts and minds of delegates who privilege in the child's artistic and skillful demonstration an example in what a handicapped child may under the auxiliary classes department of the Ontario Department of Education is now being done for physically handicapped children.

Lucille played her harp for an encore which applauded her when she was through. The audience's impression in her pleasant voice she recited a poem which she had written. And the delegates, with rapt attention, watched her cheery, earnest face, she wrote a business letter on a typewriter with a Braille equation. Using a relief map of the British Isles she gave her audience a lesson in geography.

Necessity For Canada

Control Of Wheat Supply Needed Unless British Economist

Regulation and control of wheat supply is a necessity for Canada, and other countries must make room, Sir Grent Britain as Britain's population is no longer increasing and her wheat demand is diminishing, Sir Christopher Stamp, noted British economist, stated at Montreal.

Chairman of the London, Midland and Scottish Railway and a director of the Bank of England, Sir Josiah was in Montreal while en route with Lady Stamp to visit relatives in New York on a combined business and pleasure trip to the United States.

Sir Josiah, who is chairman of a commission on the Canadian wheat situation a few years ago, leaped any permanent increase in the British wheat farmer as a result of the United States' dust storms would not be permanent. Increased acreage and crop production under the regulation the benefits would be permanent.

The Mauretania Retires

Launched in 1906, This Vessel Crossed 1,000,000 Miles During Its Years Of Service

The Cunard liner Mauretania, which has just been retired, was planned to be the fastest ship in the world, and not only was this distinction, but kept it for 22 years.

The Mauretania was built at the shipyard of Swan, Hunter and Wigham Richardson, at Wallsend, near Newcastle-on-Tyne, England, and was the first ship to have quadruple propellers.

The hull was launched on September 20, 1906, the Duchess of Cornwall performing the launching ceremony. The ship's final trials took place on November 3, 1907, and she started on her first voyage to New York on November 16, 1907, making the crossing in five days, five hours and 19 minutes, and thus breaking all existing records at that time.

As late as July 1933, the Mauretania, on her way from Havana to New York, covered 112 miles at an average of 23 knots, or 26.34 land miles per hour. This record was made between Cayruhot Reef Lighthouse and Jupiter Inlet Lighthouse.

The Mauretania had steamed fully 1,000,000 miles, including more than 900 voyages across the Atlantic, scores of cruises, many of them to the West Indies and South America, and scouting and troop-carrying during the war. Her mileage would reach around the world eight times. During her career she carried approximately 350,000 passengers. During the war she transported upward of 70,000 soldiers.

The Mauretania was named for a former Roman providence in Northern Africa.

McKenzie, Manitoba Minister of Agriculture, has announced that the grading of dairy print butter sold in that province will go into effect June 1, enabling legislation having been passed recently by the provincial House. Regulations are understood to have gone into effect in British Columbia and Alberta on July 1, and in Saskatchewan on June 1.

At the present time, under the Federal Dairy Commission, all provisions provide for the grading and sale of all butter, whether in boxes or in pound prints, as only first, second, third or no grade, which are formerly only such butter as was going on export or into storage was to be graded. Under Alberta's law the act last year provision was made for compulsory print grading, and the same provisions have been the first to pass enabling legislation.

The Most Precious Thing

If time be of all things most precious, wasting time must be the greatest prodigality, since lost time is never found again; and what we call time enough always proves little enough. Let us then be up and doing, and doing to a purpose, so by diligence shall we do more with less perplexity.—Franklin.

Queer Things Found

Pulse Of Grays, England, Get Many Strange Articles

The door of a Royal Air Force plane which fell off while the pilot was "stunting" over Grays, England, has been picked up on Purfleet Rifle Range. In recent weeks the articles recorded in the Grays police books as "found" include a coach's supply of washing for a family, a goat, a parrot, a [illegible] gin's dresses, a cockerel and a swan.

The American Chemical Society is developing a course in chemistry which will enable housewives to do their [illegible] foods.

GERMAN POLICY IS DEFENDED IN HOUSE OF LORDS

London.—Defence of German policy was voiced in the house of lords by the Marquess of Lothian and Viscount Esher in the course of a debate on treaty revision.

Lord Devises moved the government should take steps to implement article 19 of the covenant of the League of Nations by the establishment of a satisfactory procedure for effecting a peaceful change in the relationship of the states and for revision of treaties.

Most people recognized the treaty of Versailles was "somewhat severe," said Lord Lothian. Germany in the last 20 years had undergone "terrible things." If there was to be peace, she must be given an appropriate place in the world.

Four questions must be decided, Hi declared — demilitarization of the Rhine area which could not last indefinitely; the position of Austria and the Polish corridor and the former German colonies. It appeared these issues must be settled at the end of a round table conference or modified in some more drastic way, he said.

Germany was not the only power which repudiated treaties, said Lord Esher.

"It is only a casuist who can say that the aims of omission of which France and Britain were guilty were better than the acts of commission perpetrated by Germany, for Britain and France all along repudiated the treaty of Versailles in the sense of not having put into force the article to disarm. . . . Germany and Japan are expanding, dynamic nations. We ought really to understand their viewpoint," he said.

Lord Davies' motion was finally withdrawn. Earl Stanhope, under-secretary of state for foreign affairs, had replied.

Britain had disarmed on land, air, and sea in the air to a point which was generally considered unwise, the earl said. He expressed surprise it should still be considered British had failed to fulfil disarmament clauses. Referring to the question of revision of frontiers, Lord Stanhope said:

"You cannot satisfy one nation with regard to frontiers without making another nation give up territory, and until you can get a greater feeling of friendship and confidence between the nations any procedure making for revision of frontier is obviously one that will lead to more misunderstanding, difficulty and friction than if things were left as they are."

Pictures Of Quintuplets

Royalties May Bring In Large Sum For Dionne Fund

Toronto.—A million pictures of the Dionne quintuplets will grace 1936 calendars Joseph Sedgwick announced by Joseph Sedgwick of the Ontario attorney-general's department.

Arrangements were completed by a large lithographing company in the United States, the copyright holders of photographs of the babies, said Mr. Sedgwick, acting with the board of guardians for the little Dionnes.

Royalties which may amount to $35,000, will be paid into the quintuplets' fund. The company's Canadian agents will hold rights in Canada.

Prohibit Importation

Two Books Of John Buchan Not Allowed Entry On Account Of Politics

Ottawa.—The department of national revenue sent notification to customs collectors that importation of two books by John Buchan, Canada's governor-general-designate, has been prohibited.

The prohibition order was issued the notification said, at the request of the publishers who have obtained copyrights under the Canadian act and do not wish copies of the works printed in other countries to be imported into Canada.

The books are "Prester John" and "Salute to Adventure."

Taken Of Relief

Toronto Controller Sam McBride charged at a board of control meeting that a man living in a $30,000 house, with a butler, has been receiving relief. Welfare Commissioner A. W Laver said the man, who had been living in the country and had given a wrong address, was taken off relief.

Seeding Late In Alberta

Will Be General Soon If Weather Is Favorable

Calgary.—Wind and weather being favorable, seeding is expected to be general through southern Alberta, from Red Deer to the border, within a few days, the latest in the past 16 years.

The late start, however, has not worried farmers. Moisture conditions are good, and wheat will have a better than even break against weeds and grasshoppers.

There is expected, according to reports gathered by the Calgary Herald, to be a large increase in acreage seeded to coarse grain and feed crops, particularly oats.

In the Peace River districts seeding is from 10 to 30 per cent. under way.

From Red Deer north to the Peace River there is virtually no seeding done, but work on the land is underway at a few points, according to The Herald reports.

Britain Not Worrying

Not Stirred Too Deeply By German Naval Activities

London.—Great Britain does not intend to become stirred too deeply by Germany's building of U-boats, but will continue plans for the projected Anglo-German naval talks, it was authoritatively asserted here.

During the talks, which will take place probably after Chancellor Adolf Hitler outlines his foreign policy before the reichstag about May 15, Admiralty Ribbentrop Hitler's personal arms emissary, will head Germany's special delegation, it was officially announced.

The cabinet, it was learned, will study these three methods proposed for limitation of naval violation of the treaty of Versailles:

1. A protest to Berlin.
2. Intervention at Geneva.
3. Consultation with France and Italy, in pursuance of the agreements reached at the Stresa conference.

Drop Liquor Charges

Lack Of Territorial Jurisdiction Stated As Reason

Montreal. — Charges facing residents of the Maritime provinces of conspiracy to defraud the Dominion government of $5,000,000 through liquor smuggling were dropped because of doubt of territorial jurisdiction, it was learned. Crown counsel, J. Penverne, K.C., crown prosecutor, declared as preliminary hearing of eight men on similar charges continued. The case is expected to close within a few days.

Those being tried are the four Brendinen brothers, Sam, Allan, Harry and Abe, Barney Aaron, F. S. Blair and James Cranksham, all of Montreal, and William Tuhe, Halifax.

Important Role

Prince Of Wales Makes Appeal For Support Of Jubilee Trust Fund

London. The Prince of Wales will naturally assume an important role in the jubilee celebrations marking the 25-year reign of his father.

That was emphasized with the appearance of the official jubilee program and the publication of a letter addressed ot an appeal from the prince signed in his signature "Edward P" for support of the "King George's Jubilee Trust."

The trust, for which some $20,000,000 is sought, will be used for young Britain's "already youth in the difficult days and strengthen its maturity."

Not Closing Camps

Ontario Not Shutting Down Relief Camps At Sudbury

Toronto.—Ontario government relief camps near Sudbury and Sault Ste Marie are not being closed Hon. Peter Heenan, provincial minister of lands and forests, stated here.

He pointed out that a number of men, including settlers who would have an opportunity to cultivate their land, had been let out until the province learns from the federal government what contribution Ottawa is prepared to make toward works on trans-Canada highway project.

Short Of Small Change

Mexico, D.F. Although 800,000,000 pesos in new copper coins have been put in circulation by the Bank of Mexico, the shortage of small change for business transactions became more acute as silver money was surrendered to the bank in compliance with a government decree retiring it from circulation.

Germany's Naval Plans

Hitler May Decide To Shroud Intentions In Mystery

Berlin.—Adolf Hitler was believed in competent quarters to be planning to use Germany's naval re-armament to keep him in the "driver's seat" in naval negotiations with other powers.

It was thus these quarters explained the continued official secrecy concerning the extent of the reich's plans for naval construction, and the reiterated official denials that submarines actually have been constructed.

Commentators here said the Fuehrer may decide to shroud his naval plans in continued official secrecy and approach the scheduled Anglo-German naval conversations reluctantly.

Commenting on reports from abroad that the reich already had six submarines ready for completion, one foreign naval expert said: "It is impossible to hide a submarine along Germany's coast—what good [illegible] is [illegible] for [illegible] things as training!"

BRITISH FOREIGN POLICY SKETCHED FOR VISITORS

London.—An account of their conferences and conversations with European statesmen was given to Prime Minister R. B. Bennett and other heads of the self-governing dominions by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and Sir John Simon, secretary of the foreign office, at an informal gathering in the commons. A discussion followed.

The meeting occupied an hour and a half after which a communique was issued. Earl Stanhope said:

"The prime minister entertained at tea the prime ministers of Canada, Australia, South Africa. The prime minister of New Zealand was unable to be present as he had not arrived in England. Several colleagues of the prime ministers were also present.

"An opportunity was taken to have an informal discussion of the present international situation in the course of which Mr. MacDonald and Sir John Simon gave an account of recent conversations and conversations with European states. Among the ministers present besides Mr. MacDonald and John were Stanley Baldwin, lord president of the council; Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer; J. H. Thomas, secretary for the Dominions; and Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, secretary for the colonies."

It is understood Sir John gave an account of the events of the last two months starting with conversations with the British government begining in February, covering the German declaration of conscription the Berlin and London visits, Allied conference and the meeting of the League council at Geneva. Mr. MacDonald also participated in the talks and the policy of the United Kingdom throughout these events was sketched

It was gathered that the talk was entirely confined to international affairs and consisted very largely in the Dominion premiers asking and receiving information.

The prohibition order was issued the notification said, at the request of the publishers who have obtained copyrights under the Canadian act and do not wish copies of the works printed in other countries to be imported into Canada.

Victims Of Dust Storms

Twenty Persons Die In United States In Past Two Weeks

Springfield, Colo.— Red Cross officials estimated "at least 20" persons have died within the past two weeks in the United States "dust bowl" of disease aggravated by the blowing silt.

Albert Evans, in charge of Red Cross dust storm headquarters at Liberal, Kan., said nine have died in Baca county, Colorado, five in the Oklahoma panhandle, and six in southwestern Kansas.

He emphasized the figure was "conservative."

A 100t "dust bell" death in less than two weeks and a score more of emergency hospital patients were reported as new clouds of silt shadowed parts of Mexico, Texas, Colorado, Oklahoma and Kansas.

James Waite, five-year-old son of a farmer, died here of an illness which physicians said was aggravated by breathing dirt into his lungs.

Stand On Trade Parley

Canada's Basis For Discussion With U.S. Has Been Decided

Ottawa Canada's stand on the reciprocal trade negotiations which the United States government announced some time ago would be initiated after hearings had been completed in Washington, was practically decided, according to the best information available here. The nature of Canada's basis for discussion has not been made public nor are any developments expected for a matter of weeks, it was learned.

Hon. W. D Herridge Canadian minister to Washington, was in Ottawa recently. He was in frequent consultation with trade and external affairs officials and government tariff experts. No official comment could be obtained on the question

Kidnapping Charge

Dutch Police Investigating Activities Of Nazi Government

The Hague.—Investigation of the kidnapping of a German laborer named Gutsett from Dutch territory was pressed by police as public opinion connected the case with the deportation of Major Witte, also a German, for carrying on Nazi propaganda in the Netherlands.

Government authorities emphasized, however, the two events were not connected. They also denied their relation to the reported kidnapping of a man named Euschede who, it is said, was spirited across the border into Germany coincident with the Gutsett disappearance.

The expuls on of Major Witte was ordered about three weeks ago by Dutch authorities, according to a report submitted to the lower house by J. H. H. Van Schaik, minister of justice. He added the Nazi agent had recrossed the border into Germany on April 22 He had been chief of the Nazi bureau in Amsterdam for over a year.

Jumps From Train

Wisconsin Convict Meets Death In Attempt To Escape

Ridgetown, Ont.—Preferring death to trial on forgery charges William O. Reeves, 44-year-old convict from Waupun, Wis., leaped from a speeding Michigan and Central Railway train near here.

The body of the prisoner, being brought to Arlington, Mass., from Wisconsin state prison, was found unattended on the railway tracks a few miles from here.

Reeves evaded his guard, Lieut. A. E. Bran of Arlington, long enough to smash the small circular window in the train washroom and crawl through. The train was travelling at approximately 65-miles-an-hour as it passed this point, 15 miles northeast of Chatham

REDUCTION OF INSURANCE RATES FOR H. B. ROUTE

Ottawa.—Reduction of 25 per cent. on the extra premium payable on vessels to be insured into the Hudson Bay route will be effective during the 1935 season under a report of the Imperial shipping committee on Hudson Bay marine insurance rates. The report was made public simultaneously in London and Ottawa.

The decrease in rates for "suspension of the warranty," (or for suspension of the guarantee that a certain vessel will not engage in certain defined trades which the underwriters regard as involving extra risk), will apply to all vessels, with or without a pyro compass.

The advantage of a lower rate given to a ship equipped with a pyro compass, considered by the committee to reduce greatly the risk, is to be maintained The schedule of rates is not covered depending on tonnage, subsidiary other factors.

No change is proposed in the date of the opening of the season, the report states

The opinion of masters is that the lights in Hudson Strait judiciously placed the committee finds.

After reviewing operations of the 1934 season, the committee commends the good service which was supplied by the government, the service rendered by the Canadian government steamship "N. B. McLean" and gives the following as a summary of second facts for last year.

A That 15 commercial voyages have been made practically without casualty in a very difficult season.

B That the aim to navigation supposed by the consultative government have been reached a degree of efficiency that must be accepted as having very materially contributed to the result

C That several of the masters who sailed in the ships have now made the voyage for more than one season and their experience as to future trade will be regarded as having contributed to the result. The report states the underwriters recognized that the aid to navigation including especially the services of the two patrol vessels N.B. McLean" and Canada Eagle had rendered possible an immunity from serious casualty which was gratifying "Had the last season under review occurred in the first year after the opening of Churchill the present outlook for the route might have been very different"

ARMS TESTIMONY DISCLOSURES ARE REGRETTED BY U.S.

Washington.—Assuming "full responsibility for this unfortunate incident," Chairman John McSwain told President Roosevelt of his great concern at the house military committee's disclosure of secret army testimony which stirred international comment.

Replying to the president's own stern rebuke and disavowal of alleged war plans touching friendly nations—Canada among them—the white-haired South Carolinan wrote the White House:

"I greatly regret the unfortunate inclusion of the executive testimony along with other testimony when it was sent to the public printer . . . I can assure you that no such incident will again occur because so long as I shall preside as chairman, any testimony that may be given in executive session and that may affect our foreign or diplomatic relations will not be taken down stenographically . . ."

Brigadier-General F. M. Andrews, chief of the general headquarters air force, gave testimony on the need of reising nearby British and French isles in event of an emergency. Brigadier-General Charles E. Kilbourne testified regarding a "camouflaged" air base near the unfortified Canadian border.

With reference to the furry over the proposal for an air base in the Great Lakes region, McSwain wrote: "I have not recently or our treaty with the British government concerning the disarmament of our Canadian border line, but my present recollection is that following shortly after the War of 1812 and much bitterness existing upon the Great Lakes, including the victory of Commodore Perry, this treaty expressly stipulated only against battleships or armed vessels upon the Great Lakes.

"It was true then and has ever since been true that we had and continue to have several fields forts, and posts near or relatively near to our Canadian frontier, and these have been added to in any way regarded as unfriendly gestures. By analogy, they might be compared with French fortifications along the Belgian frontier. They are maintained not against Belgium, but against what might come over and through Belgium, as has happened in the past."

Opening Day May 17th, 1905

THIRTY years ago we first opened a tent door for the dispensing of prescriptions and the general transaction of business.

Records of that time show Prescription No. 1 to have been filled on the fourth day after opening — for Mr. Tom Black, a foreman of a Railroad Grading Camp.

Since the above event our Prescription Department has thrived steadily, throughout the intervening years until our present records show the dispensing of over 130,000 prescriptions.

We are proud of this record and hope that we may continue to deserve your confidence.

M. A. BRIMACOMBE HEADS MUSICAL ASSOCIATION

Annual Meeting Was Held Monday Evening

The annual meeting of the Musical Festival Association was held in the Brimacombe hall on Monday, May 13 with a very fair gathering of interested persons. Mr. M. A. Brimacombe presided in the absence of the president.

The work of the year was reviewed and the Secretary read the financial statement for 1934-35, showing a small surplus on hand.

Various suggestions for the improvement of the Festival were made and after some discussion these were passed to the incoming Executive for the necessary action. Among the suggestions was one to make it possible for the membership fee to include admission to all festival programmes, including the evening concert. Another was to the effect that representatives of the various rural schools be asked for on the Directorate. The possibility of holding the evening concert in the town instead of at the College was talked up and met with considerable approval, as did the suggestion that outstanding talent be brought from Edmonton or elsewhere to assist in building up a programme which would draw a larger attendance. The financing of the Festival is a considerable burden and those who contributed in any way are deserving of the thanks of the Association and of the public generally.

The teachers of the town and rural districts gave very possible assistance and to a very large degree the success of the 1935 Festival is due to their interest and help.

The name of the Association has been changed to Vermilion Inspector ate Musical Festival Association

The officers for 1935-36 are as follows: Hon. President, Mr. A. E. Corbett, Dept. of Extension. Hon. Vice-President, H. R. Parker, I.P.S., Hon. 2nd Vice President, Mr. P. M. Baker. Chairman Vermilion School Board President, M. A. Brimacombe; Vice-Presidents, J. W. G. Morrison, K.C.; Secretary-Treasurer, Carl Johnson.

Directors are as follows: S. C. Herbert, A. M. West, F. J. Rhingold, Mrs. H. N. Stephen, W. Gilmish, Mrs. M. Hill, Mrs. J. W. G. Morrison, Mrs

NEW FREIGHT STRUCTURE ON CAN. NAT'L RAILWAYS

Low Rates Effective May 20 Between Edmonton and Vermilion

BUSINESS INTEREST GRATIFIED

A new structure affecting freight in less than carload lots as between Edmonton and Vermilion will go into effect on Monday, May 20th next. This was the important announcement made Monday at the weekly luncheon of the Vermilion Board of Trade by Mr. L. A. Penner of the freight division of the Canadian National Railways at Edmonton. The present rates from Edmonton to Vermilion are, first class 40c per hundred, 35c for second, 25c for third and 25c for fourth class. The new schedule will be 45c on freight classified as third class and higher, and 32c on fourth class freight. The new rates, stated Mr. Penner, will include cartage delivery or pick-up in Vermilion as well as in Edmonton. Corresponding low rates and privileges will extend to intervening points.

The absorption of the cartage charge will mean a big saving as well as convenience to the business interests, let alone the substantial reduction in the general freight charges as announced by Mr. Penner. This system of handling freight was adopted by the railways in some of the eastern provinces a year or two ago, but this will be the first application in the Western provinces.

The announcement has been received with much gratification by the business men of the town as well as by the people of the district generally. One feature of the new low rates is that the charges will be the same both on in and out bound freight. At present the rates on outbound freight from Edmonton are higher than those applying to the inbound carriage.

The Board also passed a resolution to urge the Canadian National Railways to maintain a 24-hour service at the local station. Complaints were being made that freight could not be shipped out after 5 o'clock in the afternoon. With the reinstatement asked for freight can be shipped out at any hour of the day or night. This as well will prove added convenience to shippers. The resolution was moved by E.W.D. Morrison, K.C., and seconded by H. P. Long and carried unanimously. Mr. Long in seconding the resolution mentioned that the town owed about $1000 a year in taxes from the Canadian National and he felt it was up to the people of Vermilion at least to support their own road with their patronage.

Among Miss Dary, Mrs. A. E. Herbert, Miss Corbett, P. H. Steele, K.C., Sergeant J. J. Parr, Mrs. C. L. Wilson, Mrs. Clements.

The funeral was held Wednesday morning from the Holy Name church at 10:30 interment taking place in the Catholic cemetery.

Social Credit Convention Selects Candidates

MAYOR FALLOW LEADS POLL ON FINAL COUNT

The Social Credit convention at Manville Wednesday afternoon named, as its choice or nominees, W. A. Fallow, Vermilion; W. R. Cornish, Chalkey; E. J. Kenney, Mannville and David Marks, Manville. These names will be submitted to Mr. Aberhart and the general council, when the final selection will be made as to which one will be the official candidate. Those four and J. H. Myers of Minburn, Ed Huffman, Minburn, Alf Scott, Manville, Gilbert Shane, Vermilion, and A. Landerjon, Calgary, were nominated by the meeting. Ballioting then took place, the low man being eliminated on each count. Ed. Huffman was rejected on the third round and Alf Scott followed. The third ballot showed a tie between the three leaders. In a count on these three Gilbert Shane was eclipsed. Mr. Landerjon was retired on the next ballot and in the final round, Mr. Myers was proved out. The final vote stood Fallow 31 to Marks 17, Kenney and Marks 11 each. Seventy-eight delegates were present.

The Standard will have a complete report of the convention in its issue of next week.

VERMILION SPORTS DAY NEXT FRIDAY, MAY 24th

Vermilion's Sports Day, Friday, May 24th is rapidly approaching, but the committees have prepared a programme and about the only thing that can mar the day would be inclement weather. Weather reports figure that a warm spell is due any time now and all probabilities point to a fine warm day on May 24th.

Preparations for all competitions, baseball, football, softball, basketball track events and the usual field and horse events are being completed and no other attractions planned for the day have all been made. As this is the first holiday of the summer season a huge crowd is anticipated.

Princess Louise

Daughter Of Queen Victoria, She Still Lives In Kensington Palace

Princess Louise, who is 87 years old still lives in her part of Kensington Palace where her mother was born and where, 98 years ago, her mother learned that she was a queen. Princess Louise's statue of Queen Victoria as a young woman still regards the children in the Broad Walk in Kensington Palace Gardens, and the children, according to Barrie, call it "the penny queen" through association with the queen in the Victorian pennies.

Princess Louise had the reputation of being the only artist—indeed the only well-dressed daughter of Queen Victoria, and it is said by her friends in court that as the years go by she is better dressed and a model to all elderly ladies. Her husband, the Duke of Argyll, died in 1914. She still has Adie and Lovell at Roseneath and goes to Scotland for some months every year. She painted a sideboard in Pompeiian Ferry Inn at Roseneath. She was the daughter of the Prince Consort who inherited the artistic talent in the art. She had several artist friends, the chief of them Sir Edgar Boehm, who taught her sculpture, and Sir John Millais. It was through her intercession that Queen Victoria waived her rule never to receive ladies whose husbands were divorced or separated, and at one time her parties at Kensington Palace were the only ones in royal society where artists could be seen.—Manchester Guardian.

Coal Oil Lamps Lighted Montreal Streets In 1835

One hundred years ago Montreal's streets were lit with coal oil lamps. In April 1835, the city was asked for a subsidy of £600 a year by the projected gas light company. Two years later the gas lamps were first used to light city streets. In 1865, a new contract was made between the city and the gas company, whereby Montreal was to be supplied with 700 gas lamps. The lamps were to burn 21 nights in a month, "the other nights being declared moonlight nights."

Ontario has the largest number of radio sets, with 297,000.

New Antiseptic Ice Glass

Will Save Millions Of Dollars For Frozen Fish Trade

Prince Rupert scientists of the Pacific Fisheries Experimental station, where a constant program of research to benefit the fishing industry is carried on, have discovered a crack-proof "antiseptic ice-glass" for frozen fish, which will mean millions of dollars saved for the frozen fish industry.

It is believed that the new process, for storage purposes, will: Prevent rusting discloration; overcome the cracking of the glass which resulted in stored fish drying out, and, glass in the storage chamber penetrating to the surface of the fish; prevent deterioration and consequent unpalatability.

The new glaze is antiseptic, and thus kills bacteria on fish or makes them negligible.

Process invented, and already demonstrated by one British Columbia packing company, is simple and inexpensive, requiring only a few pounds of halibut with every ounces, to cheap and easy.

Little Journeys In Science

ANIMAL PARASITES

(By Gordon H. Cossé, M.A.)

An animal parasite can be defined as "an animal which lives in, or on, other organisms." Parasitism is a mode of life and is not confined to any one group of animals. Every group from the animal kingdom contains some parasitic members but those most prolific in parasites are the protozoa, the arthropods and the flat and round "worms".

The protozoa are single-celled and as a rule can only be observed by means of the microscope. The group of animal organisms contains quite a few parasitic forms. These include the parasites of malaria, dysentery, sickness and red-water in cattle. The arthropods are usually external parasites and they carry infecting organisms from one host to another. The biting flies, mosquitoes, flea, fleas and ticks all function in this way. The arthropod group of organisms also contains a number of true internal parasites, such as the warbles of cattle and the bots of horses, which cause of much economic importance.

Parasitism always leads to specialization on the part of the parasite. Diseased organs degenerate, whereas used organs become larger or more efficient. The host furnishes food and warmth and hence to the internal parasites at least, there is a corresponding degeneration of the appendages and locomotion organs. At the same time their power to increase in numbers becomes much greater because of the increased degree of passing from one host to another. Many young parasites fall in this way and only a few survive to continue the race.

In civilized countries parasites are not very common, although they do occur and parasitic disease breaks out when the least chance is given. In the tropics however there is a continual struggle against parasites. Malaria is still the greatest killing disease in the world. Sleeping sickness plague annually claims the lives of thousands. Hookworm infects sixty per cent of the earth's population. The greatest diseases of the tropics are mostly parasitic, whereas those of the temperate climates are chiefly caused by bacteria which are parasitic.

Your Handwriting Reveals Your Character!

By LAWRENCE HERBERT
(Graphe-Analyst)
(All Rights Reserved)

In certain of my articles I have endeavored to answer certain objections that some correspondents have raised regarding Graphology. As a result I have received quite a number of letters from readers expressing their agreement with my comments.

But one correspondent took issue with me, and all because of certain things I had told him about himself. Apparently I had told him that he thought too much about himself—that he was too self-satisfied.

He said that he was not at all like this—but it took him eight large pages to tell me what he did think about himself. There is nothing very much to answer to this gentleman, excepting to express the conviction that if he thought he needed eight large pages to give me his opinion of himself, then indeed my previous observations must be very correct; that, indeed, he did think very much of himself.

In the same mail there came a very understanding letter from a lady of forty years of age. He thanked me for analyzing his character, and went on to say: "Thank you for giving me the best laugh I've had in years—I laugh not at you, but in myself! When I wrote to you for a character analysis I did it with my tongue in my cheek, as it were. I didn't for a moment believe that you could tell me anything like the truth. But you have done just that. You told me that I was generous and self-centred, and was very much inclined to study my own self-interest. Well that was a good one on me, because I am undoubtedly thoroughly selfish. I know that you have got me down exactly as I am. I admire your courage in telling me the unvarnished truth, although I had asked you to show me no mercy!"

Now, it isn't everyone who can be broadminded about his faults—but there is a lesson in this letter, and that is the reason I have quoted it. There is no virtue in loving ourselves! Most people have faults of one kind or another—and it is the height of wisdom to wish to learn about them, so that they may be rectified. The great trouble with most of us is that we do not really know ourselves. It takes an unbiased outsider to tell the real truth—and graphology, with its 100 per cent accuracy, will show the real truth about you.

Salt In Good Polish

Keeping glassware polished is a task which bothers many housewives. Here is a simple method of keeping a high polish on glasses that will save many hours of hard rubbing. Wash the glasses in the usual way, rinsing one tablespoonful of salt per quart. Do not use soap or other washing compounds. Rinse in clean hot water and your glassware will shine like crystal.

BAPTISM

Golden text: Go ye therefore, and make disciples of all the nations, baptizing them into the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit.—Matthew 28:19.

Explanations And Comments

The Last Commission with its Directive to Baptize, Matthew 28:19, 20. Upon a mountain in Galilee after the resurrection of Jesus the disciples saw him and worshipped him. He told them of his universal dominion—"All authority and hath given me in heaven and on earth"—and gave them his world-wide commission to make his power a reality —"Go ye therefore and make disciples of all nations."

He directed his followers to baptize disciples into the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit; teaching them to observe all things whatsoever he commanded. "Baptism is (1) into the name of the Father, the one God of Creation and Benefactor, who rules us, as from whom we live; (2) into the name of the Son: in baptism we accept, as Peter did, Christ as the Christ, the Son of the living God.' We give ourselves to be taught, and saved, and ruled by Christ. (3) It is into the name of the Holy Spirit. We are surrendered to his guidance, as our Sanctifier, Teacher, Guide, and Comforter."

And then Jesus gave his wonderful words of comfort and encouragement and cheer: "Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world."

"Morally speaking, baptism—the sacrament of personality—signifies: 'Then art the child of God—become it!'"

Told From Tree Rings

Story Of Drought That Lasted Twenty-Three Years

Two centuries before Columbus sailed to America there was a drought in the southwestern Rocky Mountain area that lasted 23 years. It began in 1276 and ended until 1299. It caused Indians to abandon entire villages as famine and thirst drove them elsewhere. It blanched their corn fields and killed their fruit trees and dogs. The story of that ancient and devastating dry spell, written in tree rings, was related by the southwestern division of the American Association for the Advancement of Science at Santa Fe, N.M., by A. E. Douglass, of the University of Arizona.

Thinning Important

Thinning of both flowers and vegetables is most important after the plants are up an inch or so. While flowers in a good mix is to have half as much space between as the plants are high. This will be about a foot between Snapdragons, Scabiosa, Alyssum, Lobelia and other edging plants. Well spaced flowers will be much sturdier, less damaged by heavy winds and rain, and the plants will have more symmetrical form than the smallest vegetables such as lettuce, which may be thinned to one inch apart. As inch or so will be sufficient and that is also all the room that will be needed for carrots and beets because when these things have developed roots as long as the tops are they grow long, every other plant should be removed and used. And this procedure followed until the whole row is used up.

Hot Weather Vegetables

Tender beans, tomato plants, squash, cucumbers, and melons should not be planted outside until the weather is settled and really warm. In order to get a long and steady supply of green beans make at least three plantings at intervals of ten days and use several varieties. Bush Lima beans planted this month one may use a few well started plants. Most people have faults of one kind or another—and it is the height of wisdom to wish to learn about them, so that they may be rectified. The great trouble with most of us is that we do not really know ourselves. CHAPTER I.

Dad was worried about something. All through dinner Nancy had been aware of his preoccupation, and though outwardly unchanged (the girl was proud of her mother's graceful, youthful looking father) he seemed, somehow, miles and miles away. When even Jacky had stopped eating to stare at her, Nancy decided that afternoon quite failed to rouse him, both aunts gloomed up, mumbled, "Yes, Mother, saying: "Let's have our coffee in the living room," went to her head most unusual occurrence.

"What's wrong, Jim? Has something happened?"

Dad turned quickly, as if startled at the question.

"Something has," he admitted, pulling himself together with what seemed to Nancy a tremendous effort, "and since the little boy's away, it's a good time to tell you. Don't bother with coffee tonight, Margaret. Come into the living room and close the door. I—I must get it over"

But after all, James Nelson did not have to break the news. It was his sister, always quick to grasp a situation, who guessed at once what was in the living room: "Dad that crash in the market to-day hit you very hard, Jim?"

Her brother nodded—wet his lips.

"I—I am down and out, Louise," he answered; but Nancy saw that he was looking at her mother. And Mother was looking at him, strangely. She seemed, thought the girl, stunned for just a moment.

"Down and out," James Nelson repeated grimly, still staring at his wife with eyes that begged forgiveness. "After all these years the firm's gone under. I think—I fear, Margaret, that we'll have to begin all over again."

"Well," countered Mother, coming suddenly to life, "why not?" She sat down on the davenport beside Dad, and put an arm across his shoulders. "Tell us, dear, just how bad everything is."

He drew a relieved breath, as if the worst were over.

"Not as bad as it might be, perhaps I can't go into details now; but at least, I'm not in debt to others. That's the thought I hold onto when I looked at the crowd of desperate men in the stock exchange this afternoon—a terrible scene.

WEAK WOMEN
ARE you tired, nervous, run-down? No pep? Then get Pinkham's Tablets with Iron. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It quiets quivering nerves—improves appetite—makes digestion strong.
His seem worth living again.
Mrs. James Martin of 22796 Main Street E., Hamilton, Ontario, says—"Your Vegetable Compound built me up wonderfully. I have gained pep, my nerves are better and I have a good appetite. I feel much stronger."

Their faces—well, I wish I could forget them. I went back to the office and just sat there thinking—trying to see my way. I'm fifty-six. It's not easy to start again at that age, Margaret. This house is yours; but we can't afford to live here. What hurts me most is that the hardest part will fall on you—all of you, I mean. The servants, too; they'll have to go. And—and Nance was to have had her debut so soon!"

"Oh, forget it!" The girl spoke flippantly because she couldn't have spoken otherwise without crying.

"For my part," observed Jack, "I should think Ma would be relieved to get rid of all that fuss. I'll get a job, Dad, and support you both in logs anyway. I was only going to! not to disappoint you. And I won't need Mary Ann if I go to work. She'll bring in—something."

"Mary Ann" was the boy's beloved roadster. James Nelson's eyes brightened suspiciously and he said, "You're good kids, both of you. I feel better already to have you rout this blow with so much pluck. I have still counted on Mother, and Phil's too young to feel the hurt. As for you two," (turning to his own sister and his wife) "you've been a brick, heaven! That was my first grain of comfort—relief that I'd put your money into safe investments, Louise."

"For mercy's sake!" broke in Aunt Louise. "Why didn't you tell us sooner? If Judy's savings and mine can help, things aren't so bad. Even with that small capital you can start again, Jim."

"If you think I'd touch a penny—" he began, when Aunt Judy interrupted:

"Why shouldn't you? What would I have saved it for if you hadn't managed my affairs so carefully all these years? This crash in the market is the work of gamblers. Your sister, James, Margaret. Of course he'll take our money if it will help."

"Help!" repeated the brother. "He won't feel so if we sell this house."

"This is no time to sell real estate," Dad told her, "but I've no doubt we can get it at a good price, and the move to a small apartment, or even into the suburbs for a while, so as to keep possible expenses, will give me a chance to look around."

"Bee here!" spoke up Aunt Judy as if inspired, "the place at Ridge Point is almost new. Why not go there and have no rent to pay?"

Judith Hale had inherited the family estate at Ridge Point a dozen or fifteen years before; but Edgemere was more than twenty miles from the city and no one regarded the place a moment, she questioned: "Could you stand commuting, Louise? It would mean a pretty early start for you."

"I ought to be able to stand it as well as Jim; or I could stay in town for the week-ends. Anything to help. I'm thinking about Nance. It seems hard to give up a debut and be torn away from one's young friends at the same time."

This was a surprise, not only to Nancy but to her elders. It was seldom Nancy's sister Nelson, who spoke English in a fashionable girls' school, displayed sympathy of this sort. She usually treated the girl's feelings as unnecessary display, and had said so repeatedly. She wanted Nancy to go to college and fit herself to be a teacher. It was amazing that in this time of stress she should give thought to her niece's disappointed debut, and the girl said:

"Don't worry about me. If I'm not to come out in a blaze of glory, Aunt Judith, I'd almost rather be away somewhere."

"Why should'nt Nance go to work?" asked Jack abruptly. "Not almost nineteen. Lots of girls her age—"

"Oh, see here!" broke in her father. "I guess we'll manage without that. I think your plan about Edgemere is a good one, Judith, unless it sounds too hard for Margaret. But of course I'd pay the rent like any other tenant."

"Oh, no you wouldn't!" Aunt Judy bristled with indignation. "It's a pity if I'm not allowed to help after all these years and have done for me. Don't I know that when I came here years ago you'd never have thought of engaging a mother's helper if you hadn't known I was lonely and adored the children? And later Margaret pretended to need a housekeeper, so I'd feel I wasn't imposing on you by staying longer. Take the old house and use it, Jim. I've always felt it was Margaret's as much as mine. Don't say the word rent to me again."

She was so obviously wrought up that Dad laughed a little, and Mother said. "Honestly, Judith, since we must go somewhere, it will seem heaven to go back home. But whatever we decide, Louise must do what's best for her. As for Jack, since this term's tuition at school is already paid, he may as well finish, I suppose."

"Wouldn't they give the money back, Dad?" questioned the boy.

"Not a chance, my son," said the elder. "Now, Margaret, if you'll excuse me, I'll get at the inner workings of a private school being more in her line than Jim, and she responded: "Not in the least like I believe they'd refund most of it; though if Jack wants to finish out the year I'll finance his expenses."

"And relinquish that European trip next summer?" countered her brother.

She colored, as if guilty of some misdeed.

"Oh, what's a European trip when I've been before? I'd hate to have Jack change schools, when he's done so well; and you've set your heart on his going to Harvard, too. Let him stay where he is."

The boy arose, standing with his hands in the pockets of trousers that were a bit slack. But I do appreciate it, Mother," he said gruffly as if to saw, it was impossible to go on; and Mother broke in with her unfailing tact:

"Let's get to bed, Jim. It's been a frightful day for you, but after a night's rest you'll decide what's best. As for me, I really believe it will be a relief to go back to Edgemere and drop all this keeping up with Lizzie."

She arose, a courageous smile curving her lips but her hand sought Nancy's. Aunt Nelson, whom every child as plainly as any words: "I understand, daughter, but we mustn't let him guess our disappointment."

Elevators In Vienna

Take Passengers Up But You Have To Walk Down

Like a one-way street in Chicago are the elevators in Vienna, Austria. They go up—but as far as traffic is concerned they never come down. Right in the hospitals and certainly not according to the rules of the game ever to expect to come down in one of them. That would be asking and expecting too much.

Furthermore, you don't stand much chance anyway, for in most apartment buildings that boast of "lifts" or elevators there is no manner or means of bringing the elevator to your floor. Once you step out of it on whatever floor you happen to stop, it quietly and darkly glides out of your hand and so back to the ground floor.

Should you wish or go above the third floor, then press a button for the porter or concierge. Seems an Ignatian sort of woman pops into sight seemingly from nowhere. With a private key she opens and runs into the elevator. As you step in you hand her the necessary tip. This is quite essential.

You now find yourself in a small coop-like affair about the size of a coffin. You glide silently up along and downstairs and you swirl, if you know your business, open a door. Hardly have you closed it again before from the pendant affair has dropped out of sight. To get down to the street level again, well, there are the stairs.

In one of the best hotels in Vienna and one most frequented by American tourists, are five elevators. Four of them are operated by electricity. None of the four is in operation. Electricity costs too much and so these have been discarded. To go upstairs you take the hand-propelled elevator. You step in, either tipping now or at the end of your stay in the hotel, and the attendant follows you in, closing the door behind you. He seizes a hempen rope and with graceful, ejertionless motions brings you to your destination.

When you desire to return to street level, do you press the button? You do not. You walk down the four or five or six flights of stairs.

Ranch Californian Missions On St. Joseph's Day As Usual

Swallows kept their 63d "date" with historic old San Juan Capistrano mission in California. Promptly on St. Joseph's day they arrived, drove off the "swifts", another feathery tribe, and prepared to remain until San Juan's day, Oct. 23, when they'll depart for climates even warmer than that in southern California. The swallows have been doing it for 63 years, mission records reveal.

It has been found that a woman's system is less able to burn body fats than a man's. For this reason, a starving woman suffers more than a starving man.

After a two-hour struggle a shark 27½ feet long and weighing five tons was caught recently in a fisherman's net in Hout Bay, South Africa.

Little Helps For This Week

"And the work of righteousness shall be peace, and the effect of righteousness quietness and assurance forever." Isaiah 32.17.

The heart that ministers for Thee
In Thy own work will rest.
And the blessed spirit of a child
Can serve Thy children best.

It matters not where or what we are so we be His servants. They are happy who have a wide field and great strength to fulfil His missions of compassion, and they too are blessed who in sheltered homes and narrow ways of duty wait upon Him in lowly service of love. Wise or simple, gifted or slender in knowledge, in the world's gaze, or in hidden paths, encompassed by affections and joys of home, or lonely and content in God alone, what matters as long as they bear the seal of the living God.

Plan Mile Before Using Parachute For Long Leap

Clem Sohn, 23 years old, successfully completed a 16,000-foot drop from an airplane over Chicago and now a mile of the distance was guided by a pair of "bat wings" attached to his body. With several thousand spectators watching his efforts the Lansing (Mich.) youth soared downward and accomplished two small circles before jerking the rip cord and floating the remainder of the distance on a standard parachute. It was Sohn's sixth jump demonstrating his contrivance.

Soviets Producing Quinine

Trees Grown From Seeds Imported From Java In 1932

Quinine is being produced experimentally in the Batum Botanical Gardens in Batum, Asiatic Georgia, and it is expected that regular production of the drug will start shortly. It is taken from approximately 2,000 young cinchona trees, exceeding six feet in height, which grow from seeds imported into Russia from Java in 1932. The warm and sheltered sections of the Black Sea have been found to be favorable for the cultivation of quinine trees.

A Remarkable Race

The most remarkable horse-race ever run in England occurred in the Royal Borough Handicap at Windsor in 1825, when three horses, Diable, Marvel and Dumoa, dead-heated for first place. Scrutiny of a photograph snapped at the finish failed to show a fraction of an inch separating the nose-tips of the three runners

Letters of protest have flooded the Government since the King's Silver Jubilee medals were distributed on May 6th. Each expressed indignation that he or she did not receive a medal whereas somebody else did. This was proof offered that even His Majesty himself cannot always satisfy people. Perhaps what the protesters meant to allege was that political preference had been shown in the awarding of the medals for the answer rates clearly and plainly in the fact that neither members of Parliament nor cabinet ministers had suggested a name for the list, that the names had been submitted through the officers of the Canadian Legion medical association and so forth, as requested by His Majesty.

Bright Stories about Wine

NATIVE TO THE SOIL

● Making a survey of Imperial wines a few years ago, an English expert remarked that the wines grown in Australia, South Africa and Canada had their special virtues, and he urged that these virtues ought to be recognised as being peculiar. To compare the wines of Ontario with the wines of France is not more sensible than to compare cigars with cigarettes, or a novelist like Wells with a novelist like Cather. The most important remark to be made about them is that they are different, and that if one has acquired a taste for one it will be difficult for him to acquire a taste for the other.

● In another piece we noted the significance in the word "native", and pointed out that viniculture was impeded for a great many years on this continent because of the effort to grow the European grape instead of the American grape. Even when the European vine has been improved so that it withstands the various ills that imperiled it earlier it will be found somewhat exceptional as a table fruit. We do not know that any extensive will come when there will be an expert demand for Canadian wine corresponding to the expert demand for Canadian cheese or bacon or butter. It will be good enough if Canadians recognize that the fruit is as much to be desired as they are. And we do not think that one has any reason to be ashamed of the other.

MILLNAM — May 12. A very successful Youth Conference was held at Millnam on the evening of May 11th, with about seventy-five young people in attendance. This conference was held in order to bring up and discuss the immediate needs and problems confronting the youth today.

Their grievances and immediate demands were brought up by a couple of youthful speakers. These demands are to be set before the candidate of this constituency before the provincial elections.

William Helms, who was unanimously nominated as candidate under the Communist Election Programme which is the Militant Farmers' Platform also spoke to the youth. He is in full sympathy with them.

This Youth Rally resulted in the electing of Youth Election Committee consisting of five members who are to meet during the week in order to draw up a resolution which is to be presented and discussed by all present on the evening of May 18th. OLD-TIME RUSTLVIA RESIDENT CELEBRATES EIGHTY-THIRD BIRTHDAY

Recalls Memorable Occasions

Mrs. James Good, one of the well-known residents of the Rustlvia district, celebrated her 83rd birthday on May 15th. Mrs. Good, who before her marriage was Agnes Wilson, was born in Pitcashie Scotland. She came to Canada in 1871 and four years later was married to Ronald Good at Goderich, Ontario in a mill worker. Mr. Good died in 1906, and six years later Mrs. Good responded to the call of the West where already some of her children had settled. With three of her sons she set up homesteading on the section where she now lives, and built the small log cabin which was their first home in still standing. Mrs. Good has one daughter living in the east, but the remainder of the family—one daughter and five sons—are residing in this district. One son, Joseph, paid the supreme sacrifice in the Great War.

Mrs. Good is a delightful conversationalist and her home is ever open to her many friends and neighbors who always find there a cheery smile and hearty welcome. She joys in the visits of the children and loves to talk and recalls vividly many of the features of pioneering; phases which as she says, "seem like fairy tales today".

I have seen a lot of improvement in these she added. Then there was no road at all except what we made ourselves. Speaking of the King's Jubilee she remarked that she recalled not only Queen Victoria's Jubilee, but remembers well the marriage of the then Prince of Wales later King Edward.

Even at the age of eighty three Mrs. Good is an active housekeeper, and does all her own work, even to the washing and ironing. "Of course" she says, "I am not as quick as I once was and its more apt to be, but Mrs. Good's activity is a constant surprise to her friends. She is an ardent work er in the United church and it is her proud claim that with the exception of one she has not missed a single church service nor Ladies' Aid meeting since the organization of the congregation at Rustlvia. Her hosts of friends join in extending congratulations and best wishes to this charming old lady as she reaches yet another milestone along life's way.

NEIGHBOURHOOD NARRATIVES

From the Neighborhood of the South-East

The initial meeting of the Union U.F.A. Juniors was held at Pricedand on the 4th. Officers elected were: President, Ted Brown; Secy-Treas., Amy Ganton. A great deal of business was conducted in a crisp, efficient manner. Their next meeting will be held at the home of Amy Ganton on Saturday evening, June 1st.

The Neighborhood is offering to Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Cox sincerest congratulations on the birth of a son.

We have had from our midst Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Dohaing and son Donald, who have left to make their home in the Herbert district. Best wishes follows them to their new location.

Messrs. Cox and Priedland motored to Edmonton last week-end. The annual travelling season has begun.

Spring work has started, but hardly rushed in the stiff breezes we've got. Most of it is plowing and discing.

We were privileged to hear some intelligent discussion and excellent suggestions at the meeting of the Social Credit study group. Problems of the day and hour were threshed out in the light of our needs and views and both sides of many arguments were clearly given without a suggestion of any personal reflections or feelings. Literature was read and distributed, and it was planned to bring more problems to a forum for discussion on the same evening at the Olive Club meeting May 25th.

A couple of fathers who have not forgotten younger days, cast off twenty years apiece the Jubilee week-end and took some delighted kids fishing. Messrs Van and Cunnaston helped provide plenty of thrills (but no fish) for Elmer and Jack, and Chester Rankin, on an expedition to the Battle River. Each caught a whale of an appetite!

Spring is definitely here. Doug and Ted managed to round up half a score stalwarts and Sunday you could hear the crack of the horseshoe on the old stick. Practice again next Sunday say the moguls.

The Neighborhood extends a welcome to the newcomers in the district. Mr. and Mrs. Foster and family, who have moved on to what is known as the "Pirk" place. The Neighborhood lads Mr. and Mrs. Pirk and family) farewell about a month ago, when they departed for Provost.

The Grizzly Bear Juniors plan to meet with the Tolland U.F.A. when that body makes its picnic plans.

Verna and Olive share the Pic-Plate this week for remembering how well others can like "peace" and carefully picking a bunch of crocuses to bestow upon Grandma and friends.

The Union U.F.W.A. met at Ganton's on May 1 only a few members being present owing to snow. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Hobbis on June 5th.

We could sympathize with the lady next long out from the "Homeland" who made ready with a big basket of mending to spend a whole wonderful day listening to the Jubilee broadcast. And she did!

A wonderful inception bringing a wonderful message, with its significance of a world spread Empire that prayer is that it rouses the impulse towards peace and unity; and not a false aggressive pride or Nationhood fighting pots it as well

TENNIS SEASON OPENS WITH COURTS IN PERFECT SHAPE

Anyone who passed by the tennis courts on Monday following the layings of the new lawns must have been struck with the neat and fine appearance of the grounds. The smoothly rolled red shale with its ribbons of white tape, in addition to several other improvements that have been effected, certainly was worthy of special mention. In order to prevent grass and weeds from growing through the fence an 8-inch "baseboard" has been put around the bottom of the entire fence.

Devotees of the game filled the courts on Monday evening and prospects point to a larger than usual membership. No intensive campaign for members has been carried out yet but more voluntary subscriptions have been turned in to the secretary than for many years.

Everyone is invited to become a member of the Club. All that you are asked to do is to play tennis and observe the rules of the court. Every person, however, is entitled, when receive a goodly portion of time on the courts as there is ample accommodation for one hundred members.

THIS DATE 16 YEARS AGO — 1919

Miss Olive Plante left this week for Victoria and Seattle before returning to Toronto.

L. E. Littlewood has sold his farm in the Campbell Lake district and is locating on a half-section he owns north of the Saskatchewan.

Gus Maahs has bought a quarter section farm near Heinsburg.

Welcome rain fell in the neighborhood on Sunday. Wheat is up and growing well.

Miss Janet Ryan of Edmonton has taken a school in this district for the summer.

W. K. Murchie returned from the east during the week and is settling up his affairs here preparatory to leaving Vermilion. Mr. Murchie has been manager for the Hayward Lumber Co. at this point for several years past.

A very happy event took place on Thursday afternoon at 4.30 at the home of Mr and Mrs W. F. Smith of Dewberry, when Evelyn, their eldest daughter was united in marriage to Lee, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Jas Parsigle of Vermilion. The ceremony was performed by Rev. M. L. Wright.

With this issue the Standard completes ten years of publication—a fair anniversary as it were—and a most opportune occasion for any and all who may be indebted to the business for advertising, job printing and subscriptions, to settle up and give the paper a boost per for a start on the next ten years.

But the fleet operator has a better method

You can feel, or taste, or see the difference in value between most things you buy . . . clothes, food, automobiles . . . but when it comes to gasoline you WONDER???

You notice that your engine seems to know the difference, but you're not quite sure that you do.

It may help you to know how the big fleet operator buys his gasoline . . . thousands, millions of gallons a year.

The big fleet operator buys on scientific tests . . . tests of starting and tests of acceleration. No guesswork.

Now here is a significant fact; The regular Texaco Fire-Chief gasoline, for sale along the road anywhere, not only meets the big operators' specifications for power and speed, but actually surpasses them.

This means that you can have in your tank, at no extra cost, the same quick starting power, the same extra power, and the same extra mileage that the big fleet operator requires for vehicles that must give the highest degree of service.

This is a fact . . . you can base your judgment on it.

Planning

In these days much is heard of the art of planning and the dire necessity for scientific, constructive planning in finance, economics, industry, social services, in fact in all the organization of our modern life and its varied interests and activities. Indeed, if a person was prepared to unthinkingly accept the advice being so freely tendered in many quarters, only one conclusion would be reached, namely, that mankind in mass could, if it would definitely plan and order its way of life, and clearly and authoritatively scale and draw a plan that would work with the simplicity and accuracy of the multiplication table.

But life is not like that; too many contrary factors enter into the scheme of things and life, too many human, subconscious and natural laws which are beyond human control to permit of any such artificial planning that will prove workable and fool proof. As the poet Burns so well expressed it,

> The best laid schemes o' mice an men
> Gang aft a-gley,
> An' leave us nought but grief and pain,
> For promised joy.

Two years ago President Roosevelt's "brain trust" decided that the whole business of the United States must be planned and started in advance. It could scientifically plan and control the production of that great country so as to overcome and prevent what was alleged to be the evils of over-production. It set out to do so, but instead of facing the primary cause of the alleged over-production, it bumped and acted upon the easy formula that all that was necessary was to compel by law a reduction in the volume of production.

So wheat farmers were bonused, not to grow wheat, but to stop growing it; cotton planters were bonused to stop growing cotton; farmers were paid to quit raising hogs, and so on and so forth, and the consuming masses of the people were taxed in order to raise the funds wherewith to pay these bonuses on destruction. Then Nature stepped in, withheld its usual bountiful supply of rain, sent excessive heat and blistering winds and swirling dust storms, and in a brief space of time reduced production over man's mistaken efforts and to a far greater extent, until within a few months a shortage of supplies faced the nation instead of an over-production, which over-production had actually resulted from a previous form of artificial planning in the shape of tariffs and other trade restrictions.

Following the Great War, the statesmen of the world assembled in Paris to draft a treaty of peace and to plan the future of Europe and the world. They labored for months, created elaborate international machinery to direct and control world affairs, re-arranged the boundaries of countries, and gave birth to new nations. On paper their plans looked good, they were hailed as a great advance in the science of world peace and international goodwill and co-operation.

But in the years that have followed all the passions, prejudices, complaints, racial and religious ammosities, and vagaries of human nature have continued to hold sway over millions of mankind. Much of the planning has proved an abject failure, some of it has been thrown into the discard, and what remains is in danger of destruction through another world upheaval.

Thus has it been amply demonstrated that man cannot direct and control the immutable laws of Nature, nor can he forecast them in any scheme of planned economy by any device, neither can a few planners, however able and sincere they may be, draft plans and charts which will work despite all the selfishness, the ambitions, the ignorances, passions and prejudices of man.

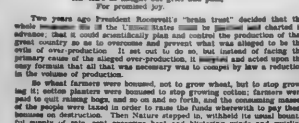
That being so, the nations are now being told by the planners that mankind in the mass can no longer be trusted, that democratic forms of government are a failure, that instead of the people creating and controlling their governments, forms of government must be set up which, controlled and directed by a few, will super-impose their will upon the masses, control and order the people, instead of the people controlling the governing bodies.

Such a plan may be inaugurated, it may work for a time, but not for long. It can never possess any degree of permanency, because man was created a free being with a free will, a soul of his own, and in the final analysis he will, because God and his own nature intended that he should work out his own salvation. No other power, and least of all a government, can do it for him.

Nevertheless, there must be planning and there must be control and direction. Everything cannot be left to chance, otherwise chaos and disorder would ensue. But it must be recognized that there are limitations in all planning, and those imposed by Nature's laws and by human frailties cannot safely be ignored. Nor can the inherent love and determination of every man to be a free man and enjoy liberty be denied, any attempt to do so will breed revolt. It always has, it always will. But liberty does not mean license, and in demanding liberty for himself each man must recognize the rights of others and accord them liberty.

Therefore, in all our planning the improvement and advancement of the individual must precede improvement of and advancement in any system that may prevail. It is putting the cart before the horse to try and improve the system first and thereby improve man. It must be the other way round. God does not remove all evil and temptation in the world, but we are taught to pray that we be not led into temptation.

The primary study of mankind is man, and the proper, only permanent, planning is by individual man, namely, that he so order his life and his activities, so control his ambitions and his passions, as to come within the plan laid down in the Golden Rule. Do unto others as ye would that they should do unto you.



Helps Building Industry

Chemistry Comes To Aid With Many New Materials

Even eggs and milk may enter the making of new construction materials in a building boom predicted by famous chemists at the opening session of the American Chemical Society's bicentenary celebration in New York.

A boom in the building industry inspired by discoveries of chemists, many of them made during the depression, was forecast by Prof. James R. Withrow of Ohio State University.

Artificial stones are already made in every color and with any degree of hardness a customer desires. Wood rot and metal rust are both stopped by numerous new protectives.

Bricks that partake of the lightness of thistledown and other light weight construction materials promise much higher, yet even safer skyscrapers.

NOT A RHEUMATIC PAIN FOR 4 YEARS

75-Year-Old Has Praises Kruschen

A man who once suffered severely from rheumatism writes:—

"For a long time I suffered with rheumatism, and at one time was laid up for about three months. About two years ago I was advised to try Kruschen. I did so, and have continued using them ever since. Kruschen did the trick, as I have not had a rheumatic pain for over four years. I am nearly 76 years of age, and feeling fine, and thoroughly enjoy my day's work—thanks to Kruschen."—(Signed)

Kruschen dissolves away those needle-pointed crystals of uric acid which are the cause of all rheumatic troubles. It will also flush those dissolved crystals clean out of the system. Then if you keep up "the Kruschen habit" excess uric acid will never form again.

A Dangerous Procedure

Doctor Warns Against Forced Giving Of Medicine

Dr. Irving Graef, pathologist of Bellevue hospital, New York, told the American Association of Pathologists and Bacteriologists, assembled here, that abnormal fats drawn into the lungs of infants and adults had proved fatal in six cases of pneumonia. Cod liver oil, described as good when taken into the stomach for bone building, is thick and viscous and very deadly when it entered the lungs. He cited one case to show the oil had entered the lungs through forcing a reluctant child to swallow it by holding his nose.

Umbrella Works Idle

Because one cannot carry an umbrella when wearing a uniform and maintain one's dignity, the rain shields have gone out of style in Germany. As a result 150,000 people in the umbrella industry have been thrown out of work and manufacturers are seeking ways and means to bring the umbrella into its own again.

Another Surgical Find

Human Suffering Reduced By Operation On Pain Nerves

Surgery on the nerves of pain offers hope of reducing human suffering.

The operations possible were reviewed by Francis C. Grant, M.D., of Philadelphia, at the meeting of the American College of Physicians.

Some of the fibres form the basics of nerves, fast as separate fibres form threads, carrying the message of pain; others give the movement orders.

By cutting the pain fibres in the spinal cord pain can be stopped in the legs and up into the pelvis. Touch and position nerve fibres remain unimpaired and the movements of the legs are not interfered with.

Another operation severs the roots of some of the nerves, but is seldom used because, while it relieves pain, it interferes with movement.

Seeking to block the "pain pathways" through the nervous system is the latest method of attack. This has been done successfully for some pelvic malignancies and for angina pectoris.

Powerful Searchlight

Throws Beams Which Will Illuminate Objects Within Fifty Miles

Residents of Europe's great cities is wonderment at a powerful shaft of light that penetrated the darkness for many miles. It originated from what engineers say is probably the world's most powerful mobile searchlight undergoing a test prior to its delivery to the United States army.

The searchlight is a 60-inch giant and throws a beam of 750,000,000 candle power. Engineers who built it say the light's concentrated, narrow beam will illuminate any object within 50 miles. The "projecting equipment is entirely mobile, carried aboard trucks.

An aerograph with a 100-foot wing spread flying 30,000 feet high and six miles away appears to the human eye about as big as a sparrow.

To find an enemy bombing plane under such conditions—and travelling at the rates an insect—would be quite difficult. The searchlight is designed to do it, and exposes the plane to the fire of anti-aircraft artillery.

Upholding The British

New York Paper Sticks To Statement About War Debts

The New York Daily News says: "We've received a number of unfriendly letters in reply to an editorial in which we said England is right in refusing to pay any more of its war debts to us on the time being. These letters advise us that we are in the pay of the Redcoats, traitors to Uncle Sam, trying to lick the King's stamp. Well.

Let's come down to brass tacks. How about our debts to our own people? Is it right to compel the taxpayers of today to pay our bonds? We aren't paying them, are we? President Roosevelt has refused to pay the bonus of every dollar, and he won't pay a dollar of those debts in gold. Further-more, our Supreme Court sustained that default. So if John Bull is a nasty old repudiater, what is Uncle Sam?

The fact is the war cost so much that every country which took part in it, including ourselves, has had to repudiate a large part of its war debts.

How Spare Pennies Grow

British Post Office Savings Increased By 230,000,000 Last Year

More pennies and shillings than ever were added to the Post Office Savings Banks in Britain.

The head office has announced that deposits of small savers have reached the record figure of £305,000,000. They increased by £30,000,000 during last year alone. Over the last few years they have increased by £80,000,000.

These large sums are made up entirely of the occasional spare coins of villagers and townsmen in Britain. One of the methods of saving is to be taken to the local post office when the saver desires and the amount in them credited to his account.

The Post Office Savings Bank now has more than £350,000 depositors. And that number is increasing by 12 per cent. each year.

Are Becoming Important

Aviation Is Creating Interest In Islands Of Ocean

Soon every little island in the ocean is going to find itself important; and it is certain that, with aviation developing as it is, places which in the past have not even been spots on the map will become centres of interest. Here, for instance, is the case of the Wake Islands, away out in the Pacific Ocean. There are three small islets, with a total area of not more than 2,600 acres, yet they are to be a point of call on the proposed U.S.-China air route, plans for which are now well under way with Pan-American Airways and the United States government co-operating.

A Suggested Title

"Lord Greenacreside" Might Be Suitable For Mr. John Buchan

Lord Beaverbrook's successor at Ottawa is hailed by London papers as the first Commoner to be Governor-General of Canada. They will find, before Mr. John Buchan takes over, he has been made a peer.

It would be a cheerful literary joke if he also took the title of Lord Greenacreside, for that is also the title of one of his most popular books. He is well able to support a peerage, though only a son of the Scottish manse, because he must have made a comfortable fortune by his versatile pen. He wrote his first book when he was only eighteen. Even his life of Cromwell sold over twenty-five thousand copies, which cannot have brought the author less in royalties than £60,000. Several of his other books have been best sellers.

He was at one on a naval ship during the War when, after reading a popular "thriller," he decided to try his own hand at that kind of thing. In nine days the MSS of "The Thirty-Nine Steps" was complete.—London cor. Ottawa Journal.

Bible Distribution

Colportours Deliver An Average Of Eighty Copies A Month

By dog team in the far north and on Hudson Bay coast, in the Province of Quebec, in the Maritimes, in the Canadian Rockies, Colportours distribute an average of 80,000 Bibles a month, according to the annual report of the Canadian branch of the British and Foreign Bible Society.

An increased demand for Bibles in English is reported from foreign language groups of workers in Western Canada.

After all expenses were met, $38,000 was sent to London for world-wide work compared with $23,000 in 1933. Bibles distributed showed an increase of 22,000.

CROWN HISTORIC SYMBOL UNITING BRITISH EMPIRE

London.—History was made when the king and queen travelled to ancient Westminster hall, cradle of parliamentary institutions, to receive loyal addresses from lords and commoners in the presence of the empire premiers and other empire representatives.

It was the first time a British king had gone to Westminster hall, where the first parliament was summoned nearly 700 years ago by Simon de Montfort, to meet the peers and commons assembled together. And, as on previous state occasions during the celebration of the royal silver jubilee, out set the pomp and panoply could hide notes of genuine personal affection.

Their majesties were enthroned on a dais in the vast, gray stone Westminster hall, about them gathered many members of the royal family, while in the hall were members of the house of commons and house of lords, Indian princes, the empire representatives and the English judiciary.

"The mother of parliaments and her children, grown to full estate, stand now upp equal terms in common allegiance to the throne," His Majesty remarked after thanking the spokesmen of the lords and commons for their loyal addresses.

"The British Empire of to-day is no longer expressed by the supremacy of the time-honored parliament. Its symbol is the throne," he went on. "It is a source of comfort to me to feel that from these times of trial there has arisen a closer unity, not community, a stronger feeling of fellowship of one with another."

And his voice faltered, and there was a suspicion of tears in the queen's eyes as well as his own, as he concluded: "I thank you from all my work in having beside me my dear wife, of whom you have spoken so kindly. I thank you most sincerely. God who thus far has sustained me and my people, and I pray that we may continue to pursue the cause of freedom and peace in the spirit of peace, tolerance and understanding."

"You have made the throne not merely a symbol but a living reality," said the Lord Chancellor, Viscount Sankey, on behalf of the peers.

"You are more than a sovereign," said E. A. Pitaroy, speaker of the House of Commons. "You are also a household."

Demand For Silver Dollar

Ottawa.—The royal Canadian mint will strike off 20,000 more silver dollars and these will be made available to the public at once. So great has been the demand for the coin, based specially for the king's silver jubilee, that the Bank of Canada has requested more to be put into circulation.

Canada On Committee

Accepts League Membership To Study Imposition Of Treaty

Ottawa.—Without committing itself to disciplinary action against Germany or any other nation, the government of Canada has accepted membership in the League of Nations committee established to study application of sanctions against unilateral repudiation of international obligations. Sir George Perley, acting prime minister, issued a statement setting forth the position taken by Canada.

Dr. W. A. Riddell, Canadian advisory officer at Geneva, has already notified the secretary-general of the league of Canada's acceptance and reservation. The committee was named by the league council following repudiation of parts of the treaty of Versailles by Germany.

Besides Canada the following nations were invited to take part: Great Britain, France, Chile, Hungary, Italy, Netherlands, Poland, Portugal, Spain, Turkey, Russia and Yugoslavia.

Sir George Perley's statement read:

The invitation to Canada to accept a seat on a committee established by the council of the League of Nations to consider sanctions against unilateral repudiation of international obligations, came out of a resolution adopted by the council on April 17.

Dr. Frederick Banting, Toronto co-discoverer of insulin, will take part in a special exhibit.

Mercy Flight

Unique Incident In Aviation History Of The North

God's Lake, Man.—One of the most unique "mercy flights" in aviation history in the north was written into the records, with Pilot Herb Seagrim of Winnipeg at the helm.

A woman was lying in hospital at Winnipeg, 250 miles south of here, critically ill. An operation was imperative, but her physician was unwilling to proceed without the assent of her husband, at a small lake north of here.

Details were sent here by wireless, but communication with the man was hampered by the fact ice conditions would not permit landing of an aeroplane on the lake where he was trapping. Seagrim solved the difficulty.

He dropped a message, asking if the husband would allow the operation to be proceeded with, to signal by hoisting a triangle of three limbs on the ice of the lake. The signal was given, Seagrim returned here and the operation was successfully performed.

Suggestion From King

Canada Asked To Establish Permanent Cancer Fund

Ottawa.—Establishment of a permanent cancer fund in Canada was suggested by King George in a cablegram sent to the governor-general, expressing the king's thanks for donations to the jubilee cancer fund.

The king's message read:

"I have received with much pleasure your telegram informing me that my people in Canada are contributing so generously towards the King George V silver jubilee cancer fund for Canada.

"I warmly thank all those who have joined in helping this most noble and humanitarian cause, and I fervently trust that a permanent fund may be established and thus further the relief of much suffering and distress.

Saskatchewan University

Thomas Rowles, Empress, Appointed Member Of Senate

Saskatoon.—Thomas Rowles, Empress, was appointed a member of the senate of the University of Saskatchewan at a meeting held here, to succeed Hon. J. W. Estey, now a member ex-officio as minister of education. Andrew Knox, Colleston; J. W. Hair, Saskatoon, and Dr. J. W. Stitzen, Moose Jaw, were reappointed.

Other members of the senate, by statutes, President W. C. Murray intimated.

PREMIER BENNETT SPEAKS ON EMPIRE TRADE MATTERS

Ottawa.—Great co-operation in trade matters between Canada and the British empire was held out by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett as a solution to economic problems of empire countries.

Mr. Bennett spoke from London in an empire broadcast and his remarks were directed primarily to the people of the United Kingdom. He told them he appreciated the honor of representing Canada at the king's jubilee celebrations and assured them Canadians would accept a second place to none in loyalty to the crown.

The empire was a "goodly fellowship," he said, and Canadians were proud to share in it. This pride was based on the "beautiful associations" but on a realization the British crown stood for the reign of law liberty and order, the traditions of British institutions and loyalty to the crown had meant much to Canada in the development of a new country. They had imparted social and political stability in the formative years.

The most notable event in the king's 25-year reign had been the Great War. It had meant suffering and Canada was still suffering from its effects. But Canada had emerged from it a full-fledged nation under the British crown Canadians did not regret their part in it but hoped its lessons would not be forgotten.

How better, he asked, could empire peoples express their gratitude than by contribute to the king than by dedicating themselves to the renunciation of war and the promotion of peace.

Mr. Bennett referred to the empire trade agreements from the British point of view, said they had helped Canada over a difficult period and brought increases in British exports to Canada. If these increases were not as great as might be hoped for, it was to be remembered that British goods were manufactured products which suffered most in a depression.

Canada was now an industrial as well as an agricultural country and should never have been forced to develop more balanced internal economy than before. Also because of its decision to admit British goods and elsewhere this country had to export more than it imported.

Jubilee Honors List

Awards To Be Published On Morning Of June 3rd

London.—The jubilee honors list will be published on the morning of June 3rd, combined with the king's birthday honors list, it was announced here. It is believed the jubilee awards will be very lengthy.

In accordance with custom, the leaders of both the opposition parties have been asked to make nominations. The Liberal opposition accepted the offer. It is understood the honors they recommend include the name of privy councillor for Isaac Foot, former secretary of mines and a member of the Indian select committee.

With regard to the Labor opposition, it is understood George Lansbury declined to make any nominations leaving the matter in the hands of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald. However, it is expected Clement Attlee, deputy leader of the Labor party, will become a privy councillor and that the honor also will be conferred upon William Lunn, a former parliamentary under-secretary for the Dominions.

German Penal Code

Will Provide Something More Severe Than Headsman's Axe

Berlin.—The future reich penal code, which judiciary authorities believe should provide something more severe than the headsman's axe, such as for example the "living death" of medieval prescription, will be based on fundamental Nazi concepts, it was learned

All offences, now being classified as preparations, commission, will be classified into these four categories:

Attacks against the security of the people, attacks against the safety of the state and government attacks against national patriotism attacks against national

Death by the headsman's axe is no good for those who William the most sacred tenets of Chancellor Adolf Hitler's code some Nazis contend and they plan to condemn those guilty of heinous offences to be deprived of all human rights. They will be subject even to combination to death without trial if necessary.

Treason will head the list of crimes classified as "attacks against the safety of the people," it was reported

Air Limitations

Great Britain Will Stipulate For 1,600 Planes As Minimum

London.—Great Britain, in preparing to discuss air limitation, will stipulate 1,600 planes as her minimum need, the diplomatic correspondent of The Daily Telegraph reports.

This estimate, he said, has emerged from British deliberations toward making an "air Locarno" a separate item from the five-point proposition extended to Germany by the Anglo-French agreement of Feb 3.

The plan shortly will be submitted to Prance and Italy, it is understood. The correspondent said the situation had changed since the Geneva air commission met in February, 1933, raising the minimum requirements

Retired Astronomer Dead

F. L. Blake Had Part In Survey Of Northwest

Toronto.—Frank L. Blake, 81, retired astronomer of the meteorological service at the Toronto observatory, died after a long illness. For many years he gave the correct time daily to many points throughout the Dominion

In his early days after his education here was completed he took part in the survey which opened up the northwest to settlement and was actively engaged in the subdivision of Moose Jaw, Saskatoon and other important western Canada centres.

ROYAL LEVEE IS HELD AT PALACE OF ST. JAMES

London.—In tones of warm affection the leaders of the empire overseas reaffirmed the loyalty of their peoples to the crown, evoking from His Majesty the King an expression of heartfelt gratitude and the vow to work on with you in the years that remain."

Not all the glitter and pomp of the occasion could dispel the true family atmosphere as one by one the empire's prime ministers and their representatives spoke to His Majesty and the king replied in like vein. At the outset he mentioned the pleasure it gave him to hear personally the overseas empire speak of "coming home"

Prime Minister R. B Bennett was warm in his personal references to their majesties, saying that in their life and work together they had given the peoples of the empire an example ennobling the conception of family life "which is the true source of all human happiness and national greatness."

The occasion was a royal levee in the stately and historic gold throne room of the Palace of St. James The king and Queen Mary sat on the throne. His Majesty wearing the uniform of an admiral of the fleet and the queen a blue satin gown trimmed with ermine and lace. They were flanked by members of the royal family

Prime Minister J. B. Hertzog spoke for South Africa. Prime Minister J. A. Lyons for Australia. Prime Minister G. W. Forbes for New Zealand. Prime Minister G. M Huggins represented South Rhodesia. J. H Thomas, dominions secretary, spoke for Newfoundland, new colony dominion government but yielding to none in desire to pay devotion to your majesties person and throne." Sir Bhupi Singh spoke for India and Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister for the colonial empire

The king wearing a bowler hat and frock coat shook with diamonds threw a gathering set of 50 and the queen a tiara of diamonds and pearls. Behind them in the throne room of Queen Victoria

It was commented by a subject from India on temperature. Their Majesties stood for 75 minutes in their robes appearance at 9 p.m. and then for three minutes at 10:30. The king seemed his busier to the middle-evening duties.

The inspiration furnished by the king of wise and tactful leadership and of "unswerving devotion to duty" was praised by Prime Minister Bennett as no small factor in the success of the empire in withstanding the period of stress after the war.

At the reception in St James's palace to empire leaders and foreign diplomats Prime Minister Bennett presented to His Majesty the gift of gold casket containing the humble address of loyalty passed by the Canadian senate and House of Commons.

Aviators From Canada Named For Wilkins Trip

New York.—Reports that two noted aviators of Canada, H. Hollick-Kenyon and J. H. Lymburner, would join the Wilkins-Ellsworth Antarctic expedition scheduled to leave here in October were heard here.

Hollick-Kenyon, of Winnipeg, was understood to be in New York, while Lymburner, another flyer who has carved a name for himself by exploits along the sft-frozen airlanes of Canada, was reported en route to the city

A projected non-stop flight of 2,900 miles across Antarctica is a start of the plans of the expedition headed by Sir Hubert Wilkins and Lincoln Ellsworth.

One phase of such a flight, it is said, is to determine whether or not the Antarctic is one continent Members of the recent Byrd expedition to the South Pole, just returned to North America, claimed evidence had been discovered that the broad frozen stretches of Antarctica form a single continent, undivided by water

Sir Hubert recently visited various parts of Canada seeking to sign up the two pilots who will go as members of the exploratory expedition. He said Canadian flyers were desired because of their experience wit blizzards and fog, of the sort encountered in the south polar regions.

Shut Out Canadian Goods

Japan Decides To Apply Trade Restrictions Against Dominion

Tokyo, Japan.—A foreign office spokesman stated the Japanese government had decided to apply her trade restrictions against Canada. The date of application and the products to be affected have not been decided on, the spokesman said.

It is understood a cable has been sent to Australia urging expedition of the trade treaty negotiations and asking a prompt reply. A press campaign, waged for some time, is continuing prompted by the favorable balance enjoyed by the Dominion in trade with Japan.

Canada last year exported to Japan goods to the value of $16,475,000 including wheat, fish, lumber, paper and automobiles. Canada imported from Japan goods valued at $4,424 000.

THE ROOT SYSTEM of WEED PLANTS
Very few realize the great mass of roots that weed plants develop underground in a few short days.
For instance, it is found that in about one month only after sending the roots of the Wild Oat plant and of the Mustard plant descend about 30 inches into the ground, with a great mass of arms and branches that tend to smother early wheat plants. Such weeds consume a great deal of the valuable moisture and plant food that should be available to the wheat plant. The control of weeds when they are young, therefore, is one of the best means readily available to the farmer of increasing his income and profit.

GOLFERS HOLD MEETING

New Course in Agricultural Grounds Obtained

Arrangements have been made with the Vermilion Agricultural Society for the use of their grounds and a five-hole course has already been laid out. As these grounds contain 27 acres there will be ample room to await the little white pill even if the natural bunkers, traps, etc. of the old course of years ago are lacking. Officers elected at the annual meeting on Monday evening, which was held in the town hall, were: Hon President, Mayor Palmer; President, Geo. W. Wright; Vice-President, Miss Alice Keith; Sec.-Treas., Dr. H. J. Clarke; Executive: F. C. Long, W. Hill, Mrs. Whitby, Mrs. Norton, Mr. Ingram, Mr. Douglas.

OIL AND GAS NOW SHOWING AT TERWELL

Drilling Is Proceeding Apace

Drilling at The Terwell Gas and Oil Company's location west of town has been proceeding very satisfactorily, and the indications so far have been most favorable. Several pockets of gas have been struck and small showings of oil. The operations have created considerable interest, spectators at the well being numerous each day. The log of the well indicates that the Lea Park-Beaton formation was reached some time ago, and the water should be reached by the Pembroke and Pelican Lake divisions of the Dept. of Lands & Mines will accordingly be made in the very near future, after the casing has been run for the present length of the hole. The commencement of the casing to make the water shut-off, and the government tests of the well which are to follow, will necessitate the suspension of drilling for two or three weeks, after which it will be resumed, with a smaller hole.

More rapid progress will be possible after the water has been shut off and the size of the hole reduced, so that an early completion of the well is now looked for.

It is not known locally what further action has been taken by the federal authorities regarding the proposed purchase of the Royal Bank building for which $6000.00 was set aside in the estimates.
A further report regarding this momentous question will probably be made at the weekly luncheon in the Elks hall on Monday.

Advances New Theory

Fruit Expert Thinks Eve's Apple May Have Been Peach

It now appears that Eve's 'apple', which started the world's first family trouble, was a peach. Such was the theory advanced by Lloyd C. Stark, surveyor, of Louisiana, Mo., and authority on fruit origins.

"In ancient days," said the surveyman, "the Chinese believed eating a certain kind of peach would bring immorality and preserve the body from corruption. The peach tree was the 'Tree of Knowledge' to the Chinese, and it may have been that the apple, eaten by Eve in the Garden of Eden, after all was the Persian apple, or, as it is known today, a peach."

Migration Of The Canada Goose

By Manly F. Miner

Much ink has been used by various writers and authors describing the origin and history of the Jack Miner Bird Sanctuary, but to me the big achievement there has been scarcely mentioned, namely, the catching and tagging of the Canada Goose to study its route of migration in both spring and fall, and to find where it mates and raises its young during the summer.

It was in 1902 and 1903 that Jack Miner conceived the idea of establishing a bird sanctuary, the first of its kind in Canada. If not on the continent. But not until 1904 was work on the sanctuary actually started, that is, excavations made for ponds, several wing tipped live decoy geese placed on same and corn spread plentifully around the banks Ducks and geese, in a short time, found this to be a place of safety. Both the conservationists and shooters were back of the Jack Miner scheme, because the sanctuary, taking nothing from the shooters, constantly builds up the hunter's chances one mile away, the bird haven attracting many birds to the country, At the same time the birds became wise enough, when shot at from the property they were unprotected, to fly back to their safety zone to have a rest.

Eventually, the birds commenced the congregating on the sanctuary in large numbers. Jack Miner had no desire to shoot, but was anxious to study and find out where these feathered creatures spent each season of the year. On August 5th, 1908, he caught a duck and wrapped around its leg a piece of aluminum, on which was stamped his post office address. This was the first time Jack Miner had done such a thing and, incidentally, the record of same was placed on this continent. True not only is Jack Miner's sanctuary the first of its kind in North America, but the is the pioneer of banding ducks.

A few months later, January 14th, 1909, the duck which had the honor of bearing the first tag was killed by W. E. Bray, of Anderson, N.C.

Naturally, great enthusiasm was roused, and the problem then confronting the owner of the sanctuary was how to build nets and other contrivances to catch the ducks without injuring them, in order that they might be tagged. He had no desire or plans to which he could refer, for there was nothing of the kind in existence. So, after attracting the birds to the sanctuary, it fell to the lot of Jack Miner to invent a contrivance for catching the ducks. This he accomplished after many months of work, the result being that to-day there are hundreds and hundreds of ducks flying to and fro across the continent with his tag on. Naturally, small brings reports to the sanctuary from hunters of North America of the killing of tagged birds.

By 1914 Jack Miner had learned where the ducks, mourning doves, robins, etc., spend each season of the year. His next ambition was to catch and tag Canada Geese, the fastest of wild birds and practically the largest migratory waterfowl on the continent. He soon found that catching Canada Geese was a different undertaking compared with catching ducks. Although the geese at this time, were coming to his sanctuary by the hundreds for food and protection, where neither rich nor poor could enter with a gun, to catch one of these birds for tagging purposes was another thing. They would not go near the network he had arranged for catching ducks. So after a year's constant study he contrived a method of having two pools of water connecting them conveyed with network and a trap door at each end. It was in 1915 that he caught his first wild Canada Goose to place an aluminum tag on its leg, giving the post office address of the owner of the sanctuary.

Jack Miner is by no means a rifle-using fanatic, but he believes in the divine teachings of Christ and hence refuses to make his tagging system complete and fascinating, a short verse of Scripture, such as "Have ye in Me", "God is able", and so forth, is stamped on one side of his tag In this way every person who finds one of his tagged birds get a verse of Scripture, which has more than counterbalanced the interest of his tagging system.

In the spring of 1915 and just before the geese migrated for parts unknown in the North he caught and tagged his first Canada Goose and liberated it again with the big flock from which it had been taken Interest was aroused in the community as to who would kill and where No one had even caught one before for tagging purposes, so one knew where they nested All that was known was that they went north, and the settler in the most northern point in Canada always reported that "they went still further north"

However, weeks and months rolled by and, to the surprise of everyone, early in October of the same year, Jack Miner received a letter from the Hudson Bay Company at Moose Factory, dated August 15th 1916, containing the tag. The goose had been killed by an Indian in unsurveyed territory in the Hudson Bay district This, naturally, interested the whole country, and, with real enthusiasm Jack Miner began to work on the improvement of his goose trap in order to catch geese by the thousands The next year it proved to be a decided success. Many more geese were trapped and, later on in the season, word was received from different points along the east side of Hudson's and James's Bays and as far as Baffin Land of tagged geese having been shot down.

In 1919 Commissioner Rev. W. G Wilson, an Anglican missionary, who had spent between 20 and 30 years among the Indians and Eskimos and who had never been out to civilization, came by canoe from Hudson's Bay to Cochrane Taking the train in this city he in due course arrived in Kingsville and the sanctuary. With him he brought a pocketful of tags. Naturally a great deal of interest in Scripture and Jack Miner's post office address. He had collected these from the Indians and Eskimos all the way from Moose Factory, and also from along the east coast of Hudson's Bay and the shores of Baffin Land. The natives had brought them to him for interpretation of the verse of Scripture.

Through these tags, this devoted American missionary, together with the Hudson's Bay fur dealers, and the agents of Revillon Freres Fur Company, who have also co-operated to a great extent in collecting these from the natives, a lot of valuable information as to why these birds went around the shores of the north end of Hudson's Bay and Baffin Land instead of going the shortest route that has been revealed to the civilized world. The geese arrive in that vicinity around the latter part of April and the first of May. The rivers and all fresh water are all frozen over at that season of the year, but the Hudson's Bay is opened to by the incoming ocean current and the geese prefer to feed where there is open water.

The tagging system has also revealed where they spend their winters. Quite a big factor to date and it has been proven that very few birds which visit the sanctuary in the fall ever get in the following spring, at practically all geese bearing fall tags are killed in the Middle States, along the Mississippi (East side) and towards the Gulf of Mexico, while geese which are tagged in the spring winter along the Atlantic coast, mostly around Carrituck Sound. The geese which spend the winter along the Atlantic coast, and in the natural northerly portion of Hudson's Bay and Baffin Land. When the fall comes and it turns cold, instead of migrating inland they follow the ocean around by the way of Labrador, Newfoundland, and the New England coast, southward to Carrituck ..nd. But when March and April comes the sun is too warm in the Carolina for them. The Labrador coast and their summer haunts, however, are still frozen over with zero temperature. The geese, therefore, migrate north from the Southern States to the Great Lake regions, where they congregate at this sanctuary, during the months of March and April.

There have been tagged nearly 12,000 geese since 1915, and year after year those that are not killed return to this protected property, wearing the bright aluminum bands around their legs. Last fall one hundred geese out of the 500 which stood on the ice of one of our ponds wore tags. The pond is only one acre in size and it took it to the map of North America in my old school geography, to see if there was any other arrangement, of forgiveness for Christ and the many. The graphic present has been made by the Rev. Mr. Wilson's official death was close at hand.

The Jesus reminded his followers that it was the last time he would partake of the fruit of the vine with them. "I shall not drink henceforth of this fruit of the vine," he told them, "until I drink it new with you in my Father's Kingdom." The disciples had to be taken prosaically. It is the thought of meeting Jesus again, to be brighten the gloom of leave-taking" (A. B. Bruce).

New Offensive Planned

Grasshoppers Killed In Larvae Stage Would Protect Farms

A new offensive against grasshoppers that would take attackers to the insects' permanent breeding grounds and prevent the recurring plagues by destroying the insects before they assumed outbreak proportions, was favored in a statement issued at Lethbridge by eminent entomologists of Canada and the United States.

The experts, following a six-day conference, reported the program in future would be to search out isolated areas where grasshoppers breed in years of no general infestation and start the poisoning campaign there.

The conference, outcome of appointment last year by the Dominion Government of a committee to draw up a scheme of permanent grasshopper control, felt such a plan would make farms safe from grasshopper plagues and disasters, and need not be occupied, as in the last two summers, scattering poison bait for weeks on end.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE LORD'S SUPPER

Golden text: This do in remembrance of me. I. Corinthians 11:24. Devotional reading: John 6:47-51.

Explanations And Comments

Arrangements for the Passover Feast, Matthew 26:17-19. On the first day of unleavened bread, while the city of Jerusalem was making ready to celebrate the Passover Feast, when the chief priests and elders were plotting how they might put Jesus to death, Jesus bade his disciples prepare for their celebration at the home of a friend, who would be glad to serve them as host.

The Institution of the Lord's Supper, Matthew 26:26-29. As they were eating the unleavened bread, specially prepared for the paschal meal, Jesus blessed and broke it. "Blessed be he who gives the bread of earth," was the customary blessing. As he gave it to his disciples he said, "Take, eat; this is my body." This represents my body. In this manner we say, "This is my friend."

And he took a cup and gave thanks and said as he gave it to them, "Drink ye all (all ye) of it; for this is my blood of the covenant." The wine in the cup represents my blood. "Covenant introduces an idea appropriate to the circumstances; giving his blood for the remission of sins." Hebrews 9:22. Because Paul says in First Corinthians 10:16 "the cup of blessing which we bless, is it not a communion of the blood of Christ?" the sacrament was called Communion. "Which is poured out for many unto remission of sins." Matthew 26:28; 24:8, where Moses sprinkled blood on the people and said, "Behold the blood of the covenant which Jehovah hath made with you." Also where Jesus declares that his blood is poured out in order to effect a covenant, or agreement, of forgiveness between God and the many. The graphic present has been made by the Rev. Mr. Wilson's official death was close at hand.

The Jesus reminded his followers that it was the last time he would partake of the fruit of the vine with them. "I shall not drink henceforth of this fruit of the vine," he told them. "until I drink it new with you in my Father's Kingdom." The disciples had to be taken prosaically. It is the thought of meeting Jesus again, to be brighten the gloom of leave-taking" (A. B. Bruce).

Darkness descended on the household early that night, but not real. Plans and more plans whirled through James Nelson's tired head for hours. Margaret, thinking him asleep, was very busy arranging many things—Nance mostly. This change was going to be hard for the girl. Lonely and timid, with no spoiling her, and perhaps they had; but she was their only daughter. No knowing what life would bring her later on, and they'd no wealth for her to have a happy youth—a carefree youth. Parties. Gaiety. Good times. And Nance was pretty—astonishingly pretty. Somehow she seemed made for just that life. Already a row of new coat hangers graced the spare closet awaiting the thrilling days ahead. Moving cautiously, the girl's mother opened a tray a tear.

In the room above Louise Nelson lay staring at a patch of brightness on the ceiling, drifting in from a street light far below. She, too, was thinking about Nancy. "If only they'd taught her to be something besides a butterfly," she thought bitterly. "this blow wouldn't come so hard. Not that the child hasn't got good enough, though. It showed to-night when she kept a stiff upper lip while her house of cards tumbled to pieces before her eyes. Good for the pioneer spirit my father used to talk about, showing up in a softer generation, I dare say. But she can't do a thing to help. Not a thing. No training whatever. Not that she'd have had much time for training at her age; but I doubt if the girl has ever made a bed!"

Across the hall Aunt Judy was fighting home-sickness. Alone, for her family. It was hard for her to leave them even for a week-end; and here she was destined for at least six months in Europe with those "crazy" Spear girls. It was all settled. In fact, she'd sent the wire. No backing out. Spear had almost cheered over the telephone.

"I suppose," Aunt Judy scolded herself, "that any one would say I was in luck. A trip abroad and a good salary just when it's needed. But the truth is, I'd rather be at Edgemere cooking for the family! I do think they're all wonderful. Margaret's a trump. She's no automaton for Nancy, but never whimpered. And Jack! He didn't consider anything except helping his sister. Offered to give up Mary Ann, and he-Why, the boy worships that car!

And Nancy!" (Aunt Judy winked back the tears.) "I wanted to cry for her, poor darling! She's been so thrilled and excited over this debut. . . ."

As for the girl herself, she lay on her beautiful four-poster trying to assemble her shattered world. It seemed incredible that such a thing could happen—to her. It just couldn't be true. "Why, Edgemere," she mused, "is—is the jumping-off place. One might as well be buried alive. I don't see how even Mother can endure it, especially with no Aunt Judy to help out. Come to think of it, there's only one bathroom for the entire family!" She threw a glance toward the door that led to her own whitetiled bath; and, as if she could see into the closet that lay beyond, a vision of the new gowns hanging there, waiting her entrance into what Jack called "the social swirl," rose up before her, and the girl's eyes misted.

"I'll never wear them now," she pondered sadly-ply. "And my white fur evening wrap! I wish I hadn't saved it for the great event. Maybe the shop will take it back, though. I'll never get to Edgemere. It's inappropriate to the circumstances; giving his blood for the remission of sins." Hebrews 9:22. Because Paul says in First Corinthians 10:16 "the cup of blessing which we bless, is it not a communion of the blood of Christ?" the sacrament was called Communion. "Which is poured out for many unto remission of sins." Matthew 26:28; 24:8, where Moses sprinkled blood on the people and said, "Behold the blood of the covenant which Jehovah hath made with you." FILLIPPUM II

Cousin Columbine's proposition?"

Cousin Columbine's proposition? Nancy had not given it a thought since the week before when Jack, home from school for an unexpected Sunday, had met the postman at the door and brought a letter into the living room where the family was at dinner.

"It looks like a long-winded screed from Cousin Columbine's venerable relative, Colorado," the boy observed. "You read it aloud, Aunt Lou."

His tousled head and the missive deftly placed on the table where it landed within an inch of his aunt's plate. She said, regarding the address: "It is for your father."

Dad smiled.

"Read on, my dear. It can't be worse than it is." That lady bore's spirit my father used to talk about, showing up in a softer generation, I dare say. But she can't do a thing to help. Not a thing. No training whatever. Not that she'd have had much time for training at her age; but I doubt if the girl has ever made a bed!"

This was Jack once more, but no one thought to reprove him for the interruption. Even his Aunt Louise appeared unconscious of it. Dad sat suddenly erect. Mother's mouth opened, and stayed that way a minute. Aunt Judy bristled: "What's Aunt Lou thinking of?"—while Nancy herself was staring at them all in blank amazement.

"Me?" she gasped, after a speechless

"The very idea!" said Mother, finding her voice.

"For Pete's sake, read on," commanded Jack; and as they all leaned forward in sudden interest Louise Nelson add:

"Let's see, where was it? Oh, here's the place. '. . . as soon as possible, though I prefer that she should be well fixed financially, my dear cousin, I shall insist on paying the girl's travelling expenses. I am about to give her twenty-five dollars every month, and her duties will not be arduous'—"

"They'd better not be, if the old lady expects to get 'em done—by herself," observed Jack dryly; and his aunt continued:

"'As I believe I have mentioned in previous communications, my good neighbor, James Nelson, is a widower. Cooking and house cleaning, though on the latter subject her ideas and mine vary widely, are necessary. I should expect your daughter to dust the mansion neatly every morning; do not let her shirk.'"

At this point, unable to restrain himself a moment longer, Jack gave vent to a low whoop; and his aunt declared in exasperation:

"Really, Jack, if you can't keep still until I finish, some one else may have the pleasure of reading this ridiculous proposal."

"Oh, go on, Louise," placated Dad. "What does the old lady expect of Nance for that munificent salary?"

"Strict obedience, I judge. The letter says: 'If she goes out of an evening I should expect her to be in not later than nine-thirty, my boy-friend,' and though I prefer that she should entertain no young men callers, if such a thing occurs they must leave at the same hour.'"

Aunt Louise's voice quivered even meeting Nancy's as Jack chuckled:

"No boy friends for our Nance? That writer the letter, Jack. Just give your antiquated cousin that your charming daughter doesn't qualify for the position."

"Keep still," begged Nancy. "I never heard anything so—so wild in the whole life!"

Louise Nelson was smiling now.

You are to read the daily paper to Cousin Columbine, Nance," she said "and listen to talk for hours with her needle I should want the girl to do a bit of dressmaking now and then. She writes that her niece and Thursdays (Aurora's evening off) and in case of illness on my part it might be well for her to write upon me. That is all, I think—' And it's enough," declared Aunt Louise interrupting herself this time to judge they haven't met the servant problem at Pine Ridge, Colorado'—

"What she wants is a slave," asserted Jack. "Can't you see it?"

Decorative sister being nurse, dressmaker and cook to a prehistoric old lady one hundred-odd years old Can you, Dad?"

Find Mysterious Garden

Discovery Made By Youths Searching For Holy Cave

A mysterious flower garden, 18 acres in extent, and full of delicately perfumed plants in bloom, has been found in the wilderness surrounding Adam's Peak, the sacred mountain of Ceylon.

Nowhere in this garden are there even a square foot of waste land, nor was any plant more than three feet high; yet there was not a living soul to be found for miles around in the arid wilderness.

The discovery was made by a band of youths who set out from Colombo in search for the Holy Cave of Ceylon, believed to be in the neighborhood of Adam's Peak.

The cave, known as Deva Guhawa, is one of the 16 places of special sanctity mentioned in the Pali Standan, one of the Buddhist Scriptures All the other 15 are known, but no one has ever come back to tell of the finding of the Deva Guhawa.

Chinese visitors who revel near Adam's Peak 40 years ago—plus men like the monks of St. Bernard—are believed to have known where it was, but they are all dead.

Many have tried to find the Holy Cave, but none has ever returned sane. Once a priest, confident in his sacred character, ascended so far that he found the cave, but was driven observed beneath the overhanging summit of the haunted mountain. He never returned, so cannot be able to give any account of what he had seen.

In 1857 a band of Buddhist monks tried to scale the mountain. Terror seized some of them when they reached the base, and they turned back. But the more adventurous started on, but before they reached the summit they all fainted.

Only one survived when he recovered his consciousness, declared that he had seen a magnificent temple revealed in the moonlight, illuminated with gold and precious gems, and in the interior, resplendent beyond all else a sacred foot-print.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

WHY

How many people have you been
While all the year went out and new years came in?
How many times did you truly say
Made up the self that you are today?
You have been wicked and you have been good,
Caught in strange crises, misunderstood.

You have been idler and toiler both,
Proud of a holiday shamed by your sloth.
"Wisdy" experience you have been,
wise;
Simple as Adam was in Paradise
Ones to whom God lady barely and shrewd,
Suddenly childlike, untutored and crude.
How many people wander now
Back of your shoulder, with unbowed brow?

Would Make It Compulsory

National Research Council Committee Wants All Milk Pasteurized

Compulsory pasteurization of milk is advocated for sale in Canadian towns and cities by a committee of the National Research Council's Associate Committee on Tubercular Research which has published its findings in a report.

The committee declared that it had "been amply demonstrated in the work carried on under the auspices of the National Research Council as well as in other institutions, that pasteurization of milk will destroy all bacteria harmful to man and which may be responsible for many human diseases, particularly the organisms of tuberculosis, septic sore throat, undulent fever and typhoid fever." The committee affirmed also that many of the cases of tuberculous meningitis in children are of bovine origin.

Europe's Tallest King

King Haakon VII of Norway is the tallest king in Europe—six feet four inches tall. He is not a Norwegian, but a Dane, and his real name is not Haakon, but Carl. He was chosen to rule Norway when that country broke away from Sweden. He was then the second son of the King of Denmark. One reason for his being chosen was that he has always been an outstanding athlete a true test of popularity with Norwegians.

Show No Change

Scientists Say Jellyfish Same As 250,000,000 Years Ago

Jellyfish which turned into stone ages ago, petrified in the solid rock of ages, are the same as jellyfish that float about in the oceans of to-day.

This discovery, which has been announced, appears effectively to wipe out the basis of the evolutionary jokes that man may have descended from an ancient jellyfish. For the Cornell discovery shows jellyfish have not changed appreciably in 250,000,000 years. Horses took only 60,000,000 years to evolve from little, five-toed creatures, and in a period of much less than 1,000,000 years great historic man or a creature closely resembling modern humans, rose rapidly up the scale of development.

The fossil jellyfish are about the size of saucers. The concentric rings of stone which came from mineralization of their bodies indicate how little they differed from the jellyfish which float ashore in all the oceans to-day.

They apparently had even then the stinging, nettle-like tentacles which pain swimmers of to-day.

Receives Medal From Prince

Lieutenant Rescues Man During Storm At Great Peril To Himself

Award for the bravest deed of the year, the Stanhope Gold Medal of the Royal Humane Society was presented at York House by the Prince of Wales to Lieut. Hugh Richardson of the H.M.S. Wolfhound. Richardson saved the life of a sailor who fell overboard during a gale in Lamlash Bay, Isle of Arran.

The rescue was carried out in mountainous seas in the early hours of a stormy winter morning.

Edmund Archer, aged 19, was crossing the deck when a huge wave broke over the destroyer and swept him over the side.

Lieutenant Richardson heard the cry "Man overboard," and placing a luminous lifebelt over his head, dived from the bridge into the sea.

He put the lifebuoy round Archer, but was himself swept half a mile to sea and it was some time before a boat found him.

Civilians Being Trained

Germany Not Taking Any Chances In Air Battle

Germany is busily preparing itself against air raids, according to a well-informed British observer who recently stopped in Brussels, Belgium, on his way from Berlin. The whole civil population, he declared, are being trained in tactics to fit an "air war" starts. Berlin is now well on the way towards "air impregnability," with an elaborate system of gas and fire-proof protection cellars. "Air protection" exercises are taking place nightly in different districts of the capital. A huge excavation is being made in the centre of Berlin. It is generally believed that huge cellars are being built there to serve as garages in peace time, and as an air protection for high Government officials in the event of war. Day and night Munich advertises an air protection cellar among its modern conveniences.

Royal Empire Medal

Sir Wilfred Grenfell Is Honored As Distinguished Benefactor

The council of the Royal Empire Society has awarded the Royal Empire medal to Sir Wilfred Grenfell, Labrador's distinguished benefactor. The award was made "in recognition of his services to the welfare and the excellence of his book, The Romance of Labrador."

In addition to his work on behalf of Labrador, Sir Wilfred is well known in the world of medicine," said the council. "His work for Eskimo people in the land of his adoption has marked him as one of the pioneers of the empire."

Since 1927, Sir Wilfred has been engaged in missionary and welfare work in bleak Labrador. He has established hospitals, nursing stations, orphanages and schools. He carries medical aid to lonely outposts along the coast in an annual cruise.

Runaway Windows

What instinct was it that prompted a bewildered woodcock, trying to find its way about the skyscrapers of New York, to fly against the windows of the quarters of the National Association of Bird Societies? When that is explained, there remains the question: How does a homing pigeon, taken away to a box, return hundreds of miles to its own loft? There seems to be a great deal of unnecessary wisdom in the feathered kingdom.

Little Helps For This Week

"Enter thou into the joy of thy Lord." Matthew 25:23.

Rejoice in the Lord, rejoicing in hope." Romans 11:12.

If our love were but more simple,
We would take Him at His word:
And our lives would be all sunshine
In the Sweetness of our Lord.

What would it be to love a Being Absolutely lovely, to be able to give our whole existence, every thought, every act, every desire to the adored
One, to know that He accepts it all,
and loves us in return as only God can love. This happiness grows forever. The larger our nature becomes the wider our scope of thought, the stronger our will, and the more fervent our affections. Every sacrifice resolved on opens wide the gate, every sacrifice accomplished is a step towards the paradise within.
Soon it will be no transitory glimpse,
no rapture of a day to be followed by clouds and gloom. Let us labor, and pray, and wait, and the intervals of human frailty shall grow shorter and less dark, the days of our delight in God longer and brighter, till at last life shall be nought but His love, our eyes shall never grow dim, His smile never turn away.

Share For Everyone

There is always something to do if we are willing to do it, and do not limited in doing something else Many think there is nothing for them to do because they are more eager to choose their work than to do it. There is a share of life for every one; there is work for every hand.

"WOULD NOT BE WITHOUT SASKASAL"

Says Sapper Wemes

Indigestion Gone, Can Eat Anything

Read this letter: "For several years I had been troubled with bad indigestion and could eat very few foods which agreed with me. A friend of mine suggested that I try Saskasal, which I did, and it has completely cured me and now I can eat anything. I would not be without a bottle of Saskasal in my home, and I hope others may benefit as I have done when they know of your wonderful remedy."—Sapper ... Saskasal is Nature's own blood-builder. Its alkaline action neutralizes over-acidity in the blood and thus makes of a valuable natural remedy in all cases of Constipation, Rheumatism

Sixteen Years Ago To-day

Interesting Items gleaned from the Files of the Vermilion Standard
THIS DATE 16 YEARS AGO — 1919

A young man named Anderson, employed in the C.N.R. yards, had a foot crushed between two cars on Thursday, painful, the injury is not a serious one.

Ben Somerset, employed by the Alberta Western Lumber Co. was pinched up in the yards about 5 o'clock Monday afternoon in an unconscious condition with a badly bruised face and cut about the eyes. He was conveyed to the hospital by Mr. H. R. Parker. Though there were no witnesses it is supposed the injured man fell from the narrow platform of the gallery to the ground, while engaged on helping in the classifying finished material.

T. Kee is contracted a load back to the Big Muddy at Lavoy when his team ran away with wagon and the race. He was shaken up a bit, but the horses only got tired and will be all right for the race. They attempted to jump the ground, he was thrown from a balance and struck by the wagon as it

Geo. Armstrong, the village constable of town was called on the head by a mate the first part of the week and his small boy took both.

Mrs. Bailie Wilson or Wildmere, underwent a successful operation at the local hospital on Wednesday.

Frank Ebbert, who has been attending Camrose normal school, is teaching the Alsadelphe school.

Harry Stephens is home from Manitoba University, Toronto, and expects to teach in the district for the holidays.

The caboose of a C. N. R. ballast train, which backed out from Vermilion shortly before 5 p.m. this Wednesday for the pit near Initiative, struck a horse at a crossing half way between Chauvinist and Mannville and was ditched turning over twice. Six flat cars also left the track taking the lead on the opposite side from the caboose. Jos. Stoughton, one of the crew was killed outright, the body being thrown clear of the wreck. His skull was smashed. Conductor Thompson and Walsh, the other occupants of the caboose were pinned up with the debris but managed to crawl from the car. They suffered minor hurts. The engineer of the train was Jas. Johnson with fireman Ferguson. The train was ballasting between Vermilion and Islay.

Born — At Vermilion Alberta, on Tuesday, May 7th 1919 to Mr and Mrs J. J. Loughlin a daughter.

THE WEATHER

A stiff fall day rain fell last Saturday followed by three real summer days with little wind. High winds on Sunday prevailed however and have held over since.

The Rosicrucians in this community will be represented in their extension activities by Mr. Wm. Glanvill of this town. A certificate of appointment as counsellor was received by Mr. Glanvill from the headquarters of the Rosicrucian Order (AMORC) in San Jose, California, this week. The California headquarters of the organization is for the North American jurisdiction. Each country has its own international lodges chapters, and extension commissioners. The commissioners of this organization donate their services and receive no compensation, for the Rosicrucian Order is a fraternity devoted to the dissemination of knowledge of the laws of life and the teachings of a philosophy. It is neither a commercial nor a religious organization. Mr. Glanvill further states that the local commissioner is expected by the Grand Lodge of the order to see all applicants and members in his community to attend the National Convention of the order, held annually and which draws many hundreds from various countries.

IMPERIAL PRODUCTS

THE SIGN OF A FAIR DEAL

THE Three-Star Imperial oval sign marks a place where you can buy with confidence; where you can be sure of good value and full measure.

It is the symbol of an organization that has steadily improved the quality and consistently reduced the price of petroleum and petroleum products — for gasoline prices today are lower than ever before.

The Three-Star Imperial oval sign stands for a fair deal to all: to you, the consumer, and to the labor engaged in making and marketing Imperial products. The thousands of Imperial Oil workers are well treated. Five thousand of them are part owners of the Company. They are paid good wages. They have sickness and death benefits and old age pensions which mean that in affliction or old age they and their families do not become dependent on funds which must be raised by taxation.

Because they are fairly treated, Imperial Oil employees work loyally, enthusiastically and enterprisingly. That is why, through the years, it has been possible steadily to improve the quality and consistently to lower the price of Imperial gasoline and oils.

That energetic Westerner, Hon. Harry Stevens, continues to draw big, enthusiastic crowds on his Ontario speaking tour. His address before the St. Catharine's Chamber of Commerce included a severe spanking for A. G. Dawson, Montreal millionaire president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce who recently attacked government interference with business in a speech at Washington D.C. Mr. Stevens reminded Mr. Dawson that government interference in the way of protection and encouragement had been a godsend to the textile industries to-day, to the extensive companies like Canada Cement, and James Ogilvie & Co. If Big Business cannot solve its own economic problems and that means nine-tenths of the economic ills of Canada — then it should acknowledge its failure and surrender to government intervention. He told the Ottawa Kiwanis Club Friday that progress meant revision of economic thought and business practice."

Following one of the most backward seasons in Alberta history, resulting in what is now general over the entire province three weeks later than in 1934, in the extreme southern and south-eastern sections of the province, seeding is from 2% to 50 per cent completed while in the east central and south-central districts the wheat is practically all in. Throughout the west central districts seeding is also at its rapidly nearing completion. In the northern districts with exceptions, spring weather seeding is begun and will be well under way a week. Due to the lateness of the season it will be the seed is going in from the ground in ideal preparation. Cold weather with frequent rains accompanied by snow and sleet has operated with periods of high winds to retard seeding until the first half of May, and it was not until the last week that reasonable spring weather arrived. Intensive showers of rain are still interfering somewhat with rain operations.

Surface moisture conditions may fairly be stated to be the most satisfactory for years although the subsoil moisture in most of the province is poor, say no plentiful. Continuous precipitation during the spring months has, while delaying operations created an optimistic feeling.

Pitcairn from Alberta Crop Report No. 2 issued May 18th)

The sounding of the siren on Monday last calling out the fire brigade gave the Town's coffers dollars in half its wages because a chimney and stove pipes had not been properly cleaned. If this had happened in the previous week when high winds were prevalent, the report of "no damage" might have been an altogether different story. It therefore behooves every citizen to see to it at all times that his pipes and chimneys are clean and in a sound condition.

SOCIAL CREDIT CONVENTION HELD AT MANNVILLE

The Social Credit convention at Manville on Wednesday afternoon of last week brought delegates from different points all over the district. After registration no time was lost in getting down to business, and although the president, W. A. Fallow, who presided, declared the convention ready to receive nominations, that question had eventually to be decided by vote. The secretary, Mr. Robert Beattie, explained the system of voting by party candidates quoting from the constitution of the Social Credit League. The first name placed on the list of nominees was that of Mr. Pat Low. This nomination was made by Mrs. Fee in a spirited address in which she extolled the attributes of her proposed nominee stating that he has had long experience as an administrator and public speaker, had lived many years of Vermilion from debt and was well equipped to meet the criticisms and misstatements that would be made against Social Credit during the campaign. Mrs. Gamble moved the nomination of Mr. W. R. Cornish of Chalsey; Castle Scott placed Mr. Alf Hoffman in nomination; Mr. Alberta Potter brought Mr. J. H. Myers Mulborn into the fold of candidates and Mr. C. Wallington, Wildmere, placed Mr. Gilbert S. Shane, owner of the municipality of Grizzly Bear, on the list of nominees; John Harvey Mr. David Marks, Manville a place among the select. Messrs. A. Landeryon, Calgary, Ed. Huffman and Mr. J. C. Kwasnecz of Wainwright were quickly placed on the list of nominees. There were no withdrawals. After the nominations were closed each candidate was given five minutes in which to tell what he was or thought about Social Credit. Mr. Fallow was the first call upon. He said, in being named a candidate at that convention, the crowning event of the twenty years of political movement, he had worked to bring about an economic reform such as was contemplated under the Social Credit movement. He had worked to no avail — until the first ballot. He said, it was not until the last week that reasonable spring weather arrived. Intensive showers of rain are still interfering somewhat with rain operations.

Surface moisture conditions may fairly be stated to be the most satisfactory for years although the subsoil moisture in most of the province is poor, say no plentiful. Continuous precipitation during the spring months has, while delaying operations created an optimistic feeling.

NEIGHBORHOOD NARRATIVES

From the Neighborhood of the North End

On behalf of the Neighborhood we extend to Mrs. Kehoe and family our deepest concern and sincerest sympathy them in their recent sad loss. The many friends of Mr. L. Kehoe in our community would always depend on a welcome smile and kind word from that splendid gentleman and we will certainly miss his cheery face and greeting from our midst.

In the course of a casual conversation not long ago we heard (what we considered the honest statement and the finest piece of English that has been uttered in the Neighborhood since we have known it. It was "I did not say anything, because I did not consider it my right to tell another person's private affairs." Uttered in all sincerity, without trying for effect, without personal or malicious application, the words were said merely to outline the belief of one person, but we think they deserve immortality.

We noted another kind impulse when a lady in the Neighborhood remembered friends not so fortunate, and distributed rhubarb roots to those needing them. And we ourselves benefited when part of a pickings of winter onions found their way to our door. We ask you — isn't ours a Neighborhood?

Glowing reports of Mrs. Rogers reached us and we only wish that all the doubtful and fearful skeptics could hear at least her clear cut facts if they couldn't respond to her wonderful personality. Being besieged with every kind of argument, having buried at an early moment of information (?) and looked upon with every variation of attitude, we can only ask "When is a fact a fact," and gulp down personal feelings (do they run high?!) to remain calm enough to indicate what we know as the principles of the Social Credit idea, and the faith we have in its adherents and their ideals. And the very hardest task of all is to deal with the fund of misinformation that is cast at us. An opponent is certainly the more to be honored when their facts are correct.

OBITUARY

DEATH AND FUNERAL OF MR. LAWRENCE L. KEHOE

On Monday, May 13th, one of Vermilion's best known old timers passed to his eternal reward, in the person of Lawrence Leo Kehoe, known and revered by a host of friends as a genial, kindly, honorable citizen, a faithful husband and loving father. The deep sympathy of the entire community goes out to his bereaved family.

Born in Le Sueur County, Minnesota, in 1865, Mr. Kehoe came to farm nine miles south of Vermilion in 1904. In 1928 he moved into Vermilion where he resided with his family until his death. Left to mourn his loss are his sorrowing wife and six children: Mrs. Elmer J. Hagan, Washington, Pennsylvania; Mrs. Gilbert Shane, Leon, Anthony, Leona and Evelyn, all of Vermilion. He is survived by one sister and four brothers, Timothy of Vermilion, all the others residing in Minnesota, U.S.A.

The funeral took place on Wednesday, May 15th from Holy Name church where Requiem Mass was sung by Father O'Sullivan, pastor, assisted by Father Pilz of Viking, Father Gillis of Clandonald, assisted in the choir. The large and representative funeral was a touching exhibition of the people's sympathy in line of honour, and a last fitting tribute to the respect and esteem in which the deceased was held in the town and district. Interment took place in the Catholic cemetery. The pallbearers were Wm. P. Colbert, Hubert Sherback, Martin Sherback, Edward Bohne, Thos. Dwyer, and James McLaughlin.

"Eternal rest grant unto him, O Lord,
And let perpetual light shine upon him.

ISLAND HILL

We tender our deepest sympathy to Mrs. L. L. Kehoe and family on the death of their faithful husband and loving father. May his soul rest in peace.

Judging by the voting at the Manville convention there seems no doubt that Mayor Fallow will be the final selection for the Vermilion constituency. And no better can be had. It is now up to the voters who value their homes and their farms to vote for him. Of the only man who can guarantee that their home life will not be interfered with and that is the man who marches under the Social Credit banner.

The Opportunities Of Youth

Within recent weeks some thousands of young men and women have graduated from Canadian colleges And universities, received their diplomas, and are now ready and anxious to start out in the careers for which they have been fitting themselves. That is there is a new small army of lawyers, doctors, clergymen, nurses, teachers chemists, engineers, scientific agriculturists, and others in various lines of activity equipped to assume their share of the world's work. To that work they are prepared to bring not only the enthusiasm and energy of youth, but the very latest knowledge, ideas and methods

In the course of the next few weeks additional thousands of young men and women will emerge from normal schools, collegiate and high schools, not quite so highly trained, but who do not aim at a university degree or who cannot afford the time and expense which years in college will entail. These too are ready and anxious to assume a place in the world's work.

Many of these young people have made great sacrifices and denied them-elves pleasures even comforts, to thus equip themselves, and many parents have made even greater sacrifices to assist and enable their children to obtain advantages which they themselves never enjoyed

The unfortunate thing, in fact is that these young men and women face extremely difficult conditions in securing places in the professions or occupations for which they have equipped themselves. They enter upon the active scene at a time when the whole world is seething with unrest and social and economic upheaval which in the aftermath of a great war fought in the interests of their childhood. There is nothing unusual in such an upheaval because a similar condition has followed after every great war in the world's history, the only difference being that in this more highly civilized and machine age standards of education and living are much higher than in bygone centuries life is more complex, and we all expect and demand more than did our forefathers.

But neither of mankind could not commit the enormous and terrible crime of the Great War and expect to escape the almost equally terrible consequences of the crime committed by them. The youth of to-day can truthfully say they are not responsible for that crime, and youth may ask why they should be punished because of it But, no matter how great the changes that have taken place since the war, neither the moral nor the laws of Nature have been altered. They remain fast and immutable and at all time as it has been from the beginning of time that the sins of the fathers are visited upon the children of succeeding generations

Youth must face this solemn truth and, along with it, face conditions as they are and the responsibilities which are forced upon them. They must go out into the world as it is, and by doing so secure for themselves what their attitude in and toward life is to be. They cannot, even if they would, evade their responsibilities and must exchange them either for good or ill as they themselves determine.

In the young graduate in law looking on life and his profession merely as a means of livelihood, wealth and position; or to be inspired with a sincere desire to see justice done in all cases, wrongs righted, oppression removed, regardless of the fact whether it means wealth and position for himself or not?

In the graduate nurse only desirous of obtaining steady employment for herself, or has she a real vision of service in the profession ennobled by Florence Nightingale who gave her whole life to it without thought of personal reward?

In the new medical doctor thanking only of a big and lucrative practice in some centre of population, or he resolved to devote his life to the alleviation of suffering wherever it may exist, and the prevention of disease that suffering may likewise be prevented, quite apart from material gain to himself?

In a word, are our new lawyers, doctors, nurses, teachers, engineers, clergymen, and others entering upon the activities of this sorely troubled world with purely material gain to themselves as their goal, animated by no finer ambition than some of that same selfishness which is to-day the curse of the world and has brought it to the state wherein youth now finds itself or severely handicapped in the race for personal success, or, determined, to do their part in the creation of a finer world, inspired by loftier motives of service, which they can pass on to their children?

Is the coming generation going to place stress on money, economic security for themselves the attainment of social position and power, as so many of the past generations did and are still doing in a world which, as we are they going to strive to excel in the rendering of service to their fellow men? Is life itself, in its truest and highest meaning, they are going to live, or is it to be merely a striving for selfish possession of the material things of life?

The great names which history records with credit, and which remain household words to inspire, are those of men and women who amassed wealth or achieved social position No they are the names of the disciples who, ignoring and abandoning all, followed the Master; names, too, like David Livingstone and Florence Nightingale, names of doctors, chemists, scientists and inventors who freely gave their discoveries in the world for the world's benefit and advancement; clergymen and missionaries who lived not for themselves but for others.

Youth to-day enjoys just as great opportunities for real service as at any previous time It depends upon itself whether it shall it will travel the road of selfish worldliness to sordid, elevate standards of thought and living or the road of personal selfishness, treating only of self, and thus tending to a further degradation of mankind and intensifying the troubles, miseries and injustices of the world

A smiling vamet built in Denmark Sterling was rare in Mexico before in 1776 it still on the trade routes of the south of white men, a pair of is believed to be the oldest one in crossed sticks before an open door the world on active service being thought sufficient precaution.

Soybean Seed Varies

Amount Required For Acre Depends Largely On Variety

Soybeans may be drilled solid, like small grains, or seeded in cultivated rows, usually 28 inches apart. The grain drill can be used for both methods.

The amount of seed required to plant an acre depends to some extent upon the variety, as soybeans of different sizes vary somewhat in size, according to the variety. In general, however, row seeding will require from 30 to 45 pounds of seed per acre, while drilled seeding will require 90 to 120 pounds of seed per acre. The drill should be regulated to drop the seed about 1 to 2 inches apart in row planting, and 2 to 3 inches apart where drilled solid.

The time of seeding will vary somewhat according to locality and conditions. At the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, seeding about the middle of May has been found very satisfactory.

Britain Will Attempt To Regain Airplane Altitude Record

The attempt of the Royal Air Force to regain the airplane altitude record for Great Britain is to be made by specially selected officers in August. The present world record is that of 37,000 feet, under the Italian airman, Donati. For this stratosphere flight the Air Ministry recently placed an order for a special machine, and it is now under construction. The chosen crew will undergo training similar to that of bchanider for deep sea divers. One test which will be applied at the R.A.F. establishment at Farnborough, England, will be that of the "low pressure ham Chamber," in which a man is placed and his reactions noted to atmospheric conditions similar to those of the stratosphere.

HIS LUMBAGO HAS NOT COME BACK

Keeps Free Of It With Kruschen

There can be no doubt about the effectiveness of Kruschen" this man uses against lumbago. Read his letter:

"About four years ago, I had a bad attack of lumbago. After being in hospital for two weeks taking heat treatment, I returned home practically a cripple. Since then, I am happy to say, I have not been troubled with lumbago. I have still continued taking Kruschen to be sure the lumbago has gone right out of my C.C. system.

Why is it that Kruschen is so effective in banishing rheumatism? It simply because it goes right down to the root of the trouble, and removes the cause, the poisonous uric acid in the stream. The six salts in Kruschen keep the kidneys pure and active, thus preventing the formation of uric acid crystals by promoting a clockwork regularity of all the organs of elimination.

Cyclone On The Sun

Unprecedented By Group Of Enormous Spots Just Discovered

German astronomers and meteorologists have discovered a huge group of enormous spots on the sun ten times the size of the earth.

The Russian Observatory reported having found on the lower left edge of the sun a fantastically patterned group of spots about 100,000 miles wide. German scientists estimated at between 60,000 and 70,000 kilometers, between 37,000 and 43,000 miles.

The German astronomers say that these spots represent a cyclone of powerful dimensions which has suddenly appeared on the sun and now is moving in the upper gas stratum, sending great waves of electrical tension into space

One Of Famous Mayo Brothers Says Cancer Being Conquered

Dr. W. J. Mayo, one of the two famous Mayo brothers of Rochester, Minn., predicted at San Diego, Cal., that "the day is not far distant when there will be no fear of cancer."

"Less than 10 per cent of American people are susceptible to cancer, and of these only a very small percentage ever contract it. It is with these that we are working," he said. "Medical science has made rapid strides toward control of cancer and sooner than many suspect will have it whipped just as medical science whipped typhoid fever."

"My page's a marginal publication," said little Pat to his mother's visitor. "Is that better than being a foot policeman?" she asked.

"Course it is," replied Pat. "If there's any trouble, he can get away quicker."

Little Journeys In Science

WOOD ALCOHOL

(By Gordon H. Guest, M.A.)

Wood alcohol, or methyl alcohol, is made by the distillation of hardwood during the production of charcoal. It is one of the products that come over in the distillation. Acids, such as acetic vinegar, also come over; these are neutralized and the resulting crude methyl alcohol distilled off Another method of producing wood alcohol has recently been discovered.

Wood alcohol consists of burning a mixture of two volumes of hydrogen with one volume of carbon monoxide over a substance known to chemists as a catalyst. Now a catalyst is something that will produce a chemical reaction but it itself remains unchanged. The catalyst used in this new method of making wood alcohol consists chiefly of zinc oxide.

Pure methyl alcohol has an odour much resembling that of ordinary alcohol. It is poisonous and many cases of blindness and death have occurred from drinking it, mistakenly containing wood alcohol. It should not even be used externally, for the latter fault is changed into a virtue when methyl alcohol is used to denature ethyl alcohol (ordinary alcohol).

Wood alcohol is also used, for many years in the dye industry and as a solvent in making polishes, lacquers and varnishes. It is the raw material from which formalin, the well-known disinfectant, is made.

Methyl alcohol burns with a flame of high heat value and is used as an alcohol stove.

In the production of methyl alcohol from wood three interesting by-products are produced. One is a mixture of methyl acetone, known as methyl acetate. This mixture is known in commerce as methyl acetone, and is used in large quantities as a solvent. Another commercial constituents of a mixture of liquids known as ketones by the chemist and this material is used as a solvent in the lacquers for airplane wings. Still another by-product obtained is allyl alcohol, a peculiarly irritating liquid which is made into a compound forming the basis of an ointment which is used for curing sore throats. This compound made from allyl alcohol is a synthetic mustard oil.

Sith thread, because it has greater tenacity than steel wire of the same diameter, is used by a German in making cannon. The cannon is made of steel tubes, wrapped with silk thread until the required size is attained.

Game Conservation

Demand For One Year's Moratorium On Waterfowl Shooting

Counselled by international conservation leaders, a massed petition demanding a one year's moratorium on waterfowl shooting in crystalline by 11 midwest states and three Canadian provinces.

The movement, known as the Midwest Conservation Alliance, was organized for international midwest action on "the greatest wild life emergency America has faced since the passing of the bonfalo."

Such international leaders as W. G. Rose, Moose Jaw, president of the Saskatchewan Fish and Game League, Kermit Roosevelt, New York, president of the National Association of Audubon Societies, and Jack Miner, Kingsville, Ont., are numbered on the Alliances' active counsellors.

With preliminary activities indicating a unanimity of opinion for the objective, the Alliance is circulating petitions pledged to "use force—for sportsmen's clubs, and individual sportsmen. After signing, these forms are returned to the St. Paul office for correlation. When complete, the massed petition containing names of thousands of midwest sportsmen in the international front will be personally presented to President Roosevelt to procure an executive order for a closed season.

"In extending an invitation to Canada to join in the movement," the first M.C.A. bulletin read, "this organization does so with the realization that it is the duty of the United States to first put its own house in order."

"Our responses from Canada have demonstrated beyond doubt the sporting blood of our neighbors, and have overstated the value the United States' action on this problem. On the basis of 22 per cent kill on ducks banding as practiced in the States, Canada would have been justified in ignoring our appeal. We deem it our mandate to make restitution to waterfowl for our offense and the staving off extirpation through a closed season this year."

Inviting Canadian organizations to join the movement by signing petitions, the Alliance announced that all units desiring petitions may receive them by addressing to the St. Paul office.

"The organization represents the "greatest concentration of conservation leaders and publicists ever assembled under a single campaign," the bulletin concluded.

New Publications

Mollier's 1935 Directory Of Canadian Publications Given Enlarged And Improved Conditions

The 1935 McKim's Directory of Canadian Publications, just off the press, lists tangible evidence of improved business conditions, showing an increase of 62 per publications as against an increase of only 30 the previous year. Failures in the publication field decreased proportionately.

This 1935 edition of the directory is the largest ever issued, the number of publications listed having begun several years after the founding of the A. McKim Limited, advertising agency in 1888.

Recognized as an authentic gauge of advertising media throughout Canada, the directory gives exhaustive information in nine news papers, magazines, trade papers and miscellaneous publications. Provinces, cities and towns where each publication operate are all listed, together with populations, industries and outstanding characteristics of each town.

Somewhat larger than its predecessors, this edition will replace last year's directory on the desks of manufacturers, publishers and all firms dealing in advertising in Canada. Enquiries concerning the publication should be addressed to any one of the six McKim Advertising Agency offices at Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Vancouver, Halifax or London, England.

A Clever Sculptor

Work Of Blind War Veteran Admired In Italy

Ernesto Masselli, who completely lost his sight in the World War, has become a sculptor in Rome. The soldier had done no modeling until four years ago. His exceptional memory enables him to recall shapes and details, and he prefers to work in the dark when the household has gone to bed at night. In spite of his heavy handicap, Masselli has overcome the technical difficulties of his art without instruction. His work has been much admired in Italian art circles.

FARM LOAN BOARD RATE OF INTEREST IS FIVE PER CENT

Ottawa.—Rate of interest on loans extended by the farm loan board to Canadian farmers on first mortgages will be five per cent. Announcement was made by Hon. R. B. Bennett, minister of finance. The same rate will apply in each province. The maximum loan on a first mortgage will be $6,000.

Provision also had been made for second mortgages and the interest rate would probably be six per cent., it was announced. The board will have $80,000,000 available for loans.

Under amendments to the Farm Loan Act made this session, administration is entirely under control of the farm loan board appointed by the Dominion government.

At a meeting of this newly-named board Hon. W. D. Euler, minister of trade and commerce, Hon. Earnest Lapointe, minister of justice, Hon. Thomas Vien, minister of railways and canals, Hon. Robert Weir, minister of agriculture, and Hon. Thomas Crerar, minister of mines and resources, were present.

Major John Darnell, chief executive officers for the provinces were named. They were ratified by order in council.

Chief executive officer will have control in the administration of the act and loans made under it. The board will be able to make loans in all provinces instead of, as formerly, only in provinces where special necessary legislation. The loans will be confined to farmers—"a person who pursuit occupation consists of farming."

"Loans shall only be made," says a statement issued by the minister, "where the board can hold security by way of first mortgages on farm lands. Those loans cannot exceed 40 per cent. of the actual value of the land and the buildings thereon, as appraised by the board, and the maximum loan on this basis shall be $3,000."

The announcement sets out the various uses the proceeds of the loan might be put to, such as buying implements, livestock, and improving the farm generally.

Currency Stabilization

Should Take Dollar Out Of Politics, Says Sir Josiah Stamp

Standard currency, Chief—Great Britain will consider world stabilization of currency when it is definitely understood that it will be kept out of politics," Sir Josiah Stamp, director of the Bank of England, said in an address here.

"Great Britain is eager and willing to stabilize its currency," Sir Josiah said.

"Reversal of foreign trade and prosperity of all countries depend upon an international agreement and understanding. That is the first step to lead the way until it finds out the policy of the United States.

"We do not know how much political pressure will be brought on President Roosevelt and what effect it will have on the administration's monetary policy."

Ceremony Re-Enacted

Celebrate Anniversary Of Driving The Last Spike On East-West Portion Of C.P.R.

Jackfish, Ont.—Near this tiny railway and fishing hamlet on the north shore of Lake Superior, Canadian history was re-enacted when the 50th anniversary of the driving of the last spike in the east-west portion of the Canadian Pacific Railway was celebrated.

In the presence of a large party of railway officials and pioneer workers of the line, Alex Anderson, 81, Port Arthur, who assisted at the informal ceremony on May 16, 1885, with a few vigorous blows drove home a spike in the place of its historic predecessor.

Want To Enoch Agreement

Tokio, Japan. The council of the Japan-Canada Society, which includes many influential business men, has passed a resolution urging that the government make another attempt to reach an agreement with Canada for the lifting of restrictions against Japanese goods, and, if that is not successful, to apply Japan's trade protection law against Canadian imports.

Railway Job Sharing Plan

Toronto. A plan for "job-sharing" on Canadian railways which, it is claimed, would put 25,000 men back at work at once and would save Canada $13,000,000 a year, is advanced and was approved at the annual convention here of the Western Canada Pool Association.

Agree On Security

French Foreign Minister And Soviet Premier End Conference

Moscow.—Endorsement of an inclusive pact to provide non-aggression, consultation upon threat of war, and non-assistance to an aggressor in the event of hostilities, to which Germany, Poland and Czechoslovakia will be invited to adhere, is contained in the official communique issued by the French and Soviet Union governments.

Pierre Laval, French foreign minister of Joseph Stalin, secretary-general of the Communist party, reached an agreement on the pact after a three conference.

A Pact Guarantees with Soviet Russia, elaborate receptions and a visit to Moscow's ultra-modern, three-shift, multiple-production "Stalin factory," Laval praised Soviet progress.

He discussed major aspects of the European security outlook with Stalin, Premier Vlachesiav M. Molotov and Maxim Litvinof, Soviet foreign commissar. Also present at these talks, which took place in the Kremlin, were Alexis Leger, secretary-general of the French foreign office, and Vladimir Potemkin, Soviet assistant.

Laval also talked with Michael Kalinin, president of the central executive committee, and other officials.

Laval said that, in the course of his interviews with the Soviet "strong impression" was created of "the remarkable problems "in the spirit of the closest collaboration."

Loan Oversubscribed

$60,000,000 Dominion Loan Is Successfully Floated

Ottawa.—It was announced by the minister of finance that the books opened in the morning for the $60,000,000 dominion loan, closed with the amount considerably oversubscribed, the proceeds of the loan $30,000,000 of the eight-year bonds and $40,000,000 of the 20-year. Finance department officials expressed great satisfaction with the success of the issue.

"The entire issue was sold for cash in a single day" was the comment made at the department.

Bank of Canada officials, handling the Dominion loan, announced that half the loan had been subscribed an hour after the books were opened.

The bonds were offered in two maturities, eight and 20 years, the former selling at 99.50 and bearing interest coupons at the rate of 2½ per cent., yielding 2.57, and the latter at 98.50 with interest coupons at the rate of three per cent., yielding 3.07. The bonds are dated June 1 and the proceeds will be used for general and current requirements.

British Election Sighted

Rumor That Stanley Baldwin May Dissolve Parliament

London.—Political quarters speculated on the possibility of a resignment of the cabinet. Prospects also were bolstered to indicate there will be a general election in the autumn.

The Hoshest story circulating in the lobbies was that Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and Stanley Baldwin, Conservative leader and chief opponent of the council, would change places. Informed circles mentioned the Whitsuntide recess, which begins early in June, as the most suitable date for such a move.

Many government supporters believe an election in October would be more favorable to the government than one next spring or later in 1936. The recent government victory in the West Edinburgh by-election was considered evidence that the government's stock at present was high.

Has Made Long Trip

Saskatchewan School Teacher Rides Bicycle To Prince Edward Island

Charlottetown. — Harold Peterson, 26-year-old Saskatchewan school teacher, pushed his bicycle over Prince Edward Island's red soil May 14 and came to rest in Charlottetown after completing 10,500 miles of pedalling since he left the little town of Lemsford in Sask., last July.

His doctor told him he needed fresh air and exercise and by the time he arrives home next July he thinks he'll have given himself enough outdoor life to do him for many years to come.

The cyclist plans to take a trip eastward to Souris. Then he goes on to Cavendish, where he wants to see the scene of L. M. Montgomery's "Anne of Green Gables."

"There are a lot of good people in the world and a lot of bad ones but most of 'em are good," he mused as he reviewed his long trip, which took him into nearly every province in Canada, the southern States, Mexico, and into the Maritime provinces.

ITALY AIMS TO ATTAIN CONTROL OF ETHIOPIA

Rome—Italian newspapers openly demanded immediate "control" or "organization" of Ethiopia, which was taken by diplomatic circles to mean civil or military control by Italy.

The authoritative Giornale d'Italia, which most often is chosen to echo government plans, said Ethiopia's "incapacity to comprehend and assimilate the elementary values of civilization" made it necessary that "there be given Ethiopian territory an organization which will deprive it of the possibility of menacing any more neighboring territories and Italian interests which have been attached."

The blasts followed upon the bold declaration by Benito Mussolini that other nations must keep their hands off the Italo-Ethiopian dispute.

That it is to be Italy which will impose this "organization" upon Ethiopia was recognized by the Giornale d'Italia when it said: "To recognize the European value of Italy as a civilized nation and power for equilibrium, signifies to recognize also these Italian necessities in East Africa, her rights of existence and of guarantees."

London. Great Britain is determined to continue her friendly efforts to preserve peace in Europe and the world despite Premier Mussolini's warning to other powers not to interfere in the Italo-Ethiopian dispute.

Replying to Geoffrey Mander, Liberal, in parliament, Sir John Simon foreign secretary, denied any reservations had been made to Italy with reference to obligations the British would be under regarding use of the Suez canal and British rights in the event of African hostilities

Sir Eric Drummond, British ambassador to Italy, was called from Rome to report on his part in the British peace efforts in the Italo-Ethiopian controversy.

Radio To Be Discussed

Minister Of Marine Said To Be Dissatisfied With Present Act

Ottawa.—Radio will be one of the first subjects discussed with Premier R. B. Bennett by his colleagues on his return to Ottawa it was learned. Life of the bill under which the Canadian Radio Commission functions was extended before adjournment until June 1.

It is known Hon. Alfred Duranleau, minister of marine, whose department has general supervision over radio, is dissatisfied with the present act. The commission has at his disposal about $1,500,000 a year, derived out of receiving licenses. From this it must pay costs of administration, of programs and of leased wires It has not enough left to provide high-powered stations on a scale comparable with the developments in the United States.

Proximity of the Dominion elections, however, may result in continuing the present act for the remainder of the year.

Farm Loan Board

Holds First Meeting Under Chairmanship Of John A. Barnett

Ottawa. — The newly organized Canadian farm loan board held its first meeting under the chairmanship of John A. Barnett who succeeds Dr. J. D. MacLean in that position. Dr. MacLean remains a member of the board along with Colonel Duquette, also a former member, and R. J. Roberts, comptroller of government guarantees, who represents the minister of finance

Business was selection of provincial superintendents who will perform the functional formerly carried out by the provincial boards which were abolished when amendments to the act were adopted at the present session of parliament.

BARONETCY TO BE CONFERRED ON JOHN BUCHAN

London. — Canada, where titles were resumed comparatively recently, is not yet at least to have a second "commoner" governor-general.

Announcement was made from Buckingham palace that the king had approved the conferment of a barony of the United Kingdom upon John Buchan, the eminent author and parliamentarian whose appointment as Canada's next governor-general was announced in May.

Whether he goes to the Dominion late next autumn with his wife and younger children as Baron Buchan, or chooses some other title is still uncertain. Certain it is that Buchan the peer and Buchan the commoner will be indistinguishable. The oath taken for granted at the time of his appointment, however that he would be elevated to the peerage before he took up his post as His Majesty's representative across the Atlantic.

In 1866 Sir John Colborne, first appointed governor-general of the one-year-old Dominion. He was created Baron Lisgar in 1870, while still holding that office.

Canada's new governor-general, who expressed his genuine pleasure at the prospect of a sojourn in Canada at the time of his appointment with his wife spent a quiet visit at Windsor Castle with their majesties were there for Easter. He has been arranging his affairs at his home in Scotland for the most part and before close his appointment and consultations regarding it from parliament.

He was made a companion of Honor in 1932 an award carrying with it no precedence and restricted to twenty-five members.

The above honours have been conferred upon Mr. Buchan since he became a member of the House of Commons. As a barony it carries with it no precedence and no special privileges to see at the House of Lords. Mr. Buchan will be entitled to the prefix the Right Honorable and will be known as Lord Tweedsmuir of Elsfield, Oxfordshire, and Peebles, Scotland.

PROSPECTS GOOD FOR CROPS IN THE DROUTH AREAS

Winnipeg. — The cycle of "dry" years, which brought recurring drouths of almost unprecedented intensity to a huge area of the prairie provinces, apparently is ended. Official figures show precipitation is normal in the west.

Prospects for good crops in the "drouth area" of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta this year appear the best since 1928. "Practically all the dry areas have received excellent precipitation since April 1," reports A. H. McCauley, head of the Dominion meteorological bureau here.

"All districts of the prairies," the weather man went on, "have received at least two or three times as much precipitation since April 1 as the same period last year. The only exception is northern Manitoba."

Most striking increase in Saskatchewan is at Moose Jaw, where 4.39 inches of rain have fallen this season and 32 in the April May period in 1934 That southern Saskatchewan city already has received 1.7 inches of rain more than the normal for the two-month period.

In Alberta, the average fall has been 2.38 compared with the average in the same period of 1934 of 72. The greatest gains have been recorded in "dry" areas.

Ottawa.—The government's program for rehabilitation of drouth areas in western Canada will be carried on notwithstanding improved conditions, it was stated here.

Reports from the prairie provinces of greatly increased rainfall, giving hope that the cycle of dry years is ended, will not interfere with steps already under way to guard against recurrence of the drouth conditions, if that can be done.

Dr. G. H. S. Barton, deputy minister of agriculture, who has just returned from the west, said that more than rain was required in the drouth areas. The program for rehabilitation includes revisions of the system of soil drifting, revamping of agricultural practice in some areas, conservation of water, and other things.

The total number of Scouts in Canada this year was 69,828, an increase of 1 62 per cent.

PAUL DESBUREAU WINS MORRISON ROAD RACE

Sets New Mark of 17:03

Paul Desbureau conquered his rivals at last year, Carl Graham, but in doing so was forced to lower the Morrison road race record of 17:18 to 17:03. These two ran practically the entire course separated by a scant yard. Graham set the pace for the first four and a half laps, Desbureau keeping right on his heels. Then at that point Desbureau, running a strong race and never appearing to tire, took a lead of a yard. This he maintained until the last 200 yards when he made a strong spurt; Graham tried gamely to match the sprint but could not do it, lacking the stamina of this better trained and huskier opponent. Desbureau was entered from Kitscoty, Graham from Willowlea. S. B. Hansberry ran third. Two other starters, D. Ross and E. Pfaff, failed to finish.

The winner holds the Morrison Cup, presented for competition by J. W. G. Morrison, for one year, but becomes the property if won three years in succession by the same runner. A gold medal goes to the winner also, and a silver medal to second man.

An Interesting Test

Shows Since Boys Are Color Blind Than Girls

One boy in ten is color blind.

This is the discovery of Dr. James Drever, professor of psychology in University of Edinburgh, made in tests of pupils in public schools.

"This can have tragic consequences on the performer," especially as now winking red, green and amber lights control the traffic and these children are the future drivers of motor vehicles."

The figures represent a 100 per cent. increase over previous calculations.

"It is a serious thing to discover that 12 boys out of 120 might confuse the 'stop' and 'go' signals of traffic lights," he said.

"Nothing can be done to cure color blindness. If it is possible to correct confusion between certain colors with spectacles, the result is that other colors become confused.

"A similar number of girls was tested, but in only one instance was there defective color sense."

It has been found that while fewer girls are color-blind, color-blindness is transmitted to children from their mother rather than father. The mother of colorblind children often isn't so afflicted herself.

Gift For Chief Guide

Lady Baden-Powell Receives Standard and As Token Of Loyalty

Lady Baden-Powell, Chief of the Girl Guides of the World, is privileged to use her own special standard.

In 1922 some of the English County Commissioners planned to make a standard for the Chief Guide, and a small committee was formed. Overseas Commissioners of Provinces and States joined the County Commissioners. Each emblem was worked, and all were gathered together and mounted. The Standard is a token of loyalty and regard to the Chief Guide

The Emblems are as follows:

The Trefoil in gold on blue—the Guide Emblem showing the three promises. The blue sea has silver waves and dolphins, with three ships sailing forth to the end of the earth to carry the Guide Movement to all parts of the world. Also in the midst of the sea is the Gold Fish which the Chief Guide alone wears

Then there are red motto bands—the red for cheerfulness, and the motto's are on the other side. "Be Prepared," and on the other "At ayd per Pull pyd yw," the Powell motto in Welsh meaning "Where there is a Powell there is safety."

Between the motto bands is a spare of green and white triangles, and they are the tents of the Guide camps on the green grass, referring to the outdoor side of Guide life

In the fly are two Sun Suns, and these are the Badges and Chevrons! It is not possible for a woman to have a sweet, so they are worn on a man's bodice in battle, but these are, to turn Guides' thoughts to their great founder, who in his hardening and commanding for the Boy and Guide Movement has been so splendidly helped by the Chief Guide

Newest Naval Weapon

Germany Has Already Constructed 450 "Fast Pocket" Warships

Re-arming Germany's newest naval weapon—swift "vest pocket" torpedo boats as revolutionary as her "vest pocket" battleships—was revealed recently.

Foreign naval experts said the Reich already has constructed 450 tiny speed boats, capable of 60 knots each, and manned by five men and carrying four torpedoes.

A second, similar development, the experts said, is another speed boat twice as large, carrying 10 men and having an operating range of almost 2,000 miles.

Naval observers, asserting the new craft would give other powers much food for thought as the Reich's recently disclosed plans to build 250-ton submarines, listed these major advantages of the craft:

Their cost is little and their operation economical; their crew is small; they are so small and can change direction so fast they would be hard to hit; their four torpedoes, of a new kind of inch, can do damage to enemy ships.

Bad Advertising Medium

Newspapers During 1934 Received Largest Share Of Advertising

Newspapers during 1934 received 51.8 per cent. of $222,216,530 sent by 367 national advertisers during 1934 according to an analysis released by the bureau of advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

The report showed that magazines received 25 per cent. of the total amount, with radio broadcasting received 13.2 per cent.

Compared with 1933, when the bureau analysis covered the appropriations of 351 advertisers spending $189,709,976, the current analysis showed both a greater number of national advertisers as well as a higher individual expenditure.

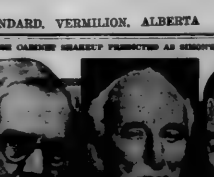
BRITISH CABINET MARKET PREDICTED AS SIMON'S POLICY CRITICISED



Reports from London state that changes will shortly be made in the British cabinet, and that there is a possibility of Premier Ramsay MacDonald (left) succeeding Sir John Simon (centre) as British Foreign Minister. Rumors are current that a section of the Conservative party is dissatisfied with the handling of foreign affairs by Sir John, and if MacDonald took his place, Stanley Baldwin (right), would automatically become Prime Minister.

Young Scientist Reborn

Englishman Finishes Two Years Study In Five Months

Two lonely years in the Arctic are over for T. P. Manning, youthful British scientist who made studies in the distant north for the British Geographical Society.

Travelling alone, the young Englishman came trudging into Churchill from Southampton Island, 500 miles north of there.

Modest and more than a bit bashful, Manning was not talkative about his sojourn in the Arctic through two summers and winters. His studies were extensive, including even fauna of the region.

Most of his two years in the Arctic was spent alone on Southampton Island, a Hudson's Bay Company post some 500 miles to the southeast by plane. His trusty Irish red was never without a companion. With a team of four dogs, he hit southward.

On the journey he crossed 60 miles of dangerous ice floe between Southampton Island and Chesterfield Inlet. Then he followed the ice along the coast south, making the journey into Churchill without mishap.

Sunday School Lesson

JUNE 2

OUR DAY OF WORSHIP

Golden text: God is a spirit: and they that worship him must worship in spirit and truth. John 4:24.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 92:1-8, 12, 13.

Explanations And Comments

Let Worship Be Joyful, Psalm 100. The Psalmist calls upon all lands to worship God. "Think of an Israelite so enlightened as to God's purpose," exclaimed Dr. F. B. Meyer, "as to call upon all lands to join in the great anthem of praise in the presence of the majestic hymns of the Church." The Psalm is known as the Old Hundredth, but the name is a misnomer. It is always new."

Worship God with a joyful heart, make a joyful noise, serve him with gladness, come before him with singing. This frame of mind should be natural to one for God is our Creator, we are his people, the sheep, as the poet, of his pasture, for every flock is a shepherd, he tenderly cares.

This is a poor congregation that is silent or stands contented to be dumb when God is praised. If gladness is no part of our worship, all of us will refuse to be silenced. The Old Testament church was not ignorant of the devotional use of a choir, but it knew that it was to supplement, not to supplant, the irrepressible praises of a whole congregation. To entrust all our expression of praise to deputies, is to forget to praise.—J. M. Willoughby.

We should engage in public worship with thanks and praise and thanks unto him and blessing his name.

Cows Attend Banquet

Two Bovines Are Guests At Luncheon In New York

Members of the American Guernsey Cattle Club sat down to their annual luncheon at New York with two of their most distinguished protegees, who mooed and bellowed through out.

The guests of honor, Iosberg and Farmer Gladys, were given grain and took brave from a centre table in the banquet hall of a midtown hotel.

It was Iosberg's first glimpse of civilization. He was born on the edge of the Antarctic circle with the Admiral Byrd expedition. Farmer Southern Maid is one of the three cows the expedition took along to furnish milk to the men.

At the luncheon the gold medal awarded to Admiral Byrd by the "distinguished service to agriculture in dairy industry" was received by Lieutenant-Commander G. O. Noville in the absence of his chief.

The two bovines, accustomed to the hazards of an adventurous life, took the whole proceedings much more calmly than did the lady officials pressed into service as cow hands for the occasion.

Cheap Sea Trip

Organization In Germany Provides Cruise At Low Cost

For a three-weeks' cruise to Madeira at a cost of only $6.25 a week, 8,000 German workers will shortly leave Berlin. The charge includes everything—fare, food, trips and tips and is one of the cheapest cruises in the world. It is organized by the "Strength Through Joy" movement, and the workers will travel on German liners. Many of them have never seen the sea. Last year the "Strength Through Joy" movement sent 80,000 workers on sea voyages, and this year it is hoped to send 160,000.

The earth's population is doubling about every 50 years. At this rate, there will be 8,000,000,000 persons on earth before the year 2000 A.D.

Believed to be 2,000 years old, a dugout canoe has been found at Quadi-Sarra, Japan.

Little Journeys In Science

GOLD

(By Gordon H. Grant, M.A.)

The use of gold dates from earliest times and it is probable that it was one of the first metals used by men. Native gold occurs in veins running through quartz rock and also in the beds of streams whose sands have been formed from the breaking down of such gold-bearing quartz. It has been discovered in nuggets which vary in size from a tiny pebble to a mass weighing over a hundred pounds. In the past few years the gold production of the world has amounted to about $400,000,000 annually. Of this amount South Africa produces over half.

Native gold is obtained in crude form by placer mining. The sand containing the gold is washed or stirred in troughs of running water, called sluices. The sand is swept away leaving the heavier gold at the bottom of the sluice. Sometimes the sand containing the gold is washed away from the natural location into the sluices by powerful streams of water delivered under pressure from pipes. This method of securing gold is called hydraulic mining. In vein mining the gold-bearing quartz is stamped into fine powder in stamping mills and the gold is then obtained by either the amalgamation or the cyanide process.

Mixing mercury with powdered ore forms a pasty amalgam. If no ore greets her on arrival, instruct her, please, to sit quietly in the station until called for."

The amalgamation process the powder containing the gold is washed over copper plates. The surfaces have been amalgamated with mercury. The gold sticks to the mercury or alloys with it, and after a time the gold and mercury are scraped off and the mixture is distilled. The gaseous distills off leaving the gold which may be easily ready for refining. The cyanide process depends upon the fact that gold is soluble in a solution of sodium cyanide in the presence of the oxygen of the air. The powder from the stamping mills is treated with a very dilute solution of sodium cyanide which dissolves the gold. The gold is obtained from this solution by electrolysis.

Gold is a yellow metal which is so malleable and ductile that one ounce can be hammered out so as to cover 180 square feet. Ductility is the property of a metal which permits it to be drawn out into wire and malleability that one ounce can be drawn into a wire about 50 miles long.

Pure gold is used as gold leaf. The metal is too soft to be used alone for jewelry, therefore it is alloyed with silver or copper. The fineness of gold is usually expressed in terms of carats, 24 carat gold being pure, while 18 carat gold is found in the grade used for the best jewelry.

Some Strange Customs

Ethnologist Tells About Queer Ideas Of African Tribes

Frederick G. Carpochan, ethnologist, has returned to New York from an Africa sojourn and explained, among other things, how the Wompanoag tribes obtained their Indian babies by the means method and what happens to a tribesman's wife when her baby is born dead.

At a christening ceremony, he said, the high priest holds the baby and calls out the names of his ancestors. When the child sneezes as it invariably does, it is an indication that an ancestor of the tribe has entered the body of the baby takes the name of the ancestor thus saluted.

When a member of the tribe is born dead, said Carnochan, the wife is blamed and is given a knock on the back of the head to make amends.

Extensive Railway Plan

Although To Redeal Ships At Bottom Of Wide Sea

Twenty ships resting at the bottom of the Atlantic, the deep waters of the Great War will again see the light of day according to the schedule of a gigantic salvage undertaking, working day and night on plans for the refloatation, cargo salvaging and junking. Although complete wage of the White Sea prepared at the port of Archangel exactly designate the resting places of no less than 114 ships which went down in the same period, only twenty are considered technically possible to salvage.

Canadian macaroni imported into the British Isles has become so popular that this Canadian export has reached to within measurable distance of the big supplies from Italy and France.

"Did you hear what they do with ferryboats when they're late?"

"No, what?"

"Dock 'em."

"Well, hardly," agreed Dad. "Is that all, Louise?"

"Very nearly. She says: 'Let me know what time Nancy will arrive at Colorado Springs, and I will send some trusty person to meet her with an automobile, as Pine Ridge is on a branch road and our only train leaves early in the morning. If no one greets her on arrival, instruct her, please, to sit quietly in the station until called for'."

A girlish chuckle escaped Aunt Judy.

"You can check yourself in the parcel room, Nancy dear," she teased. Louise. I beg pardon for interrupting."

Jack winked at one aunt as the other retorted: "You're as bad as the children, Judith. But there's not much more. She says: 'I feel sure that this experience will improve your daughter.' How's that, James?"

Said Dad, with spirit: "Why on earth should she imagine that our Nancy needs improvement?"

"And how would she get it in a little-no-horse western town?" asked Mother.

"The way," smiled Aunt Louise, reverting to the mixture: "'I think she will benefit by a broader New England viewpoint. She would learn something about the vastness of her country'."

"I suppose she means those 'great open spaces' we read about," laughed Jack, while his aunt, ignoring him, continued:

"The milder climate would improve her health, and she would experience the satisfaction of being self-supporting. Please write at once, and believe me, dear James, your affectionate though unmannered cousin, Columbine Nelson.' "

Aunt Louise looked up. "Well," she declared, "during a deep breath, "I call that the—the very limit!"

For this meticulous teacher of English to use an expression even remotely approaching slang, was an event in itself. Her family smiled; and Nance retorted: "It's plain, Aunt Lou, that this is because she reads Webster's Unabridged is totally inadequate! Dad dear, how can this Columbine be your first cousin? And did she acquire her outlandish name because columbines are the state flower of Colorado?"

"Better look up your history, my dear," replied her father. "Cousin Columbine must be over seventy and Colorado didn't become a state until 1876. I'll admit that I probably remember the date because it's also the year that I was born," he added, honestly.

"But how," asked Jack, "did an uncle of yours land way off in the wild West, Dad?"

"You've heard the story numberless times, son."

"Not for a long while, and I never gave it any special thought. Seems queer for one lone member of a family to start off for the wilderness. How'd it happen?"

James Nelson glanced at his sister, and she said: "As I recall the story, Father's half-brother, Jethro Nelson, who was a good bit older than the others, possessed the wanderlust. He yearned to see something besides his native New Hampshire, and as his young wife was fired with the same ambition, they started West in a covered wagon, drawn by oxen unless my memory's at fault."

"Alone?" questioned the boy, leaning forward eagerly.

"Oh, no! There were three other wagons in the caravan, or whatever they called it. Part of those pioneers turned back somewhere in Kansas, frightened, I believe, by the Indian troubles. Others stopped and settled in California; but it was rumors of gold in the Colorado mountains that lured Uncle Jed in that direction, and unlooked-for circumstances which made him stop where he did. Columbine wasn't Pine Ridge then —just unsettled wilderness. But the young bride proved too hard on his wife, and instead of resuming their settlement, Denver or possibly Aurora (which was flourishing because of the gold rush) for the event, her husband built a log cabin on a creek at the spot which was later to be called Pine Ridge."

"And that Mary was Cousin Columbine?" asked Nancy.

Her aunt nodded, while Dad took up the narrative.

"Here's where her name comes in, daughter. Early next morning Uncle Jed discovered some enormous blue flowers on a columbines growing close by and carried the whole clump in to the new mother. The story goes that she uttered an exclamation of rapture at their beauty, and cried out: 'Columbines! I know now what you mean! I'll call our little daughter!' "

"Do you suppose," asked Jack, "if he'd presented the lady with a cactus blossom she'd have named her baby Cactus Jane?"

"Goodness gracious, boy, have you no sentiment?" reproved Aunt Judy. "And the fact that you've been studying botany cries aloud. Cactaceae! I never heard the word before."

"Nor I," admitted Mother. "But do you mean to say, Jim, that a man who possessed the wanderlust was content to stay right where he had landed him for the rest of his natural life?"

"Indeed no," spoke up Aunt Louise, "and in my opinion Uncle Jed's poor wife had a lonely time of it. He was away hunting, prospecting, in fact, he went

PROPHETIC WORDS—

The Editor of the Toronto Globe recently recalled these words spoken to him in 1914 by Premier R. B. Bennett, then a private member of the House of Parliament: Their prophetic content is interesting.

Let me tell you that if ever this young country should run into a period of severe and prolonged depression — such a period of land mine and unemployment as has been known to other countries in world history, those men of the 'nineties will have to pay in costly measure for the profligacy of today. They will have to atone for the exploitation of the public at the hands of self-centred and predatory interests by bitter doses of taxation by radical governments by revision and reform of the whole capitalistic system, or face bankruptcy of far greater significance and more devastating consequences.

Vegreville Wins Ball Tourney, Sports Day

Good Attendance Despite Bad Weather; Huge List of Entries in Competitions

Vermilion's annual 24th of May celebration was somewhat marred by cold showery weather, but in spite of this the crowd in attendance fell very little short of the record mark set last year. This year approximately 2200 people were on the grounds. All competitions and events were run off according to schedule, an enormous amount of detail work being necessary to secure the successful completion of the day's program. Some idea of the arrangements necessary may be gleaned from the fact that 60 ball teams participated during the day and at one time in the preliminary rounds eight baseball and softball diamonds were in use.

The dance in the evening was held in the Elks hall and here a new record of attendance was set, nearly 600 people paid admission, the gate takings amounting to $190.00. The Orioles orchestra supplied the music.

Vegreville Wins Senior Ball Tourney; Second

In the second round Vegreville won from Innisfree, Manville, Irma, Marwayne, Kitscoty and Wainwright.

ALBERTA MOTOR ASSOCIATION ISSUES 100,000 NEW HIGHWAY MAPS

During this season, the touring bureaus operated at branches on the Alberta Motor Association in Edmonton, Calgary and Lethbridge are expecting heavy demands for service.

At these offices, where courtesy is one of the by words, every consideration is given to the requests of motorists desiring information. Experts who have made a careful study of routes are able to pick out the most comfortable and convenient ones, so that motorists may travel one way and return by another, never once covering the same ground unless there is a desire to see some sections twice during the trip.

From time to time, the motor offices receive letters of commendation for their touring services.

Mileage, garages, hotels all receive the official appointments of the A.M.A. are shown on these maps. To those seeking good hunting or fishing spots, the maps contain valuable information.

The maps are of particular value to visitors. . . whom greatly increased numbers are expected to visit Alberta parks and other beauty spots during the coming season. In view of the campaign inaugurated by the Canadian Travel Bureau to attract a greater number of tourists, the highway divisional maps will be of extreme assistance.

FOOTBALL

Rumors are drifting in from the various training camps of a four-team football league consisting of the Clan, Rimrytle, St. Andrew's and Islay, each one bigger and better than ever. We are certain anyway that the Clan scorers will field their strongest team yet, with six or seven of the old guard and six or seven new players, we should have a team that will be worth watching. The manager has issued a request for a full turn-out to practise on Sunday, June 2nd at 2 p.m. to get all teams welded into the machine that gets goals. With the necessary practise under their belts there is no reason when September rolls around why this team shouldn't have more than their fair share of the silverware.

Remember, gang, the point we lost in the first league game last year gave the other fellows the individual cups. Let's all be there to sign up Sunday. We'll, well, Island Hill, we too feel a verse coming on

We're caught on three Hawkes.
And when we turn them loose,
We'll bet somebody's goalie
Will feel like a goose.

Congrats. to Mel Allen on a 2nd 's the 220, and running a well judged race to win the half-mile in the Vermilion sports.

Silliloys is or Not!

We read with much interest comps in contemporary newspapers of a young lady who is gradually becoming stiff-necked. We have a young lady in the Islay hospital whose heart has been turned to STONE for a considerable period

A W. A. committee is making preparations for the Islay Sports Day. A good response is being promised in prizes and prospects appear bright for a live celebration here. However nothing definite has been decided yet. A full report on same will appear next issue.

The United church W. A. meeting was held last Thursday at the home of Mrs. Tom Dobby when a large attendance was present. Mrs. H. Stone was in charge of the devotional period. Mrs. Mc Lachern and Mrs. Gordon served lunch.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Byrnes have already made trips to Lake Lauzon and Elk Point respectively and from this resort on May 25th

Miss Dawson of the Islay hospital staff was visited his folks in Edmonton.

Mrs. Mc Lachern accompanied Mrs. Gordon to Edmonton on Friday, May 24th and returned same day. Mrs. Bennett has been in Edmonton for some time to let little son Bobby. The latter is receiving medical treatment there

Leaders And Critics

In the face of enormous difficulties, which are the direct outcome of the Great War and the aftermath of depression following that harrowing struggle, no more or less similar conditions have followed every great war in history, recognized leaders of men in all nations are striving mightily to brag order out of disorder and start the world on the road of progress and prosperity. Men are breaking down because of the burdens of responsibility they are carrying and they are saving themselves not mentally and physically in the effort to serve their fellow countrymen and the world.

In his almost superhuman attempt to maintain peace in Europe, and in his untiring efforts to promote disarmament, Ramsay MacDonald has become a much older man than he is years. Reports that he must relinquish the premiership are more rife

In Canada, Hon R B Bennett has for five years devoted his every waking moment to the duties of his high office in government. People may criticize his policies and his methods; they may say he should have divided responsibility to a far greater extent with his cabinet colleagues instead of shouldering so much of the burden himself. But no one can say that as Prime Minister he has not given himself whole-heartedly and energetically to the discharge of the public duties and responsibilities placed in his care. As a result he has had a serious breakdown in health may have to retire, and he has unquestionably considerably shortened his life

Ex-President Hoover and President Roosevelt aged far beyond their years in office; the same can be said of the leaders of other nations, and it is true of men not only in the political arena in Canada but in the provinces and in municipal affairs. The strain is terrific, and men everywhere are paying the price. Yet they carry on because it is their duty to do so, and because they are sincerely desirous of rendering service to their country and fellowmen.

Probably because the great mass of people have difficulties and worries of their own to contend against and face, few of them give thought and little consideration to the manifold and gigantic problems which leaders in government everywhere are endeavoring to solve. Rather, men in public life are the targets for all kinds of massive of abuse and criticism, and their task is made much more difficult by the carping complaints of men of less calibre and by demagogues and agitators who take advantage of the prevailing situation to stir up the unthinking masses for their own selfish and ulterior motives and designs

Recently in a little known publication there appeared one of the type of articles which make a sane man disgusted. The writer thereof urged people to read history. He declared that in every great crisis heretofore, and everywhere, a man had arisen to lead the way out, and he cited that "Moses, Christ, Pyrs, Abraham Lincoln, were real leaders because they did new things, utterly regardless of what had been done before." He then added that at Ottawa two Heros, meaning Mr Bennett and Mr. King, are fiddling while the economic capital burns, he says, after five years of labor Canada stood at last bring forth a man.

This writer cites Moses. He was a great leader, but his people turned against him, commenced the worship of false gods, a calf of gold, and brought the penalty of forty years wandering in the wilderness.

The writer quoted as the "Christ" is one of the world's greatest leader of all time. Yet the people of his day rejected him and demanded his death.

Abraham Lincoln was a leader, but throughout his life was criticized and ridiculed, accused of having a dictator, and died at the hands of a assassin.

History applauds these leaders, and their names will live forever, but in their day and generation they were despised and rejected by many, the objects of criticism and derision, and their work for humanity made difficult by the spite and hatred of other so-called leaders who played upon the ignorance, the emotions and the selfishness of the masses.

The historian of the future will probably accord to the world leaders of to-day a much more honorable place and give credit where it is due, than the petitioggling critics of to-day are willing or capable of according to them. The names and deeds of these leaders will be recalled long after those of their present day critics have passed into oblivion and from the memories of man

These leaders have made mistakes. Of course they have, because they are human with all the imperfections and frailties of human beings. But many of their mistakes were not of their own volition, but were forced upon them by the acts of others, either not so sincere and high minded or who with less vision and ability adopted courses of action and policies and followed courses of action which compelled others to steps which the latter knew to be mistaken but nevertheless had to be taken to avoid some greater calamity or greater mistake and disaster.

To present is a time for patience and tolerance It is no time for any well meaning person to be rocking the ship That should be left to the wholly misguided and the irresponsible agitators. Constructive criticism is in order and is always welcome, but those entrusted with grave responsibilities. But Canada should give short shrift to all carping critics who sincerely seek to destroy what others are striving to reconstruct and build up stronger and better

A Silver Jubilee Gift

Merchants Subscribe Royal Family Build House For King

King George, who already owns a palace, a castle and two huge estates, has received a house as a Silver Jubilee present. It is a gift of the Royal Warrant Holders' Association, whose members have served the royal household with groceries, furniture and everything else, and who are entitled to display the royal coat of arms over their stores.

The architect is C. Stevenford Marshall, a young and comparatively unknown designer of thirty-six years, who up to now has been designing luxury apartments on the American plan for London.

Marshall's design is something like the American Colonial style without the pillars. It is being built at Burhill. Surrey, about thirty miles from London, on the estate of Lord Ivengh

There is one principal bedroom and two guest bedrooms, with double rooms for maids and a chauffeur's room.

The design was chosen by the King in consultation with Sir Giles Gilbert Scott, president of the Royal Institute of British Architects.

It is not likely, however, that the King will live in the house. In such cases he usually makes a present of the life-interest in the property to some minor member of the royal family, or to a high court official who is retiring from his service.

Scheme To Bring Rain

Frenchman Requires $10,000,000 To Go Ahead With Idea

Men are still seeking artificial rains and Mr. Bernard J. Dubuc, of the Meteorological Society of France, is the latest to have a scheme. He would build a steel and concrete funnel 2,000 feet high. Through this he would force water vapor into the air with such force that it would return in copious rains over a large area.

The funnel would be constructed so that it would be tapered with the broad end at the top and the whole supported by struts and pillars. It would be about 450 feet in diameter at the top and resemble a large telescope standing on the smaller end.

The underlying idea is to have a series of wind vanes at the top which will catch whatever breeze there may be and start a whirl of air inside the spout to create a vacuum. This would give a vacuum core on the principle that waterspouts have vacuum cores.

There is one detail curbing Mr. Dubuc from building his core at once. He requires $10,000,000 to go ahead with the construction. It will take that much to buy materials and build the spout. And he finding it hard to get anyone to gamble the $10,000,000 on the chance that the thing might work and produce rain. It would take a lot of bushels of wheat, for instance, to pay the interest and principal on that much money.

Perhaps Mr. Dubuc will not get anyone to take him up on his venture. But that will not stop other scientists and inventors trying to find some way to get rain from the clouds. The problem of irrigation is quite likely to solve the secret, even though people may laugh at his efforts while he is experimenting.

The Five Dollar Bill

Reasons They Are Rarely Seen In Nest Generally Known

An article in the Canadian Arthur News-Chronicle says: "In a Cumberland street shop window a Canadian four-dollar bill has been on exhibition as a rarity. Most people know that the four-dollar bill is a rarity because no seldom seen in circulation but few reasons why it is well known. When the first issue was made something over 30 years ago it was found carrying a picture of the head of departure, according to Mr. M Cadman of Hull, England. In a conference in that city he declared that to prevent disease being spread round the world by airplanes, passengers eventually intending to put the picture of the Canadian Sos locks, then comparitively new, on the currency. As soon as the bills began circulation the error was noticed and called to Ottawa's attention, particularly by residents of the Canadian Soo Mat-arally, the issue with that particular picture was not continued. Hence the rarity.

HE FELT MISERABLE AFTER MEALS

Acute Indigestion Relieved By Kruschen

"The treatment which put this man on his feet again is being followed by every case of indigestion. Read what he says:—

"Two years ago I suffered very much from indigestion and a bad appetite, and a most severe pain in my back. Food soured in my stomach. I felt tired, depressed, had bilious attacks, and had no desire or appetite for food. I was induced to try Kruschen Salts. I did so, and I am most happy to testify that after a short time I felt the greatest relief I continued taking Kruschen till I felt that I was better and a new man. I feel as light-hearted as I did twenty years ago."—(Mr. W. S.)

What Kruschen did for him it will do for everybody else that suffers from indigestion as he did. The fact is that "the little daily dose" of Kruschen first stimulates the flow of gastric juices to aid digestion, and then cleanses, purifies, tones and aids unfailing elimination of all waste matter every day.

Preventing Spread Of Disease

Passengers On English Air Liner Must Have Health Certificate

Air passengers in the future will be treated like beef being examined and stamped at the port of departure, according to Mr. M Cadman of Hull, England. In a conference in that city he declared that to prevent disease being spread round the world by airplanes, passengers eventually intending to put the picture of the Canadian Soo locks, then comparitively new, on the currency. So that everyone can be sure of the truth, he tells his experience under oath before a notary, Mr. Roch says: "I was greatly bothered with constipation brought on by military service. I tried Fruit-a-tives and they gave quick relief and now keep me regular. I also suffered from rheumatism. Collection Is Valuable

Japan Afraid Ancient Clocks May Slow Down

Fears that the famous "Daimyo no Tokei" collection of timepieces, once owned by leading Daimyo together with old books on the subject of clocks, will soon be lost to Japan, is being expressed by Japanese newspapers. The collection has been known as the Takahayashi collection, and has been kept at the Tokyo Mitsukoshi department store since 1930. They were recently offered for sale, and an American collector offered $15,000 for them, a bid which was increased by a British resident in Kobe. It is not believed that the collection has actually been sold, but it is feared that if the intention to sell becomes widely known collectors in Europe and America will offer such a price that the owner will part with them.

Earthquakes Predicted

By Now Decree Ethiopia Advanced In Civilization By 1,000 Years

Emperor Haile Selassie issued a decree abolishing serfdom throughout Ethiopia and equalizing the system of land taxation.

An announcement said the masses acclaimed the step and added that the abolition of unequal land taxation would advance Ethiopia 1,000 years in civilization.

Ethiopia for centuries was one of the most powerful centres of the African slave trade and while other countries gradually abolished the traffic, the institution remained in that country even after its admission to the League of Nations. In recent years slavery there has taken the form of forced labor and "debt peonage."

Open Golf Tournament

International Event To Be Held At Foothill, Out.

"We are leaving no stone unturned," stated President Allan Brooks, K.C., of the Lookout Point Golf Club, "to make the course and clubhouse as nearly perfect as possible for the visitors." The event is the Canadian Open Tournament at Foothill, Ont., on July 11, 12 and 13. We recognize that this event is attracting international attention and that in all probability the entry list will be one of the largest, ever seen in an event of this kind in America. The committee in charge of the tournament are also enthusiastic as I am and have wholeheartedly endorsed the changes and improvements which will be necessary and particularly suggested by R. L. Anderson, tournament manager, after his recent inspection of the course."

Among the changes in the course will be the lengthening of all tees so that each day will demand a slightly different shot depending on whether the markers are on the front, centre or back of the tees. All greens are to be spruced extending some thirty or forty feet in front of them and there will be a six-foot closely clipped fringe around all putting surfaces. All bunkers are to be renovated and filled with new sand and each one of them will be furrowed for the championship. As a precaution against accidents the bridge leading to the 16th green is to be reinforced and there will be large number of spectators anticipated, and furthermore, several of the important greens will be roped off, particularly the 9th and 18th. An attractive new entrance gate is to be constructed and elaborate preparations for catering are being made under the personal direction of Vernon G. Cardy, president of the General Brock Hotel.

ABSOLUTE PARITY IN THE AIR IS AIM OF BRITAIN

London. — Previously announced plans to expand the Royal Air Force were put in the shade by the government's announcement to parliament

The domestic air force of first-line machines will be tripled within two years, whereas the first program called for some increase over five years. The new plan doubles within two years the number of machines at home that would have been furnished at the end of five years.

First-line fighting craft at home, instead of being increased to 840 in five years, will be increased to 1,500 by March 1937. Fifteen hundred planes, absolute parity with Germany, France is the goal.

That goal the British government is determined to reach and maintain, the House of Commons and the House of Lords were told by Stanley Baldwin and Lord Londonderry, respective government spokesmen in the two houses.

The government rode roughshod over a Labor party amendment to reduce the air expansion expenditures by a vote of 340 to 52.

Mr. Baldwin found several points in the speech of Chancellor Adolf Hitler which he thought offered promise. In several directions Hitler had declared his friendly attitude. Points of his speech "deserve the closest and frankest study from all of us," he said. "We shall not fail to do our utmost to bring about in all directions all that is possible by international agreement."

Chief of Hitler's points meeting with approval of the lord president of the council, was his willingness to conclude an air pact similar to those governing the Locarno treaty, with the indication it could be accompanied by an agreement on limitation of planes.

Next was Hitler's indication the air pact might be broadened to include with an effort to safeguard the civilian population against indiscriminate attack from the air.

Britain's determination to remain in the air had been given the most careful study, Mr. Baldwin added, and parity in the air was necessary to secure the two objects most desired by mankind—some form of collective security like Locarno, and some method of limitation. He endorsed Hitler's stand that limitation could best be arrived at through negotiations between the use of exchange, arising from the fall of the pound sterling, and the purchase of commodities through the use of exchange arising from the fall of the pound sterling, and the purchase of commodities

Five measures dealing with the mass buying report would be passed by the end of July, Mr. Runciman declared, and there would probably be two or three more dealing with the same subject in the autumn session. The five measures have to do with the subject of long consideration at various times by the board of trade and cabinet committees.

Ban Silver Coin Imports

Canadian Money Not Affected By Ottawa Agreement Order

Washington.—A ban against imports of foreign silver coins was declared by the United States government in what was officially described as a "spirit of co-operation" with nations harassed by high silver prices.

Canadian money was not affected by the government's order forbidding entry into this country of foreign silver coins. The only colorable variance was that where silver content has become more valuable as bullion than in the form of currency, then in the largest country affected by the embargo, which also will apply to metal currencies of several other nations. A list of such countries now is being prepared.

The step was taken by Secretary Henry Morgenthau of the treasury shortly after he had disclosed new researches into money conditions abroad and stated flatly no country has made currency stabilization overtures since his guarded invitation a week ago.

The silver coin embargo on all except Hoenaed entries was designed to aid those nations which—largely through the price-raising silver buying policy of the United States government—are confronted with the problem of preventing the melting of their coins for sale as bullion.

Bush Huskies Kill Boy

Six-Year-Old Child Attacked At Pas, Man.

The Pas, Man.—Torn by a pack of bush-bred husky dogs on the outskirts of The Pas, six-year-old Milton Kryschuk died in hospital. The animals, owned by a local trapper, were brought in from the bush north of The Pas a short time ago. The cause of their attack is unknown.

With Joe Kryschuk, another lad of his own age, Milton Mike Kry was playing on an unused trail near his home. First intimation of the tragedy came when Mrs. Kryschuk saw her son come running, shouting to her the dogs were killing Mike.

Mrs. Kryschuk found four dogs swarming over the child on the ground and, driving them off, carried him to her home nearby. The animals followed her as she carried the mangled boy along the trail. An inquest will be held.

Extending Service Term

Belgium Government Will Lengthen Time For Military Service

Brussels.—The government of Belgium will demand 18-month compulsory military service instead of the present eight months, Premier Janson, defence minister, revealed in a speech in Senate.

Under the present system, he said, there were long periods when the army was composed chiefly of raw recruits, and the country had been handicapped in Germany's restoration of conscription.

Though the defence minister referred to Germany in his speech, no machine gun forces, informed circles here interpreted his remarks to mean the Belgian army will be lengthened service for all branches of the army. His said also the government was pushing completion of border defences as rapidly as possible.

Ramsay MacDonald May Hand Over Leadership

Reconstruction Of British Cabinet Likely To Take Place

London.—Rumors of a cabinet reconstruction to take place next month have been intensified. Speculation and gossip were keen in the lobbies of the House of Commons.

Several morning newspapers asserted it was definitely decided that Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald would hand over the leadership of the government to Stanley Baldwin, lord president of the council, in June it was believed, however, the proposed changes would not be announced before Whitsuntide.

When the combined king's birthday and jubilee honors list is published June 8, it is expected at least two members of the cabinet will be elevated to the peerage. They are Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, secretary for the colonies, and Sir John Gilmour, home secretary. Informed political quarters said this would necessitate a reconstruction naturally would fall during the Whitsun holiday, which comes June 9.

CURRENCY DUMP MEASURE TO DEAL WITH COMPLAINTS

Ottawa.—Legislation designed to adjust inequities arising from application of the currency dump against imports from countries which have been dealing with complainants of depreciated currency, such as had recently been the subject of protests from Australia, was promised by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett in the house of commons. Other measures which the government has in contemplation before the house shortly included seven or eight bills arising from the report of the mass buying commission, and a housing bill.

Of particular interest was Mr. Bennett's reference to the exchange dumping complaints. Complaints raised by Japan that the currency dump in Canada constituted a bonus on exports only recently were advanced in favor of Canada, and with similar conditions that affect other countries.

This bill, the prime minister said, "will confer upon the government power to deal with the problem of what are called clearing house agreements and the purchase of commodities through the use of exchange arising from the fall of the pound sterling, and the purchase of commodities of other countries

Five measures dealing with the mass buying report would be passed by the end of July, Mr. Runciman declared, and there would probably be two or three more dealing with the same subject in the autumn session. Wheat Conference Opens

May Be Argentina's Last Chance To Agree To Acceptable Plan

London. -Delegates to the international wheat conference expressed the opinion Argentina may find her last opportunity in the current negotiations to enter a wheat export restriction agreement on equal terms.

They warned that Canada and the United States, now that the period of relief given the glutted markets by the 1934 drouth has passed, will never again allow their stocks to accumulate to the extent they did in 1933.

A trade war of underselling was forecast in some quarters unless the event Argentina declines to subscribe to some plan acceptable to the other conferees

The conference will attempt to salvage whatever is possible from the wreckage of the 1933 pact, which expires August 1. United States Ambassador Robert W. Bingham will preside over the parley for which delegates from 15 countries have assembled.

HITLER DECLARES GERMANY WANTS QUIET AND PEACE

Berlin. — Adolf Hitler told the former allies that Germany would abide by all but the military sections of the Versailles treaty and would limit armaments with them, even to the scrapping of submarines, in an impassioned address to the specially assembled reichstag. Hitler announced the Versailles treaty as responsible for Europe's current armaments race.

"Germany has no intention of arming to the skies," he declared, assuring an uneasy world that he wants quiet and peace

Der Fuehrer-Chancellor spoke in the Kroll opera house, with 668 brown and black shirted deputies and a group of attaches present. Diplomats see here hints Hitler would have reference to Germany's former colonies

The reich, he said, was ready to sign a treaty limiting the size and calibre of naval cannon and submarines. The fuehrer added that a navy 35 per cent the size of Great Britain's was all Germany would ask

He soothingly denounced other powers for violating the treaty, declaring arms limitations, thus forcing the reich to re-arm.

Hitler was thunderously cheered as he announced he signed a non-aggression pact with Latvia.

If Germany [illegible] peace, he said, it [illegible] of weaknesses in the world.

We don't envy anyone the navy he said. "Let us get [illegible]

Germany is immersed in the tremendous work of repairing its domestic damages None of our projects of a factual nature will be completed before 10 or 30 years None of our tasks of an ideal nature can find its fulfillment before 50 or even 100 years

"What else could I desire but quiet and peace?

Coast Relief Strikers

Ottawa Between 700 and 800 relief camp workers now in Vancouver are eager to return to the camps but they have been halted by strike picketers British Columbia relief authorities stated.

These workers have made application to be returned to the camps, have been given routine medical examinations and are prepared to leave but cannot get past the picket posts, it was declared.

Combat Soil Drifting

Federal Government Anxious To Help Western Farmers

Ottawa — The Dominion department of agriculture, anxious to help western farmers avoid disastrous effects of drouth, announced publication of a bulletin outlining methods to control soil drifting.

Publication of the bulletin followed announcement several weeks ago that the government would institute a program of water conservation and shelter-belt planting in districts that produced disastrous drifting in the southern mid-west areas.

The bulletin deals with control of soil drifting and describes in detail practically every method such as planting cover crops and strip farming. It contains also emergency measures to control soil drifting when drifting occurs unfrequently

It says soil drifting in western districts began almost as soon as the land was first cultivated

RELIEF CAMP REGULATIONS ARE GIVEN IN REPORT

Ottawa.—Government policy on relief camps operated by the department of national defence gives those employed therein complete freedom of movement, according to a voluminous document tabled in the House of Commons

The document covers all regulations issued by the department for administration of these institutions. The purpose of the camps was to provide relief for "homeless, single men," who were otherwise uncared for in other relief schemes.

Accommodation, food, clothing and medical care, and a daily allowance of 20 cents, were furnished, while the men were required to work eight hours a day, with Saturday afternoon, Sundays and statutory holidays observed.

"The men will be free to leave the work to accept other employment offered; they may be discharged for cause, and if so discharged will be subsequently ineligible for re-employment under the scheme, except when there is a reasonable probability of the men's behaving properly in future," the regulations set forth.

On discharge from camp—except in a case of misconduct, the government gave free transportation to the men to the point at which they were engaged, the document said. Extension of this policy was that free transportation was also given to men who had obtained employment with government paying their fare from the camp to the place at which they were given a job.

"The standard of rations shall be that as prescribed for the army," stated the regulations. "There shall, however, the only contact point between the camps and anything resembling the army for the next regulation sets forth:

"No military discipline or training shall be installed; the status of the individual shall remain civilian in all respects."

Responsibility for the care of the camps lay with the officer in charge of the camp. It was their object, the regulations declare, to ensure that the men's efficiency—mentally, physically, and at their trades—was so improved that when conditions permitted the men may be returned to the economic life of the country. "well able again to take up their usual work."

Facilities for education and instructional classes were formed, while every encouragement was given for recreation and sport.

"Too Much Wealth in the hands of a few people"

In the countryside, on streets of villages, towns and cities; in homes, in market places, from pulpits and public platforms; from men in many walks of life you hear the same pronouncement — "Too much wealth in the hands of too few people."

Who can rectify such an unsatisfactory state of affairs?

In many instances the people themselves have the remedy.

In the grain business the grain growers have the remedy in their co-operative marketing organization. All they need to do is to give their patronage.

Co-operative organization is the most effective means of preventing accumulation of great fortunes in the hands of a few people

Co-operation never makes millionaires.

Old-Timers Re-Union To Feature Fair

Vermilion's Thirtieth Anniversary Fair will be held this year on August 1st and 2nd. Special attention will be given to the entertainment of old-timers of the district and several former citizens of the district of twenty, five and thirty years ago, who are now residing away from Vermilion, have been invited to be present at the fair.

It has been suggested that on the second day of the Fair a photograph be taken of all present who attended Vermilion's first fair on October 15 and 16 in 1906; all old timers are cordially invited to make their plans so as to include a visit to the 1935 Fair.

Special prizes will be given to the oldest person attending the Fair and who reports their age to the office on the fair grounds; a second award will be made to the person who has been longest resident in the district covered by the regional map of the Fair and it is hoped to arrange for a competition of old photographs of interest to people of the town and district.

Suggestions for the improvement of the Fair, especially insofar as the entertainment of our old-timers is concerned, will be gladly received by any of the directors.

The 1935 Prize List will shortly be in the hands of intending exhibitors and every farmer in the district is urged to show in at least one class. Utmost efforts are being made to make the 20th Fair the Best Fair and the co-operation of all people of the district is requested.

With the assistance of the Dominion and Provincial governments the education of the young people will be fostered in conjunction with the annual Fair but the entertainment of the residents of the district for many years past will be handled as usual and if you have a suggestion which you think might be of help you are cordially invited to get in touch with the management of the Vermilion Agricultural Society

Definite Statement Royal Bank Building Bought For P.O.

At a well attended luncheon of the Vermilion Board of Trade Monday, the statement was made by J. W. G. Morrison, K.C. that he had information from the department of public works to the effect that negotiations for the purchase of the Royal Bank building to be used as a post office, had been completed

Guests in the persons of three C.N. Ry. officials from Edmonton Mr. Cameron, Mr. Foster and Mr. Macdonald, were also Karly one afternoon and some of the railway questions now before the public and in connection with recent changes being effected along this line. These dealt with the new express service and also the reinstatement of 24-hour service at the depot here. It was pointed out that the railway was conducted as a business and naturally could not be expected to maintain services in departments where the business did not warrant such.

The question of a ladies' rest room was brought before the Board by the I.O.D.E. The Board is in sympathy with the matter and will help as much as possible. In reference to this May 24 Fallon stated that there was a motion on foot by a business in the town for the installation of a low priced modern ladies rest room

A letter from Fabre Davies was read regarding the building of a dam in the river valley and the forming of an artificial lake and will be discussed at the next meeting. It is understood that some $25 000.00 is to be spent this year on relief projects.

The Board of Trade received a petition from Mr. Macdonald of the C.N.R. Edmonton division when it stated that the greater help which the C.N.R. officials received in attempting to get to the problems of the people was through the Boards of Trade. In support of this he said that at times they had sponsored the forming of boards where such bodies had been non-existent

Child Labor

In Canada, and in the western provinces particularly, as in many other agricultural countries, laws are enacted and regulations made under those laws from the operation of which the industry of agriculture and those engaged in it are exempted. For example, legislation regulating hours of labor in industry cannot well be made applicable to agriculture, although there are some idealists who, shutting their eyes to practical conditions, urge that such laws could and should be applied and enforced on the farms as well as in the factories. Workmen's Compensation Acts, passed for the protection of urban workers, are in many respects not applicable throughout the rural sections.

As we proceed to write this article, daily newspapers lie on the desk telling of the complete wreckage of the N.R.A. codes governing industry and business generally throughout the United States as a result of a decision of the Supreme Court declaring such legislation unconstitutional, being beyond the powers of Congress to enact inasmuch as it encroaches upon and voids the constitutional rights and powers of the individual States of the Union.

Whatever varying and opposing opinions people may entertain regarding the Roosevelt experiment as a whole, there has been general approval of the provisions in the N.R.A. codes prohibiting child labor in shops and factories. It has been estimated that an army of at least 100,000 children marched out of shops and factories with the establishment of these codes, and there was a widespread belief that thereby the increasing problem of child labor had been solved for the time being at least. Now the protection afforded these children has been destroyed, although it may be hoped that those in control of industry will not revert to the employment of child labor.

Unfortunately, industry accounted for only a small proportion of the 700,000 children under 16 who were listed as working at the time the U.S. census of 1930 was taken. By far the greatest number, almost half a million, were found in the ranks of agriculture, to which the codes did not apply. It has been pointed out that the cotton fields, tobacco fields, truck gardens, beet fields, onion fields, potato fields, cranberry bog, berry farms, hop fields and orchards with each returning season make their demands upon the nation's children, and that thousands of boys and girls, many as young as six, the coming of the end of school sessions means not the beginning of a holiday time of freedom and play but a period of toil that often starts at sunrise and ends at sundown.

Except for the fact that these children work in the open air, their lot is in many respects a harder one than those children in shops and factories, and one can appreciate the yearning expressed by one 13-year-old boy for the day when he will be old enough to get a job in a mill and work only eight hours a day.

The situation in Canada is, of course, not comparable to that in the United States, or in other lands where congested populations also cut an existence and intensive tillage of the land by the whole family is necessary. Furthermore, in Canada our standard of living and of education is much higher than in most countries, and in the cotton, tobacco and other fields of the southern States Canadian practice, as a rule, are more desirous of giving their children the benefit of the open air than they are to work them as farm hands and profit-making laborers.

But inasmuch as many of our laws which are designed to protect grown workers and which prohibit child labor are not applicable to agriculture, a greater responsibility is thrown upon parents engaged in agriculture to protect their children and not lose sight of the humanities, the finalities, the limited powers of endurance of young boys and girls and to remember that their proper physical development and mental outlook on life necessitate hours of play and recreation, that their bodies and minds will be stunted by long hours of work and no play. It is still true that all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy.

The is not to say that farm boys and girls should not be required to assist in the work of the farm, they should. Doing chores is part of their education and preparation for life, and it would be both foolish and wrong to do for them what they should do for themselves, or permit the development of habits of idleness or shiftlessness. But inasmuch as definite laws for their protection from what may be termed exploitation do not apply in rural as in urban life, it is all the more necessary that rural people guard against selfishness and thoughtlessness on their own part in the matter of overworking children on the farm.

Canada stands high in the matter of child labor. It is a matter of national pride that this is so. We stand high in the matter of education, and our school attendance laws afford the greatest legal protection against the exploitation of child labor, both in city and country. It should be the aim of the Canadian people as individual citizens to raise the standard of child life progressively higher as the years go by, and entirely eliminate the blot of commercialized child labor from this fair Dominion.

Belgium is the most densely population country in the world, having nearly 700 souls residents occupying an area of 11,752 square miles.

Live "Dragon" At Zoo

Habitants Of Dutch East Indies Taken To London

There were live dragons in King George's Silver Jubilee exhibitions, but they did not take part in the procession.

These were a pair of them and they were seen for the first time by the public at the zoo.

Komodo dragon is their full name, though learned people speak of them as monitor lizards. They came from Komodo island in the Dutch East Indies, whence they were brought by Lord Moyne, who has been there studying their habits in the wild state. Some of the animals in their native habitat are 12 feet long, and their nearly-related, extinct Australian cousins grew to 25 feet. And those it is that are supposed to have been the originals of the dragon legends throughout the world.

Seen trawling erect on their four legs—not crawling like the alligator —with their longish heads carried aloft and the tips of their tails just sweeping the earth, they are indeed capable of inspiring fright in the primitive mind.

The pair given to the zoo are the most interesting and valuable reptiles in the world's collections, and some striking photographs of them in their native surroundings accompany the exhibits. They were kept in the reptile house for a few days so that the keepers might study their habits, and were then put on view for the first time on the King's Jubilee Day.

A Magnificent Statue

Cleaning Revealed Effigy Of Black Prince In Pure Gold

The Black Prince, one of at least his statue—is no longer black.

For centuries the statue over his tomb in Canterbury Cathedral has been as black as his name. It was never cleaned.

Then, about a month ago, it was. Centuries of grime and a coating of protective enamel were delicately removed under the direction of Professor W. H. Trueblood.

A most beautifully wrought effigy in pure gold on a foundation of purest copper was revealed in almost perfect preservation and is one of the most wonderful examples of fourteenth-century metalwork in existence. The tomb was built 550 years ago.

"The most magnificent tomb in England," is Professor Tristram's description.

We clean the cathedral regularly," a Dean of Canterbury said, "but for some reason, I really don't know why, it never occurred to anyone to clean the tomb. Perhaps it was that we have done so everybody is delighted, and we are having a great celebration. It is one of the most lovely monuments in the world. Its value is inestimable."

Gasoline Discovered

Unable To Explain Gasoline Source—Oil Men Are Interested

A huge underground lake of pure gasoline was discovered in the harbor district near Wilmington, California, causing hundreds of persons to abandon to the scene.

Shallow wells, most of them dug to a depth of only 30 feet, were producing from four to six gallons of gasoline an hour.

The discovery here was about two blocks square, was dotted with hundreds of gasoline "prospectors", some with pick and shovel, others with hand pumps to speed up production. Motorists filled the tanks of their automobiles and trucks.

Fire Chief Ralph Scott, at a loss to account for the gasoline reservoir beneath the earth's surface, said, however, that gasoline, like salt, will leak many years ago in a pipe line leading from a refinery to a harbor terminal.

More Counterfeiting

Advances Made In Science Makes Danger More Threatening

The United States secret service contended advances in science have made counterfeiting a more threatening racket than ever before Statistics released by Chief William H. Moran showed there were 999 arrests and 666 convictions for this offense in 1934, while to date there were 2,751 arrests and 1,603 convictions. Officials declared the perfection of photo engraving process has enabled the underworld to turn out illegitimate currency in a much more efficient manner.

Construction of the Canton-Hankow railway in China is progressing so rapidly that the line may be in operation this year.

ALL FOOD MADE HER ILL

Caused by Acidity — Corrected by Kruschen

"It is only fair to pass these facts on," writes a nurse. "I was suffering from over-acidity and faulty digestion to such an extent that I was completely ill. I couldn't take food. When I actually forced myself to take something, I would be wretchedly ill. I have now taken Kruschen for 12 months, and I have no doubt that it has righted my digestive system. I am now quite fit and able to work with vigor again."—Nurse E. S.

Indigestion is caused by failure in the flow of the gastric or digestive juices. As a result, your food, instead of being assimilated by your system, simply collects and ferments inside you, producing harmful acid poisons. The immediate effect of the six minerals salts in Kruschen is to promote the healthy flow of the vital juices of the body. As you continue with the "little daily dose," it ensures the regular and complete elimination of all waste matter every day. And that means a complete end to indigestion.

A Remarkable Personality

British Empire Suffers Great Loss In The Death Of Col. Lawrence

The death of Col. T. E. Lawrence —or, Shaw, since evidently he had changed his name by legal process of recent years—robs the British Empire of one of the most colorful figures it has yielded. "Lawrence of Arabia," as he was more colorfully, he was almost a mythical god. There was even a suggestion of a messianic complex in the adulation which some of the most powerful Arabs were his powers of leadership and

---

Lawrence, only 46 at death, and a graduate of Oxford, unquestionably helped to the winning of the World War on its Eastern front. He it was who, by persuasion and diplomacy, quelled friction among the Arabs and roused and marshalled them against the Turks. He helped materially toward Allenby's victories in Palestine. He was a strange combination—scholar, soldier, mystic and diplomat. He was a peculiar yet remarkably effective force projected into a romantic and difficult setting. Lawrence was unique and he was effective. He was a poor publicity man so far as self was concerned. During the period of his earlier day in the life of the East, he sought no greetings in the market place or social halls in the lamplit and at feasts.—Regina Leader.

Lac Seul Project

Rising Of Water Causes Damage To C.N.R. Road Bed

Rising of the water of Lac Seul in northwestern Ontario has caused damage to the road bed of the Canadian National Railways, Hon. Peter Stewart, minister of public works, told the House of Commons, explaining a vote of $175,000 in the supplementary estimates for protection works. The lake is being raised under an agreement between the Dominion and the provinces of Ontario and Manitoba in connection with power developments.

The money will be used for riprapping along the railway and contributions to the cost of the work will be sought from both Ontario and Manitoba.

In Memory Of Livingstone

Statue Of Famous Explorer Erected In South Africa

A famous explorer's memory has been perpetuated by a memorial erected almost at the edge of the Victoria Cataract on the Victoria Falls in South Africa, where their roar is always to be heard and the spray rises like columns of white vapor.

The memorial is in the form of a statue of Dr. David Livingstone, and was unveiled by the Hon. H. U. Moffat, a son of Rev. John Moffat, Livingstone Rhodesia, and himself a nephew of the famous explorer and missionary. The memorial was built by Alexander Scot and discoverer of the Falls has been provided by the Federation of Caledonian Societies of South Africa.

Economical Air Transport

Aerial Train Can Drop Gliders At Different Points

A Soviet aerial train took off in mail week from Moscow on an experimental flight and landed four and a half hours later at Kharkov, about 400 miles away. It consisted of one regular aeroplane towing three gliders each manned by a pilot. The idea of such aerial trains is that individual gliders can drop off at different points without the train or aeroplane hauling. Time providing this can be done.

Russia Making Rubber

Oil Waste And Calcium Used In New Process

New processes for making synthetic rubber out of the waste products of oil refineries and from calcium carbide are being tried out in Russia.

Heads of the Soviet industrial syndicates expect shortly to be manufacturing the product at the rate of 20,000 tons a year.

This will have far-reaching effects on the rubber-growing plantations of the Far East, and will upset considerably the working of the Rubber Restriction Scheme, under which 30 per cent. of the trees are not to be tapped so as to force up raw rubber prices.

The first factory for manufacturing rubber from oil waste is now being started in Moscow. The lessons learned there will be applied in the construction of several large plants in the oil well districts.

About 25 pounds of rubber are produced from the waste products obtained from refining a ton of oil. In the past these products in many areas had to be dumped.

The other process, for manufacturing rubber from calcium carbide, is to be operated at Erivan, in Armenia, where a factory is now being constructed. The process is the invention of a number of young Soviet scientists working in Leningrad.

Water is added to the calcium carbide, forming acetylene, the gas of which is often used for lighting. Then, after a series of chemical reactions, a substance called chloroprene is produced and thus ultimately becomes rubber.

The rubber is said to have all the working and kneading qualities of real rubber, and to be very much cheaper.

Best Aid To Sleep

Formula For The Perfect Night-Cap Has Been Discovered

It is generally recognized that the best aid to sleep is warm milk; and that the main use of all night-caps and at a supersitt but as a method of removing from hot milk the unpalatable taste which prevents so many people from drinking it regularly at night. Since tea is the cheapest beverage in the world, and the one that is in every household, it is the logical one to use in this connection is highly desirable. A formula for the perfect milk night-cap has now been evolved. Tea should be made in the usual way, which means that one teaspoonful of leaf should be allowed for each person and one for the pot. The pot should only be filled half way, and when pouring out after the tea has been left to infuse for a few minutes, the cups should be only half filled. They should then be filled up with hot milk, but not with boiled milk.

Twenty-two million cups of tea are made in Canada every day, and the eight billion cups of tea a year. The tea industry is therefore one of the farmer's greatest allies. The investigations have shown that the number of people who drink tea without milk is almost negligible.

Welcome Heavy Rain

Australians Glad To See "Knock 'Em Down" Variety

Darwin, Northern Australia, recently welcomed the annual "knock 'em down" rains.

Although this aboriginal description of the torrential downpours, which herald the end of the wet season, sounds grim, the rains are very welcome throughout the Northern Territory. These heavy downpours towards the end of the monsoon period level the long grass which earlier fails have caused to grow to a height of six to ten feet.

In the three months following Christmas, about 60 inches of rain fell in Darwin, and the grass bordering the roads was so high that a man driving along the road could not see a friend walking along the footpath. In low-lying sections of the city grass grew in a tangled mass ten feet high. That is why "knock 'em down" rains are welcome.

A Grand Salesman

The greatest salesman of the Empire is the Prince of Wales! On a hot day, once, according to Lord Dudley, he toiled in Rio de Janeiro for more than an hour. As a result the Brazilian and steel industries received an order for a $10,000,000 contract. Lord Dudley told the story at a meeting of the Iron and Steel Federation of which he is president.

A blind philanthropist has given $300,000 for investigations in Scotland on the origin and cause of blindness, working towards prevention and cure.

An Old Organization

First Holstein Society Started In Germany In 1872

Cattle resembling the present-day Holstein have been bred for centuries along the south shore of the North Sea, from Holland over to Denmark. Some of the early importations into the United States came from the German provinces of Holstein, the south of Denmark and a breed society of that name was started in 1872. But most of the early importations came from Friesland and the country in Holland bordering on the Zuider Zee and a Dutch-Friesian Society was started in the States in 1878. Those two merged in 1885 with the name of the Holstein - Friesian Association of America. Although the most of the foundation stock of the breed came from Friesland the name has stuck, the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada having been formed in 1901.

How Time Got Used

Framework Of Airtight Cloth Tubes Has To Be Inflated

A pneumatic tent recently displayed in London must be pumped up. In place of the customary centre pole and guy ropes, the shelter has a framework of airtight cloth tubes that may be blown up with an ordinary motor-car pump when the camping site is reached. When it is erected, the tent is six feet high and seven feet square. Deflated, it fits in a suitcase.

FOR THE KIDNEYS

CRISIS LOOMS AS FRENCH CABINET MEETS DEFEAT

Paris.—The cabinet of Premier Pierre-Etienne Flandin resigned after it had met a decisive defeat in the chamber of deputies on its demand for sweeping powers to deal with speculation and save the franc.

The adverse vote was 353 to 262. Premier Flandin, presiding officer of the chamber, immediately attempted to form a new government. M. Bouisson is committed to support of the franc.

Defeat of the Flandin administration came after Flandin had risen from a sick-bed to make an impassioned plea for support. A wide split in the Radical Socialist party, bedmark of his government, resulted in the defeat of the six-months-old administration.

A national crisis loomed as the result of the government's defeat, with observers gloomy over further chances of the franc to resist the pressure brought upon it by international speculation in recent weeks.

It was forecast Bouisson would attempt to form a national union government.

President Albert Lebrun accepted the resignation of the premier and the Flandin cabinet and then called Bouisson into conference. Subsequently Bouisson conferred with the Radical Socialists, and Francois Pietri, naval minister in the defeated cabinet, were summoned to the Elysee Palace to confer with Lebrun.

The vote followed a historic session of the chamber in which Premier Flandin desperately defended the bill, despite a painful broken arm, and former premier Edouard Herriot, chief of the Radical Socialist party, had made a last stand against overwhelming odds in personal support of the bill.

Bids Continents Farewell

Lord Tweedsmuir Expresses Thanks For Kind Treatment

London.—Lord Tweedsmuir, who represented the Scottish universities in the House of Commons until his recent appointment as next governor-general of Canada, formally said farewell to his constituents.

"There cannot be many constituencies which treat their members with greater forbearance and tolerance, which make fewer demands on his time or which extend him fuller and friendlier confidence," said his message.

"My right years as their representative have come at a time when much about university life in Scotland, but I fear the benefits have been one-sided. What I have given very little in return for what I have received. Now I have to bid them a regretful farewell. I would offer them my most grateful thanks for their manifold kindnesses."

False Advertising

A Heavy Fine Is Provided For Misrepresentations

Ottawa.—A fine of $300 or six months imprisonment or both, is the penalty imposed for false or fraudulent advertising under an amendment to the criminal code approved by the House of Commons. The measure follows a recommendation of the price spreads commission.

It makes it an offence to include in an advertisement a statement or guarantee of the performance, efficacy or length of life of any product without such statement or guarantee being based upon a proper test.

Letter Mailed Ten Late

Ottawa. The city post office disclosed receipt of a letter postmarked Vancouver and addressed to Col. By-Major Hill Park. The same card added Nelson, was received by the Rideau canal, died. Post officials said the postmaster's message: They sent the message to the dead letter office.

Highway Project

Ottawa.—A stretch of nine miles hard surfacing, on the trans-Canada highway between Beauséjour and St. Andrews in Manitoba and grading of the stretch between Beauséjour and Portage la Prairie has been authorized by the Dominion government with the province and Dominion sharing equally in the estimated $220,000 cost, as a relief measure.

First Official Crop Report

Conditions In Prairie Provinces As A Whole Are Hopeful

Ottawa.—The Dominion bureau of statistics issued the first of 15 weekly telegraphic crop summaries covering conditions in the prairie provinces and mid crop reports as a whole were "hopeful", although correspondents pointed out "ash soil (moisture) reserves are negligible in many districts and in these areas crop development will depend upon current rainfall."

The summary of the report said:

"The seeding and early development of the 1935 wheat crop of the Dominion have taken place under vastly different conditions than existed a year ago. During the month of May generous rains were received over the 'drouth' area of Saskatchewan and in parts of central and northern Alberta seeding has been seriously delayed by heavy rains.

"Only a few areas in the three prairie provinces report the need of rain at the present time. Hatching of grasshoppers has been delayed by the cool, wet weather but outbreaks may be expected shortly. Wheat seeding is nearly completed in Manitoba. In many areas in Saskatchewan and the seeding of coarse grains is well advanced. In Alberta, seeding of wheat is almost completed in the southern part of the province, but in the northern areas a large acreage of land intended for wheat is not sown as yet."

Tribute To Dr. Cora Hind

Women's Free Press Honors Western Journalist

Ottawa.—Tribute by newspaperwomen of Canada to Dr. E. Cora Hind of the Winnipeg Free Press as "one of the greatest of their cult," was paid by the Canadian Women's Press at a banquet by the government tourist bureau.

Held in the parliamentary restaurant, the function, of which Hon. R. J. Manion, minister of railways, acted as host, was attended by nearly 200 female members of the craft, with a large quintette of males "grac[illegible]" the proceedings.

The eulogium on the service rendered by Miss Hind, upon whom the University of Manitoba a few days ago conferred the honorary degree of doctor of laws, was pronounced by Miss Charlotte Whitton, C.B.E.

Dr. Manion sketched to his hearers a picture of the tourist bureau's early beginnings in 1894, when Dr. Dennis of Halifax, who had been chiefly responsible for its establishment, and Dr. D. Lee Dobie, were directs its activities. Last year, the minister said, the Canadian people received more money from the expenditures of tourists than they did from the sale of wheat. The significance of the tourist industry was illustrated, he said, by the fact the state of Maine alone had a revenue of $100,000,000 annually from tourists

Storm Causes Heavy Damage

Property Loss Near Sarnia, Ontario, Will Total $75,000

Sarnia, Ont.—Two persons injured and property damage totalling $75,000 was the toll of a severe storm which swept over a small area in Sarnia township, eight miles east of here

Two houses and seven barns were destroyed, roofs torn off other buildings, trees uprooted. A highway was strewn with trees, telephone poles and wires for about a mile, as a wind of tornado proportions accompanied a severe thunder storm.

The storm passed over the city without doing any damage. Worst damage was done in a narrow strip on each side of the provincial highway.

Fur Shorter Hours

Victoria.—Shorter working hours for postal employees is sought in a resolution passed at the closing session of the British Columbia branch of the Canadian Postmasters' Association here. The resolution, which was forwarded to the national executive, asked for a 44-hour week, with powers for the postmasters to regulate the working schedule according to local conditions.

Fur Will Return To Fatherland

Saskatoon.—Few of the Germans here affected by the conscription ruling of the German government will return to the fatherland for military duty, leaders of German organizations said when they reported that many of their compatriots were taking immediate steps to secure Canadian citizenship and thus avoid a year's military training.

Must Send To Prison

Heavy Sentence Is Imposed In Nazi Court

Berlin.—A Nazi court meted out the heaviest penalty possible on Otto Goertler, a monk, charged with violation of the foreign exchange laws.

Goertler was sentenced to 10 years in the penitentiary, loss of citizenship for an additional five years and was fined $50,000 marks (about $140,000). If the fine is not paid the monk must serve an additional 27 months in prison.

Shares of the Farben industry, valued at 44,000 marks, will be confiscated from the monastery to which Goertler was attached. The monastery also was fined 500,000 marks.

Celebrates His Birthday

Famous Dr. Defoe Entertained By Newspapermen Of North Bay

Callander, Ont.—Dr. Allan Roy Defoe was host to newspapermen under an avalanche of congratulations as he celebrated his own 52nd birthday and looked back on the happy observance of the Dionne quintuplets' first birthday anniversary.

Newspapermen marked the double event on May 30 by entertaining Dr. Defoe at dinner in North Bay and presented him with an engraved silver pitcher.

PRICE SPREADS IN CARS SHOWN TO TARIFF BOARD

Calgary—Large price spreads exist between identical models of automobiles in Alberta and Montana the tariff board learned in a final Calgary session.

Continuing the automobile inquiry, which started in Vancouver, the board members were told that duties made prices of United States cars almost prohibitive in Alberta, and that Canadian automobile manufacturers were competing unfairly in the "parts" business with local jobbers.

J. L. Stewart, general manager of the Canadian Automobile Chamber of Commerce exhibited reports showing that both taxes and freight rates were considerably higher in Alberta than in Montana. On one light model car the government tax in Butte, Montana, was $19. The tax on the same car in Calgary was $46.63. On an eight-cylinder model selling for $1,500 in Butte, the tax there was $23.60 compared to $138.33 in Calgary.

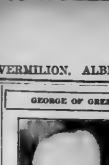
A. L. Smith, K.C., representing a group of Alberta jobbers, asked the board to frame fully a chain that manufacturers were importing parts from the United States but assembling them in Canada. He contended, he said, by the fact the state of Maine alone had a revenue of $100,000,000 annually from tourists

---

W. H. Poole, of the department of economics at the University of Alberta, who prepared a comparative schedule, showed different prices as high as $310 on stock model cars sold at Selby, Montana and Lethbridge, Alta

PRINCE FREDERIK AND HIS BRIDE

Stockholm, Sweden.—Two hundred thousand cheering Swedes packed Stockholm's streets to bid farewell to Crown Prince Frederik of Denmark and Princess Ingrid of Sweden. Frederik's bride and Denmark's future queen. Their brilliant wedding in the 12th Century church where all kings of Sweden's Bernadotte line have been crowned, was attended by such an assembly of crowned heads, royalty and notables as Scandinavia seldom has seen.



GEORGE OF GREECE

The possibility of a reconciliation between ex-King George and ex-Queen Elizabeth of Greece is stated to have been discussed in Bukarest between the Greek Foreign Minister and the ex-Queen herself. A reconciliation it is stated, would be a preliminary to an eventual restoration of the monarchy of Greece. There is a recent picture of the ex-King.

Improvement Shown In Employment Situation

Report Shows Increase In All But Maritime Provinces

Ottawa. — An improvement was shown in the employment situation on May 1 in all provinces, while the Maritime provinces was the only economic area to show a decline in comparison with May 1, 1934, the Dominion bureau of statistics reported.

Reports received from 9,203 firms show 892,506 at work, a gain of 17,457 compared with the preceding month

The crude index, higher than any year since 1931, stood at 95.2 against 92.0 on May 1, 1934, and 77.6 in 1933.

In the prairie provinces, 1,339 firms reported 176,815 employed against 169,692 on April 1. Gains were shown in manufacturing, lumbering, iron and steel, and coal mining while logging was seasonably slacker.

Dannur left the cabin to visit neighboring trapper. When he returned his young partner was missing.

Makes Protest

Hon. R. H. Stevens Objects To Statements Made At Inquiry

Toronto. — Hon. H. H. Stevens, M.P., suddenly appeared before the inquiry into the affairs of the Manufacturers' Finance Corporation, of which he was a former director. He stated he intended to demand a hearing.

Mr. Stevens listened to proceedings without interruption until that part of the report made by Joseph Redgwick, K.C., of the attorney-general's department, was read concerning Mr. Stevens' activities as a director of the bankrupt corporation. Mr. Redgwick had stated Mr. Stevens had received $200 as "overseas expenses" from the corporation.

Mr. Stevens jumped to his feet and exclaimed, "No, no." His counsel, Norman Sommerville, K.C., interposed. "That just shows the effect of having this evidence produced without allowing us a chance to prepare. Mr. Stevens did not receive any money to go overseas from the company and did not go overseas for the company. He did not receive a nickel."

Commissioner J. M. Godfrey, K.C., stated following reading of the report he would give Mr. Stevens an opportunity to give his explanation.

Motors Across Channel

German Sportsman Negotiates Crossing In Automobile

Dover, England.—A novel amphibian motor car clambered, dripping wet, on to dry land here and rolled on towards London after crossing the Channel from Calais in eight hours and 30 minutes. The machine was operated by Jacob Boulig, German sportsman

It was the first such crossing but not such a motor car, equipped with paddlewheels as not likely to prove popular, since regular Channel steamers from Dover to Calais make the trip in about an hour

THIRD READING IN SENATE FOR INSURANCE BILL

Ottawa. After two Liberal amendments had been voted down, the unemployment insurance bill went through third reading in the senate.

An amendment moved by Senator Beaubien (Liberal) would have given that employees in non-manual labor receiving salaries in excess of $2,000 also might come under the bill. It was defeated on the assurance the Hon. Senator Robertson, minister of labor, that the $2,000 limit was fixed at the request of employees themselves.

Senator W. A. Buchanan (Liberal) moved that the bill not apply to Dominion, provincial or municipal employees. Hon. Senator W. H. Wilson (Liberal) and Senator Murdock

WILDMERE WINKS

Words fail to express how deeply everyone was shocked to hear of the sudden passing of Mr. Baillie Wilson. He died after an illness of only four days. It can be truly said that he was a faithful husband, a loving father, and a splendid neighbor and friend to all. The beautiful sermon given by Rev. Mr. Boyd, told more or less, that which Mr. Wilson would have said could he have spoken, "Come home, well done" so far away." The writer counted 24 cars and trucks on the way to the cemetery, which told how highly the deceased was thought of. In-deed sympathy goes out to the sorrowing wife and family, to the brother and sister here, and also to those in Ontario and Scotland.

Mrs. A. Smith had a few friends in on her birthday, May 29th, (some date to the famous Dionne quintuplets). After a pleasant visit, a dainty lunch was served when pioneers sat down. The accompanying chart shows gasoline to the retailer but no gasoline tax has increased since 1926. The data for this graph are based on figures published by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

LOWER PRICES — HIGHER QUALITY

EVER since 1920 the price of gasoline has steadily declined. Few people realize this however because during the past ten years as the price dropped the tax increased. In 1923 there was no provincial gasoline tax and the average price of gasoline to retail dealers across Canada was 27½c cents per gallon. Today the average price of gasoline to retailers is 19½c cents but to this is added a tax of from six to eight cents per gallon which goes directly to the provincial governments. Not only has the price of gasoline fallen steadily since 1926 but the quality has consistently improved. The gasoline consumer today gets more value than ever before.

Sometimes you hear talk of large profits earned by the gasoline refiner. In 1934 Imperial Oil earned $3,023,460.12. This may seem to be a large sum but to earn it Imperial Oil had to make and market gasoline and other petroleum concentrating in value to $82,041,311.15. That is to say Imperial Oil's earnings were relatively no greater than those of a merchant who, selling $8,200 worth of goods in the course of a year, made a net profit of $300.

MYRNAM NEWS

MYRNAM, June 4.—The Youth Election Rally called under the auspices of the Young Communist League and the Communist Election Committee was held at Myrnam on Sunday, June 2nd. More than 300 young people came in trucks and cars from various points of the Vermilion constituency. Baseball teams from Two Hills and Brume were here and a lively game was enjoyed by all when these two teams tangled for the first time this year with the Myrnam Farmers' Sports Association. This team carries the name of Myrnam Strikers.

The Youth Election Conference was held the same evening and [illegible] attended by approximately 250 young people. Youth demands were brought up by various speakers which were discussed by all those present.

A. Pawtyk, K. Nykyforuk, D. Slywka, M. Bok and Wm. Dedinsky were elected as delegates to the Youth Conference Against War and Fascism which will be held in Edmonton the first week of July.

Wm Hallina, the Communist candidate for Vermilion constituency was present and took a keen interest in this conference. All the demands that were agreed upon at the conference will be put before the candidates of various political parties for endorsation and this will show where the candidates stand in regard to the present needs of the farm youth.

Myrnam High School boys played Two Hills softball team Sunday last. The score was in favor of Myrnam, 11-2. The girls also decided to have a friendly game with the Two Hills girls but the score was reversed in this case, 2-10 in favor of Two Hills.

On Monday the High School boys played at Bearvalley. It was a softball game. Beauvalon being beaten by a 11-2 score. The same group went from Myrnam to [illegible] 2-1. The boys have played wonderful softball this season so far they have not lost a game since work. New Myrnam! It's a pity that there is nobody to play, as all the teams around have been defeated.

The Myrnam Hospital committee intends to open a temporary three bed hospital on June 10th. Dr. Kane intends to go to the city for equipment. The petitions for the new hospital district are well on the way according to Mr. Wm. Tereson the secretary.

Mr. Wm. Tereson has purchased a new Ford V-8 de luxe sedan. The deal was made through Mr. Lehner the local Ford dealer. Mr. Tereson says that it certainly is a pleasure to ride in such a car. Who wouldn't believe that?

Mr and Mrs Harley Sidley of Vancouver, announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Dorothy Elizabeth, to Mr. Vernon Hankin eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Hankin, Vancouver. The wedding will take place June 4th.

DEWBERRY BUDGET

In spite of the late spring and cool weather, seeding is well advanced and the young crops look nice and green. The recent showers have supplied necessary moisture.

Last week the annual open air banquet of the members of the tennis club took place near the tennis courts. Young, old and middle aged gathered on the grounds, after a few games a large bon-fire was built, lighted, and pies, coffee and hot dogs were dispensed of in short notice.

After the eats, a few songs and games were indulged in and our enterprising agent, Archie McGillivray, brought a radio by car and set up the machine with a fence for a ground wire so that the Grads game came right to the assembled guests.

Over fifty members are now in the Tennis Club, and the annual tournament has got away to a fair start. Later it is the intention of the executive to form an inter-hamlet tennis meet with players from Hazeldine, Marwayne and Clandonald. If the proposed tournament proves as successful as the games have proved during the last few years, it will be a pleasure for all concerned.

Last Saturday, the school athletic meet took place at the village school grounds with pupils from Hazeldine, Harewood, and Dewberry Rural competing. Cups were donated by the following merchants of the town: J. S. McKay cup for highest points by schools; J. L. Machon, Boy with the highest points; Harris Leavitt, Girl with highest points.

Although the wind persisted in blowing, the competitors gave a good account of their prowess in running, jumping and other forms of sport that call for endurance, practice and agility. It may be the vigorous climate or it may be the training received at school, or it may be hereditary, but the pupils assembled showed up well in high jumping, long jumps and in running. Good clean sport will mark good citizens for the future.

Arba Leet of Dewberry Village will won the Machon Cup with 45 points; Jean Gardiner of Hazeldine won the Leavitt cup with 33 points; while the School Cup donated by J. S. McKay was won by Dewberry Village S. D. with highest points for all schools.

Supremacy Of The Law

Even England's King Must Obey Decision Of Court

The Duke of Manchester, sentenced to nine months in jail for fraud, observes ruefully that people are mistaken if they think it is unmitigated fun to be a duke This seems a reasonable statement. If the head that wears a crown cannot always rest at ease it is not to be expected that the head which wears a coronet with strawberry leaves will go through life without a hurt

Putting a British duke in jail for fraud is appropriate in a Jubilee Week which has repeatedly sounded the note of the supremacy of the law to crown and caste. Burke said of the meanest English hovel that the winds may enter it and the rain may enter but the King of England cannot enter without the owner's permission On the other hand, a court of law is something which every Englishman must enter, even the King It will be recalled that some time ago George V. was plaintiff in the celebrated case of Duke of Buccleuch against Cuddy, a Scottish middle agent man who suffers from the delusion that he is the King's eldest son by an early marriage New York Times.

Cook Wins Strange Duel

Special Stew Broke Down Hunger Strike Of Agitators

After existing for five days the cook of the fortress of Heusruijk, Holland, near Utrecht, is smiling again, for he has won a strange battle.

A band of German Communist agitators interned in the fortress went on a hunger strike for better food up their noses scornfully at all food served to them

On the fifth day the cook labored hard, break down their resistance with the choicest dishes he could turn out of his kitchen. He served them so that strip their mouths from watering at the sight of the tempting food, but wouldn't eat it.

Then the cook made a beautiful goulash When it was placed before the Communists they gazed at it for hours Then the strike was declared Dishes were cleared in record time

Now the Communists and the cook are great friends.

Have No Individuality

Asia Work As Much Her Forbears Did 50,000,000 Years Ago

Lord love us, who would be an ant? True, ants do not suffer from toothache Yet when you move a stone, there they are, all rushing about and very busy, and all doing exactly what their forbears did 50,000 000 years ago At least, Professor Dymond, of Ontario Royal Museum says so He shows that all the ants have an heredity occupation, one being a soldier, another a servant, and so on. No social changes ever take place, no reforms The ant population have no new ideas about government, war, business, family, pleasure, or anything else. Custom rules everything with them. The ant goes on toiling not because he is a thinking, intelligent, charter-ful citizen but because he has never developed the power of individuality So he still lives in a mound or under a stone London Daily Express

When Shadows Fall

By WILL R. BIRD

There never has been a more dreadful horror on this earth than that which we call the "the Great War" There may have been more cruel slaughters of the human before civilization; but never since Christianity and culture became dominant And there never have been more glorious hours than some of those we lived "over there". Heaven grant there never will go through life without a hurt

It was an evening in late May. We had come from the trenches in front of Arras and were due for a "rest" somewhere. We had come to the shattered side of Vimy and the companies were supposed to be quartered in the tunnels. But we could go down in those clammy shafts if it were possible to sleep in a smog hemmed you and your pals which had pushed together in a pocket of ground where the grass has grown lush and still held the best of the sun? We had "salvaged" a sheet of the corrugated, and a few sandbags made the sides, and there we could lie and gaze at the stars until sleep overcame us, for the corrugated was only in case of rain.

We had rested all the day, with nothing to do but clean ourselves a bit and eat. The cooks had been busy, and there was mail from home - Canadian mail. In the soft evening our voices seemed ill grew musical Sometimes up the road had a banjo and there was a soldiers' harmony of sweet tenor and bass voices if not well trained. Away in the east the towers of Mount St. Eloi were like sentrys in the dusk. Now and then a light twinkled in the village. There were horse lines everywhere.

A big star as the dusk thickened, and transport was on the move away back. We didn't have to be in the line but yield ourselves to delightful languor. Jimmy Hill was writing his letter. Some of the boys back in the home town hadn't enlisted when his poor old mother, with three boys at the front, was a trifle bitter. We had heard rumors of what the letter written.

A lad we both knew appeared suddenly. He belonged to the good old 67th, and we greeted him as he came, got through the Vimy show. We talked rapidly for a few moments, then all three of us stilled. Away over near Villers au Bois some infantry were in bivouac and all at once a bugle blew "Last Post". As the haunting sweetness of that call came over the land it seemed to put a spell upon us. Many times since There were flowers where there had been blasted earth and they hid the wreckage of old trenches. We were out for rest. We had come through. The voices from Canada were with us, for we had read the 69th list parts of our letters. And something about it all made us suddenly too rhished for speech, made us thrill with a pride at being there, and for that moment the glory of being fighting men revelled our hearts.

Then we rose and led our friend across the road to the tunnels and thirteen platoon had made sleeping places, and we had decorated them with German signs that Jimmy had been carrying with him for two weeks. One read "Vish", and the other "Fiende". The boys thought it grand to have such adornments and were waiting patiently until their stretcher bearer joined them to find out the meaning of the words, and we chuckled together as we explained. The first was "cattle" and the second "horses" and what a time there would be when Jimmy took them

We walked back a distance with the Forty-niner, but walked without talking. The night was too fragrant with the falling dew and scent of flower and growing grass, too soothing with the murmur of voices for us to talk. Then "So long, Joe" "So long, Boys"

Back at our bivvy Jimmy and I sat for hours, just drinking in the night, the sounds about us, the guns firing on the Somme, the faint far-away rattle of machine gun fire like dreamy voices. Never, so long as I live, will I forget that night It seemed to hold us, enthrall us

I wonder where Jimmy is now, if he remembers. It's a long time since that night, but old Vimy is still there. Supposing he's there, waiting to find that very little bone — as I'm going to do when we go back, next summer!

Retains Its Freshness

Freezing Is Now Proven To Keep Sweet Corn

Government agricultural experts have found that sweet corn frozen within four hours after it has been picked retains its original freshness from six months to a year. Freezing stops most of the changes which normally occur rapidly in corn. In the experiments gathering, grading, husking and packing of the corn for freezing were all completed as rapidly as possible The scalding, it is explained, temporarily checks the chemical action taking place in the corn and the freezing permanently stops the action so that if served six months later its original freshness is retained.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JUNE 9

THE HOLY SPIRIT

Golden text: As many as are led by the Spirit of God, these are sons of God. Romans 8:14.

Devotional Reading: John 14:25-31.

Explanations And Comments

When the Comforter Will Be, John 16:7-11. Unless he went away, Jesus told his disciples in his farewell talk, the Comforter would not come, but if he went he would send the Comforter to them. The word Comforter, used for the Holy Spirit, means One to strengthen, upholder, rather than One who consoles. Advocate, Helper, are other translations of the Greek word given in the Bible footnotes.

It was best for his followers that he should leave them, Jesus said. More could it be for their advantage to their best interest, to lose the daily companionship of their Lord? The Holy Spirit is the continued Presence of Christ himself. The Spirit revealed Christ to them, made plain the spiritual insight of his teachings, and gave Christ better after he had left them. While he was with them, they were weak, unable to walk alone. After he went away, leaving them as his witnesses to carry on his work, they became towers of strength, great leaders. They continued all that Christ had begun to do and teach.

What the Holy Spirit Does. The Spirit convinces men of sin, that it is a matter of belief in Christ. Of righteousness, because Christ was going to the Father. "The Holy Spirit will condemn mankind that Christ is a sincere and righteous Saviour," he set, as they had thought, an impostor, as will be clearly demonstrated when the Father has raised him from the dead and set him at his right hand in heaven" (Dummelow). The Spirit will convince of judgment, of condemnation, because Christ's work in this world hath been judged. "Did not Caiaphas, the high priest, and Pontius Pilate, in the soldiers, in the multitude, unite themselves as if by an irresistible compulsion, and at last exhibit its whole terrible length? Was not Christ, as he had said, 'judged,' said Christ: 'the prince of this world has been judged,' not published, but exposed and condemned, judged as a prisoner in court is judged when he is found guilty and sentenced as a criminal, even before the hand of the law takes him from the bar" (Thomas E. Bartlett).

Tribute To Soldiers

People Honor Canadian Flyers Buried in Texas Cemetery

The only British soldiers of the Great War buried in the United States lie in a little plot in the Greenwood cemetery at Fort Worth, Texas Tribute was paid to their memory when several score of persons gathered at the plot and saw the flags of the British Empire and the United States draped around the simple monument that marks the graves of 11 men and the baby daughters of a British soldier. The soldiers were Canadians, members of the Royal Flying Corps, in training at Benbrook field when they lost their lives

Origin Of Old Town

Ancient sailors believed that the halcyon, a bird of the kingfisher family, nested on the waves about the time of the winter solstice, and that the sea remained calm and peaceful during this period; hence the term "halcyon days" for times of peace and tranquility.

Little Journeys in Science

FLUORINE

(By Gordon H. Ouast, M.A.)

All chemical elements may be arranged in families, the members of which are closely related. Fluorine, chlorine, bromine, and iodine make up a remarkable family of non-metallic elements. The group as a whole is often called the halogens, which means "producers of sea salt." They were given this name by scientists because compounds of these elements are found in sea-water. These elements have a very strong tendency to combine with metals and with hydrogen to form compounds known respectively as fluorides, bromides, and iodides, which are often called the halides. Some of the halides, such as sodium chloride (common salt), potassium chloride, and silver bromide, are of great commercial importance.

Fluorine occurs abundantly in the minerals fluorspar and cryolite. Traces of fluorine compounds are found in the bones and enamel of teeth. Very small quantities have been detected in the blood, milk, and tissues of animals.

Fluorine is the most active element known. It was first studied until 1886. This difficult task was accomplished by a brilliant French chemist, Moissan, who produced diamonds from pure charcoal. He obtained the element by electrolysis of a fluorine compound in an apparatus of platinum and fluorspar. Fluorine was given off at the positive electrode.

Fluorine is a pale greenish-yellow gas which may be condensed to a pale yellow liquid. It combines explosively with hydrogen, even in the dark. Many other elements, such as sulphur, phosphorus and carbon, catch fire spontaneously in fluorine, and most metals burn in it. It is interesting to know that fluorine and oxygen do not combine.

One of the most useful compounds of fluorine is hydrofluoric acid This acid attacks glass, and hence must be kept in vessels made of gutta-percha or ceresin, a sort of hard mineral substance. It is used for etching glass. For etching, the glass is covered with a film of wax, and then the design to be etched is drawn on the waxed surface with a sharp point. This acid is then applied to the surface and in a short time the glass is etched. The wax is then removed with turpentine.

Search May Be Ended

Man In Brantford, Ont., Claims He Has Holy Grail

Has the search for the famous Holy Grail ended in Brantford?

George B. Bremner vows it has, and offers in support an ancient wooden vessel which he claims is the original.

Bremner declares the vessel was presented to his brother-in-law by a Christian Jew, in Jerusalem several years ago. The Jew, the last of line, said the Holy Grail was given by Pontius Pilate to an officer of the Roman guard. The officer, to the Jew's credit, was an enemy of his. It had been passed down through the family for hundreds of years

"The vessel is of olive wood. It is remarkably well preserved, if its age is that claimed

Tradition has it the Holy Grail was obtained by Joseph of Arithemea, who took the body of Christ from the cross and buried it. Joseph took the Grail to Glastonbury Abbey in England, so the story goes.

The Holy Grail was sought by King Arthur and the Knights of the Round Table and by the Crusaders

Its 268,000,000 ticks, one to every second, may have impaired its working slightly, so the officials at Greenwich Observatory have decided to have it overhauled

In the meantime, we shall give time signals by the three other clocks. They are all "masters" of clocks driven by electricity."

The attention of contractors is directed towards the "Tenders Wanted" advertisement in this issue by the board of the Stellaville school district. Tenders close on Wednesday, June 12 at noon.

Through the kindness of the School of Agriculture who supplied a dozen green ash trees, ten feet in height, and to Billy Pribble and Douglas Cooper, who did the transplanting work gratis, literally free of charge, the surroundings of the tennis club have been greatly improved.

Pram Stephens was an Edmonton visitor last week end, going to the city on Friday morning. He was at the basketball game, as were also K. G. Urquhart, N. T. Haddow, "Tommy" Thompson of the Bank of Commerce at Wilttaedon was observed at the game by Vermilionites.

Two fine new silent policemen now grace the corners of Bulyea avenue at Main St. and 1st St. South. Anyone running late these fine October days, as a common happening to the old ones, will no doubt find themselves halted before a loud P.M. and charged with attempted manslaughter.

Visitors to town on Monday included Mrs. Ostry and Benny Ostry from Edmonton, who spent the day with Mrs. Jake Wener, Mr. Wener and Mr. Ostry. The journey was made by car.

Mrs. A. P. Cowell of Minburn returned to her home on Friday after being the guest of Mrs. D. L. Kennedy for a week. Mrs. Cowell's little daughter Dorothy is in a precarious patient in the local hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Sherwood of the Morrisno district left later on June 2 to visit Mr. Sherwood's brother at Des Moines, Iowa. These brothers have not seen each other for 25 years. They will stop en route to Des Moines at Winnipeg to visit a nephew of Mr. Sherwood's, who has been badly wounded in the head during the war.

A. W. McKee has purchased a new half-ton 1935 truck from the local agents, W. E. Mackenzie & Son.

D. L. SALVATION ARMY NOTES

Sunday showed another good turnout at the Salvation Army hall. Lieut. Frayne took charge of the service; he led in the choruses and accompanied himself with his guitar. He is a jolly chap and we hope that he will come to Vermilion again. He said he was glad to be here and felt so happy he could jump any and sing all night; he is a fine example to offer young men! One young girl came to the Mercy Seat and there were several testimonies from new converts. Converts have increased a dozen in the last month. The Lord is surely working.

A collection was played on stringed instruments, a guitar and three mandolins, "The Garden of Prayer."

Don't forget to attend next Sunday! Several who were present on last Major Acton should come again and have a good sing. It was do an hour; come along we missed you.

THE REST ROOM QUESTION.

A move which the Board of Trade might well lend their support to, is that of the I.O.D.E. in commencing action for a ladies' rest room in the town of Vermilion. There is now, and always has been, a pressing need for a properly supervised rest room and the sooner such an institution is a fact the better. One of the neatest and prettiest spots in Vermilion is that surrounding their rest room. The intimation by Mayor Fallow, that a thoroughly modern room, equipped with water works and open to all is plan, would, within a month or two be found here to grad news but pending certainty of the development, suggestions should be continued.
